Queen Elizabeth Enjoys Thrill Of Steering Great Luxury Liner

By R. J. ANDERSON

Greenock, Oct. 9. (CP)— The Queen yesterday for a few moments was helmsman of the mighty ship she sent down to sea eight years ago.

Treading the decks of her namesake for the first time, Her Majesty took the wheel of the liner Queen Elizabeth in the choppy waters of the Firth of Clyde to steer the 83,673-ton vessel for a short distance in her speed trials off the Island of Arran. The Queen was "amazed" that such a small device as a brass wheel could control so great a ship.

With the Queen on this Royal yacht for the day were the Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret. In sailing on the ship with which Britain hopes to maintain in post-war years her commanding position in transatlantic runs, the Queen fulfilled a wish she expressed when she launched the Queen Elizabeth on the Clyde, Sept. 27, 1938.

In Fine Weather

Only a slight quiver and roll were noticeable as the liner sped at full speed—more than 30 knots—through the narrow waters of the Clyde.

The Queen and the Princesses spent nearly an hour on the bridge as the liner sped between the Cumbraes—tiny twin islands off the larger island of Arran—to test her speed officially.

The royal party boarded the Queen Elizabeth at Gourock from the tender Queen Mary. After a day's cruise and inspection of the liner which sails October 16 on her maiden voyage as a luxury ship, the party disembarked at Greenock to cheers of thousands lining the Prince's Pier.

The cruise took place in good eatwher. A white haze over the Clyde in the morning gave way shortly before the ship sailed to blue skies flecked with light clouds through which the sun outlined the blue and white vessel in dazzling brilliance. During the speed trial the sky was overcast and a strong wind on the bridge forced the Queen and the Princesses to hold tightly to the hatch.

Officials Presented

Officials of the line, and the Queen Elizabeth's builders were presented to the Queen and the Princesses at various points during the tour of the 1,030-foot ship.

"I've looked forward to this for so long," the Queen told Sir Percy Bates, Cunard White Star Line chairman, as he presented her with freedom of the ship.

After inspection of the ship, the Queen commented on the thousands of names and initials carved on the rails by some of the 800,000 Canadian and American troops the Elizabeth carried during the war. Right where the Queen stood was the boldly cut inscription, "R. Mitchell".

The Queen, at first given a dummy wheel in her steering job, turned it over and exclaimed. "Nothing's happening!" She insisted on being given the real wheel.

Birth of Twins Nearly Floors Former Commando

Four years ago he waded ashore with his buddies of the Royal Naval Commandos. Ahead in the Norwegian town of Bergen, Jerry machine guns and mortars poured a deadly fire into the advancing blue jackets.

One of his buddies fell, struck by German bullets. He looked at the M.O. "What is it sir?" he asked. "Nothing serious, my boy," the medical officer replied.

The other day he paced up and down the "agony walk" in the Belleville General Hospital. Hours passed. Sweat glinted on his face. He wore a worried look.

Then a door opened and a doctor emerged. He stopped his pacing and turned quickly to the medical man.

"What it is, doctor?" he queried anxiously. "Nothing serious my boy," the doctor smiled. "You mean 'what are they' don't you?"

The man's eyes widened in surprise. He opened his mouth but couldn't speak. The doctor smiled again and took him by the hand. "You have two lovely baby girls in there, two of the finest babies I have seen in a long while."

The proud poppa wiped beads of sweat from his brow. Then he grinned, let out a naval war whoop and embraced the surprised M.O. in a bear-like hug.

He is Don Francis, 147 West Moira Street, employee of the Roblin Dairy. His wife, is the former Rita Fitzgibbon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Fitzgibbon, 73 Lewis Street.

"Whew" murmured the new father after he had recovered his mental equilibrium. "That was tough. Going shore at Bergen, a fellow knew what he might get, but in this business of raising a family, you can't tell what might be your lot."

The ex-seaman-gunner is a native of Picton and a son of marine captain and Mrs. Francis of that town. He served five and one-half years in the Royal Canadian Navy, and on his last furlough home attracted a lot of attention with a flaming red beard.

Says Veteran Must Earn $250 Month Under Present Housing

Montreal, Oct. 9 — (CP)—A veteran must earn $250 a month to afford a moderately priced house offered under present housing plans, J. L. E. Price, chairman of the housing committee of the Quebec Command of the Canadian Legion, said last night.

He said too much political and academic thinking and too little practical planning was the cause of the government's unpreparedness in regards to housing.

Legion members were warned not to become the "tools of any agitators."

Lone Woman Finds Arctic Life Rather Grim

By JACK GRAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Life in the Arctic can be pretty grim for a woman unless she loves making men happy with good cooking.

Back from the vast, treeless expanse of Northern Baffin Land, where the nights are three months' long in the winter, Hugh R. Longfield, 34, of Tilsonburg, disclosed in an interview yesterday that one woman did all the cooking for the five men at the weather station there.

The woman, Mrs. John Gillis of Edmonton, returned with her husband, Longfield and Harold Serson, 20, of Ottawa last week on the Arctic supply ship Nascople after a year inside the Arctic Circle.

Men need lots of food to stoke their bodies against the 60 below zero winter nights. Mrs. Gillis, now en route home after reporting with her husband to the Dominion Meteorological Service headquarters here, did all her cooking on stoves fueled with coal and made her own bread with flour brought in on the Nascople.

No Novice.

Think of a place where hairdo's are haphazard, the nearest beauty parlor is thousands of miles away, where there are no movies and no shopping district and transportation is by dog sled. That's Arctic Bay.

Of course, you could buy articles at the Hudson Bay Company Post, Longfield said. For spiritual comfort and social calls there was Roman Catholic mission and an Anglican mission at Moffet Inlet, 70 miles away.

But the meteoroligists seldom left the station. There was always work to do, the radio to listen to, games of bridge to play, books to read, knitting.

Even Flowers.

There were some compensation. Electric lights, supplied from a generator driven by a gasoline motor, made the long nights cheerful. The Nascople brought in the gasoline and also a washing machine and a chesterfield.

There was even hard and soft water for washing. In the summer the Eskimos brought the hard water from a nearby lake and chopped holes in the ice to bring in barrelfuls during the winter. The soft water came from melted snow.

There were even flowers.

"In the three months of daylight we called summer," said Longfield, "there were thousands of dwarf flowers — the Iceland poppy and others. The only other vegetation was moss and in the middle of it you'd see thousands of tiny flowers — all different colors."

Prime Minister Smuts

Prime Minister Field Marshal Smuts of South Africa, the sage veteran statesman of the British Empire, who has left an indelible impression on the world by his political sagacity, raised his voice in a cheering plea before the Paris Peace Conference for unity and tolerance between the Eastern and Western powers. He brought out into the open and purposely spoke of this problem before the meetings of the nations to draw up the peace. It was, he said, both disappointing and discouraging to find that a cleavage has been revealed developing between east and west "which might bode ill for the future of world peace." How deeply he was concerned over it is indicated by his statement that "this cleavage may, in time, overshadow the work of the conference itself. We seem in this moment of unparalleled victory to be forming up into new camps of east and west. "That would be fatal," he remarked. "This is a peace conference" and "it should not be an overture to a bigger struggle to come."

Bringing the matter before the conference's first plenary session, he said, "There is no difference which cannot be reconciled, no breach which cannot be bridged."

Prime Minister Smuts is the only senior statesman who was at Versailles when the treaty was drawn up which followed the close of the war of 1914-1918.

Fire Hazard and Prevention

No season is more apt than the autumn season in which to stress the exercise of every care to prevent the outbreak of fires. With the season of heating of houses at hand, it is essential to urge the need of making the necessary repairs to heating plant, cleaning the pipes and chimneys, and adopting the very necessary rule of care in everything in which fire is concerned.

Since last year's fire prevention week observance there has been a heavy fire loss in property and human lives in Canada. Fire has swept forests, destroyed farm and factory and city homes in many communities. But the fire record is so much with the people year after year that there is danger of their ignoring what should not be ignored. Montreal Herald comments in this respect that the average Canadian "is inclined to leave the prevention, as well as the extinction of fires, to the administrations he supports with his taxes. It is the purpose of fire prevention week to arouse him from this irresponsible apathy. He provides fire with most of its opportunities. Until he realizes this and mends his ways, the messages and warning must be reiterated."

If each person will take up the question of fire precaution as a personal matter, fire losses could not but be greatly reduced.

Weather's Appeal

Attraction of weather and weather news for man is seen in the stress which newspapers place upon the weather. Last week there was the early snowfall and it drew many columns of news. This week came some of the balmiest of days and pictures and news stories told how thousands of New Yorkers went to the beach at Coney Island.

So it ever is. The sun brings out the motorist and the pedestrian and many a man is willing to help set such a record. A mild day in winter tempts many to their sorrow to lay off an overcoat and run the risk of chill by darting out without adequate clothing protection for a moment into the outdoors to suffer perhaps a chill or severe cold.

Man of course is inevitably bound up with nature. The weather has been his associate. It has made possible the existence and development of the race and the setting in which his life is cast.

"Probs" will continue to be important news. Such information is important today in a world of travel and flitting about from place to place for man no longer is fastened to one limited section but finds himself rather in an unbounded world from which he receives so many impressions. He is interested in every phase of life in nature.

Popularity of the almanac is another sign and indication of that appeal of weather and nature.

Lake That Disappeared

The mystery of the "lake that disappeared" has Queensland, Australia, scientists puzzled — and disputing. Which of the theories advanced is correct may never be known, but these are the facts:

Lake Nooga Nooga, situated on Warranilla station, north of the Carnarvon Range in Queensland, was a considerable body of water. At its widest part it was about five miles across; its depth varied from a few feet to 20. On Christmas Eve, 1944, muffled explosion was heard in the district. Local residents say that from then on the area of water steadily decreased. Today, all that remains of Lake Nooga Nooga is a strip of mud about 100 yards by 20. Since the explosion, there has been no life in the lake.

Residents in the locality believe the Christmas Eve explosion opened a channel to an underground shale layer, which is thought to run through to Springsure, 70 miles away. But a Queensland University geology professor thinks evaporation, caused by abnormally dry weather, is the real explanation of the lake's disappearance.

Two other "mysteries" on Queensland's Atherton Tableland are Lakes Barrine and Eacham. Though these two lakes are 3,000 feet above sea level and have no connection with any watercourse, they are tidal. The lakes are 15 miles apart and district residents believe they are connected by a subterranean channel.

Local legend: A native woman was drowned in one of the lakes in the pioneer days, and her body was found in the other.

Bishop May be Right

Bishop Martin of Saskatchewan, speaking in Winnipeg, appealed to the white man to refrain from influencing Canadian Eskimos. "The Eskimos are a happy people on their own — in God's name leave them alone," he said.

Generally, whenever the so-called backward races of the world are under discussion we listen to appeals to educate them, reform them, civilize them. We are urged to teach them to live in houses with indoor plumbing, to clothe themselves in accordance with the dictates of fashion, to contract marriages according to the white man's custom, to build factories and punch time clocks. We want to confer upon them all our modern advantages, including strikes, divorces, political bickering and the atomic bomb.

The Anglican Bishop's viewpoint is therefore novel. Its novelty is perhaps the measure of our own somewhat distorted views on the desirable way of life.

With all our complex civilization, our modern miracles, can we claim to be a "happy people?"

ANOTHER ACCOMPLISHMENT

Time flies so swiftly one loses all track.
Today man looks forward, tomorrow looks back.
Growth comes at such speed, as all grown-ups have learned,
With every new morning some corner is turned.
Just a little past five! Let me give you the facts:
Ellen Elizabeth adds and subtracts.

Time was that we wondered how soon she would talk;
How long it would be ere she ventured to walk.
But both of those skills were acquired in a wink,
And now she has started to reason and think.
No wonder her grandpa is proud of her acts.
Ellen Elizabeth adds and subtracts.

It is good, I am sure, for an old fellow's heart
To note that a child of his child is so smart.
It is balm for his hurts to be able to boast
With pride of the ones whom he cherishes most.
So this, though but pitying smiles it attracts:

London Letter

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 9—(CP)—Greatest compliment that can be paid any community in Britain is to say it's free from queues—something that certainly can't be said about London.

Queues are still a routine part of existence here, and although they're cursed by everyone there's no indication when they are likely to become unnecessary.

More than a year ago Sir Ben Smith, then food minister, said: "I can see no short-cuts to the abolition or substantial reduction of food queues. They will diminish as soon as supplies of unrationed foodstuffs and the number of shop assistants are increased."

Today government officials can't improve upon his statement. Food isn't the only thing that attracts queues. Women queue for shoes; children queue for ice cream, everyone queues for cigarettes. The long lines stand mutely outside theatres, football grounds and railway stations.

Housewives are the loudest grumblers and no wonder. Shopping takes hours as they stand in wind and rain to fill their net bags with cabbages and potatoes, unwrapped bread, and fish (which they wrap in their own newspaper) from the gleaming marble slabs of the fishmongers.

It may be desire for tidbits which causes the line-ups, or it may be that English housewives have certain hours which they consider proper or convenient for shopping. Women who slip out in the "in between" hours often get the same goods without waiting.

Queues have been violently criticized for years but no successful alternatives have been advanced. When the Northampton town of Kettering decided to make them illegal, the protests grew louder than ever.

Doctors have traced insomnia and nervous disorders among women to the tiresome ordeal of queueing, and an article in the British Medical Journal discussed "ecro-paraesthesia," a form of neuritis caused by standing for long periods in the damp.

"The way some of those women talk would surprise you," said a butcher. "And watch one another! Coo, just let one try to get ahead! Ruddy lynxes, they are."

JODL'S WIFE APPEALS TO TRUMAN

Mrs. Luise Jodl, wife of General Jodl, age 41, is shown ABOVE with Jodl's daughter. She is Jodl's second wife. She was a Red Cross nurse before marriage. They were married just before the war ended in February, 1945. Frau Jodl continued her appeals to save her husband from the gallows by addressing a letter to President Truman. Earlier she made a written appeal to General Eisenhower. In the letter to Truman she appealed to him as commander-in-chief of the U.S. forces. If the appeal fails, Jodl, who signed the German surrender at Rheims, will ask to die an "honorable" death by firing squad.

Producers Want Higher Prices For Butter, Cheese

Ottawa, Oct. 9 (CP)—The Government today took under consideration a request by the Dairy Farmers of Canada for higher prices of milk produced for butter, cheese and concentrated products to bring them more in line with the increased rates prevailing for whole milk for fluid consumption.

A delegation, headed by W. O. Coon of Elgin, Ont., president of Ontario Cheese Producers, presented a brief to officials of the Agricultural Prices Support Board and the Food Board urging that some adjustment be made to compensate producers.

Specifically, the delegation asked for increases which would bring the return for the producer up to these levels: Milk for concentrated milk, $3 a 100 pounds, up 83 cents; milk for cheese, $2.88 a 100 pounds, up 69 cents; and milk butter fat, 74 cents, up 22 cents.

These increases, the delegation said, were needed if these producers were to be put on par with producers of whole milk, who recently saw their subsidy of 55 cents a 100 pounds boosted to $1 through the three-cent-a-quart increase in retail milk prices.

The delegation suggested the institution of an export subsidy if it was deemed necessary to provide food-short countries foodstuff, such as cheese and processed milk products.

Earth Will Not Suffer 3 Acquitted Says Writer

London, Oct. 9 (CP)—Pravda's caustic writer Zaslavsky said today that the Nuernberg tribunal's verdict of acquittal of Franz Von Papen, Hjalmar Schacht and Hans Fritsche cannot be carried out because "the earth will not suffer them."

"Justice Lawrence declared they were free and could go where they like," Zaslavsky wrote in an article broadcast by Moscow radio.

"However, they are not free. They cannot go where they please. Schacht is under arrest again, Fritsche is under guard and Von Papen does not want to leave the prison....

" . . . in no country claiming the name of democracy do the people desire to offer asylum to these odious plotters against mankind. The earth will not suffer them."

SIX KILLED IN EXPLOSION OF GERMAN AMMUNITION

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 9 — (AP) — Three American soldiers and three German prisoners of war were killed today in the explosion of 3,000 pounds of enemy ammunition at an ordnance dump near Bremerhaven, continental base section headquarters announced.

Three United States soldiers and six German prisoners were injured. Cause of the explosion is unknown.

EXTRADITION SOUGHT

Vienna, Oct. 9 — (AP) — Dr. Josef Gerl, Austria's minister of justice, sent to the Allied Control Council today his government's formal request for extradition of Franz Von Papen and Baldur Von Schirach for trial here on war crimes charges dating back to the Anschluss. Von Papen was acquitted last week by the international military tribunal at Nuernberg while Von Schirach was given a 20-year prison sentence.

SO YOU ARE CHARMED

Two dear old ladies vacationing in a neighboring cabin, found a snake in the woodpile. One of the harmless little black snakes that live along streams, ponds and lakes and marshes in most parts of the country. They called for help. They refused to listen to any explanation of the harmlessness of the little snakes. They demanded instant killing — and, by damn, I had to comply or else.

I remembered the attitude of my father — from whom I got many of my vagaries, I suppose —in regard to flies. Why kill them, he always asked, as he brushed them away gently. What harm do they do us?

Well, we know better now—we know that flies carry all sorts of disease germs on their feet, and therefore may bring us serious illness if they have access to food or food utensils. So I do not mind swatting flies, when necessary. But I do hate to kill an ordinary spider, not because spiders (except the black widow) are harmless to man, but because spiders kill flies, mosquitoes and other insects that are more or less harmful to man.

Young infants and children who have never been taught, by precept or example, to fear snakes, welcome snakes and play with them as they play with other pets.

Whether there is any foundation for the idea that snakes "charm" their prey, I don't know, but if a bird or other small animal becomes powerless to escape when suddenly confronted by a snake it is only because fear momentarily paralyzes the prey, just as sudden fright or terror makes many a person "freeze" for a few seconds before he or she can act.

Every brave, courageous man or woman in the services—and there were as many women in this category as there were men, in proportion with the numbers who served—admitted he or she was all but paralyzed with fear at the time of the act of bravery. Speaking of courage, on p 161 of Navy Nurse (Whittlesey House) by Page Cooper, there is a beautiful picture of it—the first Navy flight nurse to set foot on any battlefield, preparing a wounded marine for evacuation. This picture should be hung alongside of that other famous Iwo Jima picture and placed on a postage stamp, too. It must give every nurse new and greater pride in her calling and it should inspire many thousands of girls to choose nursing as a career.

It makes a world of difference whether a patient regards a proposed or necessary operation with dread or with indifference if not actual confidence or assurance. This is one thing I know from experience as a patient. My indifference or lack of anxiety, worry or dread about the operation or the outcome was certainly not due to personal courage or anything of the kind — just between ourselves and not for publication I'm Mr. Milquetoast's 4F cousin when it comes to sticking my neck out when I can possibly hold it in—but thanks entirely to preliminary anoci association treatment my operation (for gangrenous appendicitis) was actually a pleasant experience, every moment of it.

Anoci association (developed by the late great Dr. George Crile before World War 1) is now a routine principle of all surgery, just as asepsis is. Anoci association (or anociation, as it is sometimes called) means exclusion of injurious or harmful (nocert in Latin means to injure) impulses, both conscious impressions or stimuli and impulses which beat upon the nerve centres even though the patient be unconscious or under full general anesthesia (for instance pinching, irritation, cauterizing or unnecessary handling of living tissues.)

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Approach of Dry Season

I am 14 years old and have an opportunity to enter a military school but because of bed-wetting I am barred. School term begins in a week—so I will appreciate promptness in your reply.

(K. T.)

Answer—I'm sorry, son, but your letter turned up only a week after school opened — you see, there were about four thousand ahead of you, and I have to do some bowling on the green every day or two in order to keep from going ga-ga. Write again and, tip —that is, To Insure Promptness, this time inclose stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for pamphlet on Bed-Wetting. Meanwhile, remember this: Ninety-nine out of a hundred children or youths who wet the bed can correct the habit themselves if and when they become determined to do so.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the oldest college in the United States?

Harvard University, founded in 1636, has been operated continuously longer than any other institution of higher learning in the United States. The first building on the campus at Cambridge was erected in 1637 and the first commencement took place in 1642.

The College of William and Mary founded at Williamsburg, Virginia, in 1693, is regarded as the second oldest institution of higher learning in the United States, although college activities at William and Mary were suspended for several years during the Revolutionary and Civil wars.

Yale University at New Haven, originally established in 1701 as the Collegiate College of America at Saybrook, Connecticut, is the third oldest institution of higher learning in the United States in respect to age and the second oldest in respect to continuous operation.

From 1899 to 1946 the University of Manila in the Philippines was the oldest institution of higher learning in territory under the jurisdiction of the American flag. It was established as the University of Santo Tomas in 1611 by Dominican missionaries and has been operated under Catholic auspices ever since with the exception of a period during the Second World War when the Japanese held Manila.

The University of San Marcos at Lima, Peru, founded in 1551, is the oldest university or college in the New World, and the University of Mexico at Mexico City, founded in 1553, is the oldest in North America.

Transylvania College at Lexington Kentucky, founded in 1780, is the oldest college in the United States west of the Alleghenies.

Air Force-Trained Fliers Operating Number of Flying Schools Throughout Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

Airfields suitable for commercial and amateur flying abound in Canada—largely as a result of the wartime commonwealth air training plan—and air force-trained fliers are operating a number of flying schools throughout the Dominion, a coast-to-coast survey by the Canadian Press has disclosed.

Establishments set up under the plan by which fliers of the commonwealth countries and other United Nations were trained for combat have in many cases been taken over by commercial air lines while local flying clubs now operate others.

Meanwhile plans are going ahead in several localities for the building of new fields as aviation plays a larger and larger part in the life of the Dominion.

From East to West, here is the present picture:

Prince Edward Island has four airports. A large field at Mount Pleasant and a small one at Wellington are out of use but amateur flying is carried on at Summerside and Maritime Central Airways planes operate out of Charlottetown.

N. S. Has 12 Fields

Nova Scotia already has 12 fields—many R. C. A. F. -built and Halifax authorities are surveying suburban land for a city airport. The field with in the city now is operated by military authorities.

The large R. C. A. F. field at Eastern Passage, across Halifax harbor from the city, is still the main air force base in the Maritimes and also serves as eastern terminus for the T. C. A. Maritime Central operates a Moncton-Charlottetown-Yarmouth-Greenwood feeder route.

Moncton is the air hub of New Brunswick. The T. C. A., operating out of Lakeburn—scene of a big R. C. A. F. wartime development on the city's outskirts—and from Blissville, between Fredricton and Saint John, served as a link between Montreal and Dartmouth, N. S. Wartime fields at Pennfield and Chatham are not in use.

Quebec plans no new airfields but an expansion program for Dorval near Montreal will get under way when post-war requirements become fully defined. All 15 fields in the province used for R. C. A. F. training during the war still are open and many are used by civil aircraft, commercial fliers and amateur clubs.

Flying Centre at Toronto

Ontario—most air-minded Province—has its largest flying centre at Toronto. City-administered fields at Malton, a few miles west, and on the island in Toronto Bay, used by the R. C. A. F. during the war, now are ports of entry for American air lines and T. C. A. flights from New York. Flying schools operate at Barker and de Haviland fields near the city.

Former air force fields at many other Ontario points are used by commercial and amateur fliers, and some new fields are planned.

A group of R. C. A. F. veterans plan to open a field at Peterborough in 1948 as a tourist centre and will feature fishing trips and sight-seeing flights.

London—said to be Canada's third-busiest air centre, after Toronto and Montreal—has many commercial companies in operation. Other busy Ontario fields are at Kingston, Welland, Kitchener, Hamilton, Belleville, North Bay, St. Thomas, Windsor, Brantford and Oshawa. A new airport is being built at Wiarton in the Bruce Peninsula.

No New Ones Planned

No new fields are planned for the Ottawa area, already served by Rockcliffe and Uplands. The former is used by the R. C. A. F. exclusively while Dominion owned Uplands is a stop-off point on the Toronto-Montreal T.C.A. run, northern terminal of Colonial Airlines' New York-Washington route, serves the Laurentian Air Service and is extensively used by amateurs.

Numerous R. C. A. F. fields in Manitoba are being abandoned and their buildings moved to nearby centres to alleviate the housing shortage. Stevenson field at Winnipeg, recently granted $3,000,000 for expansion, serves T. C. A., Northwest and Canadian Pacific Airlines. Port at the Pas and Flin Flon, only of use to pontoon and ski-equipped craft, are employed by bush service planes. A relief field at Netly, near Gimli on Lake Winnipeg, was used last summer to train air cadets in glider flying. The Gimli field is an R.C.A.F. winter experimental station. Other R. C. A. F. establishments at Portage La Prairie, Brandon, Rivers, Dauphin, Carberry and MacDonald are used as emergency bases.

Regina Alone Available

Most of Saskatchewan's many war-born fields now have been abandoned but those at Regina Yorkton and Assiniboia are to be used as permanent R. C. A. F. bases. Regina's municipal field is the only airport available for commercial and civilian fliers.

Canadian Pacific Airlines, United Airlines and T. C. A. planes crossing Alberta use the Dominion Municipal airfield while the R. C. A. F. also uses this port and maintains a weather experimental establishment in the city.

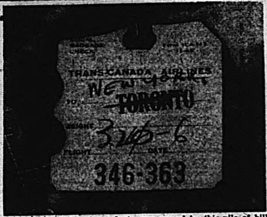
There are 54 airfields in British Columbia, of which 15 were built during the war by the R. C. A. F. The Air Force still maintains 12 of these but it is believed that most shortly will be turned over to the Dominion Transport Department.

About 20 flying services and 11 amateur clubs have come into existence since the end of the war. The main commercial companies flying on British Columbia routes are T. C. A., Canadian Pacific and United.



Tumult and shouting aplenty was caused by this pile of bills, $10,000 in all, found by Roy Woodward, TCA baggageman, and Kenneth Bradshaw, general agent at Malton, in a suitcase which arrived from Winnipeg, checked to New York, but with no forwarding address. Before the owner had been found R.C.M.P., Toronto police, Customs and Excise and the Foreign Exchange Control Board had taken an interest in the case. Today the owner had his $10,000 back.

71st Field Regt., R.C.H.A. to Move To Camp Shilo

Ottawa, Oct. 9 — (CP)—One of the oldest artillery units in Canada — the 71st Field Regiment of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery — will move from Petawawa military camp Oct. 10 to take up new headquarters at Camp Shilo, Man., defence headquarters announced.

The regiment, first organized in 1871, saw service in the South African War and was part of the First Canadian Contingents to go overseas in both the First and Second Great Wars. The transfer to Manitoba is in line with a previously-announced plan to concentrate the bulk of Canada's post-war active force artillery field units on the Manitoba prairie lands for training.

Winnipeg, Oct. 9 (CP)— Canada must increase production in order to stem the trend toward the "pseudo-prosperity" of the post-war period, C. Gordon Cockshutt of Brantford, President of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, told the Chamber's 17th annual meeting which opened Tuesday.

Mr. Cockshutt said ceiling prices, which "of necessity must be below levels dictated by economic factors," have proven a greater incentive to consumers than to producers. Canadian business had nevertheless "tried desperately" to achieve a generous measure of production at relatively low costs.

Three of the main stumbling blocks encountered by business in its reconversion efforts, Mr. Cockshutt said, were labor strife, the "persistence of Ottawa" in projecting wartime controls into the indeterminate future" and an "out-moded system of taxation which has been patched so often that future mending is unadvisable."

The speaker warned that the present small population of Canada could not permanently control a country as large as the Dominion without covetous eyes being cast on it. He cautioned, however, against the Dominion being thrown wide open to immigration unless careful selection of immigrants was made.

In this connection, Mr. Cockshutt added that large numbers of any one race should not be allowed to colonize any one section of the country, but that they should be assimilated through the populace as a whole.

The importance of production as a means of developing the export trade was emphasized. At the present time, he said, exports are being seriously curtailed through domestic troubles. Unemployment would be the inevitable result unless these troubles were ironed out and foreign trade regained.

Criticizing what he termed "the soporific policies of the socialists" Mr. Cockshutt said "our wealth must be created through the dynamic enterprise and action of free men working in a free environment."

Americans See Views Of Steaks at Windsor

New York, Oct. 8 (CP) — New Yorkers, undergoing a meat shortage, were given a look at pictures of Canadian steaks by two New York newspapers Monday.

The Sun carried a three-column front-page display showing an open-mouthed Detroiter at the moment of intake, devouring a big T-bone steak in Windsor. Another picture showed Detroit cars lined up to get through customs at Windsor.

The last time Canadian steaks aroused envy, and even criticism, here, the United States had meat rationing and Canada hadn't. This time Canada has rationing and the United States hasn't.

Questions and Answers

Readers may direct their questions, giving their name and address and mentioning the name of this paper to Information Branch, WPTB, 490 Sussex Street, Ottawa, Ont.

Q. Would you have any information on how to preserve fruit with less sugar? I would also like to know how to can vegetables such as peas and beans.

A. Copies of such recipes may be obtained by writing to Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. However, we have mailed you a booklet direct so that you will not be held up in your canning.

Q. I am a tenant in a returned soldier's home and have lived here for over six years. Now he wants us to get out as he needs the house for himself. Others continue to live in such homes and I cannot understand why we should have to vacate as we have paid our rent regularly and have taken very good care of the place. Is he allowed to give us notice?

A. If this returned soldier owned your home before he enlisted in the armed services he is entitled to regain possession after he has given you three full months notice. While we appreciate fully the housing situation, consideration must be given to the veterans. However, if this veteran purchased this home after his return from overseas he would not be able to give notice to his tenants as they would be protected by the 'freezing order'.

Q. Could you please tell me if there is a ceiling price on used pianos? I have one to sell and would like to know.

A. Yes . . . there is a ceiling price on used pianos. Under Wartime Prices and Trade Board Order A-1529 you may sell your piano at a price not exceeding 80 per cent of the original cost if it is in good condition. However, if it is in need of repairs you may only charge up to 60 per cent of the original price.

BRIDGE ST. CHURCH W.M.S.

The October meeting of Bridge Street United Church W.M.S., was held in the ladies' parlor of the Church on Friday, with the President, Mrs. R. D. P. Davidson in charge.

The opening hymn was followed by prayer. The Thank-offering meeting to be held in November was announced with the speaker to be Mrs. A. A. Outram, Community Friendship Secretary. The various reports were received. Mrs. A. H. Maguire was appointed as the delegate to the sectional rally at Cannifton. A very interesting event of the afternoon was the presentation by the Past-President, Miss Brown, of a Life Membership in the W.M.S. to the President, Mrs. R. D. P. Davidson.

Mrs. W. N. Montgomery and her group took charge of the program. Mrs. J. M. Wood read the Scripture Lesson followed by prayer. The new study book "India, at the Threshold", was introduced. Readings of the "Village Life in India", were given by Mesdames Houston, Pitman, Campbell and Hyde. Mrs. Davidson told of the instruction books on India which had been so carefully selected by Miss Campbell. Miss MacKay, travelling secretary of the W.C.T.U., addressed the meeting for a few minutes.

The meeting closed with prayer.

RICE EMERGES FROM DOGHOUSE TO BECOME HERO

By JOE REICHLER

Boston, Oct. 9. (AP)—The World Series baseball classic, which down through the years has had its share of "ugly ducklings" who came out of the shadows of obscurity to steal the thunder from the more publicized stars, may produce another this year in Del Rice, third-string catcher of St. Louis Cardinals.

The slender catcher, who only two weeks ago was in Manager Eddie Dyer's doghouse, teamed up with pitcher Harry (The Cat) Brecheen to make the second game of the World Series a two-man show.

Besides handling a perfect game for Brecheen and calling for pitches which set the mighty Williams down four times without a hit, Rice batted 1.000 with a double, a single, a walk, scored two runs and set up the third in the Cards' 3-0 victory.

Rice hadn't caught an inning Sept. 21 when he had the misfortune to let a third strike against Bill Nicholson of Chicago get away from him, then threw wildiy to first which led to a Cub run in one of the numerous crucial games the Cards participated in. Luckily the Cards came back to win 2-1, but Dyer, whether by coincidence or design, never used Rice again during the regular season.

It was only because Brecheen preferred Rice as his battery mate that the mild-mannered youngster, who had expected to watch the series from the bench, got his chance at all. The fact that Mickey Harris, a southpaw, was pitching for the Boston Red Sox also had something to do with the decision.

Joe Garagiola and Clyde Klutt, both added starters this season, were expected to divide the catching for the Red Birds in the series.

"Although I had worked with Brecheen all year," confided Rice, "I did not expect to see any action in the World Series. I was the most surprised guy in St. Louis when Dyer, on the morning of the game, told me I was to catch.

"No I was not bitter at all about sitting out the last 10 days on the bench. If Eddie felt it was best for the club, that was good enough for me. The most important thing was to win the flag. Nothing else mattered".

"I ALWAYS GO 'ROUND WITH PLAYER'S MILD CIGARETTES—THEY HAVE WETPROOF PAPER—IT'S THE ONLY THING!"

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON Jr.

Boston, Oct. 9. (AP)—They're talking about the weather in Boston even more than they're talking about Ted Williams' failure to hit through the Cards' lopsided defence—and that requires a lot of talk. . . The weatherman has predicted that it will be cloudy and cool to-day—"pretty miserable baseball weather"—but that rain would hold off until after the third World Series game. Rain, at this time of year in New England, usually means a northeaster. .. The only one in favor of that is a local writer, who, like many others of the clan, is feuding with Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey. . . . "Much as I'd like to have it over," he explained, "it would be worth having it rain just to make that guy feed the mob at press headquarters for four or five days."

Fenway Foolishness

One red-hot rumor here is that Red Rolfe will be the Yankees next manager although even those who say they know have a hard time seeing the mild-mannered Red getting along with boisterous Larry MacPhail. . . Another is that Sam Breadon will dispose of a couple of his pennant-winning Cards during the winter and the buyer will be Lou Perini, who needs only to strengthen a couple o fspots to make his braves into flat contenders.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

Each brought hockey fame to the other, the Patricks and the Rangers. Now, the training camp move that strips the last of them, Lynn, from the active role of the New York team may presage a new era in the family's coaching dynasty. With Lynn coach of New Haven Ramblers of the American Hockey League and his brother Murray mentor of St. Louis of the United States League both Rangers farm clubs, an N.H.L. job for either may not be far off.

The blond Lynn, who like his dark-haired brother found a playing career hard to resume after a long service absence, said when his appointment was announced yesterday he felt "good for another couple of years in the N.H.L. but this is too good a chance to pass up."

Their departure breaks a link their dad joined with Rangers 20 years and more ago. Lester retired as manager of the New York team last February. His brother Frank, whose career spread through 38 years of hockey, left the game because of ill health in 1941 as administrative manager of Montreal Canadiens.

As if to show Lynn the lot of a coach is not easy, Frank Boucher sent his Rangers on a rampage against the Rangers in an exhibition game at Winnipeg last night for a 9-2 victory.

Rounding out a western Canada exhibition tour with their farm club, Kansas City Pla-Mors, Chicago Black Hawks overpowered the United States League team, 7-5, in an Edmonton contest last night. The Hawks intend to open their N.H.L. campaign with experience rather than youth. Bill Gadsby, former Edmonton junior and right winger with the Pla-Mors through the tour, will stay with the farm club but "will be a Hawk before the winter is over," promises President Bill Tobin.

The Maple Leafs made it unanimous for the N.H.L. clubs last night with a 4-1 victory over Pittsburg Hornets in an exhibition tilt at Hamilton. Ted (Teeter) Kennedy sparkled at centre with three tallies, two within a minute in the second period.

With all clubs boning up for the opening test a little over a week away, all N.H.L. clubs are going in heavy for the exhibition contest. Tonight, Boston Bruins meet the American Hockey League Bears at Hershey while Detroit Red Wings will play Indianapolis their American League farm club, at Galt, Ont.

So that every man on both squads will be given an opportunity to prove himself under pressure, the Bruins and the Bears have decided on a twin-bill for their Hershey appearance. Some 50 players will be in action.

Detroit and Indianapolis intend to shift players around considerably to get a line on what they have in the Galt exhibition. Getting particular attention from Detroit will be Thain Simon of Pembroke, Ont., a brother of former wing Cully Simon. The 23-year-old winger is said to be just about ripe for the big league.

Ki-Y Champions Receive Crests

The champions of the Bantam, Midget and Juvenile sections of the Kiwanis-Y.M.C.A. softball series gathered at the Y.M.C.A. the other evening to receive their championship Crests and awards.

Bantam Crests were presented by Miss Goodier, Midget Crests, by Jim Rapino and Juvenile Crests by Bud Johnston, all acting on behalf of the Ki-Y executive.

The series enjoyed a successful season with some eighteen teams (two hundred teen age boys competing in their age groups.

Refreshments were served at the conclusion of the meeting.

The referees all of whom served without remuneration were presented with ties in recognition of contribution toward the success of the series.

PERFECT TRIBUTE

Blackpool, England (CP)— The model of a guardsman at the entrance to a Blackpool waxworks was so life-like that holiday-maker W. H. McCrea punched it on the nose and smashed it. He was bound over for 12 months and charged £10 ($40) for the damage.

CHICAGO HAWKS WILL BE STRONGER THAN LAST YEAR

By NORMAN ALTSTEDSTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Oct. 9 — (CP) — A strengthened defence fronted by last season's top-scoring line gives Chicago Black Hawk's coach Johnny Gottselig hopes of making National Hockey League hay starting Oct. 20 against Bruins at Boston.

Hawks, third on the N. H. L. 1945-46 list, intended to stress youth when 67 professionals and amateurs flooded training camp ice, but two 34-year-old defencemen, Eddie Wares, a Calgary product, and Reg (Elbows) Hamilton, showed enough exuberance to retain their positions.

The new mainspar in the rearguard is 24-year-old Leo Reise, Jr., a six-footer who plays in the same heavy-hipped style for which his father won fame with the old Saskatoon Sheiks. Reise is one of the reasons president Bill Tobin stresses the importance of Kansas City Pla-Mors, the Hawk farm club which developed the Brantford, Ont., youngster.

High scorers last season and the only definite grouping on the team to date, the Bentley-Bentley-Mosienko line, often rumored to be on the verge of disbandment, has continued to show its famed zip.

Doug's Knee Better

The knee injury which forced Doug, elder member of the Delisle, Sask., pair, out of the game for two months last year, has been no deterrent in practices. Brother Max, a member of the "more than 20" goal club, and Hart Trophy winner last season, and Bill Mosienko, right-winger from Winnipeg, will flank the 30-year-old veterans.

Burly Red Hamill, captain and left-winger formerly of Copper-cliff, has shown best form of other forwards being juggled for the second string line.

Karakas Retires

It is expected that 29-year-old Johnny Mariucci, the Eveleth, Minn., bouncer will be coupled with Reise on the defence. But Hawks will carry an added rearguardsman in view of the new 60-game schedule. Coach Gottselig's difficult choice is between Ralph Nattras, former Moose Jaw Junior Canuck and Jack Jackson, Windsor, Ont., youth. The pair have been standouts for Pla-Mors in current exhibition games with the Hawks.

Paul Bibeault, young netminder with the Canadiens last winter gained in a swap which sent utility-man George Allen to the Montreal club, is expected to more than fill the gap left by Mike Karakas, who has retired.

TED AND STAN — 1946 BATTING KINGS

PLAN POWER SCHEME

Bombay, India (CP)— The Bombay government has embarked on hydro-electric and thermal schemes, involving the expenditure of about £10,000,000 ($40,000,000), which will bring electric power to every village. This power will be used not only for lighting but also for village industries and agricultural operations.

Canada Savings Bonds SOLD HERE

You who spend know how to save

By far the greatest proportion of the family income is spent by women—it's women who shop around to get the best return for their money—it's women who know a good thing when they see it!

That's why you Canadian women are not going to pass up the chance of putting your money into Canada Savings Bonds—successor to the Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates which enabled you to put away savings that otherwise would have been spent . . . protection for a rainy day . . . money to help make your dreams come true.

CANADA'S FINEST INVESTMENT

You can buy Canada Savings Bonds in units of $50, $100, $500 and $1000. You may buy up to $2000 per person. They pay 2¾% interest each year for 10 years. Your bonds will be registered in your own name, providing protection against loss. You can cash Canada Savings Bonds at full face value, with interest, at any time at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank. They are better than any comparable form of saving . . . providing a higher return than you can get today on any investment as safe and cashable.

HOW TO BUY

You can buy them at any bank; authorized investment dealer; stock broker; trust or loan company—for cash or by the monthly Savings Plan. Where your employer offers a Payroll Savings Plan you can buy Canada Savings Bonds by regular deductions from your pay. But please remember this point—These are "Serve Yourself" Bonds. This time there will be fewer salesmen. They will not be able to call on everyone. So it's up to you to take advantage of this fine investment opportunity—without delay.

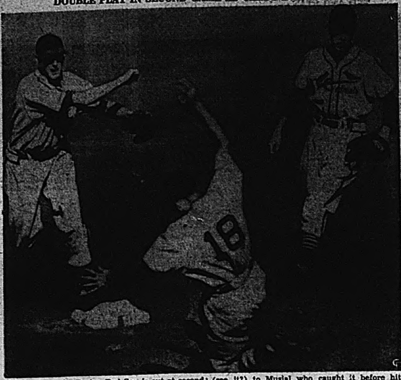
DOUBLE PLAY IN SECOND GAME AS CARDS EVEN SERIES



McBride of the Boston Red Sox is out at second on a force play and even as this picture is snapped the second half of the double play is in the making. Marion of the Cards, having tagged second base, is whizzing the ball past McBride's shoulder (see it?) to Musial who caught it before hitter DiMaggio hit first base. Schoendienst (right) backs up the play. The action took place in the first inning.

Williams on Spot for Failing To Bunt Against Defence Set Up Against St. Louis Cards

Infield Alignment of Eddie Dyer Has Big Hitter Guessing

By JACK HANDS

Boston, Oct. 9. (AP)—Ted Williams' failure to foil the "Dyer shift" with a third base bunt has put the Red Sox slugger on the baseball hot seat today as Boston prepares for its first World Series game since 1918 against the conniving St. Louis Cardinals.

All even in their first two games at Sportsman's Park, the American League's runaway champs open at home this afternoon with their chief long distance power threat by the Cards' infield alignment.

Big Ted, the slim beanpole who missed the batting and home run championship of American League continues to challenge the solid right field defence.

Manager Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis team has tacitly admitted his fear of Williams' power by changing third baseman Whitey Kurowski into a second sacker every time Ted comes to bat, moving second basemen Red Schoendienst to a normal first baes and placing Stan Musial on the right field foul line.

The outfield also pulls sharply to right field, although unlike Lou Boudreau's "Stop Williams" defence, Dyer plays his left fielder fairly deep in a near-normal position. Third base is wide open and the left side of the infield is left entirely in the hands of Marty Marion, "Mr. Shortstop".

Ted said he tried to dump one down toward third in Monday's game and attempted to hit to left but was unable to carry out his plan because of Harry Brecheen's inside pitching.

The Cards figure that every time Williams does try to hit to left instead of doing what comes naturally, they will have him pressing so hard he won't be of much use to the Sox.

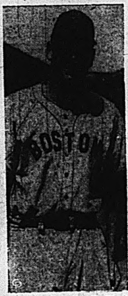
While the fans, writers and ball players gossiped about the Williams affair, the weatherman cast a disturbing shadow over the Fenway Park opened with his prediction that it would be cloudy and cool with temperatures in the 50's.

As the two clubs arrived from St. Louis last night by separate special trains they were greeted by a chilling wind that formed quite a contrast to the blistering heat that had sent the thermometer into the 80's both days at Sportman's Park.

Ticket quotations by scalpers ranged from $75 to $100 a pair and there was the usual early bleacher line, equipped with folding chairs and blankets, shivering through an all-night vigil for first chance on the few thousand "rush" seats.

Back home at Fenway where they had won 61 and lost only 16 in breezing to the pennant by 12 games, the Sox were confident they would be able to uphold the proud Boston tradition of never losing a series.

THIRD GAME PITCHER



Dave (Boo) Ferriss, the Mississippi boy who was last year's freshman star and this year's 25 game winner, has been named by Joe Cronin, pilot of the Red Sox, as pitcher for the third game of the World Series.

HEFFERMAN TO RETIRE

Montreal, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Gerry Hefferman, 30-year-old right winger, with Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior League, yesterday announced he was retiring from hockey to devote time to his insurance work.

Hefferman played with Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League from 1941 to 1944, scored 33 goals and was credited with 35 assists for 68 scoring points.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Thanks to big-hearted Bill Warren, who goes over the boys' mugs once lightly — or twice if you wish, and does general tonsorial work in Freddy Symons' Tobacco, Cigarette, Magazine and Sports Gossip Emporium on Front Street, the Kiwanis Juniors had a grand outing last Saturday.

• • •

It seems friend Bill, who likes baseball next to his meals and would go hungry if he heard the crack of a bat on ball when the fried steak and mushrooms was on the way, took the lads to Lanark where they played an exhibition tilt with an all-star team from the Lanark league, and defeated them 3-1. The score doesn't mean a thing. The kids came home chock full of good Lanark grub, and with loud volumes of praise for the generous hospitality of the good folk of that town.

• • •

They got a right royal reception from Bill's folks up there as well as the general populace. The game was played to raise funds for a Memorial Centre up there where the stranger at the gate is taken in and treated like a prodigal son, and they tell me a neat sum was raised for a splendid cause.

• • •

Only one cloud marred the bright sky of enjoyment for the lads. The starting Lanark pitcher, a chap named Boyd had the misfortune to break an arm during the game. Boyd, according to reports stood in the pitcher's box, wound up and let the ball go. It hit the dirt ten feet from the plate, and Boyd's arm hung limply at his side. "I heard the crack distinctly, as the arm snapped," Speedy St. Louis who was coaching on the first base line said afterwards. It was one of those things that rarely happen in baseball but sometimes do.

• • •

And once again the big hearts of the Lanark folks came into the picture. That night at a social function they passed the hat for the injured player and dollars, quarters, nickels and dimes rang merrily as the Lanarkians dug deeply into their jeans. They later presented the fine sum of $160 to the unfortunate ball player. That is a community spirit that is highly commendable and worthy of emulation in any man's town. More power to 'em.

PENNANT PATTER

She (scanning yesterday's newspaper): Oh, St. Louis won; that's too bad!

He: Why, what's wrong with that? Didn't you want the Redbirds to win?

She: No. I thought it would be nice if the Red Sox won.

He: What's that got to do with St. Louis winning Thursday.

She: Who did St. Louis play?

He: The Dodgers. They beat the Dodgers.

She: Didn't the Red Sox play?

He: Yes, they played the All-Stars.

She: Does that put the Red Sox out?

He: Out where?

She: Out of the World Series!

He: Of course not. The World Series hasn't started yet.

She: Oh, then the game with St. Louis Thursday doesn't count?

He: Look, St. Louis isn't even in the same league with the Red Sox. St. Louis is in the National League.

She: I always thought the Red Sox were in the National League.

He: The Red Sox are the American League champions. The Cards are the National League champs. The Red Sox are going to play the Cards in the World Series.

She: The Cards? Who are the Cards?

He: St. Louis.

She: My, how do you remember all those things? — C. S. Monitor.

Kitchener's smart junior baseball squad disposed of their Toronto rivals the Columbus Grads kids last Saturday by a score of 9-2 eliminating them from the OBA junior championship race. The youthful "Kruts" now meet the Wrightvilles of Ottawa conquerors of the starry Kiwanis nine for the Ontario title.

• • •

The Kitchener kids, according to our Bill (Deacon's Ltd) Moore who gets around a bit in the sports world, have a team that will take some beating. Pat Boehmer, starry St. Michael's College goalie of last year, is their ace hurler, and has chucked the kids through to the provincial finals. The Kitchener management flew Pat to Toronto from a spot in the USA where he was undergoing pre-season shinny training—and it is likely they will move heaven and earth to get him back for the all-important final series.

• • •

In the event that the games are all even-steven and a third game is necessary between these two outstanding junior teams, a movement is afoot to have the third game played here. Belleville is just about, or near the half-way mark between the two diamonds and it is believed the tilt would draw a good gate.

• • •

Ernie Summers of the OBA staff here has promised to do what he can about it and Mr. Arthur Young, of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite Company willingly consented to let the two squads use the Alemite Field—if such a thing comes to pass.

Local football fans can get a taste of their favorite fall fare in Kingston on Thanksgiving Day. Two of the best teams in the New York State Professional Football League are scheduled to battle at Richardson Stadium on that date (Monday Oct. 14) and the result should be a fine exhibition of the American game. The teams are the Syracuse Bisons and the Watertown Red and Blacks. The game starts at 2:30 p.m. A nice day, a nice drive and a nice game to see.

• • •

World Series time inevitably recalls some of the high-baseball battles in the world. Right now the United States and Canada, too, for the most part have their baseball eyes centred on the powerful Red Sox of Boston and the sensational Cardinals of St. Louis. As in other series, anything can happen, and it usually does. The fans of the continent have their eyes and ears glued on the present series waiting for that something that may happen which might change the entire picture.

• • •

One of the most sensational plays in World Series history is the famous unassisted triple play executed by "Wamy" Wambsganss in that memorable Brooklyn-Cleveland game in 1920 which Cleveland won 8-1.

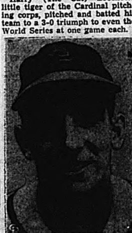
• • •

It happened like this:—Kilduff, the Brooklyn second baseman, was leadoff batter in the fifth and he opened with a single. Miller, the catcher, followed with a single. Clarence Mitchell, Brooklyn lefthander who had relieved Grimes in the fourth inning when Cleveland scored three more runs, then came to bat. With his team trailing by seven runs, the only thing for Mitchell to do was swing, and swing he did. The ball shot on a line toward right-center field. Wambsganss leaped high and made a glovehand catch. As he straightened up, he saw that Kilduff was nearing third and Miller was within a few yards of second base, both runners starting with the crack of the bat, sure that Mitchell's drive would be a base hit. Wamby realized the situation in a split second. He tagged second, doubling Kilduff, then turned to throw to Johnston at first and complete a triple play, but what he saw was Miller standing still, apparently confused.

Wambsganss ran over and tagged him for the third out, completing a triple play unassisted.

MADE IT 3-0 FOR CARDS

Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, little tiger of the Cardinal pitching corps, pitched and batted his team to a 3-0 triumph to even the World Series at one game each.



Sharing honors with Southpaw Brecheen was Del Rice, young relief catcher who came up with two important hits and scored two runs in his first World Series appearance.

London, Oct. 9 (CP)—Bill McConnell, chairman of the Liverpool football club which toured Canada and the United States this summer, believes he has a substitute for the tremendous appeal of greyhound racing in the evenings. It's league soccer by floodlight.

Liverpool play five matches under the lights during its North American tour and everyone — officials, players and the crowd—were satisfied, he says. "Soccer is booming all right, but we must do something to challenge the appeal of the dogs in the evenings."

McConnell believes the Football Association is missing a "great chance" if it doesn't authorize soccer under the lights. But his idea was tired out 14 years ago when two Arsenal sides played a floodlit match at Highbury with a white ball. There was another test at London's White City stadium.

The experts, directors, managers and players were agreed on the possibilities of the venture if it were done in a big way. Snags, chiefly expenses, finally blacked out the floodlights and the idea was pigeon-holed.

There is talk of a soccer game sponsored by the Players Union before the end of the English league season. It would be an all-star affair and gate receipts would inaugurate a fund for needy cases.

London golfers are grumbling at the high prices charged by caddies. For a practice round the rate fixed for tournaments by the Professional Golfers' Association is seven shillings, sixpense ($1.50); for a competition round 10 shillings and the bag-carriers in the big professional matches demand, and get, £1 ($4) to 30 shillings.

The weekend golfers complain most caddies are merely bag-carriers, giving neither advice not skill, and yet expect as much as if they were carrying for a tournament player. The caddy says nothing—he just takes his money.

The amateur figure-skating championships of Britain will be held at Wembley Stadium Dec. 9-10. They are open to Dominion and colonial amateur skaters.

The committee of Bath rugby team took a vote on whether to exclude No. 13 from players' numbers. Six voted for and six against and the chairman gave his vote for exclusion.

No one bothered about the fact there were 13 at the meeting.

On the hunt for talent Dave Mangnall, manager of Queen's Park Rangers of the English football league, went to the Yorkshire pit where he once worked, met old friends and found Donald Mills, 19, a goal-scoring forward.

When he feinted at removing his zippered bench-coat during the third quarter of last week-end's game, a howl of derision went up from the stands.

Griffing, with flecks of grey at the temples, finally trotted out to take over the centre position with 10 minutes left to play, after reminding the fans of his pre-season prediction — Riders would not win a game. The score was 9-5 and Riders didn't appear to have a chance of proving him wrong.

Six minutes late Riders' playing coach Ken Preston uncorked the 30-yard forward which clicked for the winning touchdown and dealt Griffing a double disappointment.

Said Griffing when offered an apple as consolation by a jubilant Reginan: "That is not my idea of humor."

When the Bentley boys are not shooting for a bumper crop at their Delisle, Sask., farm home or sniping at wary National Hockey League nets, they can usually be found potting away at ducks.

"We're stuck in the mud, it's cold, it's snowing and we don't know how to get back to Regina," moaned Max.

The quartet arrived back at 8 a.m. just in time for practice, burdened with a brace of birds but the burnt-out motor of Smith's car is still refusing to turn over.

SPORTS FALLACIES

By MARGERY MILLER

For years the idea has persisted that certain top flight pitchers would be lost without their battery mates. Experts, so-called, have insisted that the catching end of famous combinations was the secret behind the success of the pitching end.

Actually, although catchers may do much to teach and build up pitchers, once a pitcher is on top he can do his own thinking. He only needs a receiver who performs his duties in mechanical fashion.

Toronto, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Rev. Roy Burkhart of Columbus, O., told a United Church seminar on marriage and family problems Monday night that he believed boys and girls "started dating too soon."

"They are 'going steady' in the eighth and ninth grades," he said. "Mothers urge it because they are afraid their daughters won't get dates."

Any person in his right mind would do it wrong in a regular game of bridge. But it sure is interesting to see what can be done here.

South became the declarer at a grand slam contract of seven spades. West started out with an opening lead of the heart king. To take his 13 needed tricks, south must assume the worst.

Without seeing all the cards, he must do the unusual; or what seems to be the unusual from where he sits. If the operation seems far fetched, know that you have been sufficiently warned.

East can have all the unseen black cards. And he has. One of the opponents can have a stopper in diamonds. And he has. More than the obvious number of entries to dummy may be needed. And they are.

Having no hearts in either hand, declarer can trump in one of his hands. That gives him a chance to sluff a side loser from his other hand. But that will keep him from taking all the tricks.

He must do something screwy. Dummy must trump with the four of spades. On this, south must throw the trey of trump. Imagine that. It looks like a waste of perfectly good material.

This puts the entry immediately in dummy. From there a trump is led and south successfully finesses the eightspot. North takes a diamond and a small diamond is returned from there.

East refuses to trump, throwing a club. South trumps it and dummy diamonds are thus set up. Dummy is now entered with a club to lead the top diamonds from that hand.

Next time we meet here you will see only the eight cards left in each hand. Meantime, lay out the cards on a table. If you think you can help east block anything, go ahead and do it.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 9 —(AP)— History, in the peculiar Hollywood sense of the word, was made yesterday when Rita Hayworth had several inches of her hair snipped off by a studio hairdresser. Rita giggled as husband Orson Welles supervised the production and a dozen press agents offered succor. Orson told me the studio head instructed him to proceed with care in the shearing. "Remember, it's Hayworth," he quoted the executive.

Reports say Warners rushed Bette Davis' "Deception" ahead of the similar "Humoresque" because of their mad-on at John Garfield, who stars in the latter film with Joan Crawford. But they might also have done it to pacify Bette, who has become increasingly dissatisfied with the studio.

In the Joe Palooka series, Monogram will stage a fight which should be interesting,—at least in a clinical sense. It will be between Primo Carnera and Tony Galento.

"Forever Amber" starts again today with the prospect of $3,500,000 budget — they hope.

Purely Personal . . . Warners won't be pleased to learn that Wayne Morris has organized a team of former navy fliers to perform at air stunt shows . . . June Haver caught a bridal bouquet at a recent wedding, but don't draw any conclusions . . . Jack Carson is courting Chili Williams these days . . . Brian Aherne has a solution to building troubles. He makes his own adobe on his desert ranch . . . I asked Jimmy Durante if he had a swimming pool at his new home. "I been doin' widout a swimmin' pool for 50 years," said the Schnoz, "why should I start now?"

Queen Alexandra Wins Second Straight in Soccer

In what was probably the best-played game of the season so far, Queen Alexandra took over undisputed possession of first place in the City Public School Soccer League yesterday afternoon on their home grounds when they defeated St. Michael's Academy by a score of 2 to 0. The win was the second for the Ann Street aggregation in two starts which puts them on the top rung for the time-being at least. The game marked the initial appearance of the St. Mike's team, their first scheduled game having been postponed, and they turned in a very creditable performance indeed.

Both teams threw defensive caution to the winds and opened the game up with some really well-executed passing plays, the ball going from one end of the field to the other with almost monotonous regularity, and both teams had plenty of scoring chances. Smart clearing by the rival goalkeepers and some very nice play by the fullbacks, particularly Donovan of St. Mike's, kept scoring to an absolute minimum and the first half ended without either team making the score sheet.

In the second half the play became even faster with both teams changing their front lines at frequent intervals and finally Queen Alexandra worked the ball in front of their opponents' goal, R. Taylor scoring on a hard drive to the top corner of the goal which beat Schreider completely. Instead of being discouraged St. Mike's fought back strongr than ever and nearly evened up matters. However they seemed to lack finish around their opponent's goal and were not quite able to get the all-important tying marker. With only a few minutes of play remaining R. Taylor picked up a loose ball directly in front of St. Michael's goal and making no mistake rifled it past Garry Schreider to make the final score read 2 to 0 for Queen Alexandra.

Good Soccer Played

The game produced some exceptihal good soccer with both squads playing a good brand of combination which has been lacking in some of the previous games. Both team showed to advantage in passing attacks with the Queen Alexandra team having a slight size and weight advantage along the forward line. Otherwise the teams were very evenly matched and the actual play was even closer than the score would indicate. St. Michael's shaded the winners in the penalty department drawing six minor penalties as against seven handed out to Queen Alexandra, all for minor infractions of the rules.

The teams:

St. Michael's: Centre, forward, Jerry Meagher; inside left, Roy Carey; inside right, John De Genova; outside left, Bill Nolan; outside right, Don Whalen; centre half, R. Lupinette; left half, J. Garvin; right half, B. Blaind; left fullback, Ron Donovan; right fullback, B. Williams; goal, G. Schreider. Alternates: Pat Kelley, C. Doran, B. Green, P. Barrett, R. Kitchen, R. Burns, F. Donovan, J. Sheridan, T. Lally.

Queen Alexandra: Centre forward, Rob. Taylor; inside left, R. Allen; inside right, G. Barr; outside left, Potts; outside right, Legate; centre half, Don Ashline; left half, Reasor; right half, R. Morden; left fullback, Don Taylor; right fullback, G. Storms; goalkeeper, A. King. Alternates: Gilbert, Kemp, Barron, R. Colbury.

SARNIA POLYMERS DEFEAT OSHAWA

Sarnia, Oct. 9 — (CP) — As a result of their 2-1 victory yesterday, over Oshawa, Sarnia Polymers took the Ontario intermediate "A" softball series in two straight games and now meet Sault Ste. Marie in a best of three all-Ontario championship series.

Punch Paradis, on the mound for Sarnia, held Oshawa to five hits, while Polymer batsmen collected six off McConkey. Paradis drove in Sarnia's first run in the fifth when he tripled with Doulton on base, then scored the winning counter on Stark's error.

All games of the final series will be played here, the first on Saturday.

'PEG SPORTSMAN FONDLY RECALLS POLO'S HEYDAY

By DAVE McQUEEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Oct. 9 — (CP) — When the princes of ancient Persia felt like a bit of exercise, they'd arm themselves with long-handled mallets, mount their sturdy ponies, and spend an hour or two whacking at a white wooden ball. Polo, the game was called, and it has since become the pastime of wealthy aristocrats all over the world.

F. F. (Ray) Montague, 68-year-old manager of a Winnipeg trust company office, doesn't consider himself an aristocrat, but he played polo for 19 years, and agrees with the Persians that it just can't be beaten for thrills and excitement.

Ray and his brother Price Montague, who later became Lt.-Gen. Price Montague, more or less sponsored the game in Winnipeg after 1912, and when they pulled him out in 1932, the sport simply folded.

Since then, polo has been somewhat of a rarity in western Canada, except in the cow-country of southern Alberta where spirited horses and men who can handle them are still plentiful. "Originally we used to get all our horses from the Calgary district," Ray recalls. "We could buy first-classep class ponies at $150 apiece, so it didn't really cost too much to keep the game going."

"Nowadays, you'll pay as much as $1,000 for a good horse, and people aren't so anxious to throw that kind of money around."

Boasted Fine Record

The Winnipeg players once numbered more than 20, and did pretty well in games against Calgary, Regina, Montreal, Toronto, Minneapolis and other outside teams. One squad they could never beat; that was the United States army quartet from Fort Snelling, Minn.

"Polo was an integral part of their cavalry training," Ray explains, "so they know the game inside out."

Nevertheless, the Winnipeg players didn't have to take their hats off to anybody when it came to training and practice. Four-hour work-outs every night were nothing unusual.

"The important thing is to have a well-trained horse," Ray says. "A good polo pony should enjoy the game just as much as his master. Some of my horses would actually register their disapproval when I made a poor shot.

Asked what's needed to bring about a revival of polo in the west, Ray answers, "Some fool who's ready to spend money on it."

"It was a relatively inexpensive game in my day, but now it takes a lot of money, and even the millionaires are tight with their cash."

"Then of course, a lot of people steer clear of polo because they've got the idea that it's dangerous. I don't think so. There are lots of injuries, but they're not often serious ones."

Press him a bit further, tho', and Ray will admit that he has seen two men killed on a polo field. "But then you must remember that I've watched or played in hundreds of games, and I think that's a pretty small percentage of deaths."

Danger of Breakdown in U. K. Over Fuel Shortage

London, Oct. 9 — (CP) — Fuel Minister Shinwell predicted a "very grave danger of breakdown" in British industry this winter because of a severe coal shortage and called on all consumers for an immediate voluntary ten per cent reduction of fuel use.

"Making every allowance for possible increases in production of coal and after arranging to reduce our distributed stocks to the lowest limit we dare, we run a very grave danger of a breakdown," the fuel chief told 4,000 delegates to a "fuel and the future" conference.

CHAPTER 24

"The fur is worth a hundred," e saleswoman had murmured. But I would like Madam to ave that particular thing. I'm iving you my commission on it."

"Oh, after that, Avery," Isabel d protested, and in a gale of ung laughter they secured it.

"It belongs in a House, , of urse," Avery had said.

"You would know, dear," his ride had returned neatly, and here had been more laughter. But in the end she had liked this ridiculous robe; there was much rippling chiffon about it; there was a magnificent sweep of gold-and-red brocade from shoulders to hem in back; there were bands of black-and-yellow tiger fur everywhere. The enormous pleated bags of chiffon that were the sleeves narrowed in to tight little cuff bands of fur; altogether the thing was barbaric and sumptuous and in certain moods Isabel liked to wear it.

A coal fire glowed in the steel grate in the library, enev though the evening air was mild and sweet; and the encroaching inevitable fog had not descended from the hills; clear shadowless light bathed the terraces and the green bulk of the garden trees. Isabel walked to and fro, to and fro.

Dennis. He possessed her. She did not try to dispute it, to fight it. Dennis's simplest word meant more to her, his slightest look, than anything that all other humans combined could offer her Dennis, with his low voice that always held a hint of quiet laughter, his oddly narrowed eyes, his brown thin strong hands. Dennis was authority, definiteness, nobody had ever been like him, nobody ever would be ..Dennis was charm. She had belonged to him once, and he to her, as a beloved loving man and woman possess each other; it was a dream now.

"Did you ask, madam—" began Yeats deferentially. She had spoken aloud. She shook her head, went on with her slow pacing.

Soft lights in great dim globes bloomed about the terrace in the Summer dusk. Her meal would be about ready; she sat down. Dinner alone again.

Isabel got to her feet, dropping her crumpled napkin on the table, going toward him. Both her hands were in his.

"Come—come into the library—" she said confusedly. The warm tight hold of his hands was like wine in her veins. Her breath came short and shallow.

They went through the library and into the little study beyond, and Dennis put his arms about her and she clung to him, speechless, breathless.

After a while, not releasing her, he said:

"Can we go somewhere and have dinner?"

"Yes," Isabel answered, panting, still tight against his heart. "Yes—don't let go of me—"

"No, I'll never let go of you again."

"Oh, Dennis, I've wanted you so!"

"I know. You've been here in my arms all the time—always. You've never been anywhere else."

There was a silence, while their lips and hearts were together.

"Where can we go?" Dennis asked then, in a quick whisper.

"We can—I don't know—I'll arrange it here."

"No, not here. Not in his house! Oh, Isabel—Isabel." He was drinking kisses from her hair, her lips, her temples. "My wife!" he said. "I've hungered so for you—"

"Dennis, let me tell them. Wait here. Then we talk." Isabel went to the door of the library, opened it; the fire was blazing brightly. Yeats, discreetly hovering near, had closed the french windows.

"Yeats, we'll have dinner for two," she said.

"Here by the fire, madam?"

"No." They would be talking here by the fire. Dennis and herself. They wouldn't want Yeats about. She looked vaguely at the butler. What were they saying?

"In the dining room then, madam. That is better I think."

"Yes, that's better. And tell Fong to hurry."

"Very good, madam."

Yeats disappeared, and Isabel went back to the study and saw Dennis standing among the handsome great chairs and the columns with heads of laughing peasant girls on them, and the fringed lamps.

She was trembling very much; her hands were cold, but her heart was singing—he had had to come, he had had to come! And once more she had felt his quiet arms about her, infinitely healing, infinitely invigorating. She shut the door, came back to where he was standing by the glowing coals.

"Dennis, if you knew what it meant—" The sentence was cut short by the pressure of his lips against her own again. Isabel shut her eyes, gave way to the ecstacy of surrender.

"Now," she said after a moment, "sit here, and I'll sit beside you. He'll tell us when dinner's ready."

"That's nice."

There were letters from Avery; two. They had all the terseness of telegrams. Avery could be quite expansive when he was paying for every ten words, but on paper he was brief. He was having a swell time, this thing was a damn sight bigger than anyone at home had any idea, cheerio. The second note said the same thing in almost exactly the same words, and concluded with "Kiss yourself for me."

He did not mention her children, or the changed plan that had kept her from joining him in New York. She was to telephone Muzzy and tell her Avery would write.

Isabel duly telephoned to her mother-in-law, in Santa Barbara. Avery's mother accepted the message with a crispness characteristic of her groomed, artificial, independent little self.

"But my dear, I've heard from him, heard this week!" she said amusedly, putting Isabel in the position of having made an occasion to intrude upon her. The relationship between the two was at best coldly civil; Ethel Wilson Latimer Bamberger had been a beauty in her day; she knew young beauty when she saw it, and she was naturally jealous of Avery's wife.

"He asked me to tell you that he would write."

"Well, that's very funny. For I heard from him—let me see, Tuesday."

"Oh, I'm glad you did. Oh, shutup, shut up, shut up!"

Isabel said only the first phrase aloud.

"My dear, I imagine he wrote to his mother first."

"I hoped he had!"

"I know just exactly how you hoped he had," Mrs. Bamberger said with a light ironic laugh. Somehow that laugh always made a prickly rush of warmth run all over Isabel's skin. She didn't like the extremely brief glimpses she had had of Avery's mother, and Avery's mother didn't like her, and they both knew it.

"I did really hoped he had," Isabel said, also in light, half-laughing tone. "Really!"

"Well, we'll agree that you did, really," mimicked the voice at the other end of the line. I'm dummy, my dear, and they're almost through the hand. What was it?"

"Just that. Just that Avery said he was going to write, and to tell you."

"You didn't telephone all this way just to say that?"

"Darn it, she is an agreeable woman!" Isabel thought, as she hung up the receiver. It really was important, in a material sense, to somehow win Avery's mother to liking her, but they seemed utterly incapable of understanding each other. Mrs. Bamberger was always this way with Isabel flippant and scornful This beautiful divorced unscrupulous young woman had of course gone gunning for Avery, and of course she had got him.

One of the pricks in Isabel's new estate had been the discovery that all Avery's money came from his mother; he had none of his own. His mother had married a very rich man, was now widowed. There was practically no limit to the money Avery might spend; there was never any question about it. But none of it was his.

"Muzzy's a sport," he told Isabel. "Get on her good side if you can. She never knows how much money she's got. This place is hers, and all the servants—all that. I'd never keep up a place like this, too much fuss. But she likes to have us here, she likes it to be kept open."

"I thought this was the old Latimer place."

They were both breathing hard, and for a few long moments there seemed to be nothing to say. Isabel sat with her left hand clasped tight in his right they looked at the fire, glanced at each other with grave smiles, looked at the fire again.

"Now that I'm here, everything's said," Dennis began presently.

"I know. I'm so glad you came, Dennis."

"I had to." Suddenly he was on his feet; Isabel sat perfectly still as he took a nervous turn or two about the room. "I had no idea of it," he said. "I had no intention of coming."

"You had no trouble finding us?"

EISENHOWER IS GODFATHER TO TEDDER'S SON

Gen. Eisenhower acted as godfather at a christening of the baby son of Lord Tedder, Marshal of the R.A.F. and "Ike's" second-in-command during the invasion of Europe. The ceremony took place in the ancient, 800-year-old chapel of St. Margaret's, Edinburgh Castle, Scotland. This picture makes photographic history, being the first photo of any ceremony ever taken inside the tiny chapel. Photo shows, LEFT to RIGHT: Gen. Eisenhower, Very Rev. Dr. L. Warr, who officiated at the ceremony; Lord Tedder, Marshal of the R.A.F., and Lady Tedder holding the baby during the christening ceremony.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, saying, Really, William, I mean really, it baffles me why I keep on reeding this Brite Remarks of Childern collum.

It baffles me too, especially why you keep on reeding it aloud to me, pop said, and ma said, Well, I just want to prove to you how true the old saying is about mothers being blind. Now take tsis one, William, I mean just listen —"My little dawter Saundra was 4 years old last week and when I asked how it felt to be so old, she replied, Very well, thank you." Now what's remarkable about that? ma said.

It's remarkable that I had to listen to it after all, pop said, and ma said, Here's one by a woman signed Mrs. Arthur W. Fieldbrom —"My brother's little boy Waltie is in the first book of grammer school, but my little Sally wont be out of kindergarten for another year, and the other day she asked me with her big serious blue eyes, Mummie, why do I got to wait a year to be in the ferst grade? Why cant I start last year like Cousin Waltie?" They're getting werse instead of better, ma said.

Let me read you a few brite remarks by children of a larger growth, pop said.

And he started to read from his own paper, saying, "In answer to todays question asked by the Itinerant Interragator, concerning the best way to come to an understanding with Russia, the following replied as follows. Mrs. Jessie Jasminer, housewife: My opinion is, we ought to start dropping atomic bombs on Russia by the next mail. George F. Ficklebarn: If you're asking me, we ought to give those people 3 weeks to back down and shut up, and if that dont make them listen to the voice of reason. start sending atomic bombs over.

But William, that's absurd, that's asinine, ma said, and pop said, Okay, if you read to yourself I'll read to myself.

Which they both did.

MOLOTOV

colony," said Mr. Molotov, adding that the French proposal which the commission adopted was "nothing more than a revised version of the British-American proposals."

This, said Mr. Molotov, "presents the people of Trieste with a semi-colonial disenfranchised status in a milder form."

Mr. Molotov asserted this was a contradiction of the decisions of the foreign ministers council on Trieste.

"The plan embodies such restrictions on the legislature and executive, and grants such wide powers to the governor, that hardly anything remains of democracy," the minister said.

These "wide" powers, he said, in actual fact mean "absolute power for a governor imposed from above and the disenfranchisement of the population."

Mr. Molotov also called for adoption by the conference of a Polish-Ukrainian amendment rejected in commission to suppress neo-Fascist and frontier revisionist movements within Italy.

He appealed for conciliation between the Slav and non-Slav states, but warned western powers they must respect the rights and position of the Slav states.

Leading to Absurdities

Perhaps referring to South African Prime Minister Smuts' statement two days ago decrying the constant division into east and west blocs, Mr. Molotov asserted that western powers sought to include "China, India and even Ethiopia simply to increase their number of votes."

He then warned:

"This division of the nations into eastern and western into Slav and no-Slav states, is obviously leading us into absurdities."

"The Soviet delegation, for its part," Mr. Molotov said, desires as much co-operation with western powers as with Slav powers, convinced that this co-operation is the indispensable requirement for a democratic peace.

"The Soviet delegation calls upon the delegations of other countries to co-operate in the establishment of a democratic peace.

"This requires compromise."

The Soviet minister, who was presiding when the session opened, stepped down from the rostrum to make his speech, leaving the chair to conference secretary-general Jacques Fouques Duparc.

Mr. Molotov warned against attempts by the west to dictate to the "new Slav democracies."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Turnover was higher today on the Toronto Stock Exchange with a volume of 602,000 shares for the first three hours of trading but prices receded all along the line.

The noon index showed losses for all issues but Western oils which recorded a minor .08 gain. Industrials were the heavy losers with an index drop of 1.91, golds lost .31, and base metals .47.

In the papers, Consolidated was down ⅛, Donnacona a point at 20½ and International 1¼ at 41¼. Walkers led the liquor retreat with a drop of two points selling at 115½, Canadian Brewers were down ¾ and Industrial Alcohol ¾ at 15¼. Aluminum went back 1½ at 171, Bell Telephone 1½ at 177, Brazilian Traction ⅞ at 22, C.P.R. ¾ at 13¼ to hit a new low, and Ford was down ¼ at 21¾. Foods were inactive as were steels and oils but a couple of banks, Nova Scotia and Toronto upped ½ and ¼ respectively.

Golds, both senior and secondary, were showing point losses with Sigma at one stage 35 cents down. Nickel in the base metals was selling at 30, a new low, Noranda was down ½, Normetal 4 and Sherritt Gordon was down 8 at $2.20.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Oct. 9 (AP)— One of the sharpest drops in more than two weeks pushed leading shares down one to around four points in the stock market today. Quotations finally steadied with many issues at new lows for the year or longer.

Chrysler was a leader on the slide in further response to its production cutback. Steels, resistant for a time, joined in the downturn with U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and Youngstown Sheet down a point or more at times.

Other prominent losers included Goodrich, U.S. Rubber, American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Standard Oil (N.J.) Allied Chemical and Coca Cola.

Except for Hiram Walkers' two point decline Canadian stocks showed fractional losses. McIntyre slipped 1-2, Dome Mines 1-8, Canadian Pacific 3-8 and Distillers Seagram 1-4.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 9 (CP)—No settled quotations for Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were reported by markets early today.

Brantford later reported $20.10 delivered, unchanged.

Writers Will Attend Execution Of Eleven Nazis

Nuernberg, Oct. 9 — (AP) — Correspondents who will attend the executions of the 11 condemned Nazi leaders today set up tentative plans to pool for world-wide distribution their eye-witness accounts, which may total 50,000 words.

British, United States, and French newspapermen, represented by two correspondents each, agreed on machinery to distribute simultaneously stories describing details of the hangings in the Nuernberg jail, as soon as they are permitted to go from the enclosure to their typewriters.

The Russians have not announced who their two representatives will be. No spokesman has been available in recent days to sign up the Russians within the four-power pool. It is assumed the Russians will make their copy available, the same as the others.

Correspondents base their planning on the assumption that the hangings will take place in the early morning of Oct. 16, with one scaffold. This possibility will mean a five-hour task, although such details still are secret.

As soon as the last man has been executed, the correspondents will write their stories in triplicate, filing the originals immediately to their employing firms. Second copies will be stencilled and distributed in the language in which they are written. Third copies will be translated into French, English or Russian, as necessary.

Seizing Soviet Soil Chief Aim Of Japs Claimed

Tokyo, Oct. 9 — (AP) — Russia argued today before the war crimes tribunal that Japan was bent primarily on seizing Soviet soil and even war with the United States and Britain was only a temporary turning aside from this objective.

Over strenuous defence objections, assistant prosecutor Col. S. J. Rosenblitz enlarged on his thesis by introducing articles from Japanese books, magazines, newspapers and even one book cover.

"Are the accused to be held responsible for what any party writes, irrespective of where it is found?" demanded defence counsel William Logan, New York City, pointing to Hideki Tojo and other defendants.

Tribunal president Sir William Webb ruled the court already had set a precedent for considering the "probative value" of such documents but declared they must be connected with the defendants to be accepted as evidence.

Rosenblitz replied that he was introducing the documents "in order to show the nature of Japanese aggressive propaganda" aimed at Russia.

Asks for Clean-Cut 'Yes or No' Answer

Ottawa, Oct. 9 —(CP)—David Lewis, national secretary of the C.C.F., Tuesday asked John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, to make a clear-cut "yes or no" statement on whether he approved of the recent increase in milk prices by three cents a quart.

Mr. Lewis, in a prepared statement, made reference to a speech made by Mr. Bracken at Russell, Ont., last night in which he said the higher milk prices provided justification for prices increases in other dairy products.

"The report of Mr. Bracken's speech does not say expressly whether he approves or disapproves of the increase in milk prices, although it quotes him as dealing with other things related to it," Mr. Lewis said.

MALARIA'S TOLL

It is estimated that 3,000,000 persons throughout the world die of malaria annually.

Automobile borrowed by Mrs. Evelyn Dick the day her husband disappeared was returned with bloodstains on front seat, witnesses stated at her trial on charge of murdering John Dick. Here, she leaves court after first day of the trial. The court was jammed.

Mrs. Evelyn Dick gives a cheery wave as she leaves Barton St. jail for the court room on second day of the trial. A separate trial was ordered for Mrs. Dick.

No Glycerine, No Lipstick

By ARTHUR EDSON

Washington, Oct. 9 (AP)—Coal miners in the United States have hitched their wagon to a cow—and it appears to be a long, hard pull.

Capt. N. H. Collisson, of the United States navy, the government's coal mines administrator, said today the meat shortage means that miners now find it difficult to obtain: Enough to eat; soap; explosives.

Capt. Collisson said he is most worried about the third shortage—explosives. They're made from glycerine, a by-product of soap-making, which in turn is a by-product of slaughtering. Hence they're tied directly to the meat shortage.

"I understand some glycerine goes into cigarets," Capt. Collisson said. "Makes them smoke smoother. And quite a bit of it is going into rouge, comestics, things like that."

Capt. Collisson said he sympathizes with miners but he believes the less-publicized shortage, glycerine, is the real problem.

"A miner can eat meat substitutes," he said, "and he can get coal out in spite of grimy hands. But he can't do a thing without explosives."

Capt. Collisson said if the glycerine shortage becomes any more acute the wartime priority system probably will be revived.

"We will have to decide," he said, "which is more important: Coal or lipstick?"

Singing Cowboys On Horseback Reach Winnipeg

Winnipeg, Oct. 9 (CP)—Sleepy and Swede, the slaphappy singing cowboys who are horsebacking from New Westminster, B.C., to Halifax, have reached the halfway mark in their journey.

"Lots of people said we couldn't cross Canada on horseback," Sleepy yawned at a reporter last night. "Well, we set out to show it can be done."

The pair, whose real names are Leslie Frost and Nils Nilsson, set out May 11 with an official send-off from Tex Ritter, movie cowboy. They picked up a letter from Vancouver's Mayor J. W. Cornett to Mayor J. E. Ahern of Halifax and hope to deliver it "by pony express' some time next March.

Sleepy and Swede met 11 years ago and have been partners ever since. Swede was born in Amal, Doreland Province, Sweden, in 1911 and Sleepy in Massey, Ont., in 1917. They were married on the same day in Saskatoon seven years ago and their wives are waiting for them together in New Westminster.

Red Negotiator Rejects Proposal for Truce

Nanking, Oct. 8 (AP)—Communist negotiator Chou En-Lai has rejected the latest proposal for a 10-day truce in China's civil strife, termed it "a government trick," a Communist party spokesman said today.

Earlier reports said that Gen. George C. Marshall, United States mediator, had put forward the truce proposal and was awaiting Chou's response.

While the peace efforts were reported still deadlocked, government forces were closely threatening Kalgan and Communists were pushing toward Paoting, Hopeh provincial capital, and had resumed the offensive in Manchuria.

MAY SECURE ENTRY

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 9 (CP)—The possibility of a Brantford entry in the Ontario Hockey Association senior series was seen here last night. President Larry Pennel of the local club said applications had been to the O.H.A. and that four of the five clubs previously entered—Owen Sound, Stratford, Hamilton Pats and Hamilton Tigers—had already agreed to the Brantford entry. The other team is Toronto Staffords.

Formal acceptance is to be considered by the O. H. A. subcommittee. If Brantford gets in, it will play its first game at Owen Sound Nov. 1.

ACCUSED'S MOTHER GIVES EVIDENCE AT TRIAL

Mrs. Alexander MacLean, mother of Mrs. Evelyn MacLean, who is now on trial in Hamilton, Ont., for the torso slaying of her husband, John Dick, is shown as she appeared in court as a Crown witness. She testified that her daughter told her "John Dick is dead: keep your mouth shut."

Seen without the dark glasses she often wears, Mrs. Dick descends the courthouse steps. One of the first questions she asks when she gets newspapers after court is adjourned is, "Are there any good pictures of me?"

Tear Lid off Communist Party To End its Power, Influence, U.S. Chamber Commerce Asks

By ALEX H. SINGLETON

Washington, Oct. 10 — (AP) — The United States Chamber of Commerce demanded today that Congress rip the lid off the Communist party to end its power and influence in American labor's ranks and within the government itself.

Declaring that Communists still are operating under an international comintern bent upon world conquest, the organization added that because the party "thrived upon deceit" and is loyal to a "hostile" foreign power, it should be "forced by law" to reveal its membership, sources of money and all its activities.

The report drew freely from the Canadian Royal Commission report of last June, warning that "we cannot be complacent about Communist influence in governments" the report said that "the Canadian experience should be ample warning of the dangers faced in this regard . . ."

The report charged that the Communist party "is engaged in secret and conspiratorial activities within our borders."

The chamber's report, based on a year-long investigation by a special committee on Socialism and Communism, asserted that Communists have succeeded in driving "many faithful public servants from the government."

Refers to Infiltration

It declared, too, that Red infiltration into the government has been particularly marked in both the treasury and labor departments.

A treasury spokesman quickly retorted that the department "naturally has no comment on so general a statement."

However, Labor Secretary Schwellenbach said that charges of subversive activity had been brought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation against "a number of labor department employees" and that an investigation has been underway for several days. Five cases already have been studied and two others are set for inquiry.

On the labor front the chamber declared that while the late Sidney Hillman was not a Communist, nor is C.I.O. President Philip Murray, "two of their top advisers are Communists, taking direct and frequent orders on P.A.C. (C.I.O.-Political Action Committee) policy from the very top level of the Communist party." The advisers were not named.

Fact-Gathering Plan.

The report was made public at a press conference late yesterday. It also called for these specific steps:

1. A "competent, impartial and patriotic" fact-gathering plan to throw light on Communist party activities.

2. Encouragement of "labor education" to give the "non-Communist majorities the training needed to fight their disciplined opponents."

. Greater education of the American businessman "to make certain that he learns to detect Communist influence in his labor relations, his business, and other contacts."

4. A congressional appropriation of "adequate funds for a stringent but fair loyalty test" to carry out the policy of excluding Communists from government service.

5. Federal action to enforce "strict reciprocity with the Soviet Union in regard to the number and freedom of movement of nationals of either country within the other."

6. A policy by the government "of frankness with its citizens in regard to the major facts which enter into the making of our foreign policy."

DISMANTLE SOME PETAWAWA BUILDINGS

Ottawa, Oct. 10 — (CP) — A number of buildings at Petawawa military camp are to be dismantled, providing lumber, nails, glass and plumbing equipment for vital housing projects, defence department officials said yesterday. While Petawawa is a permanent training camp a large number of buildings for which there is no peacetime use were constructed during the war.

LEGION SUBMITS FIVE-POINT PLAN ON HOUSING ISSUE

Asks That Emergency Power Be Used To Provide Immediate Temporary Housing

Ottawa, Oct. 10 (CP)— The Canadian Legion today asked the government to use its emergency powers to provide immediate temporary housing and warned that delay might result in subversive elements inciting ex-servicemen to take lawless action.

The Legion's views on housing were outlined in a brief submitted to Reconstruction Minister Howe by Major General C. B. Price, Dominion President, and Pronvincial Secretaries.

The brief said reports from provincial commands indicated the high point in emergency shelter requirements had not yet been reached and it continued with a reference to action of veterans in seizing available accommodation.

The Legion advanced a five-point program to meet housing needs:—

1. Use of government emergency powers to make available government buildings and the requisitioning of other available space.

2. Expansion of the building program in the low-income field, particularly through the wartime housing program.

3. Government control of the allocation of supplies to facilitate completion of partially erected houses and eliminate black markets.

4. Rescinding of the order-in-council curtailing operation of the Veterans Land Act by placing restrictions on the acreage required.

5. Provision of a home ownership plan for veterans to apply to Wartime Housing and other government-sponsored plans.

No Immediate Ending of Meat Rationing Likely

Ottawa, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Prices Board officials said last night there is no immediate prospect of an end to meat rationing in Canada. (In Toronto, yesterday the Evening Telegram published a report saying that Finance Minister Ilsley would announce "later today" the end of meat rationing in Canada in 1947) The finance minister, who could not be reached for comment, left Ottawa late last night for Toronto, where he expected to take a plane for Winnipeg. However, he issued no statement before his departure and sources close to Mr. Ilsley said it was unlikely such a statement would come from him.

INNOCENT ON GROUND OF INSANITY

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 10 (AP) —Thomas H. Brown, 29-year-old Salem war veteran, in county court yesterday was found innocent of the murder of his mother by reason of insanity, and was committed for life to Bridgewater State Hospital. Brown was charged with murder on Aug. 12, shortly after he reported to Salem police that he had placed a pillow over his mother's face and strangled her because "she had been doing things I didn't approve of."

'Smilingest and Happiest in World' Says Army Doctor of Eskimo People

Ottawa, Oct. 10 — (CP)—Eskimos have possibly taken on more of the white man's ways in recent years than is good for them but life in the Eastern Arctic amongst its 6,000 Eskimos is still more placid and pleasurable than our "civilization" to the south, two army doctors just returned from two years in the Arctic reported today.

Maj. N. R. Rawson of Winnipeg and Maj. G. C. B. Gaulton of Saint John, N. B., on loan to the health department from the army, returned last week for a two year stint as medical officers in charge of the only two hospitals in the Eastern Arctic.

Maj. Rawson, who was awarded the O. B. E. for stemming a typhoid epidemic which broke out among the natives of Cape Dorset, N.W.T., a year ago, regretted leaving his mission hospital on the northwest shore of Hudson Bay because "you never see women pulling each others hair," nor did the Eskimo quarrel or steal — though he occasionally knifed a rival quietly — and they were "the smilingest and happiest people in the world."

Eskimos were fast adopting the white man's hunting methods and the younger generation had lost the ability to make skin-boats or shoot with the bow and arrow. Instead, they used high-powered rifles, sailed around in outboard motor-boats and "peterheads" — small schooners — and tucked away huge quantities of bannock and tea. Tea and tobacco had replaced meat as the most important item in the Eskimos' diet.

Maj. Gaulton, accompanied by his wife, said probably the only thing he missed was his daily paper. He finally did get it but along with a whole year's other editions as Pangnirtung on Baffin Island received mail only once a year. Contrary to popular belief the Eskimo was not illiterate but through the fairly recent introduction of syllable writing Eskimos corresponded frequently with distant friends.

Canadian-American Military Co-operation Urged to Parry Aggressive Forces in World

Winnipeg, Oct. 10 (CP)— A blunt warning that "aggressive forces are on the loose in the world" and that Canadian-American military co-operation had become "a matter of irreducible necessity" was contained in an address prepared for delivery here today by William K. Jackson, President of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Jackson's address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce now in session here, was obviously directed at the expansion policies of Soviet Russia.

"A totalitarian empire, different in detail but not in essence from the one we fought and defeated seems to be extending its hold over larger and larger areas. . . .

"What we hoped so eagerly would become one world has been severed into two worlds whose conflicting interest and ambitions make ominous headlines day after day.

"In these circumstances neither your country nor mine can afford to relax its vigilance nor neglect its defences. Whatever menaces one of us menaces the other in exactly the same measure."

U. N. Still World's Hope

For all its "faults and fumblings" the United Nations organization still holds the world's hope for permanent peace, and should be supported, Mr. Jackson said.

"At the same time, as practical

Shooting Star Shower Finest Spectacle Seen This Century

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada and most of the United States were treated to a spectacular display of shooting stars last night as meteors shed by the comet Giacobini-Zinner burned across the skies in what some scientists said was the most brilliant exhibition seen in North America this century.

Dense clouds marred or completely obliterated the view for many watchers of the skies in some sections of the United States.

Scientists used radar and for the first recorded time reported they "saw" a display of meteors beyond fog and clouds. Observers from the United States Bureau of Standards in Washington said they were sure that "pips" appearing on the radar screen represented meteors about 50 miles from earth.

American scientists also boarded airplanes to get above thick clouds for a glimpse of the aerial fireworks and Harvard astronomers in an "aerial planetarium" reported seeing meteors at the rate of about 17 per minute.

Joint United States Army Air Forces Signal Corps observers at Whiteside, N. M., reported to Camp Evans, United States Signal Corps laboratory at Belmar, N. J., that they were able to make contact with the meteor showers by radar at varied distances from 45 to 180 miles.

North Bay, Oct. 10 (CP)— The roof of the North Bay airport administration building was turned into a temporary observatory last night as a group of Ottawa astronomers, chased from their original location near the capital by threatening weather, turned a battery of cameras on the tail of Giacobini-Zinner which showered the upper atmosphere with meteors.

The comet, which passed within a celestial stone's throw of the earth, put on a spectacular show, the astronomers said. They stood for hours on the roof watching the display which lasted from about 8 p.m. E.S.T. until after midnight. The weather was clear and cold.

Dr. H. M. Millman, who headed the party, said it was "undoubtedly the best shower in at least 75, possibly 100, years. It fully lived up to expectations."

Weather conditions were excellent for the photographic work with clear skies prevailing until about 11.30. Then light, high clouds began filming the sky and obscured some of the smaller meteorites. In addition, the full moon partially dimmed the effects and also necessitated frequent changing of photographic plates.

'Child's Prank' Blamed in Tying Child to Fence

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)— Police in suburban North York Township today blamed a "child's prank" for the tying of a naked two-year-old boy to wire fence yesterday at a farm half a mile from his home.

They described as exaggerated earlier reports that the youngster's body was slightly mutilated when he was found, hanging horizontally with one hand and one foot tied to the fence with his own torn clothing.

"If you call a scratch mutilation, he was mutilated," said one officer. "That was all he had —a scratch. We're investigating further this morning to make sure we weren't wrong about that."

Another officer said it was thought that the youngsters responsible got the idea from a comic strip in which a victim was tied into a "spider web."

The police, who carried on a night long investigation, are hopeful of an early solution."

"We should get some place this afternoon when the boys get out of school," said an investigating officer, who visited the youngster's home this morning and reported he is playing around as if nothing had happened.

The youngster—James Maley, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Maley —was found by an eight-year-old boy, Roger Johnston, who heard him whimpering. Roger was trying to untie the knots by which both his hands and his right foot were tied to the fence when the father and an uncle came along.

The boy's pants had been pulled over his head and his underwear and sweater were cut into strips to tie him to the fence, at a spot in full view of several nearby houses.

Only 7,350 Jews in Berlin

Berlin, Oct. 10 — (AP)—Berlin, which had a pre-war Jewish population of 186,000, now has only 7,350 according to a report made today to a Jewish assembly here.

Haganah Offensive Against Terrorists Is Reported Likely

Jerusalem, Oct. 10—(CP)—Reuters news agency quoted 'unimpeachable sources' as saying that an all-out "offensive" by Haganah, powerful Jewish resistance movement, against the two illegal terrorist organizations, Irgun Zvai Leumi and the stern gang, is expected to break out in Jerusalem.

Haganah, said to have 80,000 members, until now has confined its anti-terror drive to propaganda but Reuters said last night the latest outrages by terrorists have convinced Haganah's members that it is time to act.

Meanwhile, it was learned here that a house curfew imposed on four Palestine Jewish districts had been lifted in two, the fashionable residential quarter of Talpioth and the settlement of Ramath Rabel.

The curfew was imposed after a wave of land mine explosions occurred in the Palestine area.

Churchill's Attack Angers Bevan

London, Oct. 10 — (Reuters)—Health Minister Aneurin Bevan last night replied to an attack on him by Winston Churchill by referring to the Conservative party leader as "that wicked man." Mr. Churchill had criticized Mr. Bevan at the Conservative party conference in Blackpool, Lancs., last week. The wartime prime minister had scored the health Ministry's progress in housing and had said of Mr. Bevan: "The most mischievous mouth in wartime has also become in peace the most remarkable administrative failure."

SISTERS DOUBT BROTHER DEAD, SEARCH HOSPITALS

Two California Women Hear Tip Airman, Presumed Dead, Is In Canada

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Two California sisters who refuse to believe their brother Lt. Robert A. Tunnell, died in battle moved on today in their untiring search of Canada's 47 military hospitals on the strength of a tip that a wartime buddy had seen Tunnell somewhere in Canada, broken in body and using an assumed name.

Already Mrs. Helen Churchman of Alemada, Calif., and Mrs. Zelma Somma of Eureka, Calif., have talked to all the patients in 25 hospitals. They left for Hamilton today and from there planned to turn westward. Their brother enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in Edmonton and they think he may have returned there.

They offered a $1,000 reward last night for information that will lead them to their brother.

"We want to take him home," they said. "If he can't go or if he doesn't wish to go, we will move with our families wherever he is."

Tunnell, son of J. V. Tunnell of Eureka, Calif., left Humboldt State College in California in 1941 to join the air force in Edmonton. In Great Britain where he first served as second pilot in a Halifax bomber, he transferred to the United States Army Air Forces.

Lt. Tunnell and a photographer, Sgt. Bud Cunney of Washington, left a British base Sept. 18, 1944, in a stripped-down Mosquito bomber on a mission whose nature still is a top secret. They wore civilian clothes and left behind their regulation identity tags. Both men failed to return. The United States War Department reported them missing, then — a year later — presumed dead.

That was the last anyone heard of Tunnell until a United States serviceman, a boyhood friend of the missing flyer, hitch-hiked on vacation through central Canada.

With two other servicemen he went to a hospital and in one ward saw a thin, emaciated patient with both legs amputated and both arms in splints. The serviceman thought he looked familiar, but it was not until the patient called to him that he recognized him as Bob Tunnell.

The patient said he was so badly injured that he did not want to be a burden to his family and had adopted an assumed name. He made the serviceman promise solemnly not to disclose his secret.

Haunted by the patient's strange story, the serviceman confided in his mother who passed the word on to Mrs. Churchman, one of Tunnell's sisters. She in turn told her father and her other sister, Mrs. Somma. By mail and telegram they started their search and authorities in Ottawa and Washington co-operated.

So far they have sought in vain. But they are going on in the faith that somewhere they will recognize their slender, six foot two brother with brown hair and blue-grey eyes — confident that their faith will surpass his great courage.

Trial Nears for German Doctors Who Used Humans in Inhuman Tests

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Nuernberg, Oct. 10 (AP) — United States authorities said today that German doctors charged with using human beings as guinea pigs for inhuman experiments in S.S. (Elite Guard) laboratories would face trial about Nov. 15 in renewed war crimes proceedings in Nuernberg.

Lawyers said S. S. officials and doctors involved in such experiments on concentration camp inmates and other persons would be grouped together in the first of a series of six trials, the second group, they said, would include Nazi peoples court judges who issued summary death sentences, often without even hearing defence testimony.

At least a dozen doctors engaged in so-called medical experiments for the S.S. have been brought here for trial and an entire corridor of the Nuernberg courthouse has been roped off for weeks for the interrogation of witnesses.

Experimental laboratories were discovered by invading Allied armies in several areas of Germany, and testimony at the recently concluded war crimes trial before the international military tribunal and German documents disclosed that the experiments included:

The subjection of naked men to icy winter air or ice baths for long periods in a search for methods to prevent downed German airmen from freezing to death. The human guinea pigs—the ones who were not frozen to death — were warmed up in hot baths, or by putting them in bed with nude women. The latter method, doctors reported, was not very successful.

The sterilization of women and the castration of men at Oswiecim in Poland, in the course of which the reproductive organs of 15 to 18-year-old girls were destroyed by X-ray or other methods, transforming them into hobbling creatures appearing to be 70 years old.

Anonymous Letter Warned Mrs. Dick Against Husband

Writer Said Dick Was Making Sucker Out of Her

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Oct. 10 — (CP) — For the first time revolvers and gunfire entered into evidence today at the "torso-murder" hearing of 25-year-old Evelyn MacLean Dick, fighting for her life in the fourth day of her trial for husband murder.

The Crown introduced two revolvers, one fired .32 bullet and a box of ammunition just before noon after the court had heard for the first time, positive identification of the torso, shorn of its head, legs and arms and found March 16 on Hamilton Mountain, as that of John Dick, 40-year-old tram driver who married the accused one year ago.

They were 3½ inches apart and, he said, were such that they could have been made by a .32 revolver.

The guns presented by the Crown today — without as yet any indication where they came from — were both .32 revolvers. One was plated, the other blue and Inspector Alexander Churchman, R.C.M.P. expert on ballistics said he came to the conclusion the fired bullet was made by the same machine that made the box of ammunition he had been asked to examine for Ontario Provincial Police in charge of the Dick case.

An annoymous letter received by Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick shortly before her husband disappeared last March warned her the man she is accused of slaying "was making a sucker out of her," the court was told today during trial of the comely young widow on a charge of the March 6 torso slaying of her husband John Dick.

Ray Castle, superintendent of the Hamilton Street Railway which employed Dick as a tram driver told of the anonymous letter yesterday and said Mrs. Dick brought the letter to him before Dick disappeared last March 6. She wanted to see another tram operator about it but she did not see him. Castle repeated for John T. Sullivan, defence for the woman accused of killing her husband whose torso was found on Hamilton Mountain last March 16.

Mr. Sullivan read the letter, a crown exhibit, into the court record.

It was addressed only "Evelyn."

The letter went on:

"I am just writing you this note so you can get wise to your so-called husband.

"He certainly uses you as a sucker."

Convenient Wife

The letter went on that it was nice for John Dick to have a wife who bought him more street car tickets than he could have bought for himself.

Each street car operator, so previous testimony brought out, is given $75 bond by the company for ticket purchase.

The letter warned Evelyn:

"There isn't a night but what he has some woman standing behind him . . .

"He don't give two hoots for you . . . all he took you for is so he could have bond money."

Mr. Castle said he told Mrs. Dick he did not want her approaching employees when they were working.

He said the accused widow gave the letter to him.

Mr. Castle was the day's first witness in court where spectators were warned by Deputy Sheriff Tommy Woodcroft that this murder trial "is not a show" and anybody talking or laughing would be ejected from the court.

Then the jury in the Dick trial left the court, the prisoner was removed and the grand jury took its place in the Ontario Supreme Court jury box.

This was the same grand jury which last month indicted Mrs. Dick for the slaying of her street car-driver husband and at the same time indicted her father, Donald MacLean, and her friend, William Bohozuk. They will stand trial after Mrs. Dick's is over.

Immediately Mr. Justice Barlow told the grand jury its services would not be needed today but the jury should return next Thursday.

Asks Press Co-operation

Then he told the press that "there may from time to time", in the Dick trial develop evidence concerning Bohozuk and Mr. MacLean and directed that reporters not send this information to their papers because it might be prejudicial to the cases of MacLean and the young former steelworker, Bohozuk.

"I know you all will respect my direction in this matter," said His Lordship.

Castle said he was informed March 7 that Dick had not reported to work.

He notified police of Dick being missing on March 15. That was nine days after Dick had last been seen alive.

Police, Castle said, asked him to swear out a warrant for Dick, if any money was missing but Castle said he thought Dick might be ill and wanted the police to verify this before he took other steps.

Previously Castle had said Dick and MacLean had not got along. Today he mentioned warning Dick after the slain man was involved in a couple of street car accidents.

Witness said the Russian-born 40-year-old victim was both a tram and bus driver.

"Did you ever hear of Betty Fontaine," asked Mr. Sullivan.

"Yes," said Mr. Castle. "She called me and asked me to have John Dick meet her with money he owed her."

Mr. Castle said the woman said she had loaned Dick this money to make up the money he needed for buying street car tickets.

Grandmother, Baby Killed

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — A grandmother and the 11-month-old grand-daughter she was wheeling in a baby carriage were both killed last night in an automobile accident in Toronto's east end. Mrs. E. W. Pearson, 50, and the child, Sandra Maltby, were crossing an intersection in front of the East General Hospital when a car struck Mrs. Pearson, carrying her some distance. The baby was thrown to the pavement. Both died four hours later in hospital.

TIRES FOR LAWN MOWERS RELEASED

Washington, Oct. 10 — (AP)— The Office of Price Administration yesterday removed price lids from rubber tires for lawn mowers, tires which bus lines rent on a mileage basis, and used bicycle tires. Ceilings still cover most passenger car and truck tires.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 10—(CP)—Synopsis: Cool, clear weather prevailed throughout most of Ontario on Wednesday except in the lower lakes region where skies were cloudy during the morning. Precipitation associated with a low pressure area of the Carolina coast persisted during the day in Pennsylvania and parts of Ohio and New York states, just missing Southern Ontario. The rain area is receding southeastward at the present time as the storm centre moves off into the Atlantic. In the midwest a fresh Polar outbreak is causing overcast skies and precipitation over a large area.

SQUIRRELS BUSY STORING FOOD

If you believe in the old adage that when squirrels are seen stocking up for winter in early autumn, the country is due for a drastic winter — then heavy weather lies ahead.

Reports from all parts of the city reveal that the little black fellows are working overtime putting away the winter groceries whenever they can get them, so if the old adage is true, humans had better be doing likewise.

REMEMBRANCE DAY DINNER PLANS

Arrangements are rapidly being rushed to completion for the mammoth Remembrance Day dinner being sponsored by the Belleville branch of the Canadian Legion on Nov. 11. R.S.M. Angus Duffy, chairman of the banquet committee, stated today that "everything is going as planned" and he looks forward to a big turnout of veterans of both wars. Tickets will be off the press within a day or so.

POLICE BLOTTER

Fined for Leaving Scene of Accident

That it does not pay to leave the scene of an accident without first stopping to give name and address and to render what assistance possible, was learned by Michael Thompson, Hamilton, this week in Belleville.

Over the weekend Mr. Thompson was involved in an accident just east of the city and failed to stop. He was later involved in a second accident inside the city limits with result that he was charged with dangerous driving and drunk driving, the two charges being enlarged for one week at police court Tuesday. In police court today he pleaded guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and was assessed $25 fine, plus costs.

Theft Charge Enlarged.

A charge of theft against Arthur Richardson, Belleville, was enlarged for one week pending the court obtaining information regarding the accused's police record. Richardson pleaded guilty to theft of aeroplane parts from No. 6 R.D. at Trenton where he was employed as an unskilled worker in the demolition of aircraft.

Suspended Sentence.

Maxwell Grant, Bancroft, was given six months suspended sentence when he pleaded guilty to a charge of making a false statement in connection with the obtaining of unemployment insurance. He was ordered to pay costs of the court and to make restitution to the department.

Obituary

EDWARD A. THOMPSON
(Bethel)
(Contributed)

The death occurred on Sept. 24 at his home in Bethel of Edward A. Thompson in his 63rd year. He was the youngest son of the late Moray and Eliza Thompson of Bethel.

The deceased received his early education at Demorestville and Picton schools. He entered the C.P.R. telegraph office in Picton as commercial operator, was transferred to Havelock, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. He returned to Bethel in 1915 where he since resided.

He leaves to mourn his loss his wife, Eleanor; two sisters, Mrs. Clayton Ward, Picton; Mrs. Frank Ashley, West Huntingdon; also one brother, Mr. B. C. Thompson, Bethel, and a nephew, Mr. Lee Thompson and family, Bethel.

Service took place at Bethel United Church on Thursday, September 26th. at 3.30, Mr. G. Dyson officiating.

Pallbearers were Messrs. W. Clarke, E. Valleau, G. Hunt, G. Thompson, N. Trumble and N. Crawford.

Interment was in Glenwood Cemetery.

LATE FREDERICK FLETCHER

The funeral of Frederick Fletcher took place Wednesday afternoon from his late residence, 191 Bridge St. East. The service there and at the cemetery at Wellman's Corners was conducted by the Rev. D. C. Amos, minister of Bridge Street United Church.

The bearers were Allan Franks, Stanley Franks, Ernest Holland, Robert Miles, Clifton Deck and B. Deck.

MRS. FRANK SPEERS
(Toronto)

Former resident of this city, Mrs. Frank (Sady) Speers, 87 Moberly Street, Toronto, died in St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto on Wednesday following an illness of four months.

Born in Belleville 56 years ago, Mrs. Speers was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Taylor and while living here was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are her husband, Frank Speers, three brothers, George Taylor of Cochrane, Joseph Taylor, Quebec, and William Taylor of Belleville, and three sisters, Mrs. Jack Bannister, Toronto; Mrs. Harry Stoliker, Belleville, and Mrs. H. Mashintter, Toronto.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Meteor Shower Is Not Visible Here Because of Clouds

Overcast skies prevented any opportunity of local residents seeing the shower of meteorites which were expected to be seen over the northeast horizon Wednesday evening. Astronomers predicted that the shower of meteorites would be seen in considerable number about ten o'clock but at that hour the sky was cloudy in that particular portion of the skies where the "falling stars" were expected to be seen.

Reason for the expected shower of meteorites was given as the earth passing through the tail of a comet. The shower of "shooting stars" was to be the greatest seen in years but the brilliancy of the moon now near full was expected to reduce the spectacle.

Municipal Band Presents Splendid Program Under Auspices of Optimist Club

Local music lovers who passed up Wednesday evening's concert given by the Belleville Municipal Band at the Collegiate auditorium missed out on one of the finest performances ever given by the local musical organization.

Such was the word of tribute paid by one local band music lover following the performance who declared that the Belleville band had never staged a program to equal that of Wednesday evening. "The Belleville Municipal Band is one of the best amateur musical organizations in the province," he said.

Last night's concert was staged under the auspices of the Belleville Optimist Club and in connection with the observance of Optimist Week and was attended by a fair crowd of band music enthusiasts. The auditorium stage was appropriately decorated for the occasion with "Optimist Week" banners.

Efficient Organization.

Accepting many verbal plaudits on the excellence of the band's performance, Mr. Ross Hunter, band leader, stated that the local band is now a rejuvenated unit with many of the older and more experienced members having returned to play with the band.

Last evening the audience was especially enthusiastic with the band's rendition of "Colonel Bogey," while the soft tones of "Talisman Overture" demonstrated the possible and very pleasing contrast in tonal quality.

From the standpoint of expression the band's playing of "Simple Concession" was especially noteworthy.

Guest artist for the program was Charles Tillbrook, piano accordion player with the Rhythm Ranch Riders, who received a splendid hand for his two selections.

Jack Devine, station CJBQ radio announcer, acted as master of ceremonies for the program, while Optimist President Bob Kidd, on behalf of club members expressed appreciation to band members and officials and to others taking part in the program.

Work of Clubs Praised.

Alderman Lorne McDougall, in the absence of Mayor Frank Follwell, praised the work of Belleville service clubs and enumerated some of their projects. He indicated that co-operation was the keynote to the success of any service club. On behalf of the Mayor and citizens of the city he welcomed the Optimist Club into the realm of service club circles in the city.

Dr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College and president of Rotary, referred to the Optimist Club as the "Baby Club" of the city and assured there could be never too many engaged in service club work.

"The help given by a service club to the community is essential because on many occasions it bridges a gap," stated Dr. Howard. "There is no other form of help which would do."

Picton

PICTON, October 10 (Special) Dr. J. H. Boulter has returned from Montreal where he attended the 125th reunion of McGill University graduates. On this occasion, Canada's Governor General was given a degree. Dr. Boulter graduated in the class of 1903 and his two sons also attended McGill.

More than 200 ladies attended an Autumn tea held at the United Church hall yesterday. Mrs. Nesbitt McKibbon, Mrs. Hanson Huff and Mrs. G. M. Hicks welcomed the visitors. Tea was poured by Mrs. A. E. McCutcheon, Mrs. A. H. Walton and Mrs. H. McCartney. Several musical numbers were given during the afternoon.

Holiday Visitors

Among those who will be in town for Thanksgiving weekend are, Miss Margaret Cahoon, Reg. N., of the staff of Kingston General Hospital, with her mother, Mrs. Gordon Cahoon; Miss Dorothy Powers, Toronto, with her mother, Mrs. W. R. Powers; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Boulter and son Richard, Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Boulter, Montreal, with Dr. J. H. Boulter and Miss Lillian Boulter; Dr. C. H. Leavens, radiologist at Chorley park hospital, Toronto, with his family.

Mrs. T. S. Wells will be a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Simpson at Brighton.

Rev. W. G. Swayne was in Kingston on Tuesday for the executive meeting of the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario.

Sir Thomas Picton chapter I.O.D.E. has organized a bridge marathon to raise funds. There will be eleven hostesses with 44 participants in the tournament which will continue for several weeks. Prizes will be given for high scores at the close of the series.

Glass Experiments Under Way

Wallaceburg, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Experiments aimed at manufacture of "amber glass" without use of soda ash are under way at the Dominion Glass Company plant here, manager E. Davies said yesterday. The amber glass could be used to make bottles. The firm made preliminary experiments two weeks ago and this week 125 men were called back to work. The glass factory, which normally employs about 900 men, closed in August after a wages-hours strike at the Brunner-Mond plant at nearby Amherstburg cut off the supply of soda ash needed for the usual process of glass manufacture.

Two Overcoats Reported Stolen

With winter and consequent colder weather fast approaching there seems to be a demand for topcoats with the needy parties not being too particular as to the method of obtaining the necessary protection against the elements.

At least that is the interpretation taken by local police of the reported thefts of two overcoats within the past two days.

Wednesday the proprietor of a local restaurant complained that he had left his coat hanging near the street door from where it later disappeared, while today a commercial traveller reported that a $45 topcoat was taken from the coat rack at a local hotel.

Speeders Fined

Police clamped down on speeding motorists over the night with three local drivers being apprehended for driving at too great a speed on city streets. All three were charged and assessed the customary fines.

Hub Caps Stolen

A Picton motorist reported that all four hub caps from his auto were taken while his car was parked on the parking lot at a Front Street service station, while a local street paving contractor complained that a quantity of lumber was stolen along Highway No. 2 just outside the city limits.

Cost Accountants Hear Talk on Incentive Plan

The regular monthly meeting of the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants of Ontario, Bay of Quinte Chapter, was held on Monday evening at the Bar-B-Q dining hall. Mark Vanner as song leader and Ray Lennox as pianist, very ably took care of the sing song.

In the absence of the Chairman, Art Lockley, Past Chairman Les. Lennox handled the necessary business. Carl Casey, chairman of the Student Instruction, announced that the first class would meet on October 22nd, at 7.30 p.m. in the sales room of Deacon Bros. Ltd. This instruction is in the interest of those taking R.I.A. and similar accounting courses.

Mr. Vuchnick, Controller of the Lincoln Electric Company, Toronto, was introduced by Ray Lennox. From the introduction it was learned that the speaker had served a number of years with the Lincoln Electric Company, at Johannesburg, South Africa. Mr. Vuchnick outlined the Wage Incentive Plan adopted in 1933 by the Lincoln Electric Company of Cleveland, Ohio. In six years the cost of their products decreased 60 percent; dividends to stock holders increased 40 percent. Further example, 110 man hours in 1933 to 19 man hours in 1939 for the same product. The workers have increased their wages by more than 200 percent. It would seem that this incentive plan is the answer to the manufacturer's economic theory of "Better and Better Products for Less and Less Money."

The thanks and appreciation of the Chapter was expressed by I. Stephenson. A long discussion period followed. Mr. Vuchnick proved his outstanding ability by answering a number of questions. Program Chairman Ray Lennox announced that the November meeting would be addressed by Mr. Ira S. Needles, R.I.A. Vice President of the Goodrich Rubber Company, Toronto. His subject "Sales and Cost" should not only be interesting but instructive.

Shooting Star Shower

The display resulted as the earth came within 131,000 miles of the spot in space through which the comet passed eight days ago.

Part of Comet's Tail

The meteors were shed by the comet and formed part of its tail. Those seen on the earth were those caught by the earth's gravitational pull and consumed for the most part as they plunged through the earth's air shell, the friction between the solid matter and the air causing the brilliant burning.

Wagner Schlesinger, director of the Adler Planetarium in Chicago, said he counted 149 flashing projectiles in a 10-minute peak period starting at 10:49 p.m., E.S.T., and said the display was unmatched in the United States during the present century.

Emsley Johnson, Sr., president of the Indiana Astronomical Society, said the display in Indianapolis was the most spectacular he ever say and similar views were expressed by scientists in Duluth, Superior, Wis., and Berkeley, Calif.

Skies were clear over Denver at the height of the display and over Louisville where Dr. Charles Strull, educational director of the Louisville Astronomical Society, said he counted 856 meteors in almost four hours.

Among those who were handicapped by heavy clouds were scientists from New York's Hayden Planetarium. They spent two hours and 40 minutes in a plane above the metropolitan area but were unable to rise above the overcast. The plane was unable to go beyond 13,000 feet and the control tower at Newark airport reported the overcast went as high as 20,000 feet.

was predicted, were Stanley Mott of the stronomical Society; and Miriam Burland and Malcolm Thompson of the Dominion Observatory staff.

Clouds Lift Over Capital

Ironically, the clouds lifted over the capital several hours after the party left and by 10 p.m., when the shower was at its height the skies there were perfectly clear.

First meteors came into view here about 8 p.m. but not until 10 did the display really get into full stride. The peak continued until after 11 and then began to ease off.

Some of the meteors were vividly colored and the shower was so extensive that visual observers counted almost 2,000 during a four-hour period.

Three direct cameras and two spectographs were trained on the northeast sky to gather data not only from the meteorites themselves but from the upper atmosphere as well. The scientists estimated the shower passed through the earth's gaseous envelope at heights ranging from 40 to 80 miles.

The party flew back to Ottawa early today with their cargo of exposures and were expected to begin their researches when the plates are developed, probably some time today.

Giacobini-Zinner, in its long elliptical journey around the sun, crossed the earth's orbit last week when the comet itself was several million miles away. Now the earth is only 132,000 miles from the point where the comet's head was then and it was bits of the tail, striking the earth's atmosphere and blazing from the friction of their speed, that caused the display.

Toronto Riders Win Top Honors at Motorbike Races

The Elia brothers, Tony and Albert of Toronto carried off the major honors at the motorcycle races held at the Fair Grounds yesterday by the Canadian Motorcycle Association and under the aegis of the Belleville Optimist Club. The events were witnessed by approximately 2,000 enthusiasts of the sport, and were part of the auspicious program presented by the new service club on the occasion of National Optimist Week.

Albert Elia, riding a Harley, roared over the course in the elapsed time of 6 minutes, 5 seconds to capture the five-mile Expert Race. Brother Tony trailed him closely to take second money while Harold Koehler, of Waterloo, took third place astride an Indian bike.

H. Timson of Toronto won the five-mile Novice Race being clocked over the course at 6 minutes, 10½ seconds. George Train, Toronto, was second and Merv. Burkholder, only Belleville entry in the races, finished third.

In the three-mile expert final the Elia brothers again finished one and two, with Tony finishing ahead of brother Albert. Harold Koehler was in third place. The winner's time was 3 minutes, 36 seconds.

J. Ferguson, Toronto, took the two-mile novice final with H. Timson, also of Toronto, finishing a runner-up. In third place was John Harman, Toronto. The time was 3 minutes, 38 seconds.

The special $10 prize awarded to the rider negotiating the fastest lap was won by Tony Elia, who drove the course in 33.77 seconds.

Approximately 24 riders took part in the events coming from all parts of the province. The races were well contested and the crowd present was provided with plenty of thrills as the roaring bikes ripped over the course.

SAYS 80 PERCENT PENICILLIN WASTED

Philadelphia, Oct. 10 (AP) — Eighty percent of the penicillin used by doctors today is wasted, says Dr. Hobart A. Reimann, professor of medicine at Jefferson Medical College. He told physicians attending the annual convtion of the Medical Society of Pennsylvania last night, the tendency "is to give penicillin for any disease, often when it will be of no benefit." Dr. Reimann said "I've even heard of one doctor who gives his patients a penicillin injection every week just to keep them well."

BIRTHS

MOTT — Mr. and Mrs. Harold Mott (nee Mary Bellyou) Oakville, are happy to announce the birth of their son, Allan James, on Wednesday, October 9th., 1946, at the Belleville General Hospital — a brother for Judith.

DIED

SPEERS — At. St. Joseph's Hospital, Toronto, on Wednesday, October 9th., Mrs. Frank Speers, 87 Moberly St., Toronto, in her 56th. year.

The body will arrive in Belleville early Saturday morning to rest at the Martin Funeral Home, Church St., whence the funeral will take place Saturday. Service in the chapel at 2.30 p.m. with interment at Belleville Cemetery.

IN MEMORIAM

WHITE — In loving memory of our son, Rflmn. Robert Alexander White, killed in Belgium, October 10th., 1944.

Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died two years ago.
There is a link death cannot sever,
Love and remembrance last forever.
—Fondly remembered by Mother, Dad and Sisters.

HALL — In loving memory of my dear husband, Berton V. Hall, whose death came suddenly one year ago today, October 10th., 1945.

We little did know when we awoke that morn,
The last parting wish I would like to have heard,
And breathed in your ear my last parting word.
Only those who have lost are able to tell
The pain in my heart of not saying farewell.
They say time heals all sorrow.
The time so far has only proved
How much I miss him yet.
God gave me strength to fight it,
And courage to fight the blow,
But what it meant to miss you, Bert,
No one will ever know.
—Sadly missed by your wife Effa Hall and son, Gerald.

HINTON — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Arthur Hinton, who passed away, October 10th., 1942.

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear.
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach;
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.
—Sadly missed by Wife and Family.

AKEY — In loving memory of a loving son and brother, F.O. Ross W. Akey, missing over Northern Seas, October 10th., 1944.

There's a mother and dad who miss you sadly,
And find the time long since you went,
And we think of you daily and hourly,
But try to be brave and content,
But the tears we shed are in silence
And we breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were ours, and we remember
Though the world forgets.

peoples in a time of danger we cannot and dare not evade the realities. We must face up to the harsh truth that aggressive forces are on the loose in the world."

If a third world war is permitted to develop, he said, the "precious immunity" North America enjoyed in the First and Second Great Wars would no longer exist.

The element of restraint against use of bacteriological weapons arising from the danger it might hit the attacking country as well would not apply, he said,

"Because we Americans are cut off by two oceans an enemy on either side could unleash the horrors of disease without danger of infecting itself.

"The northern polar regions provide the shortest and most effective highways of destruction for all the new air-borne instruments of death and demolition...

"In this new day and age Canada's front line of defence may be in Alaska which is no less the front line of defence for the United States..."

Matter of Necessity

"Co-operation between our countries in the military sphere is no longer a matter of choice, it is a matter of irreducible necessity."

Mr. Jackson emphasized his belief in the desirability and possibility of great economic and cultural co-operation between Canada and the United States.

That co-operation would be an example to the world of the valuable returns from free enterprise as a means to betterment and happiness of the people.

Millions in Europe and Asia, faced by an elemental struggle for mere existence, were "seeking refuge in the arms of a paternal state."

These people, he said, "are headed for brutal disillusionment even as those who fell for the slogans and promises of the dictator systems in Germany, Italy and Russia have been disillusioned."

He referred to the ability of Canada and the United States to pour out help to the distressed areas abroad. "The irony of it is," he added, "that in their bewilderment and political defuddlement, many of those we help decry and revile the very system that is saving them from starvation."

Still in Public Life

Winston Churchill will remain in public life, he said a few days ago in words which might inspire every lover of his country in any land to act likewise and give his best effort to his country's cause and the betterment of humanity.

"I am resolved to go forward carrying the flag so long as I have strength and a measure of your confidence," said the former Prime Minister of Britain.

People of different political opinions can agree with this attitude for it is a British custom, as the Ottawa Journal points out, referring to the similar statement made by Gladstone in his eighties, years older than Churchill. Gladstone expressed himself in these words:

"Though nature calls aloud for rest, I am buckling on my armor."

Winston Churchill bore a great load of service for the world with the devotion, which Britons give to public service, during the war years and might claim to deserve rest, but he feels public duty calls him at this time still to serve. He admitted that the thought of retirement had crossed his mind frequently, but because the world "situation is so serious and what may come so grave" that he has decided to carry on while enjoying his strength and retaining "a measure of your confidence," two good reasons for remaining.

Dreamboat's Expedition

The Pacusan Dreamboat made a record flight from Hawaii without stop over the Arctic areas to Cairo. It was more than just a record for sustained flight. It brought back results which mean much to the scientist at least even if many a man feels that it makes no difference to him whether the magnetic poles are where they are supposed to be or are not there.

Any venture or expedition today by science will bear result in this age as knowledge continues to grow through continued research. To the scientist the aim is fact finding which is what truth is to the philosopher.

Captain C. S. Irvine of the Dreamboat has announced that the magnetic north pole is not correctly located on the maps. In May, 1945, a R.A.F. expedition thoroughly explored the Arctic air and after making 30,000 instrumental readings concluded that the north magnetic pole lies about 300 miles north-northwest of the position inferred by Amundsen. Irwin has confirmed the British findings and adds to the glory already shed on the mathematical work of Sir Harold Spencer Jones, Astrologer-Royal, says the New York Times. The newspaper goes on to say:

"Much the same story is told by the wobbly south magnetic pole. Back in 1940 Admiral Byrd found that this elusive spot had changed its location since 1909. Geophysicists had long known that the two magnetic poles have an inexplicable way of migrating. The two are not diametrically opposite each other, as they ought to be in a supposedly orderly universe. An imaginary connecting line would miss the centre of the earth by about 750 miles. Moreover, as one magnetic pole shifts so does the other.

"This shifting of both the magnetic and geographic poles is still one of the mysteries of physics. It may be of no great importance to the man in the street, but it is of some importance to the scientists whose business it is to discover more about the earth and its vagaries. The compass needle has long been popularly and deservedly regarded as a symbol of accuracy. But what if the magnetic poles move? The compass is not at fault. Still it is a little disconcerting to find that because of magnetic polar wobbles the needle pointed north-by-east in 1580, true north in 1665, north-northeast in 1812 and true north again in 1862. What is the reason for the drifting? The answer has still to be found."

Parliamentary Reporting

The Press Gallery of the British House of Commons is a historic political institution. It is a self-governing body, with its own conventions, code of behavior and traditions resting, like everything else connected with Parliament, on the slow growth of centuries. Reporters had not actually a special gallery to themselves before 1835, but long before then Parliamentary debates were "reported," usually from gossip, memory or imagination. E. R. Thompson, speaking to overseas listeners to the BBC, recalled recently that the great Samuel Johnson, as a starving young scholar, was employed as a hack-writer to work up rough notes and jottings on the Parliamentary debates into full reports for a newspaper. At the most he had a few jottings but from these he produced magnificent, rolling Johnsonian oratory. Years afterwards, at a dinner party given by Foote, the actor, in 1770, someone was praising a great oration delivered by the older Pitt thirty years before. Johnson, who was among the guests, sat silent for a while, then growled out: "That speech I wrote, in a garret in Exeter Street."

Another famous reporter was "Memory" Woodfall, who was born exactly two hundred years ago and became a celebrity, almost a Parliamentary institution. He used to sit by the hour through the debates with his eyes closed and his hands clasped over his stick, taking never a note. All he ever ate was a hard-boiled egg, the shell of which he peeled off into his hat. Then, at the adjournment he would walk to his newspaper office and there produce a report of the debates entirely from memory. Many other distinguished writers have been Parliamentary reporters but the greatest of them all was Charles Dickens, who was incidentally an expert shorthand writer and one of the first of the new school of reporters who took their notes in shorthand instead of longhand.

Spare Us This One!

If we were of two minds about the development of the atomic bomb, we are in no such quandary about the discovery, claimed by a French scientist, of the means to turn night into day.

We are against it.

We are against it because the night, like the day, belongs to every one of us, an inheritance of which we must not be robbed. We are against it for the sake of all the little children who look out upon the darkness and learn to love the fireside: for the sake of all shy lovers who draw courage from the gentle persuasion of the night; for the sake of all who lie down to sleep at the end of a day of toil.

We are against it because of nightingales and the joyful night chorus of the spring peepers; because of the shadows which the moon casts on summer lawns and winter snows; because of the hush which falls upon the earth when the light has gone from the sky, and because of the stars.

We will have none of this turning night into day because never again could a Longfellow write:

> The day is done, and the darkness
> Falls from the wings of night,
> As a feather is wafted downward
> From an eagle in his flight.

—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Fire protection is not a task to be observed only at one period of the year but it is the duty of everyone to be careful all the time. In the fight against fire there can be no relaxation. It is a daily duty to exercise carefulness and this will pay the best rewards — in saving of life and property.

No fewer than 121 persons were killed and 470 others were injured in level crossing accidents during 1935. The driver who stops, looks and listens may be a quaint individual, but he is at least alive, remarks Hamilton Spectator.

The very idea of the power and right of the people to establish government presupposes the duty of every individual to obey the established government.—Washington.

CARELESS NOW

"And did you wind the clock?" she'd say,
"And did you lock the door?"
Or: "Did you put your books away?"
Such questions come no more.
I leave my stuff strewn everywhere,
For there is none who seems to care.

"Oh, are you sure the windows all
Are shut against the rain?
Come, put away the table small
Till cards we play again."
Through open windows beats the rain,
And cards we'll never play again.

I leave my papers strewn about;
The door forget to lock.
The little table still stays out.
I seldom wind the clock.
A sorry look the dwelling wears,
For there is no one now who cares.

Whitehall Notebook

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 10 (CP)— Maj. Tufton Beamish, 29, an Englishman who won the Military Cross with the infantry in 1940 and lists his recreations as "riding, shooting, fishing, ornithology, photography," has returned to tell his fellow-members of the House of Commons they are full of misconceptions about the United States.

The young bachelor, who has represented Lewes constituency as a Conservative since 1945, went to the United States for a month and came back with the idea it is a poor policy to speak of the Americans as "cousins."

Writing in a district paper, the Hove Review, Maj. Beamish said it is "better to look on the Americans as foreigners and then be delighted that we have so much in common, than call them 'cousin' and be disappointed to find what different outlooks we have."

He found the differences apt to "jerk you a bit." In the presence of Americans he said he hoped for a fortnight's holiday and one asked what he meant and another suggested "fortnight" was the same as weekend. But he found Boston "more English than Brighton or Eastbourne."

He said he felt the greatest United States problem was labor, with the free economy the United States enjoyed "marred by a minority of bad employers exploiting labor and by bad labor elements exploiting employers." He observed that Zionist and Irish-American groups "hate us with an almost unbelievable fervor."

He gave his advice:

"Remember, anyhow, that it annoys most Americans just as much when we start trying to solve their color problem as it annoys us when they tell us what we ought to do in India.

Sharp Criticism Of Federal Tax Policies Heard

By JACK EVESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Oct. 10—(CP)—Political interests must be separated from labor-management disputes if industrial peace is to be permanently restored, H. Greville Smith of Montreal told the 17th annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here Wednesday in a prepared address.

Co-chairman of the Chamber's labor policy committee, Mr. Smith charged labor groups with publicizing the "misrepresentation" that all who oppose union proposals were necessarily anti-labor.

Yesterday, the Chamber heard sharp criticism of federal tax policies. It came from C. Gordon Brodie, a Vancouver manufacturer, who declared Finance Minister Ilsley's budget of last June was "so discouraging that there was no incentive whatsoever for private enterprise to proceed with expansion."

Mr. Smith warned against permitting unions to usurp too much authority, contending it was the right of any employee to determine whether he wished to affiliate himself with any labor organization.

Support Private Enterprise

At yesterday's session, the Chamber adopted a resolution recording its "unswerving support for private competitive enterprise and its vigorous opposition to anything which would weaken or destroy the rights and freedom of the individual citizen."

"The right of free citizens to sell the products of their labors cannot be surrendered to the state without a loss of personal liberties such as few citizens would be willing to accept. Under such a condition the wages received and the prices paid by citizens become established out of political considerations rather than economic, dictated by the political party in power for the time being."

Prof. J. L. McDougall of Queen's University, Kingston, Ont., warned that individual freedom would be lost if freedom of enterprise were abolished. He urged that private enterprise be aware of the need for progressive qualities and be not content with maintenance of the status quo.

Pupils in Sussex Have Canadian Girl as Teacher

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ashburnham, Sussex, Oct. 10 (CP)—Children at Ashburnham and Penhurst school, situated in one of the loneliest parishes in Sussex, a few miles from historic Hastings, are still enjoying the novelty of having a Canadian teacher.

On the first day of the autumn term, dark brown-eyed Bella Blake of Kirkland Lake, Ont., mounted the teacher's-rostrum and girls from five to nine years of age gave a special welcoming cheer.

"It was a lovely reception," said Miss Blake who is here for a year under the British Empire League's exchange of teachers scheme, resumed after the war.

Swapping places with Astburnham's head teacher, Mrs. Marjorie Stubbs, who is taking her place at Kirkland Lake, Miss Blake flew to England from Montreal in a converted Lancaster bomber.

She began by telling her new charges about the Queen Elizabeth School at Kirkland Lake where she has taught for several years. Deeply interested, the children asked her questions about local gold-mining and about the school system in Canada.

"They had some difficulty understanding that our public schools are state schools, quite different from the public schools of England," Miss Blake said. "They were surprised, too, when I told them that Canadians must go through public school before passing on to a secondary school. Here, of course, the secondary school is usually an alternative to the public school."

Miss Blake said the teaching syllabus at Oshburnham is similar to those in Ontario public schools but, whereas in Ontario the syllabus is the same for the whole province, in England it is the responsibility of individual head-teachers.

"The classes are rather smaller over here," she added. "The children I teach are very co-operative and give me hardly any trouble. But I haven't had time to know whether I really like English rural life. It is very quiet, of course, but the people are grand and so very helpful.

"The food situation is worse than I expected but I haven't gone hungry yet—in fact somehow I've managed to put on weight."

THE EIGHTY DOLLAR HAT

Just to make it perfectly clear that I don't know what I'm talking about, and without malice a forethought, let me say, ladies, that I have seen displays of nifty lids, in store windows, priced at $1.80 or thereabouts, that looked a blanked sight better than many of the frightful specimens for which women eagerly pay unbelievable sums. On sober second thought I am fairly well aware that the merest mention of this observation in certain circles has a chilling effect on the atmosphere for days and days.

Whether or no, the case in hand points a moral, which I hope my dear friends of the American Dental Association will perceive.

The lady appeared at a do of her club, wearing a new hat—I am glad I didn't see it, for if I had it might not be so easy to deal calmly with the matter. The other members, in the usual state about it, lost no time in determining the origin of the hat—some kind of exclusive or snooty concern or individual whose hats sell "from $80" as the hotel ads say about room tariffs. Of course the members immediately wondered—they knew this lady's husmore than $4,800 a year.

Well, leave that to the cats.

In the course of the afternoon this lady with the eighty dollar hat was reminded that she must find a new dentist. It was disgraceful and something should be done about it, but doctors and dentists were gouging outrageously—why, she had just received a bill from her dentist for just two small fillings, some porcelain work and cleaning her teeth—the whole thing took only two or three hours altogether, and do you know that man demands $37.00. All she had to say was that he would certainly wait . . .

There you have it, folks.

Draw your own moral.

But first let me repeat something I have said here many times; I say it also in No. 1 Little Lesson in the Ways of Health "Save Your Teeth" and in No. 16, "The Seven Keys to Vite" (for either booklet send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope). It is this:

And in answering queries from lawyers who have personal injury cases I have said many times that in my opinion $1000 is a fair compensation to allow for the loss of a tooth. I know I'd have to be pretty desperate before I'd give a functionally efficient tooth (my own or my dentist's) for anything less. But then, I doubt that the average layman values his teeth as highly as I value mine—the lady with the eighty dollar hat, for example.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Good Ghost

We have enjoyed your column for a long time and we agree with almost everything you say, albeit some near-doctors here declare that you died long ago and that a ghost writer or a syndicate of medical men in the A. M. A. now conduct your column . . . We still say the ghost must be good, and if you are dead then a lot of doctors in this neck of the woods must be petrified. (H. M.)

Answer—(1) Back in 1930, if you want the truth, I entered heaven. (2) Back in 1928 I was killed in New Orleans—I may be back there now—haven't noticed lately. I noticed my demise at the time because a physician down there wrote a Washington bureau to ask about a book the "late Dr. Wm. Brady published shortly before he passed away." (3) Since I quit paying annual dues in the A. M. A. a year ago, my copy of the weekly Journal comes addressed Estate of Wm. Brady, M.D. This ought to clinch it. If I'm not dead it is not because a lot of people do not wish I were.

Diabetes

I am sixteen and diabetic. Have taken insulin for five years. Have heard of diabetics worse than I am who now get along with little or no insulin and even eat some sweets. (E. T.)

Answer—Best information or advice I can offer is in the booklet "Training for Diabetes." For copy send ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope. It tells all I know about poor man's insulin (vitaminB-complex.)

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What causes the northern lights?

The northern lights have never been explained satisfactorily. Scientists have been studying them for generations but have not yet been able to determine the exact cause of these fireworks of nature and theories explaining them are subject to continual revision.

The ancients watched the northern lights with awe and ascribed to them a supernatural origin. In Roman mythology Aurora was the goddess of the dawn and Boreas was the personification of the north wind. "Aurora" signifies "dawn," and "borealis" signifies "north," hence the northern lights are called 'aurora borealis."

When it was learned that a similar luminous phenomenon occurs in the south polar region the southern lights were called aurora australis, "south dawn." "Aurora polaris" is the generic name for both the northern and the southern lights.

These spectacular phenomena, among the most beautiful and marvelous in nature, are believed to produced somehow by vast electrical discharges in the earth's upper atmosphere originating with or induced by the sun.'

The general theory is that something from the sun breaks up the molecules of the atmospheric gas, electrifies them, causes them to be drawn toward the poles of the earth and renders them susceptible to the earth's magnetic field. In other words, electrons from the sun ionize the rarified gases at low pressure in the upper atmosphere and what takes place on a grand scale is similar to what takes place on a small scale in a neon-sign light. Miniature synthetic auroras can be produced in laboratories. Molecules of air in a glass tube are bombarded with a current of electricity and made to glow in waves of color similar to the northern and southern lights.

The northern lights range from a bright glow to active streamers. Sometimes they cover the whole sky with a quivering mass of feathery flames. The long, slender beams of light of various colors form an arc in the heavens. Often there are coronas, rays, arcs, criss-crosses and other discharges of red, green, yellow and blue lights that brighten the skies.

There seems to be some relationship between the aurora polaris and sunspots, but just what the relationship is has not been determined definitely. Very bright displays of the northern lights are frequently accompanied by magnetic disturbances that disrupt telegraph, cable and radio communications.

Aurora polaris is rare within 45 degrees of the Equator and is more frequent farther north, although it is not common within 60 degrees of the poles. The northern lights are most frequent in October and April and most rare in December and June. They have been observed in the United States as far south as Georgia and New Mexico. It is not uncommon for displays of the northern lights to be mistaken for the glow of a distant fire.

Ring for Fiance Latest Fashion

Toronto (CP)—The Canadian girl soon may brand her future spouse with an engagement ring the minute he ties her down with that fateful "diamond."

The housing shortage is the reason nowadays for many a long engagement. Then again a number of veterans, with university education in view, are settling down to long sessions with books and lectures—and just possibly college dances.

The little girl who sits at home and waits is seriously contemplating putting her fiance in mothballs with an engagement ring — one method at least of beating off feminine wolves.

During the war canny brides whose intendeds were headed for far-off lands went in more and more for the double-ring ceremony. Now the custom of feeling only duly wedded when your husband also is wearing a gold band has become popular.

As for the double-ring engagement, jewellers claim the idea originated years ago in Europe and already has become popular in the United States. But they think it will take the average Canadian girl a little more time to overcome her "conservatism" and adopt it.

Men's engagement rings now on sale seldom contain diamonds, but usually are fine signets. Even birthstones have become popular. Most of the rings are suitably engraved inside with the name, date and occasion.

"Often the happy couple will buy the rings together," said one Toronto jeweller. "She usually pays about half as much for the rings she gives him as he pays for hers."

ATLANTIC BATTLE BROUGHT TO LIFE IN BRITISH FILM

Scenes Familiar to Maritimers Abound in "The Raider," Record of Thrilling U-Boat Fight

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

New York (CP)—The battle of the western ocean—familiar to every Maritimer during seven years of war—is brought to the screen in its most authentic and thrilling form by the British documentary film "The Raider" now being shown in New York.

From its first shot of a lifeboat tossing in a swell-running sea to the climactic battle between a freighter and a U-boat, the picture shows incidents that were close to the lives of the residents of Halifax, Saint John, N.B., and Sydney, N.S.—the "East Coast Canadian ports" from whence sailed the convoys to Britain.

In the film, the rusty, ugly freighters sail from New York—but they might have gathered for convoy in Bedford Basin. The men who sailed them and the Royal Navy men who protected them, were the same swashbucklers who swaggered down Barrington Street in Halifax or who landed on the Sydney jetties.

"The Raider" was produced in 1945 by the Crown Film Unit of English Films Corporation. It was produced by Ian Dalrymple and was directed by Pat Jackson, who also wrote the script.

No professional actors are in the cast and there is no love interest. The actors who are anonymous, came from the Royal Navy, the Royal Netherlands Navy or the allied merchant navies.

Coming to Canada

Distributors of the film here said today that "The Raider" has been shown in New England but has not yet been released in Canada.

When it arrives in the Canadian Maritimes, Nova Scotians, New Brunswickers and Prince Edward Islanders will find that its combination of thrills and history provides an authentic chapter in a familiar story.

In essence, the story is the saga of 24 survivors of the freighter Jason, torpedoed 1,000 miles from the coast of Ireland, and of their rescuers, the crew of the Scottish cargo ship Leander.

When the survivors send out an SOS from the lifeboat, it is picked up by a prowling German submarine which uses the lifeboat for a decoy. Fast-thinking on the part of the torpedoed captain leads to a warning of the Leander at the last minute and the submarine and freighter fight it out on the surface.

Particularly fine performances are given by the captain of the Jason, the Scottish master of the Leander, the commodore of the destroyer-escort force, and the commander of the German submarine.

REMINDER OF CANADIAN RAILWAY HISTORY RESTS IN VANCOUVER

Holding itself as dignified as possible under the circumstances, Canadian Pacific locomotive 374, the famous old wood-burner which drew the first transcontinental passenger train into Vancouver from Montreal in 1887, is pictured here as it was trundled through the streets of Vancouver to a site in Kitsilano Park. The 44-ton engine, minus its pilot and old-fashioned smoke stack was uncoupled from its wood-filled tender at the C.P.R.'s Drake Street yard for the truck haul, but will be "re-outfitted" at Kitsilano where it will rest as a reminder of Canadian transcontinental railway history.

Canada Buys Rabbit Skins

Canberra (CP)—Canada ranks second to the United States as a buyer of Australian rabbit skins which now are Australia's sixth export.

About 90 per cent of Australia's rabbit skins are shipped abroad. Australian hat manufacturers and furriers use the remainder.

Rabbit trapping has become an important industry in a few years. Value of exported skins was estimated at $19,000,000 in the year ended June 30, compared with $1,290,000 seven years ago.

Increased prices have been a big factor in the rise of export value because the weight of export skins has only doubled since 1939.

Brokers estimate that a good trapper can make from $150 to $200 a week catching rabbits and many farmers in drought-affected areas have turned to trapping.

Canada is reported to use the skins in the manufacture of fur coats. The United States uses them for felt-making. In England the skins go into coats, hats, trimmings and gloves.

Woman Uses Wings For 25-Foot Jumps

Virginiatown, Ont. (CP)— An adventurous Virginiatown housewife has invented a pair of wings which she uses to jump from buildings 20 to 25 feet high.

Mrs. Phil Golden, the mother of two children, began working on her wings two years ago after dissecting birds in an attempt to learn how they fly. She made the wings of parachute silk and bits of plastic. They look like a mass of gigantic feather-like pockets built onto even larger feathers. These feathers or air pockets flush the air back through the larger feathers on to a plastic back. In so doing, a vacuum is formed underneath the outer feathers. The vacuum together with a movable outer attachment at the wing tips allows for the possibility of propulsion by means of earnest wrist action.

Mrs. Golden said a weak heart so far has prevented her from more stringently testing her wings. Up until now she has been jumping from platforms at least 20-25 feet in height. Most of her "flying" has been done at night because she is shy of publicity.

MATRIMONIAL KNOT

The expression tying the knot, in reference to a wedding ceremony, is derived from the fact that priests used to tie the ends of their stoles around the joined hands of bride and groom.

Report Cannibalism In Nigerian Jungle

Lagos, Nigeria (CP)—A gruesome story of murder and cannibalism in the Nigerian jungle growing out of tribal enmity unfolded in a Lagos courtroom when 11 natives were arraigned on a charge of murder. All were convicted and sentenced to death.

The fate of Jamieson Limo Etuk, Owerri Province schoolteacher, after he left his home to arrange for a family feast was learned shortly after his murder and reported in news dispatches from a Nigerian settlement. But it was not until the murder trial when an eyewitness of the crime told his story from the stand that details of his death were learned.

For more than a year enmity existed between the Ibibios, the tribe to which Etuk belonged, and the Ibos who blamed the Ibibios for the murder of their chief. The boundary line between the tribes' lands is the river which divides Owerri from Calabar Province. It was in Calabar shortly after crossing the stream where Etuk died.

Six men attacked the schoolteacher with clubs at the top of a hill up which Etuk had pushed his bicycle, the witness testified. Clubbed unconscious, Etuk was dragged into the bush and exhibited before members of the Ibo tribe. Then his body was cut up, cooked and eaten.

Etuk's skull was presented to the daughter of the murdered chief, it was related, and his clothing and parts of the dismantled bicycle were shared among the murderers.

Company-Union Meeting Proposed To Discuss Opening

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 9 — (CP)— The next move in the attempts to get Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation's mills back into production was awaited today as a union spokesman predicted the possibility of a company - union meeting to discuss the date for re-opening of the plant.

Company officials, however, said they had received no official word and declined comment on any meeting until later in the day.

On the surface, the situation in Sydney was the same as it was during the weekend with the union seeking a date for sending its 4,000 members back to work following the official end of the 12-week steel strike last week.

The last official statement from the Dosco management was that the company could not afford to pay the 13-cent increase involved in steel controller F. B. Kilbourn's proposals which settled the strike.

Developments elsewhere indicated the possibility of a break in the deadlock which has stalled the re-opening of the mills.

Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, announced in Ottawa that increased costs resulting from higher wages at Dosco's Sydney plant would be compensated for by higher subsidies. Throughout the strike Dosco had contended that it had been losing money even on the old basic rates of 59½ cents hourly.

BOTTLED RUM ARRIVES

Montreal, Oct. 9 —(CP)— Five million ounces of West Indies rum — the equivalent of nearly 200,000 26-ounce bottles — was being unloaded today from the Canadian National Steamships, Maisonneuve, Park and Cavalier.

The rum, already bottled, will go to Ontario, Quebec and Alberta.

The ships also brought a cargo of ginger and pimento, absent from grocery shelves for a long time. Part of these shipments will go to Australia and New Zealand.

PLAN NYLON PLANT

Canberra, Australia (CP) — Production of silk, rayon and nylon materials is expected to begin toward the end of this year in a former Australian government aluminum plant leased by a Canadian firm at Wangaratta, Victoria. Management officials say the finished goods will be as cheap to buy in Australia as in Canada or America.

Plan is to Send Heirens to State Security Hospital

Joliet, Ill., Oct. 9 (AP)—William G. Heirens, 17-year-old triple murderer, will be taken to the State Security Hospital at Menard Monday, Warden Joseph E. Ragen of the Stateville Prison, said today.

A special trip for the youth adjudged "mentally ill" yesterday after having thrown stones at a guard will not be made. He will go to Menard with a regular consignment of prisoners, the warden said.

Ragen added that in a conversation with Heirens last night the boy threatened to commit suicide. "They're watching me too closely now," the Warden quoted him, "but some day there'll be an opportunity, and I'll take advantage of it."

Although Heirens claimed to have thrown stones at a guard in hopes that he would shoot him in retaliation, no special watch is being put over Heirens, the Warden said, and he is being allowed his usual one hour recreational period.

The former University of Chicago student has been in Stateville since Sept. 5 following his sentencing for three consecutive life terms in the slayings, among the most lurid in Chicago history.

JOINT W.M.S.-W.A. MEETING

A joint meeting of the W.M.S. and W.A. of Wallbridge United Church was recently held at the home of Mrs. S. M. Nicolson, with a good attendance. Mrs. A. Clare, Pres., of the W.A. had charge of the opening exercises, and conducted the business period. Reports were received from the secretary and treasurer, and a discussion followed relative to buying a piano. Plans were made for a bazaar to be held in the near future. Mrs. Fred Phillips offered her home for the next meeting, when the officers for 1947 will be elected.

The W.M.S. meeting in charge of Mrs. W. Sine, followed immediately after the close of the W.A. business, with the use of the Worship Service as printed in the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. K. Kingston gave a Temperance reading, and Mrs. S. M. Nicolson, one on Christian Stewardship. She said: "In early life children should be taught how to use money and the pleasure of sharing their blessings with others. A message of thanks from Mrs. Hinchliffe, for cards and fruit sent to her, was read, as well as a letter from Miss Bolton, a missionary.

Mrs. K. Kingston, group leader, introduced the study book, "India at the Threshold", using a map to emphasize some interesting facts about India. She was assisted by Mesdames Frank Phillips, Chas. Colley and Earl White. An India quiz followed from which much information was learned. The Canadian Presbyterian Church, Canadian Baptists, The Church of England in Canada and the United Church of Canada each has some part in mission work in India. At present this great country is striving for independence and it is necessary for Canadians to come into closer fellowship with her people so there can be a better understanding of the problems confronting them.

Mrs. Nicolson was tendered a hearty vote of thanks for opening her home.

CATHOLIC WOMEN'S LEAGUE

The October meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in John Street High School, on Monday evening, with a large attendance. Mrs. Wilson, the president, was in charge and gave a detailed report of the recent Diocesan Convention in Picton. Final arrangements were made for the Graduation Exercises to be held in St. Michael's Auditorium on Friday afternoon. An invitation was extended to Mrs. Hunt, the Diocesan president to be guest speaker for the November meeting. The League will sponsor and billet the members of Father Ronan's famous choir which all hope to have the privilege of enjoying in the very near future. Mrs. Fitzpatrick, Blue Cross convener, urged those who wished to avail themselves of this hospitalization to give in their names before December 1.

CARMEL W.M.S.

The October meeting of Carmel W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Blake Pitman with a good attendance. The meeting was opened with quiet music and the call to worship given by the President, Mrs. Seldon Homan. The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. Geo. Moorman with Mrs. John Homan and Mrs. Harry Dafoe assisting.

Some items of business were discussed after which Mrs. Pitman led in a temperance discussion and Mrs. Dafoe reported on the Chinese work. Mrs. Don Williams gave an interesting talk on the cavalcade and her visit to General Council in Montreal last month.

The program was in charge of Miss Mildred Jones, group leader. Her topic "Village Life in India" was given in a very capable manner. She also conducted a questionnaire on India from which much interesting information was gleaned.

Mrs. John Homan gave a reading and the meeting closed with prayer. Mrs. Pitman served delicious refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

EAST HUNTINGDON W.I.

Moira.—The regular monthly meeting of Huntingdon East Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. George Foster on Thursday evening. A number of members and some visitors were present.

Singing of the Institute Ode opened the meeting. Some business was discussed including the coming convention at Belleville. Mrs. W. Collins was appointed as delegate. A committee was appointed to look after refreshments for the Hallowe'en party at the school.

Roll call was answered by "My latest accomplishment in Agriculture".

Mr. Burns, assistant Agricultural representative from Stirling, gave a very educational talk on "Poultry-Raising".

The National Anthem and the Mizpah benediction closed the meeting.

FOXBORO PRESBYTERIAN W.M.S.

The Autumn Thank-offering meeting of the Foxboro Presbyterian Church W.M.S. was held in the Sunday School rooms, on Wednesday afternoon with 36 members and friends present. A happy feature of this meeting was the presence of a delegation from St. Andrew's Church in Belleville, who contributed to the program, with Miss Bessie Spencer conducting the opening exercises, assisted by Miss N. Bell. At this juncture Mrs. James Fargey, of Belleville, took charge of the meeting. Mrs. J. G. Hornsby told an interesting story about "Good Neighbors" stressing the fact that individually as well as in a society we can prove ourselves helpful to all people. Mesdames Mantle and Brown contributed a duet, with Mrs. V. Weir as accompanist, which was much enjoyed. The offering was received, and dedicated by Mrs. C. Baragar. After an interesting Thanksgiving reading by Mrs. Fargey, the meeting closed with a hymn and prayer.

Refreshments were served by the local ladies with Mrs. Donald Longwell pouring, and a social hour enjoyed .

Miscellaneous Shower For Miss Phyllis Twiddy

The home of Mrs. Harold Bloor, West Moira Street, was the setting Wednesday evening for a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Phyllis Twiddy, bride-elect, when Mrs. Bloor and her daughter, Miss June Bloor ,were joint hostesses assisted by Mrs. Jack Hinchey.

The rooms were effectively decorated for the occasion. Games of euchre and bridge afforded the evening's entertainment, after which the gifts were presented to Miss Twiddy in two large beautifully decorated baskets. After opening the attractive parcels, she graciously expressed appreciation to her friends for their kindness and for the useful and beautiful gifts

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses.

HOLLOWAY STREET Y.P.U.

The Young People of Holloway Street Y.P.U., met last Monday evening for their regular weekly meeting.

Opening the meeting with a number of songs led by Shirley Hitchon, the young people entered the business period and arrangements were made for future meetings. Misses Ruth Plane and Jean Marshall, assisted by the Missions' Group, led in an effective worship service.

The film of "Mission Work in Africa" illustrated how leprosy was cured; the effects of that dreaded disease; and life in a leper colony. Following the worship service, Betty Keeble and Max Maguire conducted a recreation period.

A pleasant and beneficial evening concluded with the singing of a hymn and prayer

ORCHIDS TO AUSTRALIA

London (CP)—The first English orchids to be purchased by Australia since the war were dispatched recently. United Kingdom growers are rapidly becoming the leading exporters of orchids in the world. A consignment of orchids often takes years to collect as the time taken to grow a successfully blooming hybrid is considerable.

Crusaders' Cavalcade Program

The Church is using modern methods of presenting its life and work. In the Crusaders' Cavalcade, sponsored by the United Church of Canada, there is an exhibition of the program of this largest denomination in Canada. Not only is the work of each of the Boards and Departments of this Church displayed in a modern style, but the challenge which faces the people of the world and particularly those of the United Church is dramatically portrayed.

The Crusaders' Cavalcade will be on display in Bridge Street United Church Sunday School room from Saturday, October 12, to Wednesday, October 16. This is open to the public at all times. Admission is free. In connection with a team of speakers who are many meetings are being held with a teem of speakers who are leaders in many branches of the United Church of Canada.

Saturday, October 12, at 2.30 p.m., Sunday School pupils will be shown moving pictures in Tabernacle United Church. At 4.00 all except the C.G.I.T. groups will be taken on a conducted tour of the exhibit in Bridge Street Church. The C.G.I.T. will view the exhibit after their supper meeting.

Sunday, October 13, leaders will speak in the churches of the Belleville area At 8.30 in the evening an open meeting will be held in Bridge Street Church.

Monday October 14, at 2.30, Sunday School Teachers' Institute. At 8.00 Young Peoples' Rally.

Tuesday, October 15, Women's Day. The program will begin at 10.30 a.m. Mrs. Russell Graham, Missionary to India, will speak. At 8.00 in the evening the Rev. Dr. Semple of Peterborough, chairman of the Conference Committee on Evangelism and Social Service, will be the speaker.

Wednesday, October 16, at 3.00 p.m., the program is sponsored by the Cavalcade Committee on Stewardship .In the evening at 8.00 the Home and Overseas Missions' enterprise will be presented by the sound film "Western Hands Are Sure" and Dr. Bob McClure of China.

The people of Hastings, Prince Edward, Lennox and Addington, and part of Northumberland are being given an opportunity to visit this modern up-to-the-minute presentation of the United Church of Canada. They will see the Church in action at home in the Dominion and Newfoundland, and overseas in eight great areas outside of Canada.

WEDDINGS

CUMMINGS—JOHNSON

A very charming Autumn wedding was solemnized at Holloway Street United Church on Wednesday afternoon at four o'clock, when Helen Alberta, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Johnson, Belleville, was united in marriage to George Lewis (Bud) Cummings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold A. Cummings, also of Belleville. Rev. Charles H. Perkins, pastor of Holloway Street United Church performed the double ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, entered the church to the strains of the wedding march played by Mr. Wm. Connor. She was beautiful in her gown of blush satin fashioned on princess lines, with a full length veil of embroidered silk net and headdress of white gardenias. She carried a shower bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Muriel Belcour was bridesmaid, gowned in pink sheer with fingertip veil, headdress of pink gardenias and she carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Little Miss Beverley Johnson, niece of the bride, made a lovely flower girl in a floor-length gown of pink net over taffeta and carrying a nosegay of carnations.

The groom was attended by Mr. Mackenzie Holton and the ushers were Messrs. William O'Brien and Gerald Johnston.

The soloist, Mrs. Fred Houston, sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the ceremony and during the signing of the register she sang "Because".

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother receiving in a gown of navy crepe, with a corsage of crimson roses. She was assisted by Miss Mary Cook, aunt of the groom, wearing a suit of brown wool with corsage of crimson roses.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of flat silver, to the bridesmaid, a black plastic compact, and to the flower girl, a gold signet ring. To the best man he gave a gold penknife with chain; and to the ushers gold tie sets.

After the reception the bride donned a grey wool suit and matching three-quarter coat with black accessories for a motor trip to western points. The young couple will reside in Belleville.

FRINK—DRAKE

A wedding of local interest was celebrated at Pembroke, South Wales, on Sept. 28, at 10.30 a.m., when Madeline Johnson, only daughter of Lt.-Commander J. F. Drake and Mrs. Drake, became the bride of Major Douglas H. Frank, R.C.A., younger son of Major W. O. and Mrs. Frink, of Deseronto.

The young couple were attended by Miss Elaine Humphries and Capt. S. Geddes, R.C.A.

Guests included Major G. R. A. Coffin, R.C.A., Capt. and Mrs. H. A. Winters, Capt. and Mrs. S. D. Geddes and Miss Elaine Humphries.

Many beautiful wedding gifts were received including a chest of silver from Major Frink's brother officers at the Artillery Staff College, Manorbier, South Wales.

After a wedding breakfast at the Hilton Hotel, Tenby, the shappy couple left for a brief honeymoon in Switzerland and on their return will reside in The Rectory, South Cliff Street, Tenby, South Wales.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Aren't You Being a Little Dramatic, Jackie?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 1-2 years old and have been in love with a fellow almost four years. He knows I love him, because I almost told him so, yet, when he sees me, he talks and jokes as he would with his sisters. I don't like this because I always think he is doing it to make fun of me behind my back. What do you think?

Another thing, he told me one night that he would take me out for graduation. Do you think I should go? Maybe he was doing this because he knows I love him, and just to satisfy me. Should I tell him, on graduation about his promise, or just forget about it and eat my heart out until it's worn and sick?

"Jackie"

It seems to me, "Jackie", that you are doing your worrying far in advance when you are giving so much thought to what you are going to do about your graduation. That must be a long way off, and a lot of things can happen before then. If I were you, I would not start on this problem until you're a little nearer to the time when it comes up.

If it will help you to stop doing this advance worrying, however, I will answer the question you asked, about whether or not you should go to the graduation with this young man, since he has invited you. Certainly; why not?

If you are only 17 1-2 now and have been thinking about this boy for the past 4 year, don't you think you began a little early to make up your mind on the big question of love? Give yourself a bit more time, and see a lot more of boys, before you decide that any of them is the one for you. At your age, you should be having good times with many people.

And don't you think you are dramatizing yourself a little when you talk about "eating your heart out?" Hearts are a lot tougher than you, at 17, have had a chance to find out yet, and they stand an awful lot of wear. If you give yours a chance, I feel sure that one day it will pick out the right man for you.

Give Her Another Chance, "Doubtful"—Maybe She's Changed

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I was discharged from the service, I fell in love with a girl I met at a wedding. I was the happiest man in the world, for a time. I would call her a few times every day and we would see each other for two or three times a week. I wanted to marry her, but she wouldn't become serious.

About four months ago, she began acting indifferent toward me and would not give me any reason. I would have to call her three or four times before I could date her. Finally, one day, I told her I would not call her any more and I also told her she should call me up some time when she is not so busy.

For four whole months I ate my heart out for her. The other night she called me. I made no dates with her, but I am thinking about it. Should I see her again? Does she only want to see me for a few times and then brush me off again? How can I be sure she has changed her attitude toward me?

"Doubtful"

There is no way you can be sure your girl has changed her attitude without trying her out again. Maybe, as you suggest, her interest is only very mild, and she might brush you off again after a short time. It is perfectly possible that, when you stopped trying to date her, she wanted to see if she could get you back again, not so much because she was deeply interested in you, but merely out of feminine curiosity and vanity.

On the other hand, she may have discovered, in the four months you have been ignoring her, that she cared more about you than she thought, and really didn't want to lose you. So why not give her another chance? That's the only way you can find out.

"Beauty Sleep" a Real Need

Ample Beauty Sleep is in Leslie Brooks' Health Program.

By HELEN FOLLETT

WHEN we were youngsters we had a high scorn for that old-time term "beauty sleep". It was just a lot of hooey held forth by adults who stayed up until all hours. They used to tell us that if we ate our bread crusts we'd have curly hair.

As the years roll around and birthdays start to bear down upon us we have to realize that a long, refreshing night's sleep will do more to iron out a tired face and restore strength to a tired body than all treatments devised by beauticians.

During the day's activities cells are wearing out. Fatigue bugs are getting in their work. The nervous system demands a let down. To stay up when one is dog-tired is self inflicted cruelty. Yet many women, fagged out from the day's work, get into their glad dry goods, sail out for the merry evening, look like wrecks the next day.

There are certain laws of health that should be obeyed; one law is not to draw too heavily on energy! If you do you shouldn't bawl about prematurely grey hair and wrinkles. You have brought them upon yourself.

Lack of sufficient sleep to restore one's forces will result in a sallow complexion, lack-lustre eyes, a dull head, depressing thoughts and lagging steps. If it has been an extra merry evening there may be a bad taste in one's mouth. But we won't go into that.

In your bedroom have an abundance of fresh air. Oxygen is life and when the lungs are freely inhaling pure air, restful sleep is most likely to be with one.

On composing oneself for sleep, the body should be fully outstretched, the arms lying loosely at either side, never thrown up over the head or folded across the chest. Lie on the right or left side, inclining toward the abdomen.

FIRST LAW CODE

The earliest known system of written laws was the code of Hammurabi king of Babylonia, which was promulgated about 2350 B.C.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Daughter, Not Mother, Writes Notes Telling of Engagement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it good form and permissible for me to write informal cards announcing the engagement of my daughter? I am sending a formal announcement to our local newspaper, so with the cards I need to inform only relatives and friends who live at a distance. Since there will be only about forty cards to be sent, I didn't want to have them printed if it's proper to have them hand-written.

I'm enclosing a sample of some cards I bought (the cards have different flower arrangements on the front and, as you see, no marking or printing inside), and I wish you would tell me if you approve of my using these for my notes.

A. E.

Yes, it is excellent taste and form to write notes telling relatives and intimate friends about the engagement. . .but these notes should be written by your daughter, not by you. The formal engagement-announcement you are sending to the newspaper should not "surprise" relatives and intimate friends. . . .those intimately concerned with this important news, relatives and close friends, should of course be told the news before it is publicly announced. That is, when you have decided on what date the news is to be published, your daughter should tell or write the news to relatives and intimate friends, asking them to keep the secret until such-and-such a date when the engagement is to be publicly announced.

It is never on good taste to send out engraved or printed engagement announcements. . .so you have no cause for worry on that score. To write her notes announcing her engagement, your daughter may use the very informal flower-cards you have bought or, as is the custom, her personal letter-paper or plain white note-paper.

When the Bride's Father Has Recently Died

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Will you please settle an argument for us? The father of the bride-to-be passed away eight months ago. Who should give the bride in marriage? The bride's mother thinks that her brother, the bride's uncle, should do the honors. Another member of the family thinks the eldest brother-in-law, and still another thinks that the godfather should do this.

2. Also do you think it is proper, considering the recent death of the bride's father, to have the reception in a public hall?

3. In a double ring ceremony is it proper for the bride to carry a bouquet or a prayer book?

R. W.

1. It is the bride herself who should make this decision, for naturally she should be given the privilege of choosing the one of these to whom she is the most devoted. But I do think she should choose between her uncle and godfather, since their relationship to her are probably closer than her brother-in-law's.

2. No. It would show best taste, more loving devotion to the memory of her father, for the bride to plan either to have a small gathering of friends at her home or, if this is not possible, to have no reception.

3. Either is correct.

Alaska Lures Quebec Woman

Montreal (CP)—The famous "call of the wild" cannot compare with the call of Alaska, "something indescribable," says Bernadette Jean, principal of the Girls' Commercial School at Arvida, Que., who arrived here recently after spending three months with her brother Joseph Jean at Goodnews Bay, a mining village on the Bering Sea.

Joseph Jean is one of Alaska's pioneer prospectors.

During her Alaskan stay, Miss Jean visited the platinum mines at ultra-modern Platinum City, spent a few days at mining camps at Watamuse Creek, went through the salmon canneries at Cordova, and fished for "enormous" trout.

While visiting Anchorage, she was the guest of Mrs. Sydney Lawrence, wife of a well-known Alaskan painter.

The school principal said Alaska's summer climate is similar to that of the Saguenay district of Quebec but the cities are much warmer. While she was at Fairbanks the mercury reached 92 degrees.

Miss Jean had high praise for the Alaskan scenery and said pictures did not do justice to the midnight sun, "something that has to be seen to be believed."

Frankford

Dedication at Frankford United Church

The Frankford United Church re-opened Sunday, October 6 after renovation, with Rev. F. J. Horwood, B.A., Mus., Doc., of Toronto, present as guest speaker. In the morning service Dr. Horwood chose as his text "Ye are the Light of the World", and his subject was "The Meaning of Life". He stated there are four main principles of life to remember: be cheerful, be industrious, have friends and keep in touch with God in everything that is done.

During the morning service the pastor, Rev. H. H. Lackey conducted a dedication service in which the new furnishings which have been added to the church were dedicated to the service of God. A pulpit, lecturn, Communion table and railing, were the gifts of Mrs. Daniel Frost and family in memory of the late Mr. Daniel Frost who passed away about a year ago. A stained glass window was a gift of Mr. H. J. Madill.

Special music was provided at each service by the choir with Mr. J. Salmers, organist and choir leader. A quartet comprised of Mrs. J. A. Warren, Miss Jean Reid, Mr. A. Southworth and Mr. Floyd Ketcheson sang "Drifting Away from God" at the morning service. In the evening a male quartet: Messrs. A. Southworth, H. Slingerland, Floyd Ketcheson and E. Wallace sang "The Old Rugged Cross". At the evening service Dr. Horwood who is a talented musician favered with an organ solo.

The church has been completely renovated. The walls and ceiling have been much beautified by new interior trim. A new choir loft has been built with a vestry on the east and a choir room at the west. Cedar plywood wainscotting, new hardwood floor and new pews for the congregation and choir, completely transforms the lower portion. New leaded windows and indirect lighting made the picture complete and very attractive.

Church Supper

On Monday evening the ladies of the congregation served a supper in Rose Lowery Hall with proceeds to go towards renovation expenses. After the supper a program was presented in the church. Rev. H. H. Lackey acted as chairman for the evening. Several numbers were contributed by the choir and the male quartet. Mr. Horcock of Cobourg, who has been a guest of church on other occasion sang several solos .An organ solo by Mrs. S. Martin was much enjoyed.

Mr. G. W. Dickson spoke a few words of tribute to those who had worked so faithfully on the planning and work of the church renovation.

Capacity crowds were present at both services on Sunday and also for the program on Monday evening.

Bullet-Wound in Head Fatal to Gobles Resident

Woodstock, Oct. 9 (CP)—William Turnbull, 76, from nearby Gobles, who was admitted to Woodstock General Hospital yesterday with a bullet wound in his head, died this morning. Polise said that they believed the wound to have been self-inflicted. There will be no inquest.

Mountain View

Mountain View.—A large number of neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Keeble on Friday evening to honor their daughter, Joyce and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. William Slater, who were recently married. Miss Barbara Wilson read an address to Mr. and Mrs. Slater after which they were presented with numerous miscellaneous gifts. After unwrapping the gifts, Joyce and William, expressed their appreciation in a few well chosen words. Refreshments were served and a social time enjoyed by those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Langstaffe of Sidney Township, spent the tea hour on Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bowness.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Sprung were Saturday evening callers of Mr. and Mrs. Farrell of Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Ellis and Mrs. Spafford of Milford, had tea on Wednesday with their cousin, Mr. J. G. Sprague.

Mrs. David Rowe and children spent Thursday, the guest of Mrs. Rowe's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Way of Bowerman's.

Mr. and Mrs. Webster Wilson and Richard, spent Sunday evening with Mr. J. G. Sprague.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Minaker, of Picton and Mr. and Mrs. William Burkitt were entertained at the supper hour on Sunday evening by Miss Lillian Sprague. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson were callers at this home during the evening.

The Women's Institute held a meeting on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. George Wilson. Dr. P. A. Scott, leader of the Health Unit for Prince Edward County, was present and gave a very instructive and interesting address outlining the program, which the unit is endeavoring to carry out in the County. At the close of the meeting Mrs. Wilson assisted by several ladies served delicious refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Poste, Yvonne and Lawrence, and Miss Pearl Neal called at the home of Mrs. M. Howe and Miss Muriel Howe, of Consecon on Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson entertained at the dinner hour on Sunday with Mr. George Huffman and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman of Burr's, Miss Lillian Anderson and Mr. John Anderson, as guests.

Miss Maureen Neal spent Saturday evening and Sunday with Miss Mary Keeble.

Miss Mary Huff was a guest on Friday and Saturday of Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Sprung. Miss Huff also attended the Slater-Keeble shower on Friday evening.

A number from this community attended the anniversary services held at Massassaga Church on Sunday evening.

Batawa Shoemen Qualify For City League Finals, Defeat Latta 8-5 in Second Game

The finals of the Belleville Senior Baseball League will see the Batawa Shoemen and Trenton Flyers battle for the championship of the loop. Yesterday afternoon at the Alemite Field, Bill Easton's shoe crew eliminated the spunky Latta nine from the play-off picture with an 8-5 victory, their second straight of the two-of-three semi-finals series. Bata took a hard-fought first game 1-0 on Monday after ten innings of brilliant baseball.

But the picture yesterday was vastly different to that of Monday. Batawa used three hurlers and Latta two. There was plenty of hitting, some costly errors and some generally bad baseball. Players pulled off brilliant defensive plays only to bobble an easy one the next play — and in most cases the miscues were good for unearned runs.

Latta started off like the proverbial house afire, getting to Harry, Batawa starting hurler for four hits and five runs in the first innings. With two out, Muffitt, who pitched a brilliant game on Monday, went to the mound and after allowing one hit finally retired the side. He pitched the second innings, holding the Lattas runless and hitless but gave way to "Smoky" Smith in the third after he developed a sore arm.

The southpaw, pitching carefully, hogtied the Latta lads over the remainder of the pastime allowing them but one hit, smashed out by Chapman and striking out sixteen batters.

Cut Down Lead

Latta's commanding five-run lead was whittled down to nearly even in the next two innings. Hall, a lefthander started for the country lads and received a rude reception from the bats of M'sieu Normandin, Spencer and their buddies. They got to him for two runs in the first and two more in the second. Chunky Joe Marsh rushed to the hurling rescue and stayed for the balance of the game.

But "Li'l Joe" who, like Muffitt, had pitched a masterful game on Monday was not equal to a similar effort yesterday. The Bata hitters got to him for ten hits and four runs during his tenure of duty, but this was more or less the fault of his fielders who, on three occasions committed errors that were the cause of runs being chalked up against the chunky chucker.

Timmy Williams, usually brilliant in the field committed no less than three bobbles but partially redeemed himself on one occasion when he took a high looping fly running away, and whirling quickly doubled a Bata runner at first to complete a neat double play.

Off and On

Verny Goyer, who played centre field accepted five chances, but the sixth, a sizzling grounder went through his legs and Normandin galloped all the way home on a single and an error.

Bata tied the score in the fifth and took a one run lead in the seventh. They scored singles in the eighth and ninth, while Smith was holding the opposition scoreless.

Normandin was the Bata slugger yesterday getting a double and two singles while Stojan donated three singles to the cause. Cook, Spencer and Watson each had a brace.

Chapman, Latta shortstop, got a pair of clouts for his squad with Carson, Goyer, Empson and Callaghan getting the remainder of the six hits garnered off the Batawa hurling.

TRAINED DINGOES

Tamworth, Australia (CP)— A poultry farmer spent 14 years training five dingoes not to regard his poultry as a free meal. Now they round up the fowl like sheep dogs gather sheep, sleep near the pens and attack all trespassers. They are more intelligent than dogs, he says, and the fowl seem to like them.

Winnipeg Merchants to Establish Needle Trades Industry in Own Area

By ENID NEMY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg (CP)— A $2,500,000 dream may soon give Winnipeg's thriving needle-trades industry a home of its own.

Brainchild of a prominent city manufacturer, M. Neaman, the idea is to set up a needle-trades centre in a convenient and easily accessible section of Winnipeg. Space would be rented out to individual factory owners. The centre would be fully-modern with air conditioning, individual lockers, showers, lunchrooms and scientific lighting.

There are two principal reasons for the plan. At present, factories engaged in needle-trades are scattered throughout the business and downtown districts, mainly in remodelled warehouses. And even more important is the pressing need for at least 1,500 skilled workers in the industry here.

The labor shortage is so acute that, as well as envisaging a modern centre to improve working conditions, a plan has been drawn up to include needle-trades training in technical schools. The Manitoba department of education, Winnipeg school board, three labor unions and the manufacturers concerned, are all behind the idea and it is thought likely training will start later this year.

Students who weren't considering attending University could enter the school after Grade 10 or 11. They would be trained for various branches of the industry, such as cutting, designing, finishing, pressing and hand sewing, as well as being provided with the basic needs for a general education.

Winnipeg's Largest Industry

At present, needle-trades are the largest single industry in Winnipeg, employing approximately 5,000 persons with an annual payroll, well about $20,000,000. Earnings average from 65 cents to $1.50 an hour. Seventy-five per cent of the employees now are women but manufacturers would like to see men enter the trade because they are "permanent."

The industry is agreed that there is room for expansion. H. Stephens, secretary of the Winnipeg needle-trades training council, says there are certain branches, such as men's suits and women's underwear, that have not, as yet, been established to any degree in the city.

"If we had this proposed centre, with at least 1,000,000 square feet of space, we could corral the entire needle-trades industry in Canada."

Gradually, Mr. Neaman's proposal is developing from a dream to reality. Both labor unions and manufacturers are considering financing the project and the city has indicated its support.

It is estimated that 10,000 more people could be employed in the city if the centre is established. And with the prevailing wage rate—one of the highest in any industry—it would mean another $40,000,000 to $50,000,000 on the annual payroll.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did—even look healthy and strong, yet—you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-noted for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

ARTIST'S SKETCH OF ONE OF HISTORY'S GREATEST METEOR SHOWERS

Here is an artist's conception (from an old wood cut) of what Eastern Canada might have seen when a heavenly fireworks display filled the sky in the form of thousands of falling meteors. Astronomers advised onlookers to turn their backs to the moon for the best view. The display, extending through Oct. 10, is caused by the nearness of the earth to the orbit of the comet Giaconini-Zinner, with a proximity during the three-day period of 131,000 miles, as compared with the 238,000-mile distance to the moon. It is "one of the largest in astronomical history."

Ivanhoe

W.I. Sponsors Moving Pictures

Ivanhoe—Under the auspices of the Women's Institute sound producing moving pictures were shown in the town hall on Tuesday evening to a large audience of children and adults. The several films shown depicted wild life; winter sports, including baseball on skates, skiing, tobogganing, horse racing on ice and skating with sails; and the devastation wrought in central Europe, including the destruction of schools and churches and illustrated the need of food and clothing for the undernourished and homeless.

Messrs Arthur Wood, John B. Hagerman and Mowatt Sine spent Monday doing some repairs around the United Church parsonage.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz and family spent a day recently, the guests of friends in Picton.

Mr. Raymond Gunsolus of Belleville, President of the Belleville Presbytery Young People's Union made some calls in this district in the interest of Young People's work recently.

A number of farmers who have dug their potatoes report not too many in a hill but that the tubers are a good size.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wood left on Wednesday for a motor trip which they expect will take them to visit friends in Orillia, London and several other points.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward Holland and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Holland are away on a motor trip to the United States where they expect to visit a number of their relatives and friends.

Rally Day at Salem was postponed for two weeks on account of anniversary services being held at neighboring appointments. Those participating in the service were Mr. Lorne Hagerman, Keith Twiddy and Miss Eldo Mayo, who read the scripture lessons, while Miss Eva Hagerman told the story "Truly Brothers." The choir sang, "I will be True."

There have been no frosts in this district as yet to do any material damage and many flower gardens are blooming profusely, among which are those of Mrs. Samuel Twiddy, Mrs. Hugh McMillan, Mrs. Harry Mullet and Mrs. J. F. Everson where still can be seen a large variety of poppies, astors, marigolds, gladioli, gourds, pansies and zinnias.

10 Buildings Burn In Charlottetown

Charlittetown, Oct. 10—(CP)—A fire which broke out on Stewart's Wharf early today destroyed 10 buildings, causing damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The blaze started about 1 a.m. and is believed to have originated in the foundry shop of the Bruce Stewart foundry.

The fire quickly raced through the buildings, most of them wooden, destroying the boiler room, pattern shop and coal shed of the Bruce Stewart Foundry, spread to the Island Fertilizer plant, gutted a coal shed and 3 empty buildings owned by the W. D. Gillis Coal Company.

Three railway box cars on the Gillis siding were also destroyed by the blaze.

Flames 50 feet high lit up the whole south end of the city as firemen battled to bring the fire under control.

The speed with which the fire took hold of the wooden structures prevented fire-fighters from making any headway and all of the wharf area was in smouldering ruins before the fire burned itself out about four hours after it started.

MISSING MAN RETURNS

New Liskeard, Ont., Oct. 10 — (CP) — Missing since Tuesday in the heavy bush south of Temagami in the Martin River area, Peter Nelson, 52-year-old assistant chief engineer of the Ontario Department of Highways, walked back to his camp yesterday.

Nelson said he had not been lost but twisted his ankle in the woods and decided not to attempt the walk to his camp immediately. He spent the night beside a fire he kindled.

More than 150 men had started a search for the missing official Tuesday night and Wednesday an airplane was used.

PELEE IS. SHOOTING DATE

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Pheasant-shooting on Pelee Island this year will be permitted Oct. 31 and Nov. 1, the Department of Lands and Forests announced.

Paper Instals Teletypesetters

Vancouver, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Second newspaper in Canada to use teletypesetters, the Vancouver Daily Province yesterday put three of the machines in operation. First to use the system was the Winnipeg Free Press.

In announcing operation of the teletypesetters, the Province said "One man can tend three linotypes operating automatically where three men were required before at a lower average rate of output . . ."

The operator uses a keyboard, much like a typewriter keyboard, to "punch" copy, the letter characters being punched on a perforated tape which is run thru a special attachment placed on the linotype machine.

TESTIFIES CANADIANS WERE MISTREATED

Yokohama, Oct. 10 (AP)—Warrant Officer Robert Manchester of Winnipeg testified at a war crimes trial that two fellow Canadians, wearing only cotton shorts, undershirts and sox, were tied to constantly swinging gates in wet, cold weather and that one died as a result.

Manchester said the victims were James Mortimer, Durward, Ont., who died, and Harold A. Smith, St. Catharines, Ont.

Hyoichi Okuda, dubbed "shortstop, peewee, little Caesar and slap-happy," by the prisoners, and three other officers and guards at Niigata prison camp No. 5 are charged with the atrocities.

Condemned for Forging Food Coupons in Russia

Moscow, Oct. 10 — (Reuters)—Mihail Moromanov yesterday was sentenced by a Moscow court to be shot, after being found guilty of forging food coupons. His two associates, a man and a woman, were sentenced to eight and 10 years imprisonment, respectively. Property of all three was ordered confiscated.

Canadians Can Do With Less Food, Remain Healthy

Ottawa, Oct 10 (CP)—Canadians could get along on less food without losing anything in health or efficiency, the Canadian Council of Nutrition has decided.

Meeting in the offices of the Health Department yesterday, the council discussed the part Canada is playing in helping meet the world food shortage, and members conceded that, generally speaking, Canadians could reduce their diet without harmful effects. However, the council was undecided as to what level food consumption could safely be reduced. This matter was referred to a technical committee.

Dr. G. D. W. Cameron, Deputy Health Minister, welcomed the members and Dr. L. B. Pett acted as chairman. During the all-day session technical and educational committees were appointed, relations of the council to the world food and agricultural organization were discussed and an outline was given by Dr. F. F. Tisdall of Toronto on the proposed Canadian Red Cross school meal program.

Dr. Tisdall outlined briefly the plans being made by the Red Cross in collaboration with the Canadian Medical Association to promote a study to determine the effect of a daily school meal program on the health and efficiency of children. The study, which would be conducted among 200 children would be of several years duration, Dr. Tisdall said. During that time the progress and development of children receiving a nutritious school lunch would be checked carefully against the records of those who did not receive it.

The technical committee will advise the Health Department and also study special nutritional projects relating to national health.

The educational committee will plan an overall educational program based on the technical committee's reports and findings.

Bears in News

Meaford, Oct. 10 (CP)—A black bear was reported seen on a farm here a few days ago, the first spotted in this vicinity in 25 years. Nearly 50 residents joined in a hunt for the animal, but although large tracks were noticeable in many places, they were unable to find the bear.

Sudbury, Oct. 10 (CP)—A young bear with a desire for city life wandered into Sudbury Wednesday and perched in the branches of an oak tree. He caused considerable excitement before being brought back to the earth with a rope around his neck.

"Suitcase Mystery" Finally Solved

Montreal, Oct. 10 (CP)— The $10,000 "suitcase mystery" which was investigated by Toronto Mounties and Foreign Exchange Control Board officials was finally cleared up when an unassuming businessman walked into the Peel Street branch of Trans-Canada Air Lines here yesterday, signed a receipt for his suitcase after proper identification, and left with an explanation that he was in the habit of carrying thousands of dollars in cash on his many business trips to Winnipeg.

The man's identity was not disclosed by the local officials, except that he was a Montreal businessman.

'One World—One Kingdom' Theme Of Y.P.U. Conference at Perth

By MAUDE BURKE

The eighteenth annual convention of the Bay of Quinte Young People's Union, held in St. Paul's United Church, Perth, October 4, 5 and 6, proved to be the largest in many years and was marked with keen enthusiasm.

Two hundred and twenty members were in attendance, representing union as far west as Whitby and as far east as Brockville.

Mr. Donald G. Williams of this city, who concluded a second year as president, presided at the sessions. The theme speaker was Rev. Alvin Cooper, B.S.A., B.D., of Toronto, who delivered three inspiring addresses.

A large number of Perth residents were present at the Friday evening session when the United Church Cavalcade depicted in film and in vital addresses by workers in the Overseas Mission fields, the vast amount of work being undertaken by the United Church in the extension of the Kingdom.

Dr. Bob McClure spoke on the Mission work in West China, where he has served as a medical missionary stressing the responsibility Canadian young people have in giving Christian leadership to those countries devastated by war. He pointed out the great number of openings for service in the overseas work embracing every vocation.

Support Pledged

The Conference Young People have, with a feeling of pride and happiness, pledged themselves to support Rev. Floyd Honey and Mrs. Honey who are leaving shortly for China as missionaries.

In speaking to the group, Mr. Honey asked that they support them not only financially but in an even more important medium —through letters and prayers.

Forty-five-minute period each day was devoted to Fellowship groups for Bible study, discussion and prayer. Among the leaders of these groups were Isobel Richardson, Margaret Hillis, Kay DeClair, Maude Burke and Harry Denton of Belleville.

On Saturday evening, an amateur contest was held, with entries from each of the seven Presbyteries. This was the culmination of an amateur night held in each local union during the past season. By popular acclaim, Mr. Jack Campbell of Admaston was adjudged winner, singing "By Bendemere's Stream."

Five Groups Set Up

There were five Commission groups set up to study the various phases of young people's work—Fellowship Missions, Citizenship, Administration and Young Adult work. Rev. A. L. Shorten, of Foxboro, led the Fellowship group and Ray Gunsolus led the group in Young Adult work.

The delegates were very fortunate in having Dr. Graham Hudson of Ottawa, National president, with them. He gave an excellent summary of the inspiration and challenge of National Council held this summer at Albert College, where the program of young people's work was drafted for the next four years.

New Officers Installed

The newly-elected officers for 1946-47 were installed on Sunday afternoon by Rev. J. E. Beckel, of Elgin, chairman of the Conference. The installation service was very impressive with all the young people taking part. Don Williams, past president, presented the gavel to president Roy Ormiston of Brooklin. Elected from this district were Maude Burke, who was appointed editor of the Conference paper "The Quinte Broadcast," and Rev. A. L. Shorten, who was made director of the Leadership Training Department.

Inspiring Talk Given

The closing session of the convention was held on Sunday evening, during which Rev. J. E. Beckel delivered a challenging message urging the delegates to be modern John the Baptists. "We must make a new highway for our God and drive out the evils doing harm," he said. "Jesus wants us to lift Him up, to tell His story to the world but to do it we must experience His power and presence. We must make Him Master and Lord of our life and say again, Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" and then do it."

The closing worship service was conducted by Harry Denton and was a most fitting conclusion to a very fine convention.

PICTON

Thomas Forbes Injured as Truck Strikes Tree

*Picton, Oct. 10 — Thomas Forbes, Jr., age 20, was admitted to Prince Edward County Hospital suffering from severe head injuries, the result of a motor accident late yesterday. Extent of his injuries has not been fully determined.

The young man was driving a heavy truck owned by Ross Pearsoll. In rounding a corner on Ferguson Street he lost control of the vehicle which crashed into a telephone pole and broke it off and then struck another pole. The truck was little damaged, but the impact apparently threw the driver against the windshield.

16 WAR CRIMINALS HANGED

Herford, Germany, Oct. 10 — (AP) — The British military government said Wednesday that 16 German war criminals, including the commandant and members of the staff of Nuengamme concentration camp, had been hanged.

The announcement said 40,000 of the 90,000 persons who passed through the camp near Hamburg had died, 3,000 from unnatural causes and 37,000 from poor health conditions in the camp.

Trial evidence showed that 1,000 Russians were killed with injections, 197 gassed in their cells and 60 Dutchmen hanged.

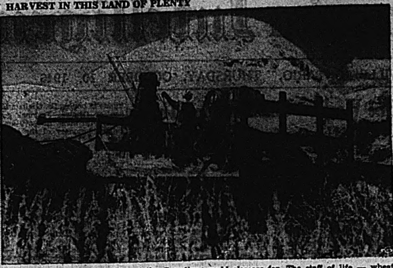
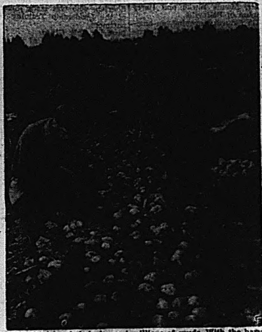
CAMERA DEPICTS AUTUMN HARVEST IN THIS LAND OF PLENTY

All summer long farmers throughout Canada have been busy working on their farms and autumn finds them with bountiful crops. Fruit and vegetable crops are heavy in eastern and central farming areas. Bumper crops of apples add color to the brilliant autumn landscape in the Annapolis Valley, N.S., famous apple-growing district.



In the wheat-growing prairies of the Canadian west the wheat yield has been close to the all-time-record high. There will be no problem of oversupply of wheat, for that grain is what the world clamors for. The staff of life — wheat — mountains of it — is shown being harvested on a farm teeming with golden grain.



Youthful hands help harvest millions of spuds. With the harvest moons shining, "frost on the pumpkin," and his barns and bins bulging with a tremendous crop of nearly all the things he can raise, the Canadian farmer this year has earned the right to forget for a moment all the puzzles of world food supply and sit down at a great Thanksgiving dinner to the accompaniment of a world-wide chorus of "Well done!"

Doubters of Hypnotism Only Hiding Fears

Do you believe in hypnotism? That is, do you think you could be hypnotized?

Stout "No" Answer

If you asked most persons this question they would probably reply with a stout "No", although an equal probability is that behind the bravado would lurk a fervent hope they wouldn't be called on to prove their immunity, Tom Taylor writes in The Victoria Colonist.

Hypnotism is not a new phenomenon, and no one in this day and age would deny its existence. Such skepticism as is expressed about it has to do with the doubters themselves, and really stems from fear. Individuals have an instinctive reluctence to admit that someone else can put them to sleep and then control their responses.

Until recently this writer had never seen a hypnotist, except from the pit of a theatre. And when you see a hypnotist at work on the stage you immediately associate all the dramatic paraphernalia he employs with the word trickery. And come away unconvinced.

Didn't Suspect Colleague

But the other night we sat in on a real, honest-to-goodness demonstration, staged by no other than a young colleague whom none of his fellow-workers suspected of possessing hypnotic powers. It's remarkable how you can work alongside someone and never plumb his depths.

It was rather an acid test, too, conducted among a roomful of people who might all have hailed from Missouri.

His assets were a bright light to weary the eyes of the subject and induce sleep, and an eloquent flow of smoothly-spoken words tending toward the same end. His liabilities were in the audience, which disobeyed his request to keep still and concentrate on the thought of sleep, but instead lit cigarets, fidgeted, whispered, and even giggled.

The smiles disappeared, however, when he put first one and then another subject to sleep. And when he stuck a sharp instrument into the hand of one without visible reaction and made the other stand up and sit down again while still in a state of somnambulism, a look of furtive uneasiness swept the room, as though each observer was afraid he'd be the next victim.

Our hypnotist failed with another subject, whose subconscious mind was apparently fortified by the conviction that its outer covering could not be pierced, and so would not come alert.

Weak Will Is Not Factor

It's the subconscious that responds to hypnotic suggestion once the conscious mind has gone to sleep. An article in "Mind Digest" points out that a weak will or low mentality has nothing to do with susceptibility to hypnosis. In fact, intelligence aids rather than hinders the onset of hypnosis.

It appears that hypnosis is now used to a considerable extent in healing, although the true possibilities of this therapy have only begun to be recognized in the light of modern psychological knowledge. Hypnosis is reported as having been practised successfully in the treatment of arthritis, alcoholism, asthma, insomnia, stammering and other ailments.

Because all organic functions of the body are influenced by the subconscious, the article in question makes clear, bodily processes may be influenced to a remarkable degree. Nobody ordinarily 'takes thought' to breathe for example; the subconscious takes care of it. As well as the beating of the heart, and the digestion of food, which is "willed" by the subconscious while the conscious mind is thinking of other things.

Hypnosis, apparently, can be used to great effect in various ways. It seems that a well-known professional heavyweight, no name is stated, credits his success in the ring to hypnotism. He was a shy, retiring lad until his mother took him to a hypnotist to "give him courage".

Perhaps we should enlist the aid of our young colleague to conquer all our bad habits. Smoking, for instance.

Hypnosis is not expected to become a universal panacea, of course, but the field of its usefulness is regarded as large, since the mental factor contributes in some degree to most ailments, as few will dispute.

Dr. George Humphries, professor of philosophy at Queen's University, says: "I believe that hypnotism is a perfectly safe method of cure in qualified hands. Arsenic is a poison, and in unqualified hands it will kill. But in the hands of a trained physician, it becomes a valuable remedy. In just the same way, hypnotism in skilled hands is a very valuable means of cure."

Won't Change Character

And the Encyclopaedia Britannica adds that "there is good reason for believing that no hypnotized subject will follow a suggestion which is contrary to his fundamental personal character."

We don't know the full extent of our office hypnotist's powers, but we'd say the knowledge he has is in safe hands. Certainly we haven't noticed anyone shying away from him since he demonstrated his unusual abilities.

Yugoslavia Pays U.S. $150,000 As Idemnity

Washington, Oct. 10 (AP)—Yugoslavia has turned over $150,000 to the United States as indemnity for the deaths of five American airmen shot down over Yugoslavia Aug. 19, the State Department announced yesterday.

At the same time, the department made it plain that the United States still hopes to obtain additional indemnities from Yugoslavia for the loss of two transport planes—a claim which Yugoslavia has rejected so far.

The five men were killed when their unarmed army transport plane was shot down by Yugoslav fighters. Another army transport plane was shot down by Yugoslav fighters. Another army transport had been forced to crash by Yugoslav fighters Aug. 9, but no lives were lost in that incident.

Wednesday's announcement said that Richard Patterson, U.S. Ambassador, delivered a note to the Yugoslav government in Belgrade yesterday acknowledging receipt of the $150,000.

In compliance with the Yugoslav governments' request, the note said, the United States government will distribute the sum in five equal payments of $30,000 each to the families of the dead men.

Mr. Patterson's note added, however, that the United States could not accept Yugoslavia's contention that it has no responsibility for the loss of the two transport planes.

These planes, the note said, did not fly over Yugoslavia illegally, as contended by Marshal Tito's government, but "for reasons beyond their control resulting from adverse weather conditions."

Therefore, it said, the United States government "must ask the Yugoslav government to reconsider its refusal to make compensation for the loss of the two aircraft."

WOULD TEACH LESSON

Dr. Hussein Khalidi (above), secretary of the Palestine Arab higher committee, reacted bitterly to President Truman's renewed demand for immediate and substantial Jewish immigration in the Holy Land. "Palestine Arabs cannot declare war on the United States but they and the Middle East Arabs can declare a moral war to give President Truman a lesson," he declared.

TRENTON

Two Fire Calls At Trenton

Trenton, (Special.)— Firemen received two calls on Tuesday. The first alarm came from the Hinde and Dauch Paper Mill where a large pile of cardboard was on fire. The origin of the fire was not known but it is thought it was caused by spontaneous combustion. The second call came from the home of Fred Payne, on Ford Street where the fire is believed to have been started from a blow torch which a painter was using to remove paint. Firemen soon had both fires under control.

Police Court

Twenty-four cases were heard in Trenton police court on Tuesday afternoon before Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan..

Dunbar Hooley and Francis William Coleman, both fo the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, charged with attempted car theft had their cases dismised. On two charges of being intoxicated each was fined $13.

Bruce O. Rose, of Frankford, appeared on a charge of drunk driving and was sentenced to seven days in the county jail and had his driver's licence suspended for three months. He also had his car impounded for three months.

After hearing evidence, Leonard Craddock and Elmo McDonald had their cases dismissed. They were charged with being intoxicated.

Stanley R. Crazi and Louis G. Boutilier of the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton, were charged with the theft of a car. Their cases were enlarged for one week.

Wilfred Woolsey, Trenton, was fined $12, on firing a rifle within the town limits.

Bruce J. Hamilton was found guilty of careless driving and fined $14.

Hartwell Ready, charged with speeding, was fined $7.50.

Ernest Seeds failed to stop for the red traffic signal and paid $4.50.

"HEALTHY" RATIONS

Wigan, England (CP)—Explaining that "Wigan's death rate last year was the lowest in its history, Alderman T. Ramsden of the community's health committee said: "Under rationing people don't get the chance to dig their own graves with their teeth. Rationing—despite shortages, austerity and queues—is good for us and people are healthy."

Experts Do Safe-Cracking And They're Not Burglars

Professional Safe Openers Have Spent Years in the Business and Can Open Any Safe — Many Persons Forget Combinations and Sometimes They Are Lost

Don't call the cops or tell your neighbors that Boston has a hushed-up crime wave, but do you know that an average of six supposedly burglar-proof and fireproof safes are cracked open in Boston and vicinity every day? Now, don't rush out and check your own strongbox because it's all done with full knowledge and approval of the law by approximately 25 ordinance-abiding gentlemen who make safe-cracking their legal profession.

These legitimate cracksmen are in the hire of the safe and lock firms which are crowded together in one building located on Sudbury Street in Boston. They earn their living because safe doors get stuck, people forget safe combinations or—as the safe industry believes—"one man cannot build a safe that another man cannot open."

Apparently a lot of burglars believe the slogan for most of the pros' working are spent repairing the damages wrought by amateur thugs who—as they usually do—have bungled a job. What the safe experts mean by their saying is that given proper tools, time, training and the approval of its owner any safe can be opened. Otherwise, they would discourage any potential Jimmy Valentines from entering the burglaring business. The only sane way to open a safe these days is to have the law on your side.

And more than that, burglaring techniques are receding while safes are getting stronger. Even atomic energy, the war and Hollywood have failed to provide a new method of cracking a safe illegally. Class B, cinema villains, for example, still sandpaper their finger tips, cock an ear against the vault and go to work. This brings a Class A laugh from the professionals in the business because a modern safe has over four million possible combinations. Movie bandits, however, complete in half a reel a job which would take an experienced worker a lifetime.

It is possible to open a safe by striking the right combination. This is not accomplished by 'feel', but by experience combined with old-fashioned luck. Safe experts know that most people use easily remembered combination numbers — such as 10-20-30. On a lettered dial (letters instead of numbers) an initial is common. After years in the business a safe opener learns the groups which appear most frequently. Even then it is a rare event when he strikes the right one.

One such example of this calculating guesswork occurred in the showroom of a Boston safe firm just last week. On display there was an old letter dialed safe, firmly locked without a known combination. Its former owner reported that the secret code was a four-letter word ending in "K" but beyond that he knew nothing. One of the safe mechanics in the firm tried every word he knew which ended in "K" — even tried four-lettered words beginning with the magic "K" and spelled them backwards. He even offered $5 to the person who suggested the right word.

One of his associates took the challenge, looked the safe over and said, "I'll risk it with the word risk."

On the experience side, Sumner H. Sandberg, dean of Boston's safe mechanics, got himself in trouble with his knowledge. Sandberg once visited a country store to sell the proprietor a new safe. The old strongbox bore the name of a maker familiar to Sandberg and he knew the standard combination which the factory put on all their safes. Taking a guess that the owner had not changed the factory combination Sandberg began his sales talk:

"Your safe is not foolproof," he told the storekeeper. "Why even I can guess the combination."

Sandberg repeated the factory formular. The store owner looked mildly surprised, but said only, "Wait here." He went into the back room.

"Here he is, Chief," the storekeeper said, "this man knows the combination to my safe." The proprietor was sure that Sandberg was a thug, and it took a lot of explaining to the chief to prove that Sandberg was selling — not robbing safes. Even when Sandberg left to catch the train the chief followed him to the station —still suspicious.

The legend that safe openers can "feel" a combination grows from such happenings such as the following: A safe expert was called in to open a letter-dialed safe. He asked the initials of the deceased owner, tried them in all possible combinations. In a matter of minutes the safe was opened. The expert, of course, did not reveal his trade secret, but the customer swore the man was a present-day Jimmy Valentine.

Equally baffled are the people who forget their combinations — a fairly frequent occurrence. In both cases the experts take the given combination, reverse it, and it usually works. Then—and this is old saw to safe openers—the owner will deny that the combination which opened the safe is correct. One such individual threatened a mechanic because, the irate owner claimed, "he implied that I did not know my own mind." Under these trying circumstances the safe opener, simply points at the opened safe.

Tactfulness, apparently, is one of the tools of the trade. The above-mentioned Sandberg was called on to exercise his trait when he was summoned to a town in Maine to rescue some very important legal papers from a lawyer's "unopenable" safe. Arriving on the scene, Sandberg found the lawyer's strongbox was an old-fashioned, key-opening model. They was similar to any door key except that it had a hollow end which fitted into the mechanism of the lock and sprung the safe.

Sandberg fitted the hollow end in place and gave it a turn. Nothing happened. Ignoring his variety of tools he asked the lawyer for a toothpick. Sandberg then pushed the toothpick into the hollow stem of the key and scraped a small amount of dirt from the opening. He handed the key to the lawyer and said "Now try it."

The lawyer placed the key in the lock, gave it a turn, the door snapped open. Considerably embarrassed by the simple repair job, the lawyer "guessed" the key had been blocked up from dirt and lint in his pocket.

But that was not the end. His work finished, Sandberg prepared to leave. The lawyer insisted he stay for lunch. After the meal the lawyer sent to the drug store for half a dozen fine cigars for Sandberg. Train time came and the lawyer accompanied him to the station, purchased Sandberg's ticket, even assisted him to his seat. Just as the train was about to leave the lawyer handed Sandberg a $10 bill.

"This is a tip for you, Mr. Sandberg," he said. Sandberg declined the money, adding that the hospitality more than paid for the work.

The lawyer insisted, however. Finally he said: "Look, Mr. Sandberg, I'll tell you the truth. This tip is for you to remain silent. If you think I want the people of this town to know that I called a safe expert all the way from Boston just to pick the dirt out of a key, then I under-estimate you. This $10 bill is an out-and-out bribe!"

In addition to "family" work, the most frequent calls for the safe-crackers' skills are to right the wrongs done by beginners in the burglary business. Monday morning is the busy period for the legitimate workers because the off-side thugs do most of their business over the week-ends. The standard, uninformed technique of these amateurs is to hammer the dial from the door and attempt to pick the lock within. Actually, this defeats their purpose because most safes are equipped with a "relocking device which causes the broken lock to seal tighter than normal." Only trained men know the technicalities.

Wheels and Tires Are Missing From 3 Recovered Cars

Brantford, Oct. 9 — (CP) — A car owned by David Whyte, Brantford, stolen from his garage address during the night, was recovered by police today with all wheels and tires missing. This car was the third recovered by police in this district, since the weekend with tires and wheels gone and the officers believe a gang of tire thieves is operating in this vicinity.

Medical Science Examines Mystery Behind Arthritis

By WILLIAM GLOVER

New York (AP)—Science soon may open up its big research guns against arthritis, one of mankind's oldest, most devilish and costly ailments.

Don't expect the attack to bring early success. The "great crippler" ranks with the toughest riddles medical men ever have tackled. Its physical effects have been fairly well tabbed, but the cause at one end, the cure at the other, and much of the pathology between is an uncharted morass. Quacks have had a field day—as they have had with other ailments before genuine cures were discovered—and arthritis investigators estimate that millions of dollars are wasted annually on phony cures and nostrums.

The lack of knowledge is due chiefly to the fact that no one ever has been known to die from any of the widely diversified forms of arthritis. Yet millions are afflicted, and it affects 10 times as many persons as tuberculosis or diabetes, seven times as many as cancer—more than cancer, tuberculosis, diabetes and heart disease combined. One-third of all individuals past 55 years of age are arthritics.

"In human suffering and economic loss it is the deadliest of all diseases," says Dr. William Fishbean in explaining the task of the United States National Arthritis Research Foundation. "No one is safe from it, for it can strike in infancy as well as in older life. It apparently tends to afflict men in middle age, when they would otherwise be at the peak of their productive capacity."

Open Inquiry

The arthritis foundation was set up last year as a co-ordinated effort of the U.S. Public Health Service and of sponsors of the Leo N. Levi Memorial Hospital, Hot Springs, Ark., a non-sectarian institution which has treated 185,000 arthritics since 1914. On Oct. 7 the foundation will launch a country-wide campaign to raise $2,500,000 to start a diversified, long-range inquiry into the what, how and why of the disease.

The "when" is pretty clearly established. Evidence exists that prehistoric man was the victim of joint-crippling and deforming ailments. Egyptian mummies show arthritic conditions and one theory holds that Rome's famed baths were begun first for the therapeutic welfare of patrician victims.

"Literally thousands of remedies have been tried," Dr. Fishbein says, "from red flannel, which had some merit because it applies heat, to strings of beads. Today we are down to a few simple things—some form of heat, regulation of the diet—but only to make sure it is well-balanced; rest, and relief from worry."

It seems fairly well established that there is no family tendency or susceptibility to arthritis, or that it is related positively to any other disease.

"There does seem to be some evidence that the activities and exposure of war service have caused an increase of arthritis among former servicemen," says Dr. Fishbein, "and there is a lot of evidence that the condition is often initiated by some form of emotional shock, but it is never the exclusive factor, and there is no evidence that it can be completely caused by mental disturbance."

One of the big problems in investigating is that the usual test animals—rabbits, dogs and guinea pigs—are no more susceptible to creation of arthritic conditions than is the rest of the animal kingdom, man excepted.

Limousines Now Carry Gypsies Whizzing Along American Highways

Two thousand years ago the Gypsies decided to quit work and take a vacation. They've been on a holiday ever since, Leslie Lieber writes in This Week.

At present there are some 100,000 Gypsies lolling around on God's green acres in the United States. They are the only people in America with an elastic population. They vanish into thin air when there are taxes to be paid. They reappear in droves when there's a dole to be collected. Census-takers lose their minds trying to count Gypsy noses.

Find Paradise

Never in their long itinerary of fun, frolic and barbecue feasts have the raggle-taggle wanderers found a paradise like America. Gone forever are the signs of their poverty—the creaky caravans emblazoned with gaudy double-headed eagles and Vesuvius in eruption.

If you're looking for Gypsies today, you'll find them whizzing along the highway in Cadillac limousines. They recognize no state boundaries. They can read nothing but palms and "Stop" signs.

But Cadillacs or caravans, these ragged individualists are still the mystery race of mankind. Their marriage laws remain the despair of the church. Dead Gypsies sometimes have to be carted a thousand miles to find a clergyman willing to recommend their souls to God.

The Gypsies migrated to our shores in the last century. From the Balkans we inherited Romania's grizzly-bear trainers. Many of them now tour the United States with high-IQ monkeys trained to clean ventilators by running through them with rags tied to their tails. Serbia sent us snake charmers.

Some Not Real

Spanish Gypsies, famous as bull-hypnotizers, have concentrated in Mexico, where there's a brisk demand for their specialty. Spain also exported a dancer named Carmen Amaya, the only representative of her race who has camped at the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria. (Most Gypsy dancers aren't real Gypsies at all—they just dress up that way).

It was Russia that poured the biggest slug into our Gypsy cocktail. The Bowery Bums of the species, they stick mostly to the big cities, doing part-time work repairing fenders, grinding knives, mending pots and pans. You'll usually find these urban nomads living in back rooms of small stores. That's due to their belief that a Gypsy can't die in a store—provided a sacrificial rooster has been slaughtered on the threshold.

Today, after more than a century of American life, both city and country Romanies from coast to coast call each other "uncle" and "aunt" without being introduced. They all speak practically the same tongue, an old Hindu dialect still used in Northwest India by related dark-skinned peoples who didn't go along on the 2,000-year holiday.

Rode in Luxurious Car

The first Gypsy I ever knew was a Serbian snake charmer named Zurka. She was sitting on the grass near Hackensack, N.J. Her tent was shared by her husband, nine children and five garden snakes. Outside, ready to waft the whole family to parts unknown, a Lincoln Zephyr glistened in the sun. The snake woman wore the traditional garb of loose-fitting red, orange and green robes 15 yards long. Gold coins dangled pirate-style from her ears. Her jet hair was braided and she wore a scarlet kerchief—two gypsy signals meaning the lady is married.

She was not glad to see me. The ageless gypsy distrust of house-dwellers showed in her eyes. The ageless house-dwellers distrust of snakes showed in mine. My mission, I explained, was to learn the history and customs of her colorful people.

First she told me why gypsies are convinced they can steal without breaking any moral law. Once upon a time, she said, some of her ancestors were passing through the Holy Land. Legend has it that they stole the nails from the Cross, thus delaying the Crucifixion. "God so happy we steal nails, He give us special permit to steal everything we want forever," she said.

Church of Cheese

Zurka also believed firmly in another folktale which she cited to prove that her people, far from always having been aimless wanderers, had actually settled down and developed their own peculiar brand of church architecture. "My people in Serbia once build beautiful church. This church—she made of cheese. White goat cheese. Very beautiful."

No longer, however, do its majestic spires of Gothic Liederkranz grace the Serbian landscape. The fermented sanctuary was eaten by some roving Romanian gypsies aided by a crowd of church mice who had never had it so good.

Next, the snake charmer touched on gypsy superstitions. For one thing, they're deathly afraid of rabbits. "If anybody in family step on broom three days after Christmas, whole family will be bitten by fleas and go blind." This may account for the almost complete absense of brushes in all their dwellings I visited.

"They're the slickest gyp artists in the world," he said. "They pocket as much as $9,000 after 10 minutes of fortune-telling hocus-pocus." The technique goes like this: a fortune-teller rings your doorbell and offers to read your fortune for a dime. She takes an alarmed view of your palm, suggests you sleep with an egg under your pillow. Next day she returns, finds the egg "hexed" and warns that all your belongings are cursed. Your only chance for happiness, she prophecies, is for her to take all your money and have it blessed. This goes for your fur coats, too. Needless to say, this cleaning and blessing service skips town within an hour.

"Sometimes," declares harried Detective Sheehan, "they even park a truck down the street and haul away the furniture, too."

Masterpieces of design, it is the boast of the Swiss craftmen who make them, that few watches equal the distinctive styling of Tavannes. Unexcelled for accuracy, Tavannes Watches are proudly sold by good jewellers throughout Canada.

Lolo tribe children are shown being examined at Tienba, in Szechwan province in remote western China, by Major Robert C. Greenwood, army medical corps, of New York City, before an awed but suspicious group of natives. This picture, believed to be the first to portray the people and customs of the wild Lolo country, was taken by a member of an army combat camera unit. According to the cameraman's comment, the doctor's occupation "is a dangerous one." It is in this region that American airmen have been reported living in slavery after being forced down in 1944.

Stirling

Stirling—Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. W. Maynes motored to Watertown, N.Y., over the weekend and visited with Mr. Maynes' brother, Mr. W. H. Maynes.

VICAR CLAIMS BADGE MISUSED

Walsall, England (CP)—Canon T. Jenkins, vicar of Walsall, said the badge issued to servicemen after the First Great War had been "prostituted" so that many people almost regarded it as a "badge of pauperism" rather than a mark of distinction.

"Many who wanted to prey upon society wore it because they thought it was the nearest way to people's hearts and pockets," he said.

White's District

White's District— Mrs. W. A. Jeffery opened her home on Friday evening for choir practice for World Wide Communion Service at White's Church on Sunday.

Several of the farmers have been busy the past week picking corn and hauling it to the factory. The tomatoes or corn have not been injured by the frosts in this district and the handling of the season's crop has almost been completed.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Brown, Miss Mabel Brown, Mr. Gerald Brown and Mrs. Leonard Young were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. E. Bateman and family of Tweed.

The Seventh World Wide Communion Service was observed at White's Church on Sunday afternoon with the Rev. A. C. McCallum taking the service. The choir of young people assisted with the service and Mrs. Glenn Meyers contributed a solo ,"Will There be Any Stars in My Crown."

Anniversary Services will be held on the Bayside Charge soon with special speakers arranged for each church. The Rev. J. Plant B. A. of Brighton a former pastor will preach at Wesley church.

Rev. F.G. Joblin of Bowmanville also a former pastor will take the morning and evening services at White's Church this being the 105th anniversary of the building of this church. Plans are being carried forward to re-decorate the church for this occasion. The Rev. A. L. Shorten B. A., B. D., of Foxboro will be the guest speaker for the morning and evening services of Centenary United Church. It is hoped that there will be a good attendance at all of these services.

JUSTICE BILL WOULD ABOLISH DEATH PENALTY

Psychological and Educational Treatment of Prisoners Provided in British Penal Legislation

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)—Abolition of the death penalty for a trial period, elimination of birching and psychological and educational treatment of prisoners are probable provisions of a Criminal Justice Bill expected to be introduced by Home Secretary Ede at the next session of parliament.

Far-reaching changes are proposed in the treatment of young offenders and Mr. Ede probably will give consideration to a detailed report prepared by a Conservative party committee on this subject.

This report recommends that the existing power of courts to order boys under 14 to be whipped should be abolished and that imprisonment as a punishment for persons under 21 be replaced by new forms of institutional treatment.

Mr. Ede has examined reforms put forward before the war by a Conservative predecessor, Sir Samuel Hoare, now Lord Templewood. These were not put into effect because of war conditions and probably will be incorporated in the new legislation.

Mr. Ede is understood to have favored total abolition of the death penalty but was ready to admit this might lead to an alarming increase in crimes of violence and agreed to a trial period. If violence does not increase the new legislation can be made permanent.

Grading System

The new act would provide a system under which every prisoner would be graded according to intellectual abilities and desirable remedies applied as recommended by experts. New emphasis would be laid on social work among prisoners, with study of their antecedents and social environment.

When a prison term was completed a man would not be left to his own devices with only the casual help of voluntary societies. He would be assisted in finding a place for himself and made to feel the state was his friend.

Lord Templewood's recommendations were discussed by parliament, although they never became law, and approval of many proposals was indicated. They provided for the creation of observation centres for young people on remand and hostels for cases where prolonged training appeared unnecessary. The bill proposed no court should be allowed to impose a sentence of imprisonment on a young offender unless no other method of dealing with him was appropriate.

The Conservative committee report said treatment of young offenders should be directed at preventing them drifting into a life of crime. They should not be made to feel that society had cast them out because they had been in trouble.

Holloway

Holloway.—Mr. Wm. Cassidy, Queensboro, has been spending some time with his nephew and family, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Cassidy.

South African 116 Years Old

Mr. Pringle says he still feels quite well, though he suffers a little pain at times from his left side as a result of a fall he had about three years ago.

'Oom Piet' was born in the Bedford district of the Cape on July 17, 1830, but there is no documentary evidence of his age as his baptismal certificate was destroyed when the church at Cradock was burnt out.

Mr. Pringle's home language has always been Afrikaans and he cannot speak English. He accompanied Andries Pretorius on the Great Trek in 1838.

York's Booming Bat Blasts Three-Run Homer to Boost Boston Back in Driver's Seat

For Second Time in Series Indian Star Comes Through With Payoff Clout; "Boo" Ferriss Hurls Six-Hitter; Hughson and Munger Will Pitch Today

By JACK HAND

Boston, Oct. 10 — (AP)—Once again a booming home run off the bat of Rudy York has boosted the American League's Boston Red Sox into the driver's seat in the 1946 World Series.

Holding a 2-1 game edge over St. Louis Cardinals going into today's fourth contest on York's clout and Dave Ferriss' 4-0 shutout pitching, manager Joe Cronin is able to come back with Tex Hughson, his No. 1 man.

Eddie Dyer has to sift through his Red Bird pitching staff and finally gamble with an untried war veteran, George (Red) Munger, who joined the club Aug. 21 and after winning two he lost 2.

Ordinarily Howie Pollet would have been the choice but his aching left side has forced the Card skipper to give him at least one more day of rest.

Back at Fenway Park, the Red Sox yesterday looked to be an entirely different club than the bewildered and jittery team that split two games in Sportsman's Park.

Johnny Pesky, back in his element and also back against right hand pitching, broke his hitless series string with two sharp singles and Bobby Doerr looked more like the game's No. 1 second baseman as he tied a series record with eight assists and chipped in with a double and single in the eight-hit attack on Murray Dickson and reliefer Ted Wilks.

One of the most interesting developments of the third game was the change in Dyer's tactics against Williams who had been puzzled by the "Dyer shift" at St. Louis.

Cards didn't shift because Dyer ordered him passed intentionally in the first inning. He and Pesky who had singled became the two runs scoring in front of York's wallop.

Howard Williams crossed up the shift in the third when he pushed a bunt toward third into short left, confounding the infield which had moved around to leave third base unguarded.

The next time he came up there was a man on second with two out and the Birds pulled a half-way shift, leaving Whitey Kurowski at third but moving shortstop Marty Marion directly back of second. Second baseman Red Schoendienst continued to play a normal first base and Stan Musial guarded the foul line. It was a standoff, for Dickson struck out the Boston beanpole to the disgust of 34,500 Sox fans.

St. Louis had at least one man on base in every inning except the second and fourth but the only one who reached third was Musial on his ninth-inning triple.

REBUILT RED WINGS NO SETUP FOR OTHER TEAMS

Manager Jack Adams Makes Several Changes, and Team on Paper Better Than Last Year

By DOUG VAUGHAN
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Detroit, Oct. 10 —(CP)—Having performed the greatest house-cleaning job in the history of the club, manager Jack Adams of the Detroit Red Wings is looking forward with enthusiasm to the 1946-'47 National Hockey League season.

When his team was knocked out of the Stanley Cup playoffs last spring by Boston Bruins, Adams announced there would be some changes made. He has kept his promise. Right-winger and centre Joe Carveth was traded to Boston for Roy Conacher. Veterans Syd Howe and Carl Liscombe were sold to St. Louis Flyers of the United States League. Defenceman Flash Hollett went into retirement after a deal which would have sent him to the New York Rangers in exchange for Ab Demarco and free-wheeling Hank Goldup fell through. Harry Watson was peddled to the Toronto Maple Leafs for flashy Billy Taylor and Doug Baldwin. Centre Murray Armstrong was sold to Buffalo. Modere (Mud) Bruneteau was released to become playing-coach of the Omaha Knights.

Weak at Centre.

"Our chief weakness last year," said Adams, "was at centre ice. We lacked both speed and scoring punch. Every deal we have made was designed to overcome these weaknesses."

The Detroit pilot is particularly pleased over the acquisition of Billy (The Kid) Taylor from the Leafs. "For my money he has long been one of the best centres in the league and I'm certain he will help us. He will pivot our first line flanked by Roy Conacher on left wing and hard-shooting Eddie Bruneteau on right." In practice this trio has been terrific.

Adams is not so sure of his other two forward lines and it is possible that there will be some further switches before the Wings open their season at home with Toronto Maple Leafs on Oct. 16. However, to date the veteran Sid Abel, who came out of the R.C.A.F. at the fag end of last season to help the Detroit club in its playoff drive, has been centering a line which has youthful Ted Lindsay on the left flank and Fernand Gauthier, formerly of the Montreal Canadiens, on right wing. A third string sniping trio is comprised of Pat Lundy at centre with Adam Brown and 18-year-old Gordie Howe on the wings.

Goal No Worry.

Lundy was with the Wings for the last three weeks of the 1945-'46 season after being discharged from the Canadian navy while Howe, rated by Adams as one of the most promising youngsters he has seen in years, bagged 23 goals and 20 assists while playing with Omaha Knights, Detroit's United States League farm club, last season.

The goal-tending assignment is the least of the Red Wing pilot's worries. Currently a brisk battle for the job is being waged between 19-year-old Harry Lumley, the club's regular fort-tender for the past two seasons and Johnny Mowers who wants his old job back after a three-year stretch in the armed services. Both have looked exceptionally good in practice and it is a toss-up as to which will be between the uprights come the opener with Toronto. In any case it is likely that both will be kept on the Red Wing payroll.

The defence is giving Adams more than a few headaches. Burly Jack Stewart, rated by many critics as the hardest-hitting rearguard in hockey was late in reporting and had only been on skates twice when he was sidelined with a throat infection. He is still in hospital and it is doubtful if he will be ready for the start of the season.

No "Down" About These Thistles

Quebec, Oct. 10 — (CP)—What price sports glory? After winning the Mann Cup and Canada's box lacrosse championship over New Westminster Salmonbellies only last week, St. Catharines Athletics were advised yesterday that Fergus Thistles have claimed the Ontario cup.

Provincial intermediate champions, the Thistles base their claim to the Ontario senior title trophy on the grounds that the Athletics refused to meet them in a sudden-death challenge match.

ART DUNCAN HEADS TRENT HOCKEY LOOP

New Prexy Well Known in Sports Circles of District

Enthusiasm ran high at a pre-season meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League this week as representatives from Madoc, Marmora, Tweed, Batawa and Norwood gathered and signified their intention of entering a team in the loop that was successfully revived last year after a six year recess.

Officers elected to direct activities for the coming season are President, Art Duncan, well-known sportsman of this district and editor of the Batawa News. The new president has been associated with several hockey leagues in the area and was secretary of the Central Hastings Rural League for five seasons. He was associated with Stirling teams of juvenile, junior and intermediate classes and is well-known to every club on the circuit. Guy Hughes of Tweed will be Art's righthand man acting as vice president and Wes Farrell also of Batawa and brother of the famed Red Farrell former Tiger star. Leslie gained plenty of knowledge in playing days with Grimsby and later worked with Tigers in Hamilton. So it can be said the Trent Valley Hockey League is in good hands and with such an early start in the season the town must be attracted by the new Bata Memorial Cup that was donated for annual competition last year and is now resting in the Marmora Club rooms.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended retiring officers which included Bill Shannon, president, and Wes Hamilton, secretary, both of Marmora.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Boston, Oct. 10 — (AP) — A crowd of newspapermen were around the batting cage before yesterday's World Series game waiting for Ted Williams to take his licks. When he was slow to appear, someone suggested: — "Maybe he's down under the stands learning to bunt" ... There was more than a little truth in that remark, for the first chance he got, Williams pushed one down the third base line for an easy base hit and forced Eddie Dyer to revise his "T" for Ted formation . . . "Maybe we'll have to try the single or double wing next," Dyer admitted. "I'd like to keep Williams quiet but I don't think we will. He's too good a hitter and all the shifts in the world won't stop him if he pokes one into the stands."

Beantown Breezes

The Cards apparently know all about the beef shortage. Their first game pitcher, Howie Pollet, weighs 170 pounds. Then came Harry Brecheen, 160, and Murry Dickson, 155 . . . Joe Cronin was laughing about his small boy, who remarked: "It's a big day, daddy. It's a world serious." Maybe the kid had the right word, at that . . . The Boston fans didn't seem to be regarding the "serious" any too seriously, judging from the way they took their time about filling the bleachers and their apathy, until Williams finally got a hit. But they really gave Ted a big hand when he decided to bunt . . . maybe the chilly — but rainless — weather had something to do with it. According to some New Englanders the reasons are "Fourth of jutty, Labor Day, country fair and then the snow flies."

Praise Dept.

Shag Shaughnessy, International League president, would rather talk about Jackie Robinson's performances in the Little World Series than anything he has seen in the big show . . . "He's the smartest ball player I have seen in 20 years," Shag insists. "I don't see how they can keep him off the Dodgers next year." . . . Another International Leaguer claims Jackie, the champion Montreal Royals' star infielder, could bunt .260 in the National League.

Dot's All, brothers

Connie Mack and Clark Griffith attracted the photographers' attention when they put their heads together at the ball park and most American Leaguers hoped they weren't cooking up something. The pair probably can out-think all the rest of the league . . . Joe Cronin saw the Cards only twice this year before the series. Off yesterday's game, he'll only see them twice more.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

THE RIGHT MAN

Senor Arturo Duncano, that pleasant little guy with the infectious smile and the pleasing personality, who is as much at home behind an editor's desk as he is giving forth humorous and other dissertations behind the footlights, has been elected president of the 1946-7 edition of the Trent Valley Hockey League.

• • •

Art who has been batting out a better Bata Bugle since that cornucopia of interesting news came into full-fledged being as a real newsy tabloid, should fill the prexy's shoes with considerable efficiency. As he took to sport like a starving cherine to a new rural sugar-daddy when he was a rear rank private in the diaper brigade—and he never got over it. And he has something between his ears other than a shock of corn-colored hair, a wide grin and a hail-fellow-well-met personality.

• • •

In any event, Senor Duncan has had plenty of experience along hockey lines and the new edition of the Trent Valley Hockey League is in good administrative hands Besta luck, chum.

• • •

Highlights of the first two World Series Games as tabbed by American baseball writers.

"Ted Williams gave it the old college try in the second, racing frantically in from deep left in a futile effort to catch Whitey Kurowski's long fly ball. "It looks mighty tough for the Cardinals," bellowed a Boston writer very sarcastically. "Williams is hustling for the first time this season." The feud there is as bitter as between the Hatfields and the McCoys."

• • •

Yet Ted seemed infinitely more affable than usual, obligingly autographing score cards and baseballs. When one slightly awed fan proffered him a ball and then dropped it, Williams chuckled. "Hey," he said, "I'm supposed to be nervous, not you."

• • •

Only once this season did Williams deliberately hit to left as he should. Someone told him that Ty Cobb would have batted .800 if other teams had played him the way they play the Boston Belter. So the irked and prideful Ted singled to left in his first trip to the plate, bunted beautifully on his second and wound up with four hits in all "Who's this guy Cobb?" he chortled gleefully afterwards. But he never tried it again. A bewildering, incomprehensive person is our Mr. Williams.

• •

The white-haired and benevolent appearing Breadon was in something of a dither before the game. Arthur Mann, the New York wit and ribber, remarked to him beforehand, "Sam, I can't see the Red Sox winning. They have no balance." Sam nodded his head in absent-minded agreement. "All they have," continued Arthur, plunging the needle deeper, "is hitting and pitching." Sam never smiled, "That's right," he said seriously. That crack' will probably seep through his consciousness before next Michelmas.

• • •

But hitting and fielding weren't all the Bosox had in that first game. They also had horseshoes, four - leafed clover, rabbits' feet and the leprechauns whispering into Cronin's ear. Never were truer words spoken than Lefty Gomez' classic line, "I'd rather be lucky than good."

• • •

There was a minor comedy of errors in the third inning of the second game, although the humor underlying the happenings failed to strike a responsive chord in Cronin who ordinarily has a very sensitive funny bone. Brecheen strove desperately to dump down a sacrifice bunt and, twice failing deftly lined a single to right that hammered in the first and key run.

• • •

Then Red Schoendienst belted down the first base line. Ruddy York tried to pick up the ball and tag the red-head simultaneously. But all he achieved was to sit abruptly on the ground, as completely surprised as the folks who laughed when the man sat down at the piano. However, he still managed to make the throw to first ahead of the runner.

• • •

The Batawa Shoemen will meet either Windsor Woodbine Lunches or Chatham in the Ontario Intermediate "A" baseball finals. The two western Ontario teams start their two-of-three semi-finals this afternoon in Chatham with the second game scheduled in the same city on Saturday. The third if necessary will be played on Sunday. So it looks as though the Shoemen may get under way in the battles for the title next week.

• • •

Just when the Latta Intermediate "B" squad will get some action is a matter for conjecture. Essex and Tillsonburg are battling away in their series, while Thornbury is sticking around waiting for a winner from some place. Then the western counties have yet to declare a winner, so by the time the lads from up-west get down to baseball brasstacks, there's liable to be snow on the ground, or they'll be able to use Santa Claus as an umpire.

• • •

Latta bowed out of the Belleville Baseball League playoff picture at the Alemite Field yesterday afternoon dropping a free-hitting loosely played game 8-5 to Bill Easton's Batawa nine, for their second straight loss of the two-of-three semi-finals.

• • •

The Jack Carson gang hopped on Harry, Batawa starting pitcher for four hits and four runs in the first innings, then clouted Muffitt for another hit and another run before the heat was over. Muffitt who developed a sore arm gave way to "Smoky" Smith in the third and the third and the southpaw blanked the foe with one hit over the remainder of the game. He whiffed 16.

• • •

Batawa, who according to Manager Bill Easton play either Windsor or Chatham early next week in the first game of the Ontario Intermediate "A" finals up west, will meet the Trenton Flyers on Saturday at Batawa at 3 p.m. in the first game of the City League finals. The series will likely be a four-of-seven affair.

The game yesterday was a distinct departure from the closely fought game of Monday when the teams battled 1-0 in ten innings. It was featured by some timely clouting, costly errors and jerky baseball. Hall, Latta lefthander, lasted one and one-half innings and was relived by Joe Marsh after he had allowed four runs for three hits. Joe finished but was touched for ten hits for four markers.

AMATEUR BASEBALL

By The Canadian Press

Stratford Nationals won the fourth game of the O.B.A. Senior A finals by defeating Niagara Falls Houcks 2-1 Wednesday to even the series, two games apiece. Miskimmons, who doubled to open the rally, trotted home for the winning run.

In the O.B.A. Junior B series, Dresden defeated Bowmanville 3-2.

Aided by some heavy hitting from his team mates, Honsberger stayed on the mound for Tillsonburg and pitched his team to a 8-0 victory over Essex Maple Leafs to put the Essex team out of the running in the O.B.A. Intermediate "B" playoffs. Tillsonburg won two and tied one game in the best two-out-of-three game series.

In the O.B.A. Juvenile series, Milton took the first game of a best-of-three series against Simcoe defeating the Simcoe team 6-2.

Registering all their runs in the first four innings, Toronto Lizzies trimmed Windsor Cardinals, 6-3, in the opener of their O.B.A. Juvenile a best-of-three series Wednesday.

Hamilton Farrars came out of their second-place slot, by defeating Slaters, 9-0 to take the title in the Big Four Senior Softball finals.

Castilloux-Webb Tangle Tonight

Montreal, Oct. 10 — (CP)—It will be the craft and skill of a veteran ring campaigner against the youth and endurance of a former preliminary boy who found his fistic eye overseas when Dave Castilloux defends his Canadian lightweight crown against Danny Webb in a scheduled 12-round bout tonight.

Castilloux, a 30-year-old Montrealer who has held the featherweight, lightweight and welter titles of Canada, lays his last crown on the canvas when he steps into the ring against Webb, game little Negro scrapper also from Montreal.

Casty, by virtue of his ring lore and years of experience, is favored 1-3 to take the match and will also have a small weight drag on his 26-year-old opponent. The champion is expected to weigh in just under the class limit of 135 pounds, while Webb is expected to tip the Toledos at close to 130.

Castilloux will be gunning for big stakes in this bout. Already crown when he passed the weight limit, and deprived of his welter rule last Aug. 28 by Montreal's Johnny Greco, the champ says he will retire if he loses this one. But he isn't worrying too much about it, and already is thinking of a return go with Greco if he passes Webb. The challenger also had big hopes for a win, with efforts being made to line up Willie Pep as an opponent.

World Series Notes

By JOE REICHLER

Boston, Oct. 10 (AP)—Two of the hottest rumors at the series were quickly squelched last night when a source close to President Larry MacPhail of New York Yankees, who refused to otherwise identify himself, said emphatically. "you can bet all the money in your possession that neither Red Rolfe nor Bill Meyer will manage the Yankees next year—or any other year for that matter."

From the way Warren Giles, general manager of Cincinnati Reds and Bill McKechnie, recently hired as coach of Cleveland Indians, were chinning at the World Series headquarters yesterday, one would hardly believe that it was the same Giles who handed Bill his walking papers as field manager of the Reds last month.

"Bill and I still are the best of friends," said Giles. "But a change for Bill was better all around. Sometimes it is not too healthy for a manager to stay too long in one city. He seems to lose his initiative. However, I look for him to be of great help to Boudreau (Lou Boudreau, manager of the Indians). He should have a steadying influence on Lou."

Eavesdropping in the Cardinals' clubhouse, one gets the idea that some of the players are hardly able to stand up, let alone play two hours of strenuous baseball. Terry Moore says he is going to have an operation performed on his bad left knee which has been bothering him all season. Whitey Kurowski will consult with club physician Robert N. (Doc) Hyland about an operation on his right elbow to remove some chips.

Del Rice will undergo an operation for the removal of callouses from the soles of his feet; Marty Marion, of course, will give his aching back a thorough examination; and Johnny Beazley intends to have his sore right arm get medical attention.

(By The Canadian Press)

Russell (Barney) Stanley, one of the stars of his day and Chicago Black Hawks coach in 1928, doesn't think National Hockey League coaches spend as much time developing individual players as in the "good old days." The reason: The farm system and increased playing rosters.

Barney made his observation after watching the Hawks in an exhibition game in Edmonton. He thinks the game "has changed so much it's difficult to comment on it" but he prefers the old style of passing attacks to the current helter-skelter streamlined brand of play.

Other railbirds who watched the Hawks in action aganist Kansas City Pla-Mors were Clem Loughlin, another former Hawk mentor, and former N.H.L. 'ers Art Wieve and Leroy Goldsworthy.

About the only alibi Hawks have after being defeated 5-2 by Kansas City Pla-Mors to offer for letting their farm hands trim them was that Paul Bibeault, Chicago's regular goalie recently obtained from the champion Montreal Canadiens, was between the pipes for Kansas City.

Dit Clapper figures his veterans are showing more "stuff" now than at the peak of last season and he's not the least bit worried about the late training start of his Boston Bruins. Joe Carveth appears to have nabbed a position on a line with Don Gallinger and Pep Guidolin. Shill who worked on the line last season has been drilling with Ken Smith and Herb Cain.

It will require many weeks yet before any conclusions can be reached on which team got the best of the deal which took Billy Taylor to Detroit Red Wings and Harry Watson to Toronto Maple Leafs. But Jack Adams is convinced he wasn't cheated after watching Taylor "fly" at Galt last night to help the Wings down Indianapolis 6-4.

Defence continues to be the main problem in the Toronto camp at St. Catharines aind Watson, converted to a defenceman has been blocking well beside Bob Goldman. If he succeeds in filling the gap left when Conn Smythe sold Babe Pratt to Boston, the Leafs manager will quickly forget any scoring flurries by Taylor in his new setting.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Most of us have troubles enough playing the ordinary type of bridge hand. Or when it is necessary to figure out one or two unseen cards. But look at what gives with the cards shown here:

NORTH
♠ None
♥ None
♦ A K 9 8 7
♣ A J 7

WEST	EAST
♠ None	♠ Q 7 6
♥ Q J 9 7 5 6	♥ A 10 8
♦ J 6	♦ None
♣ None	♣ Q 10

SOUTH
♠ A K J 10
♥ None
♦ None
♣ 6 5 4 3

What you see are the eight remaining cards in each hand of an unusual deal. With spades as trumps, declarer in the south seat has already taken the first five tricks.

His dummy hand is now in the lead and top diamonds are being led from there. If east trumps a diamond, south overtrumps. He can then pick up the remaining spades from the east hand.

After that happens there will be no effort in taking the rest of the tricks. Dummy is entered with a club and the north diamonds are good for everything else that may be needed.

As north starts leading diamonds, east may refuse to trump. He is wise to what south is trying to do. He may sluff his three hearts instead. In that case, south sluffs three clubs on three diamonds.

Dummy leads another diamond. If east sluffs one of his two last clubs, south trumps his own dummy good diamond. He then enters the dummy with a club and a diamond return forces east to trump.

As north starts leading diamonds, east may neither trump nor sluff hearts. Instead, east may sluff a club at once or on the next or on the third diamond lead. That is another situation.

In that case, south must trump his diamond trick and enter the dummy with a club. The main thing is to keep east from sluffing the second club to prevent the club entry to dummy.

Thus, there is no defence that east can put up to prevent the declarer from taking all the tricks. East is caught in a smother.

When caught in a smother, oh brother.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 10 (AP) — Stage 10 was tense with excitement, and with good reason—it was the day of the Lamour-Ladd battle.

The fight was to take place as part of "The Big Haircut" which is not a barber college saga, but a story of the wheat country.

I found Alan Ladd in fighting form in his training camp. That morning he had had his round with Lamour, jabbing her in the kisser with a brushful of shaving soap seven times. (First with whipped cream, then marshmallow sauce, which sticks better.)

Over in the Lamour camp, Dotty was quietly waiting her turn. "I'll get him," she muttered, dropping two stitches from the skirt she was knitting for herself.

"First team!" shouted the assistant director, ordering the substitution of stars for stand-ins. "Laddie!" called Dotty menacingly, "oh Laddie!" they squared off in front of the camera.

"Could we have the studio doctor stand by for Alan?" said Dotty helpfully. Ladd refused cotton to protect his mouth, fearing he would swallow it.

"Hit him hard," shouted Preston.

"You be quiet or I'll ask for you in my next jungle picture!" warned Dotty.

The scene began. Alan read his line, some nasty remarks about the character Dotty was playing. She slapped her pretty paw across his tanned face with such gentleness that even Alan burst out laughing.

"Harder!" she was instructed, and the scene began again. This time Dotty wound up like Bobby Feller with the bases loaded. Whack! And Alan was sent reeling. Luckily for him this one was a "take."

Maybe it wasn't so bad for him after all—when I left, Dotty was tenderly rubbing his bruised cheek.

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Vancouver, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Ottawa citizenry who are wondering what's happening to their wonder-man of football, Orville Burke, should read a few lines penned by Alf (Vancouver Sun) Cottrell recently.

Mr. Cottrell visited the Vancouver Athletic Club, the team currently being coached by Burke in the western Big Four football race. According to his reactions, the league should be called the V.A.C.'s versus the Big Three.

Burke was handicapped from the beginning with a team composed of enthusiastic, but comparatively green youngsters.

How well he overcame that handicap is shown by the fact that V.A.C. now lead the league.

In the renewal of the ancient V.A.C.-Meralomas feud Burke's squad registered a 13-6 win over their highly-favored rivals. They did it again when they tossed Victoria Mustangs for a 22-11 loss. In the second contest, Burke himself participated in each and every scoring play.

The way Mr. B. personally handled the ball, the local local of the Magician's Union is asking him for his union card.

He hasn't been nominated for mayor yet, but then, elections are not until December.

At some time long since forgotten, a luckless divot-digger slashed one into the rough and was unable to locate his ball. It was finally found in a tree crotch around it.

The odd crotch was found by boys searching for good slingshot material, mounted and now is given in annual competition.

Smiths Falls Wins Title

Smiths Falls, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Smiths Falls Railroaders, behind the tight pitching of southpaw Jimmy Sherwood, yesterday shaded Hull Volants 2-1 to win the seventh and deciding game of the Ontario-Quebec Baseball League and take the interprovincial title. The Railroaders now will go north for a series with Kirkland Lake. Sherwood held Hull to six hits while Driscoll was nicked for 11 blows.

CHAPTER 25

Coming back, he did not join her again on the deep chesterfield, but took instead an armchair half facing her, dropped his shoulders, and, his linked hands between his knees, stared at the fire.

"Where," Isabel asked, after a silence, "do we go from here?"

"I don't know," Dennis answered, and for a long time neither spoke.

"It is stronger than I am," Dennis said.

"Yes, and than I am."

"You still can," she said, surprised. "You're going back?"

Dennis looked at her steadily, and she felt the blood surge not only into her cheeks, but into her throat and into her heart.

"I suppose so," he said.

There was no answer. She could not speak. Isabel tried to remain absolutely still, but she could not control the quick rise of her breast, under the preposterous gown of chiffon and heavy gold embroideries. Her fine hands, lying spread on the dark velvet of the chesterfield, trembled.

"I don't know where I'm going, Isabel," he said. And then with a straightening of his shoulders and a change of manner, "So this is the children's home? Somehow I don't see children here."

"They're very much at home all over the place."

He looked about at the old-fashioned grandeur of busts and stately lamps towering bookcases.

"Old house."

"About seventy years old, I think. You don't see these coal grates any more."

"I rather like them."

"I thought so. Isabel," Dennis said quietly, "why did you do it?"

It had come. For a moment she did not answer.

"I don't know, Dennis," she said then simply.

"I don't know—I've never understood," he presently said.

"There's no explanation. Except that war—war is so lawless, Dennis. I was lonely—and then suddenly swept away into this completely new atmosphere. Not," Isabel finished, after a silence, "that that explains it."

Dennis, his clasped hands still dropped between his knees, his eyes still on the fire, said slowly:

"When I saw you coming down toward Solari's today, it was my wife meeting me."

"I know," Isabel said in a whisper.

"And when you sat opposite me, at the table, you were—just the woman who belonged to me—and to whom I belonged. Your hair and your eyes and the way your hand lay on the table—that was all mine."

"I know. It's all mixed up, it oughn't to be like this," she said quickly, confusedly, under her breath.

"You see, you used to sleep in my arms, Isabel, and when you weren't well—before Pussy was born—I used to make you cups of malted milk, in the night—"

"And the bromides that came in the glass tube."

"I thought you could."

"No. Husband and wife aren't just words. They aren't just words. They're living things—buying shoes together, and stopping on the way home for an oyster loaf."

"Oh, and how good it tasted! That was the first thing that tasted right, after being so sick all the first months. I remember biting into it—and biting into it—as if I couldn't bite hard enough."

"I remember everything."

"You asked me why I did it," Isabel began.

"I didn't mean to phrase it that way."

"It doesn't matter. I did do it. But why was there a war, Dennis? And why did I ever meet Nancy Strait? I would have gone along like other women, I would never have been—carried off my feet."

."When you went to New York?"

"I think the old theologians were right when they made marriage a contract that isn't like any other, Dennis. There's no way out, We're not out—neither one of us."

"No," he agreed, "we're not out."

"It's different with you," Isabel began again. "You are busy, you're working. I've nothing to do—nothing to do. If I let the nurse go, then that means I devote myself entirely to the children—and I can't do that."

"Why not?" he asked.

"Avery. He's the most restless creature alive. He's never here."

"Oh. All I was thinking was that I don't think mother feels them too much of a care."

"Ah, but in Sausalito they're outdoors all the time."

"And not here?"

"Not in the same way. I'm apt to be upstairs, with Avery." He looked at her quickly, and Isabel felt the blood rise again in her face. "He kept late hours," she stammered on. "The grounds are big and the highway goes by the back gate. It wouldn't be safe."

"No,no. I can see that. And on the hill of course they are safe. They trot over to Madge's by themselves, play around pretty much by themselves."

"They love it," she said.

"Yes. They said they'd hide when I offered to bring them to town today."

"You see what I have here," Isabel said after a moment. "Anything I want. And Avery—there's so much that's good in him. But—my feet aren't on the ground, Dennis. I'm not—not alive in some way."

"You've not been married a year yet."

"No, and Avery's away. But I was alive when I was married to you—even after a month, even after a week."

"Only I was too stupid to know—too stupid to see—that there was something I didn't do—that you were missing something."

"No, never," she said quickly. "I never missed anything. I can't explain it to myself and so I can't explain it to you."

"You don't have to explain anything."

"I—it was all so exciting. It was theatres and the park—and the biggest hotel—"

"If I had been here," he said, as she paused, searching for words, "we might have worked it out together."

"There was nothing, ever, that we didn't work out together." A great desolateness came over Isabel, and she felt as if the glory and certainty and courage of youth were all drained away, and that nothing was left but loneliness and the ordered service of the big house, and the rows of beautiful clothes, hanging closely aligned, in the closets upstairs. She fixed her shadowed beautiful eyes on Dennis, spoke appealingly. "Dennis, sometimes—looking ahead—at all the years—I'm frightened," she said.

"Everybody is today—I think," Dennis answered seriously.

After supper pop said to ma, What time is it, the Slawter Biffsky fight goes on the air at nine.

Now William that's just the time the Baffle Hour goes on, ma said. I dont see how you can take such tireless pleasure in bringing the low atmosfeer of a prize fight into your home, she said, and pop said, But my dear, how can there be anything lowering about a prize fight when it raises the cultural tone of the very men most closely connected with it?

Such as who, such as how for land sakes? ma said, and pop said, Let me read you a few quotations from the sporting page. Ye'll start with the contestants themselves. Here's what Slawter had to say, he said.

And he started to read from the paper, saying, When he weighed in this afternoon, Slawter was bubbling over with confidence. "While I dont wish to appear over-optimistic," he said, "I can confidently assert that Mr. Biffsky has about as much chance as the proverbial spherical cluster of snow in the nether regions."

Now William, if prize fighters talked like that they'd be in some other walk of life, ma said, and pop said, My dear, nobody in any other walk of life talks like a prize fighter as quoted by the sports writers. Now listen to what Biffsky had to say. It says here, Biffsky seemed equally sure of the outcome of tonight's battle. "My intimates know that I am not customarily given to braggadocio," he stated, "so you gentlemen may rest assured that I am voicing my well considered opinion when I hazard the prediction that Mr. Slawter's henchmen will throw the white flag of truce, vulgarly known as the towel, into the ring before the end of the 3rd round." Of course in reading it hastily I may of exaggerated a little, but that's the general trend, pop said.

The result being he went to listen to the fight on the breakfist room radio and ma stayed in the living room to hear the Baffle Hour, and I went to bed feeling against it.

Wants Everyone To Know How Much Syntona Helped Me

Had Cramps in My Legs So Bad I Would Faint Away. Troubled with Stomach Disorders, Got Dizzy, Nervous, Always Tired. Tells of Relief.

"I am so pleased with the results I got by taking a few bottles of Syntona that I want everyone to know how this medicine has helped me," said Mrs. J. R. McReynolds, 393-5th. Street east, Owen Sound, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I used to get cramps in the back of my legs so bad I would faint away. I was weak and rundown and suffered from frequent headaches and dizzy spells. I suffered somewhat from indigestion, gas and acid risings after my meals. Often I would feel very bloated and belch up hot, sour liquids. My nerves were very bad and I could not sleep well at night.

"But since I have taken Syntona, I am improved wonderfully. I am free of headaches, I don't have the dizziness as I did and my digestion is certainly acting much better than it did before. Also my nerves are relaxed, so I am sleeping much better and I awaken mornings feeling more rested and refreshed. Generally I am feeling better than I did in the past five years and I am glad to recommend this fine medicine to other people who suffer as I did."

Many people have been helped in this same way simply by taking a short treatment of Syntona Herbal Compound. It acts promptly on the organs of digestion and elimination helping to rid the system of excess acids and poisonous waste matter and at the same time promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Pan American Ban On Flights Over Romania, Hungary

Frankfurt, Germany, Oct. 10—(AP)— An unexplained suspension of American plane flights over Czechoslovakia was lifted suddenly today by United States headquarters in Europe, but a military ban was continued on flights either by civil or military planes of Romania and Hungary.

London — Pan American Airways announced today that it had halted all service to Middle Europe following a United States military order forbidding flights over Czechoslovakia or Russian-controlled territory in Hungary, Romania, Germany and Austria.

"Until further clarification of the situation," the airline said in a statement, "all Pan American services to Middle Europe will be halted in Brussels."

The statement said a Pan American clipper from Prague to Vienna was turned back yesterday by United States military orders which said that no civil or military aircraft would be permitted to fly over Czech or Russian-controlled territory in Hungary or Romania from Oct. 9 to 14.

The order banning flights over Russian-occupied territory in Germany and Austria is effective "until further notice," this statement said, adding:

"Pan American also was advised by the American embassy in Prague and the Czech ministry of transportation that its planes must not be dispatched over Russian controlled territory."

Pan American, which has been operating twice weekly services from Brussels to Prague to Vienna, reported 10 passengers booked from Vienna were taken off at Prague and the clipper returned to Brussels.

No Evidence That Jewish Brigade Is Moving Jews

London, Oct. 10 — (Reuters)— Capt. Frank Bellenger, Britain's new war minister, in a written reply in the House of Commons yesterday, said there was no evidence that the Jewish Brigade had been transporting Jews from the British to the American zone of Germany en route for Palestine. He said, however, there was some evidence that individual soldiers gave assistance to visaless immigrants in isolated cases.

SIX KILLED BY MAN-EATING TIGER

Bombay, Oct. 10 — (Reuters)— Six persons have been killed by a man-eating tiger which for two months has roamed the countryside in the Karwar district of Bombay province. Armed villagers have made day and night patrols in attempts to capture the tiger which, in addition to dodging all traps, has killed livestock and caused terror among villagers.

DR. RAM LOHIA RELEASED

Bombay, Oct. 10 — (Reuters)— Dr. Ram Manchar Lohia, India Congress Socialist leader, arrested by Portuguese authorities on Sept. 29 when he entered Goa, Portuguese Indian territory, was released yesterday after being brought to the British Indian territorial limits by Portuguese police.

Bracken Critical Of Govt. Waste And Extravagance

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, today criticized government waste and high taxation and charged that the interest bill on what the Federal government has borrowed "now approaches the total expenditures of pre-war days.

"If the present trend is not arrested, we will soon reach the point where all that we can do with our money is to earn it, turn it over to the government and then hope that the government will maintain us," Mr. Bracken said today in an address prepared for delivery to the Progressive Conservative Businessmen's Club.

The Progressive Conservative leader charged that "the government cannot get away from its wartime mentality," and "it can't discard wartime extravagances."

He referred particularly to the wartime information service, costing between $600,000 and $700,000 a year, and the National Film Board with nearly 1,000 persons on the payroll, costing nearly $2,000,000 a year. In addition, the government was spending more than $7,000,000 a year on advertising and publicity.

He also referred to "materials at military camps or in the hands of war assets sufficient to house, to clothe, to supply fuel and to provide comforts for thousands of those who now are without these necessities.

Canada must make a choice between "rational progress" and "revolutionary change." The Progressive Conservative party stood for preservation of the incentive to private enterprise, a "fair deal" to farming and "the highest social security standard possible, short of taxing people to the point where enterprise is discouraged, absenteeism increased, production lessened and everyone made poorr."

FIVE REPORTED SHOT

Athens, Oct. 10 — (AP)—Dispatches from Trikkala said today that five soldiers who had been sentenced to death by a military court on charges of subversive activity were executed yesterday by a firing squad. Refusing to be blindfolded or be administered last sacraments, the group went to their death shouting "long live the republic!" the dispatch declared.

'Passion Flower' in Moscow

Moscow, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Dolores Ibarruri, Spanish Communist leader known as "La Pasionaria" (passion flower) during the Spanish Civil War, has arrived here to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the International Women's Federation.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Stocks were definitely weak in the early session today and losses of one to two points in the index were posted respectively by the gold and industrial stocks. The base metal and western oil groups touched new lows for the year. Trading continued comparatively light at 528,000 shares for the first three hours.

Some of the weak issues in the gold group were Campbell Red Lake, Chesterville, Springer, Sullivan, Wasa Lake, Hedley, Wright-Hargreaves and O'Brien. Falconbridge lost 40, Labrador 15, Pend Oreille 9, Steep Rock 4 and Waite-Amulet 5.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 10 (AP) — Selected stocks managed to shake off minus signs today but the move was timid and many market leaders continued to seek lower territory.

Dealings were fast in the forenoon with low-quoted issues coming out on blocks of as much as 28,000 shares, unchanged. Losses running to 3 or more points for steels, motors and rails were widespread and new lows since early 1945 numerous.

Canadian issues were quiet at midday. Dome Mines eased 1-8 and Distillers Seagram gained 1-4.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Prices were steady on a plain quality supply of cattle up to mid-session on the livestock market here today. Boning steers and heifers were $8-$10, plain butcher heifers $10-11.25, butcher cows $7.75-$10, canners downward to $5.50 and bulls $8-$10.

Calves were steady $15-$16 choice with plain vealers downward to $10.

Lambs were steady $14.50, good ewes and wethers, $13.50 bucks.

Sheep were steady $4-$8.

Hogs were steady, grade A $20.25, grade B1 $19.85, sows mostly $18, dressed.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: cattle 30, calves 20, hogs 20, sheep and lambs 300. Unsold from yesterday were 1,100 head of cattle including 800 stockers.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronto, Oct. 10 (CP)—Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

Commission Plans Drastic Revision Of Liquor Sale

By J. C. GRAHAM
Canadian Press Correspondent

Wellington, N.Z. (CP)—Drastic changes in New Zealand's liquor laws have been recommended by a royal commission on licensing which has made exhaustive inquiries into all aspects of the system.

Liquor, whether beer, spirits or wine, can be bought in New Zealand only from hotels, or in quantities of over two gallons from bulk merchants. It cannot be served with meals at restaurants, not bought at cabarets or other places of entertainment.

All hotels close at six p.m. so that no alcoholic drink can be obtained in the evenings except by guests actually living in hotels. It is illegal even to take one's own liquor into a ballroom or dancehall.

Puzzling regulations lead to many abuses and there is considerable bootlegging at inflated prices.

Six o'clock closing of hotels produces the habit of rapid "vertical" drinking which many observers contend causes more drunkenness than if the hotels were open all evening. From the time shops and offices close at 5 p.m. until the hotels shut the bars are crowded with men. Women are not allowed in bars.

Another anomaly in the licensing system is the difficulty in securing new liquor licenses or transferring existing ones from any hotel in one district to one in another town where there is a greater need for it. This leads to the number of licensed hotels bearing little relationship to the population of the towns.

Proposed Changes

The most drastic recommendation of the royal commission is that all breweries should be acquired and operated by the state.

It claims that this, by eliminating the large chains of hotels owned by the brewery companies, would make hotelkeepers more concerned in providing better service and accommodation for the public and less concerned in pushing beer sales.

The commission has also recommended opening of hotels until 10 p.m., and the granting of limited permits to restaurants to serve liquor with meals. It proposes the establishment of shops for the sale of liquor for consumption on the premises, and the granting of charters to clubs and other institutions. It would also allow liquor at some functions at cabarets. It proposes a general redistribution of licences to bring the numbers of licensed hotels into line with population trends.

The commission's report will not be considered until after the new parliament elected at the general election on November 27 meets. Simultaneously with the election the triennial poll on the issues of continuance of private ownership of the liquor industry, state control, or complete prohibition, will be held.

At the last election the vote was 416,656 for continuance, 102,866 for state control, and 231,317 for prohibition. The state control proposed in the poll goes much further than that recommended by the commission, embracing all ramifications of the liquor trade. Nevertheless a large increase in the state control vote would be some indication to the government of whether there was substantial public support for the commission's recommendations.

DISCOVER SECRET OF TURNING NIGHT INTO DAY

Prof. Etienne Vassy, 37-year-old expert on atmospheric physics at the Sorbonne University, Paris, is pictured with his wife in their laboratory. Prof. Vassy announced recently that he and his wife had discovered a formula for turning night into day by means of radio transmission of optical waves, directed at Luminous strata in the sky. At any hour of the day, says Prof. Vassy, we will be able to capture enough light from the sky to read without lamps, to drive without headlights and work without illumination." The French professor recently built the first French television transmitter in the Maritime Alps and is now constructing the largest television studio in Europe at Mougins on the Riviera.

Zoologically speaking, apes are more like men than monkeys.

This is the Law

(New York Times)

When the International Military Tribunal at Nuernberg passed judgment on the Nazi leaders and their organizations it not only imposed punishment for crimes committed but also made history by developing and proclaiming new legal rules and standards which now become integral parts of international law. They do so because the Tribunal acted as the instrument not only of the principal victors but of altogether twenty-three nations who represent the effective sovereign and moral power in the world, and who now give effective force to the Tribunal's findings by their approval and consent. These findings might be amplified or changed by later international agreements or similar judgments, but until that happens they are the law. And that law is applicable to all nations, the victors and the vanquished alike.

This law, it is true, is being applied for the present by victors to the vanquished alone. But that very fact imposes a special moral obligation upon the victors to recognize the universal application of the law they have passed and to abide by it themselves. The extent to which they do so will not only provide a test of their good faith but will also determine the judgment which history will pass on the Tribunal itself.

For that reason, it is essential to realize just what that law is and how it affects our own conduct. The full implications of that law must await a detailed study and analysis, but certain rules and principles are already plain.

The first and foremost of these is that aggressive warfare has now been pronounced "the supreme crime," and that in dealing with its national sovereignty has been superseded by the superior sovereignty of international law and international organization, which take jurisdiction not only over states and nations but also over individuals responsible for their Governments and policies. And every other kind of crime connected with either the preparation or the waging of aggressive war is subject to the same authority, which accepts no excuse of either "superior orders" or the peril of disobedience.

Beyond that, the Tribunal also condemns not only acts previously listed as crimes under international law or the laws of war, but also many which hitherto had found only moral condemnation. It not only punishes massacre and murder, whether of war prisoners or civilians, but also looting, ill-treatment and starvation of the civilian population, forced deportations and slave labor, and exploitation of the conquered countries, including undue requisitionings and confiscations and the pillage of private property. It declares all organizations, such as a national leadership corps, elite guards or secret police, engaging in such actions criminal organizations whose members face automatic convictions if they knowingly and willingly participated in such crmes. And this injunction spells woe not only to the vanquished but, if they themselves violate it, to the victors as well.

Marconi Monument Awaits Unveiling

St. John's Nfld. (CP)—A monument to Guglielmo Marconi, marking the spot where the Italian inventor received the first transatlantic wireless message in history, has stood here for seven years awaiting unveiling.

The monument was erected in 1939 but the official unveiling never took place because the world was too busy with war. It has stood, shrouded in sailcloth on St. John's Citadel Hill, a ghostly sentinel overlooking the harbor mouth.

It stands nine feet high and was a gift of the Canadian Marconi Company to the people of Newfoundland "to commemorate an outstanding event in the island's history and a new era in world communications."

It was on Dec. 12, 1901, that Marconi, Italian inventor and electrical engineer, startled the world with his feat. He had received a signal from Poldhu on England's southwestern tip 1,900 miles from Newfoundland. The message consisted of the single letter "S" in Morse code and was received distinctly many times during the day's epoch-making experiments.

But the world at first was skeptical, of such magnitude was the claim. New York newspapers were hesitant to accept it and even Thomas Edison described it as a newspaper fake.

As the truth spread across the world, messages began to pour in from kings, princes and emperors. The limelight of the world was focused on Newfoundland and the inventor.

Oddly enough, Marconi chose Newfoundland for his experiments in response to a distant plea from its minister of fisheries, T. J. Murphy. The minister had published a chart illustrating scenes of 80 wrecked steamers and other vessels which had piled up on the island's rocky shores. Getting in touch with Marconi, he sought erection of a wireless telegraphy station on the dangerous coast.

He had previously transmitted a message 225 miles. Now, he said, "I hope to accomplish the feat of sending messages 400 miles." A week later, he far outdid himself with reception of the signal from Poldhu.

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 9 — (CP) — Children left on farms throughout Lincoln county by transient workers are becoming a problem, L. S. Richardson, superintendent of the Children's Aid Society here, said today.

Mr. Richardson reported a number of complaints from families in canning districts and on fruit farms who have taken in transient workers only to find they are left with a number of children on their hands after the workers go.

Jackson, Seymour Are Sentenced To Penitentiary

Trial Sequel to Jail-Break, Robbery With Violence

Kenneth Jackson, alias Holland, 26, of Brantford, was sentenced to eight years in penitentiary by Magistrate J. L. Loyd in county police court here Thursday afternoon when he pleaded guilty to charges of breaking jail and of robbery with violence.

With Royce Seymour, age 19, of Bancroft, Jackson broke out of the Bancroft lock-up last week when they sprung the door of their cell room, slugged Frank Askey, jail guard, and robbed him of $62. The pair were re-arrested 20 hours later at the village of Apsley, 35 miles south west of Bancroft.

Seymour was found guilty of the same charges as Jackson and was sentenced to five years in penitentiary with four other terms ranging from one month to one year to run concurrently.

Airhart Charges Enlarged

Charges of jail breaking against Charles Airhart, also of Bancroft, who was in the same cell as Seymour and Holland when they broke out of jail, were enlarged until October 21st at Madoc when the accused wished the opportunity of securing counsel.

"This is a very unpleasant job which I have to perform," stated Magistrate Lloyd to Holland as he passed sentence. "You seem like any other young fellow, but the records show you intend to live a life of crime."

The accused was sentenced on six charges, eight years for robbery with violence, two years concurrent for jail breaking, two years concurrent for breaking and entering a dwelling in Madoc township; six months concurrent for theft of a tire and tube and two years concurrent for car theft in Toronto. Seymour was sentenced on the same charges; three years for robbery with violence and two years consecutive for jail breaking.

Cases Heard Separately

Although charges against Holland and Seymour were identical with the same set of evidence applying, the cases were heard separately with Provincial Constable Stan Palmateer of Bancroft, P. C. Ernest Keays and P. C. Sam Ervine of Belleville and Dr. S. Lumb of Bancroft giving evidence

Constable Palmateer told of lodging the two men in Bancroft lock-up on the evening of Oct. 2, the two being scheduled to appear the following morning for sentence on charges of breaking and entering the residence of Clifford Brooks, Madoc township. Frank Askey, caretaker at the community hall at Bancroft had been hired to act as jail guard during the night.

The next morning the officer stated he had entered the jail to find Askey locked in the cell and in a semi-conscious condition. He found the key to the cell room on the ground outside the jail and after releasing Askey had been told that he had been slugged and robbed.

Piece of Maple Wood as Evidence

The constable introduced as evidence a dry piece of hard maple stovewood 24 inches in length and 2½ inches in diameter and blood-covered on one end, which he said had been used to strike the guard over the head. The guard's tie and a strip of blanket which had been used to tie Askey were also introduced as evidence.

Constable Keays told of arresting Jackson and Seymour at Apsley and of obtaining statements from them which both the accused had vountarily signed.

In statements to police the accused told how they had sprung the door of their cell sufficiently to allow Jackson to crawl through. Jackson had then struck the guard on the head as he came down to the furnace room. He had then been tied and gagged with Jackson relieving him of two wallets. Askey had been bound and gagged and carried to the cell where he was locked in by Seymour.

Called as Witness

Seymour pleaded not guilty to the charge of robbery with violence and in his own defence called Jackson to the stand. Jackson verified his written statement to police by telling that it was he who had struck "the old man" and that it was he who had taken his money.

"Askey was upstairs when I got out of the cell," stated Jackson when he was in the witness stand. "When he came down I waited until he got two feet past me and then I slugged him. He fell over and struck his head on an ash can."

At the time of their re-arrest Jackson claimed only 17 dollars had been taken from Askey, but police recovered $32 from him and $15 from Seymour. The money had been rolled up tight and placed in a seam of their trousers.

Both boys admitted they had planned a getaway but had intended to make the try while they were being escorted to Bancroft for trial. "Kenneth, (meaning Jackson) said that he could pick the lock at the Bancroft jail so we did not bother," Seymour said in his statement to police.

Attempts to pick the lock of the cell by bent pieces of wire taken from their cot had proved unsuccessful, however. It was then the boys admitted they had made the plan to force the cell door.

Magistrate's Remarks

"It seems to me that you boys were bent on a common purpose," stated the magistrate as he found Seymour guilty on the charge of robbery with violence. "You helped to pry open the door and it seems to me that you expected to be released. Also you handed out part of the blanket and accepted some of Askey's money."

In asking for penitentiary terms for the two boys, Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson stated that they were very fortunate they were not facing a murder charge. Mr. Askey had suffered a ragged cut three and one half inches long in his head and according to the evidence of Dr. S. Lumb of Bancroft, might still suffer serious complications.

WINS SUIT, LOSES HOME

Whitby, Oct. 11—(CP)—Archie Skimen won his suit for eviction of one of his tenants from his home yesterday but even as Judge D. B. Coleman heard the case in this Ontario county town five miles west of Oshawa the house burned to the ground. The fire left the owner, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Woods who were defendants in the eviction action and Mrs. George McGowen, another tenant, and her three children homeless. Judge Coleman issued an order that Mr. and Mrs. Woods vacate the house by next. Nov. 12 for non-payment of rent.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—Synopsis: Maximum temperatures yesterday in Southern Saskatchewan and over the northern plains of the United States were in the low 40s or high 30s and snowshowers were widespread. In sharp contrast maximum temperatures in Eastern United States and the lower great lakes region were generally in the high 60s or 70s. Interaction between these sharply different air masses has developed a storm centre which now is in the vicinity of Fort William and moving north-eastward about 30 mph. Continuous rain is occurring in regions along the north shore and western end of Lake Superior. The cooler air has advanced to Lake Michigan and by midnight is expected to have spread over all but south-eastern Ontario. Showers are associated with the leading edge of the cooler air. It looks like a cool cloudy weekend for Southern Ontario.

V.C. IS AWARDED POSTUMOUSLY TO PO A.C. MYNARSKI

Airman Plunged With Parachute, Clothing Afire After Effort To Save Companion

By H. DENT HODGSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Oct. 11 (CP)— Air fore headquarters today announced the award of the Victoria Cross, posthumously, to PO. Andrew Charles (Andy) Mynarski, 27, of Winnipeg, R.C.A.F. air gunner, who died in an attempt to save a fellow crew member when their Lancaster was shot down in flames over Cambrai, France, in June 1944.

Five other members of the crew leaped to safety while the rear gunner whom PO. Nynarski had fought to save, miraculously survived the crash although trapped in his gun turret.

The citation accompanying the award—15th Canadian V. C. of the Second Great War and second in the history of the R.C.A.F. — painted a grim picture of the heoric action in which Andy Nynarski, former Winnipeg leather worker, finally leaped from the Lancaster with parachute and clothing in flames after a hopeless attempt to free the rear gunner.

The action occurred on the night of June 12, 1944—a week after D-day—when an enemy fighter attacked the big Lancaster during a night bombing mission, setting both port engines aflame.

Fire broke out in the mid-upper turret and the rear turret, as well as in the port wing, and as the flames began to devour the aircraft, the pilot ordered the crew to bale out.

Rear Gunner Trapped

PO. Nynarski, mid-upper gunner, started for the escape hatch when he saw the rear gunner, FO. George Brophy of Port Arthur, was trapped in his turret. The turret was immovable because both the hydraulic and manual gear had been damaged.

His own clothing and parachute ablaze, Nynarski made his way to the tail and fought to free the rear gunner until FO. Brophy indicated there was nothing more he could do and that he should try to save his own life.

French partisans on the ground watched his flaming descent. He was so severely burnt that he died of injuries.

Surviving members of the crew, besides PO. Nynarski and FO. Brophy, were FO. Arthur de Breyne, pilot, St. Lambert, Que.; FO. Arthur R. Body, navigator, Ocean Falls, B.C.; PO. John W. Friday, air bomber, Port Arthur; PO. William J. Kelly, wireless operator, Winnipeg and Flt. Sgt. Roy Vigars, R.A.F., flight engineer of Guildford, Surrey.

Brophy's Amazing Escape.

FO. Brophy, sealed in the blazing, bomb-laden aircraft, had an amazing escape when the Lancaster crashed. After the rest of the crew had baled out, he could do nothing but sit in the cramped rear turret, awaiting the crash. The Lancaster broke into several sections, its bombs exploded, and he found himself, 20 minutes later, lying alone in a French field some distance from the wreckage.

PO. Friday and Flt. Sgt. Vigars were captured by the enemy. Two other members of the crew, aided by the French underground, evaded capture until liberated by the advancing United States forces.

Suspicion Points First at Humans As Most Dangerous Polio Carriers

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

New York, Oct. 11 (AP)—Polio virus, the invisibly small agent that causes infantile paralysis, apparently was spread everywhere in the epidemic areas of this year's great outbreak of the disease in the United States.

Shortly before the end of September the cases had reached 18,500 and had only a little more than 500 to go to make this year the second greatest in the country's records.

(Canada also had a severe outbreak of the disease this year.)

There is evidence that the virus this year was carried by the families and friends of the patients, and by insects and in sewage and occasionally in food. This spread of virus is not really new in polio epidemics, but it is a cumulation of years of work to discover how it spread.

The secret of the spread still escapes physicians, but in learning how widely the virus travels the stage perhaps has been set at last to identify the thing that gives the disease to children.

Suspicion just now points first at human beings as the most dangerous carriers. That is, polio virus, under this evidence, probably spreads from person to person. It is a contagion.

The virus has been found in sewage in numerous places. The polio agent lives only a little more than a day after it enters sewage. This does not rule out the possibility of getting polio from sewage contamination, or from garbage, or swimming pools and beaches where there is sewage contamination.

Flies have been found to carry polio virus and other insects are suspected. But the evidence points away from flies and sewage as prime causes of polio. The virus does not appear to breed in the flies and dies in a day or so.

The only breeding place of the infantile paralysis virus at present seems to be the human body. This is an adde dreason why the medical profession is working on the human carrier angle.

United Nations Need Such Buttresses As Federation of Europe

— Smuts

The Hague, Oct. 11 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Smuts of South Africa today called on Britain to take the lead in forming a United States of Europe.

Addressing a joint session of the Upper and Lower Houses of the Dutch parliament, the South African Prime Minister said that if Britain would not take the initiative, some of the smaller European countries should try to persuade her to do so.

"In eastern Europe a Slav general group is already forming under our eyes," Mr. Smuts declared, adding, "and why not? Why should this be resented or feared as a menace to others?"

"Is it not wiser and safer to regularize these groupings which correspond to deepseated national and economic interests?

"I do believe that the United Nations needs such buttresses to its overall world structure."

Smuts Calls on Britain

Mr. Smuts recalled that Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime leader, in pleading for a European federation, had suggested that France should take the lead and had urged reconciliation between France, and Germany as a condition.

As France has rejected Mr. Churchill's plan, he said, Britain should step in because "in her setup of the British Commonwealth she has already created an example and model of international co-operation among free states far in advance of anything existing in the international sphere."

Of Mr. Churchills proposals, Mr. Smuts said: "No one alive today can speak with greater authority on such a subject."

Mr. Churchill was "our great European."

Mr. Smuts added: "In private conversation with many representative Europeans I have often heard the suggestion: "Why does not Britain herself take the lead in this greatest of European interests?

State of Small Powers

"If modesty retrains her, could not some of the smaller European states, convinced of her disinterestedness and wise leadership, exercise some influence with her?"

"The state of all small powers today was so precarious as to become unendurable and sooner or later they might be forced to attach themselves as satellites to some planetary great power," Mr. Smuts said.

"Could this not be prevented by timely actions which will preserve their independence in a European system guaranteeing their freedom and security?"

Mr. Smuts proposed two alternatives if no federation embracing all Europe could be formed.

1. Regional groups: "In case jealousy among the great powers inhibits their taking the lead, cannot a number of smaller states come together without such sponsorship and set the ball rolling by forming a refional group with its appropriate council?

ALLIED COUNCIL RULES 10 NAZIS DIE ON GALLOWS

Goering and Associates Lose Appeal to Face Firing Squad

Berlin, Oct. 11 (AP)—Hermann Goering and three arch Nazis lost an appeal last night to die a soldier's death before a firing squad and the Allied Control Council confirmed that Hitler's once-designated successor and 10 of his associates will die on the gallows next Wednesday.

After 5 1-2 hours deliberation the four-power council respected appeals for 16 high Nazis convicted for crimes against the world and humanity.

In confirming the death sentences, the council rejected appeals by Goering, Wilhelm Keitel and Alfred Jodl to be executed by a firing squad instead of by hanging. It also refused the plea of Grand Admiral Erich Raeder to be shot instead of given life imprisonment.

Thus Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop, Keitel, Jodl, Alfred Rosenberg, Hans Frank, Wilhelm Frick, Fritz Sauckel, Julius Streicher and Arthur Seyss-Inquart lost their last chance to escape the hangman's noose.

Ernst Kaltenbrunner, Hitler's former chief of secret police who also was sentenced to die, made no petition for clemency.

The council also rejected the pleas for clemency on behalf of Martin Bormann, the 12th Nazi although he was tried in absentia. The council said his plea was "premature" but that a new petition could be submitted within four days of his apprehension, should this occur.

Only a four-power commission, two press representatives from each of the four occupying powers and one official photographer will witness the death walks to the gallows.

The official statement did not announce when the seven sentenced to prison terms ranging from life down to 10 years would be transferred from the Nuernberg jail to a prison in Berlin, reported to be Spandau in the British sector.

The Allied Control Council under the charter which set up the International Military Tribunal in August, 1945, was the only body to which the defendants could appeal, and then only for clemency.

The petitions for clemency submitted for the S.S., the Gestapo, the S.D. (security police) and the leadership group of the Nazi party were not considered by the council because it lacks the authority to revise the verdict of the International Military Tribunal. The Nuernberg court adjudged them criminal organizations.

The Russian representatives on the council, Marshal Vasily Sokolovsky, reiterated to his colleagues during the two-day extraordinary meetings that the Soviet Union took exception to the acquittal of Hjalmar Schact, Franz von Papen and Hans Fritzche as well as the life sentence imposed on Rudolf Hess.

BRUNNER MOND WORKERS DECIDE TO RESUME WORK

One of Most Far-Reaching Stoppages Now Appears Ended

Amherstburg, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—One of the most far-reaching work stoppages Canada has even experienced appeared ended today after 400 members of Local 89 of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) voted to return to work at the plant of Brunner Mond Company, Canada's only major producer of soda ash.

The unionists struck July 12 to enforce demands for a $2-a-day wage increase, a 40-hour work week, two weeks' vacation with pay after a year's service and union security. Peace terms included a 12 to 16-cent increase in hourly wages on a graduated scale.

The Brunner Mond strike plagued Canadian industry with shortages out of proportion to its size. Soda Ash is essential to the manufacture of such varied products as soap, glass, pulp and paper, aluminum, nickel and the processing of some base metals.

These primary products quickly felt the pinch and the shutdown found reflection in manufacturing plants using these materials. Only yesterday officials of the big Courtaulds Ltd. rayon plant at Cornwall, announced plans to shut down for a week to accumulate supplies of soda ash which the firm uses to convert wood pulp to the cellulose from which rayon is made.

Effect in Bottle Shortage

Ontario liquor drinkers saw tangible effects on the Brunner Mond when the Provincial Liquor Control Board cut the hard liquor ration from 208 to 26 ounces a month because of a bottle shortage. They called in all available empties, a step also immediately taken by wine retailers.

By a 2 1-2-to-1 vote union members last night approved acceptance of the settlement proposals which climaxed two weeks of negotiations. Harry Rowe of rector, announced the result of the vote and said the union considered the strike satisfactorily settled.

R. G. Zimmer, plant manager, immediately said he expected the plant to be in full production in a week or two. Workers would be re-hired "gradually."

Besides the wage increase, the union won its demands for vacations as well as a form of union security—an irrevocable check-off for the year the agreement wil lrun.

POLIOMYELITIS CASES

Toronto, Oct. 11 — (CP) — A total of 373 cases of poliomyelitis in Ontario and 22 deaths was revealed yesterday by Dr. D. E. Puffer, assistant to the provincial Medical Officer of Health. He said an additional five cases were reported to the department last night but that two of these were on the records previously.

CROWN'S CASE IN MRS. DICK'S TRIAL MAY BE NEAR END

Evidence is Given Of Identification of The Remains As Those Of Accused's Husband

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Oct. 11—(CP)—The Crown's case in the trial of Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick, on a charge of murdering her husband John last March, appeared nearing its end today with Inspector Charles Wood of the Criminal Investigation branch of the Ontario Provincial Police due to take the witness stand.

He was looked on as a key witness, having been in charge of police investigation of the case.

Now in its fifth day, the trial continues amid speculation a verdict might come Saturday.

During yesterday's hearing, the court was given testimony positively identifying remains found on Hamilton Mountain last March 16 as those of accused's husband.

This came from John Wall, brother-in-law of accused, who viewed them in the morgue three days later and 13 days after Dick disappeared.

Police Evidence on Tickets

Also there was police testimony concerning street car tickets bearing stains which appeared to be blood. The tickets were recovered from a trunk in Mrs. Dick's home.

Other police testimony had to do with guns introduced into evidence for the first time and Inspector Alexander Churchman, a ballistics expert of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, said a fired bullet correspondended with a box of ammunition produced by the Crown; that one .32 weapon offered as an exhibit had been fired not long before April 1 and that a second gun had not been fired recently.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario Supreme Court, warned newspapermen against publishing evidence in this trial concerning accused's father or William Bohozuk, ruling such might be prejudicial to a fair trial of those two.

Throughout it all, Mrs. Dick remained her unperturbed self, calmly listening to witnesses and jotting down for her counsel, Mr. John T. Sullivan, suggestions she thought he might pursue in his cross examination.

Detective on Stand

When the dismembered body of John Dick was buried about March 29, his widow told police she did not want to attend the funeral, the Ontario Supreme Court jury trying Mrs. Evelyn Dick on a charge of murdering her husband a street railway driver, was told.

Det. Sgt. Clarence Preston, who testified to finding what have been identified as human bones in ashes in and around Mrs. Dick's house, told of the accused's reaction to the funeral of her husband.

"She was at the jail," said the witness, first to go on the stand in this fifth day of the young widow's trial for the torso slaying of John Dick last March 6.

"I asked her if she wanted to attend the funeral," he said.

"She said 'no'," continued the witness.

FBI Arrests Three Men for Publishing A-Bomb Pictures

Attempted to Sell Photos To Newspaper in Baltimore

Baltimore, Oct. 11. (AP)—Three men arrested by Federal Bureau of Investigation agents on charges of publishing photographs of the atomic bomb were to be taken before a United States Commissioner today for arraignment.

Arrest of the three, two former servicemen and a reserve army captain, was announced today in Washington by the Justice Department shortly after formal charges against them were filed with the Federal Commissioner here.

An F.B.I. Agent, identified the men as:

Miles Frederick Daubenbeyer, 26, Belair, Md., former ensign in the United States navy.

Capt. James Barnes Rike, Chattanooga, Tenn.

The F.B.I. agent said the three men were arrested by Federal agents in Baltimore, October 9.

The specific charge against the three, he said, is:

They "did unlawfully publish a photograph of a piece of classified military equipment without first obtaining the permission of the commanding officer of the Army Air Forces based on Tinian."

A Justice Department statement in Washington said picture of the bomb were obtained by one of the men while he and a group of other servicemen were serving with a bomber squadron in the Pacific during the Fall and Summer of 1945.

The three were accused of attempting to sell the photographs to the Baltimore News Post and of distributing copies elsewhere.

An F.B.I. official told a reportery in answer to a question that the attempted sale of the photographs to a newspaper and the distribution otherwise legally constituted publication.

RED CROSS PLANS $5,000,000 APPEAL

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—Plans for a $5,000,000 national Red Cross appeal in March, 1947, for its peacetime work throughout Canada were announced by Arthur L. Bishop, chairman of society's national executive committee.

The budget is planned to finance services including a national blood transfusion service, construction of more outpost hospitals, aid to veterans, Junior Red Cross, nutrition, first aid, swimming instruction, and disaster relief.

GEN. STILWELL ILL

San Francisco, Oct. 11—(AP)—Gen. Joseph W. (Vinegar Joe) Stilwell, hero of the Burma campaign and now commander of the 6th Army, is critically ill, suffering from a liver condition believed contracted in the jungles of Burma, his physician announced.

The four-star veteran of the Orient entered Letterman General Hospital and was operated on Oct. 3. His progress was satisfactory until late Wednesday.

By GLEN WILLIAMS

London, Oct. 11 — (AP)—The House of Commons laid aside lawmaking today to express its admiration for Franklin Delano Roosevelt, whom Winston Churchill ranks above Washington and Lincoln.

Led by Prime Minister Attlee and opposition leader Churchill, all political parties joined in approving a bill to erect a Roosevelt Memorial in Grosvenor Square, site of the United States Embassy and centre of American planning for European liberation.

Mr. Attlee described the late president as one who "combined the qualities of the fearless idealist with those of the far-seeing and prudent man of affairs."

"His practical appreciation of what was desirable," the prime minister said.

"He stood emphatically for the common man in all countries. It is fitting that this memorial in London should come from the contributions of the common men and women."

The memorial plan was sponsored by the American Pilgrims Society in London. Its £40,000 ($160,000) cost is to be raised by $1 subscriptions.

Mr. Churchill, Britain's wartime leader, said that he "felt buoyed in the ordeal of the war by walking hand in hand with this outstanding chief of the American people."

Mr. Attlee observed that Roosevelt would join Washington and Lincoln as the only American presidents memorialized in London statues. The Washington Memorial overlooks Trafalgar Square and a duplicate of the Lincoln statue in the Springfield Memorial faces Westminster Abbey.

But Mr. Churchill said he felt "the changes associated with Washington would probably have come to pass in due course by the irresistible evolution of events" and added:

"Can we doubt that slavery would have been abolished even apart from the work of Abraham Lincoln?"

"There are many tests by which we can try to measure the greatness of men who have served high causes. I shall select only one . . . the favorable influence exerted upon the fortunes of mankind. In this respect the name of President Roosevelt gains preeminence even over the illustrious figures we have mentioned."

Mr. Churchill termed Roosevelt "this greatest champion of freedom."

Testify Young Mentally Unfit To Stand Trial

Toronto, Oct. 11 —(CP)—Thirty-eight-year-old Angus Young killed Mrs. Georgina Washington and her two children with an axe in their home on McCaul Street in a central Toronto slum district last Aug. 2 because to his troubled, paranoid mind, they were a threat to his existence.

This testimony was given yesterday by two psychiatrists to an assize court jury which decided that Young was mentally unfit to stand trial on a charge of murder. The court ordered that he be kept in custody subject to the decision of Ontario authorities.

Young, dark and of medium height, showed no interest in the evidence of Dr. J. Cardwell, assistant superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at nearby Whitby and Dr. C. S. Tennant, psychiatrist for the Ontario Department of Health.

Budget Deficit May Turn Into 'Near-Surplus'

—Ilsley.

Portage La Prairie, Man., Oct. 11 — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley told a Liberal campaign meeting last night that the federal 1946 budget deficit of $300,000,000 may turn into a "near-surplus" by the end of the current fiscal year.

Speaking in support of Jaffrey S. Wood, Liberal candidate in the forthcoming Portage by-election, Mr. Ilsley said the government would at least come "very close" to achieving a balanced budget.

Dealing largely with problems of Dominion-Provincial relations, the Federal Finance Minister accused Progressive - Conservative leader John Bracken of abandoning principles which he had once advocated strongly. In the light of his convictions of 1941, it was "regrettable" that the opposition leadtr should have remained silent through long months of negotiation between the federal and provincial governments.

As premier of Manitoba, Mr. Bracken had been an "eloquent upholder" of the principle that Canada could not permanently continue a system of "have" and "have-not" provinces.

Following the breakdown of the conference due to the attitude of Ontario and Quebec, the minister continued, a new offer for separate agreements with whatever provinces wanted them was contained in the 1946 budget. Some were "interested," others said nothing, and still others wanted another conference.

He could see no purpose in calling another meeting until the precise attitude of all the provinces was known.

Mr. Ilsley placed blame for the breakdown of last winter's conference on Premier Duplessis of Quebec and Premier Drew of Ontario.

LEGLESS MAN RUN OVER

Brampton, Oct. 11 —(CP)—John Peer, 86-year-old legless resident of Peel County House of Refuge, was killed when an automobile backed over him in the yard of the home. Police said Peer hobbled into the path of the automobile driven by Mrs. Della McMullen of Brampton.

Housing Materials Promised by Ottawa Officials to Complete Vets' Homes If Requirements Are Listed for Priority

The city of Belleville will receive sewer pipe, other pipe and other materials required to complete houses erected in the city, if it lists them and files application for priority through the Ontario Regional Supervisor, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation offices in Toronto.

Also materials for seventy-five houses being built by veterans and which are 60 per cent or over complete can be obtained by applying for priorities through the same office.

These facts were told Mayor Frank Follwell, members of the city council and city officials at a special meeting on Thursday in the City Hall where housing problems of the city were discussed with members of the C.M.H.C. Ottawa, and of the Ontario Government.

Officials Attend

Included in the out-of-town assemblage were D. B. Mansur, president C.M.H.C.; A. E. K. Bunnell, Department of Planning and Development, Toronto; P. S. Secord, Ontario Regional Supervisor, C.M.H.C.; R. G. Clauson, branch manager, C.M.H.C., Ottawa; and Andrew Hazeland, program division C.M.H.C., Ottawa.

Mr. Mansur, chief spokesman for the out-of-town delegation pointed out that their visit was not to be one of "promises for material relief" but to discuss the housing problems of the city with a view to creating a design whereby some alleviation can be gained."

"This is the first municipality in Canada which we have visited as a whole and we feel that we can obtain more information and suggestions if we contact municipal governing bodies personally. "In this way we can determine the municipalities' needs and get some information regarding rental fields."

Information Wanted

The Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, he said, would like the views of the city on quantity and types of houses, where the land is coming from and where the houses will be placed.

He was very hopeful, he said, that some 60,000 urban units and 20,000 rural ones will be erected in 1947 with, of course, a reasonable supply of material available.

"There, however, will be no chance of this unless we maintain in our own sphere close cooperation with both governments."

Mr. Bunnell pointed out to the city officials that the first step was to list all the city's needs. After that is done its wants will be known.

35 Requests Received

John Badgley, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce told the meeting that he had received 35 replies to his requests for lists of needed material for uncompleted houses in the city. "The replies are still coming in and by the time the list is complete it will likely reach 100. Fully two-thirds of the replies were from veterans who were unable to secure material to complete their houses."

Alderman Charles Hyde pointed out that not one single house had been completed in the city this year, while Alderman Harold Armstrong stated that 120 houses were under construction and 75 city lots had been sold on which not a spade had been turned.

He believed private construction in any municipality is much better than any gross plan unless it is for emergency shelter. In his opinion, in Belleville, if some priorities were given private contractors many of the city's housing difficulties would be overcome.

Past Efforts Outlined.

Alderman Lorne McDougall, president of the Chamber of Commerce, outlined to the visiting delegation efforts the city had made with regard to Wartime Housing, Housing Enterprises and other organizations. One city resident interested in the integrated system he said, had temporarily abandoned the plan because of unavailability of essential materials.

Six new industries and five established industries contemplating expansion would see an increase of approximately 900 people employed in industry a total of 3,900.

Alderman Harold Woodley wanted to know if priorities for 100 units were given contractors would the Housing Corporation cancel them in the spring.

Priority Based on Needs.

The whole priority system is based on veterans' needs, Mr. Mansur replied, "If one hundred veterans applied for priorities for material we will move heaven and earth to see that they get it. But there are many factors against the implementation of priorities. There is leakage all along the line as strikes, etc. Pipe is non-existent at the present.

"Our plan is to see that you get enough material to clean up your 1946 program and to start that of 1947."

Alderman Glen Thompson, in urging the meeting to get back to the overall picture, stated that "If we can get the material to complete houses at present under construction here, it would greatly alleviate the situation inasmuch as owners could move in and thus provide more vacant houses for those who have no homes."

"If we want 150 or 300 housing units here how are we going to get them?" Mr. Badgley asked. "If we are to have this industrial expansion, these houses must be provided."

Seek Co-operation

"We have got to create a design for the construction of these units," Mr. Mansur said, "but we do not know as yet where to start. That is partly the reason we are going to visit various municipalities to find out their needs and solicit their ideas and co-operation."

Mayor Follwell reminded Mr. Mansur that he had promised pipe materials for 250 units here next Spring.

The situation had changed since the mayor and a city delegation visited him in Ottawa, Mr. Mansur pointed out. "Since that time we have had a steel strike and the pipe lines are empty. The effects of the steel strike in the USA last Spring are still felt in production circles. The supply setup for 1947 is an unknown factor at the present and it is virtually impossible, to fill the pipelines.

Speaking of rentals, Mr. Mansur said "if you feel you have the need here of rentals you must look carefully at houses renting at $45-$50 monthly. I doubt very much if there are 50 people in Belleville who are earning $200 a month and who want to pay $50 monthly rental.

Against Wartime Housing

Alderman McDougall assured him there were. He did not believe the Wartime Housing plan was feasible for Belleville. Veterans and property owners are definitely against it here.

The estimates for Housing Enterprises for 1947 have not been laid down yet, Mr. Mansur said. "They are having troubles too. If they do come in Belleville are there 100 veterans here who are interested in private ownership?"

"Yes," replied Mayor Follwell, "we know of 75 veterans who are anxious to build but cannot get the material. They have started to break their foundations but are halted because of lack of pipe and building materials. These houses could be completed in 3 months if material was available."

Pooled Priorities No Benefit

Mr. Secord, Ontario regional supervisor, speaking of the material situation said that during the past six weeks his office had been allocating materials from demolished wartime buildings. He was of the opinion that pooled priorities was not of benefit, and would not work out to the satisfaction of all concern. He again reminded the meeting that the whole basis of priorities was predicated on veterans' occupancy.

After lengthy discussion in which it was pointed out by Mr. Bunnell that the Wartime Housing units had proven satisfactory whenever they have been built, the meeting was informed that pipe, sewer pipe and other materials necessary for the completion of houses here and that for the use of veterans would be forthcoming upon presentation of the proper priorities to the Ontario Regional office of the C.M.H.C.

Following the meeting Mayor Follwell thanked the out-of-town delegation for their interest, and prior to departure presented each with a five-pound Cheddar cheese.

GERSON CASE EXPECTED TO GO TO JURY TODAY

Ottawa, Oct. 11 — (CP)—The Gerson case will go to an Ontario Supreme Court jury today.

Mr. Justice G. F. McFarland will outline points of law before asking its 12 men — five of them farmers — to decide whether Harold Samuel Gerson, 41, former munitions department official, is innocent or guilty of a charge of conspiracy to communicate confidential information for Russia.

The trial that began a week ago Wednesday heard the evidence of 11 Crown and no defence witnesses without bringing out any spectacular new evidence to add to that already drawn out by Canada's espionage probe.

MAY HAVE BEEN VICTIM OF ATTACK

Hamilton, Oct. 11 —(CP)— Police said yesterday they now are inclined to believe that 47-year-old Stanley Stillar, originally thought to be the victim of a hit-and-run-motorist, may have been attacked by one or more persons. Stillar was found Monday night on Highway 8 on the outskirts of the city with his left ear torn from his head.

Provincial Constable Leslie Taylor said that Stillar first told him that he believed he was struck by an automobile but that when they visited him again in hospital the victim could not recall exactly what had happened. All incidents before and after he was injured are blank, the constable added.

De-nazification Court No Cause Of Dread—Fritsche

By G. K. HODENFIELD

Nuernberg, Oct. 11 (AP)—Hans Fritsche, his home watched by German police, said today he knew he would be sentenced by a de-Nazification court but he did not fear the verdict.

"It goes without saying that after 17 months in prison I do not look forward to new imprisonment be it American, Russian or German," the one-time Nazi radio propagandist said in an interview.

"But I am of the opinion that we who have been acquitted by the International Tribunal must submit ourselves to German law."

Fritsche, Industrialist Hjalmar Schacht and diplomat Franz Von Papen were acquitted by the tribunal Oct. 1 when it convicted 19 other high Nazis of war crimes. Von Papen still is in the palace of justice jail. Schacht went to Backnang, near Stuttgart, and was arrested by German police for de-Nazification proceedings.

Fritsche, who was told yesterday he also would be taken into custody if he left Nuernberg, said of Schacht:

"I told him he would be arrested. There was no reason to arrest me because there is no danger I will try to escape. Where would I go? And why should I flee? I do not want to live like a hunted animal."

In de-Nazification court, said Fritsche:

"I shall not defend my propaganda. I shall show that not all Germany was a den of criminals," Fritsche went on. "I was a National Socialist and that was the reason for my Nazi propoganda."

V.C. IS AWARDED

Pilot Had Narrow Escape.

Pilot of the Lancaster, FO. DeBreyne, now a student at McGill University, said the aircraft was flying at only 5,000 feet when attacked by the fighters. He held the aircraft steady while the other crew members jumped and finally made a narrow escape himself, leaping at only 800 or 1,000 feet.

"I pulled the ripcord and had swung only twice before I landed in a French wheatfield," he recalled.

PO. Mynarski was unmarried. His mother, Mrs. A. Mynarski, of Winnipeg, was informed of her son's award in a message delivered personally by Air Vice Marshal K. M. Guthrie, C.B., C.B.E., Air Officer Commanding No. 2 Air Command at Winnipeg.

PO. Mynarski is the second member of the R.C.A.F. in history to win the V.C., and the fourth Canadian airman to win it during the late war. Flt. Lt. David E. Hornell of Mimico, Ont., received the award posthumously for pressing home a successful U-boat attack in June, 1944, and Sqdn. Ldr. I. W. Bazalgette of Calgary, a Canadian in the R.A.F., was the other winner. He also lost his life in an attempt to save comrades in a bomber over France.

Another Canadian flier, Lieut. Robert Hampton Grey, of Nelson, B.C., a navy pilot with the fleet air arm, also received the award posthumously.

CROWN'S CASE

Th sergeant said he asked Mrs. Dick what excuse he could give and she said, "you can tell them I'm very sick."

On cross examination, Sgt. Preston said, "I did not" when asked by defence counsel if he had at any time advised the accused not to attend the funeral.

In bright sunshine the crowd gathered two hours before the court opened but only the earliest of them, 300 or so, gained admittance to the trial.

Special city police kept the crowd in a long queue before the main door letting them in in small groups.

"It's like a theatre," said one policeman as he counted out 15 people and sent them on their way to sit the morning with Mrs. Dick during her trial for her life.

The crowd started to gather at 8 a.m. two hours before court opened for the fourth day of the trial.

Picket Times Building Protesting Article

New York, Oct. 11 —(AP)— C.I.O. and A.F.L. maritime unions picketed the New York Times building yesterday in protest against an article criticizing maritime unionism but later a spokesman said an understanding had been reached in a conference with managing editor Edwin L. James. The union spokesman, Lawrence Kammet, said his group was "gratified" by a proposal of Mr. James that the Times publish in its Friday editions a union letter of protest and a news story telling of the conference yesterday, and would direct attention to the fact that the newspaper had printed numerous editorials lauding merchant seamen.

Buy an Apple From the Scouts On Saturday

Residents of Belleville and district will, in the terms of Boy Scout language, be asked to do their good deed for the day on Saturday which is the annual Boy Scout Apple Day. So on each street corner of the downtown section of the city Boy Scouts and Wolf Cubs in trim uniforms tomorrow will be prepared to supply pedestrians with fine samples of the health giving fruit.

To advertise the annual apple day several local merchants have co-operated with the local Boy Scout organization and have permitted eye-arresting window displays to be set up on their premises. These displays have been in windows for the past week or more and are suggestive of the worthwhile work being accomplished by Boy Scouts throughout Canada.

Junior A.Y.P.A. Holds Banquet On Anniversary

On Wednesday evening Christ Church Junior A.Y.P.A., celebrated its second birthday with a banquet in the parish hall. The tables were decorated with the A.Y.P.A. colors, with Autumn flowers and fruit. The centrepiece being a birthday cake with candles burning. Ed Waterhouse, president for the Juniors, presided for gathering. Mrs. B. J. Thoebald acted as "mother" for the occasion and supervised the wonderful meal which was enjoyed by everyone present. A toast to the A.Y.P.A. was ably proposed by Charles Staples and in reply Lloyd Gladwell challenged the members to really "serve".

The speaker of the evening was Rural Dean, the Rev. A. J. Robinson, of Tweed, who is the Dominion chaplain of the A.Y.P.A. He was introduced by the rector, the Rev. J. Grant Sparling, who welcomed him and Mrs. Robinson. Mr. Robinson gave an interesting and vivid address, using an allegory in which he traced the progress of the "A.Y.P.A. Car", disclosing the service which its occupants may provide for the various fields in the church.

The birthday cake was cut by Mrs. Sparling. Ed. Waterhouse led in community singing, and Mr. Alec Gordon entertained the gathering with piano selections which combined modern and classical music. Some of his own compositions were contributed and his program concluded with the "Introduction to the Pirates of Penzance" and Chopin's "Polonaise". The prolonged applause indicated the appreciation afforded Mr. Gordon's presentation.

The Rev. Everett Smith, who, with Mrs. Smith, was also a guest at the head table, spoke briefly. The singing of "Aul Lang Syne" and prayer concluded the evening program.

Ald. H. Woodley Will be Candidate For Mayoralty

Alderman Harold (Twig) Woodley announced today that he will contest the seat of the mayor of Belleville in the forthcoming December elections.

Alderman Woodley well-known in sports and other circles of the city, has been a member of the City Council for the past four years and has attained a keen insight into the administration of the city. He has occupied the chairmanships of the Fire Committee, the Post-War Planning Committee and is a member of the City Industrial Committee.

He has, he said today, always been in favor of advancement of the city on a basis of economy.

Cobourg, Oct. 11 (CP)— For stealing chickens and receiving stolen chickens, George Cooper, 43, of nearby Colborne, yesterday was sentenced to two years in penitentiary. His wife received one month for assisting in the theft.

More Religious Films Will Be Acquired by Group

In order to fill an expected keen demand during the coming holiday season, members of the Belleville Film Council will endeavor to build up their film library with religious and semi-religious films, it was decided at the regular monthly meeting of the organization held at the Corby Public Library Thursday evening.

Members of the film council feel that there is a strong demand for the religious type of film by district church organizations and every effort will be made to make these available.

Reports of last week's district film council conference held in Kingston were heard at the meeting from Miss Olive Delaney, secretary; Bill Davies and Roy Macklem, who attended as delegates from Belleville. Authorization was also given for the purchase of a case for the council's new Bell and Howe sound film projector which was received last week.

If present plans are fulfilled the local film council will be heard on the air over station CJBQ every two weeks. The matter was discussed at some length with members deciding this would be an ideal method of furthering the work of the council and of letting the public know the types of films which are available for showing.

A nominating committee of Bill Lockyer, Roy Macklem, and Ronald Ward, of Peterborough, district representative of the National Film Board, will bring to the next film council meeting their choice of a slate of officers to act for the ensuing year.

Unity of Action Needed to Preserve Peace Speaker Tells Optimist Club

Goodwill and optimism were in veidence on Thursday night as the Belleville Optimist Club joined with 400 other clubs throughout North America in the tenth annual observance of Optimist Week. The featured speaker was Charles W. Snyder of Detroit, first vice president of Optimist International.

Mr. Snyder made an urgent plea for greater understanding of the other fellow, whether he lives in Belleville or Trinidad.

"Unity of action," he declared, "won the war, and unless we want to lose the peace, we must preserve that unity of action."

Mr. Snyder said that practical optimism is needed today more than ever before — the kind of optimism that gives strength to prove what we won with guns and planes, we can protect with reason and goodwill.

"Let's not permit gloomy headlines becloud our thinking," he said. "Readjustment from war is always difficult. But with a co-operative effort we will win out, and we will reach the Happy Land our leaders have been talking about."

Explains Purpose.

Explaining the purpose of Optimist Week, Mr. Snyder said that Optimist Clubs are "not in the business of moralizing, trumpet blowing or mouthing platitudes."

"You are not a Pollyanna," he told the clubmen, "just because you have faith in your fellowmen as rational, civilized people."

"Some persons think it stylish to be cynical. We think cynicism is tired old stuff for an old tired people. We are proud to be optimistic and to have faith in our destiny."

The meeting was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church banquet hall with several members of iKngston and Peterborough Optimist Clubs present as guests.

The guest speaker was introduced by President Bob Kidd of the Belleville Optimist Club with the meeting's appreciation expresed by Past President Eggleton of Kingston.

During the course of the meeting three new members, J. Devine, Ham. McDonald and Gord. Carter were inducted into membership of the club with Vice President Snyder officiating.

Man With Gun Startles Mounties

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 11—(CP) Reversing the tradition that the Mounties always go after their man, 35-year-old John Mahar walked into the R.C.M.P. headquarters here early Wednesday morning, roused the sleeping Mounties at the point of a gun, lined them against the wall and calmly announced he was taking charge.

As the startled Mounties stood pajama-clad against the wall, Mahar declared he wasn't satisfied with the way police business was being run.

Just what changes he would have made are unknown for as he shifted his weapon from one hand to the other, a constable grabbed the gun. Mahar was lodged in jail and is awaiting trial for illegally carrying a revolver.

This is the second successive month the Board has advanced the valid date. There will be no change in the valid date of wine coupons.

HEAVY INSURANCE COST

London, Oct. 11 — (Reuters) — The heavy toll of lives and planes during two months of successive air tragedies will cost the London Aviation insurance market considerably more than £300,000 ($2,000,000) for insurance on the aircraft, liability of the airlines for the deaths and injuries of passengers and crew, and some insurance on passengers' baggage, a survey showed.

Director of Dairying Lists Factors Responsible for Lower Cheese Output

Shipment of dairy cattle from Ontario to the United States together with the scarcity of farm help and the relaxation of farmers from strenuous work during the war years were given as three predominant factors for the drop in cheese production in Central Ontario this year.

This was stated by Mr. C. E. Lackner, director for dairying for Ontario, as he spoke Wednesday evening to a representative group of cheesemakers and instructors at a meeting of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association which was held at Harold Cheese factory, Rawdon township.

19.5 P.C. Drop

Mr. Lackner stated that a 19.5 per cent drop in production had been noted for 1946 throughout Central Ontario, while there was a 21.5 per cent decrease in Western Ontario, 18.3 in Eastern Ontario and 22 per cent in Northern Ontario.

J. M. Bain, chief dairy instructor for Central and Western Ontario, introduced a new cheese stamping device with Francis Murphy, grading and marketing service, giving a demonstration of its operation. He stated the purpose was to prevent Canadian cheese from losing its identity as people in England were demanding Canadian cheese. With the new stamping device the word "Canada" is put on a cheese 58 times, making it practically impossible to cut a pound of cheese which does not carry the mark.

Compliments Factory Officers

Former district cheese grader, Mr. J. L. Irwin, talked on the grading of cheese and referred to the excellent work of past presidents of Harold Cheese Factory, Charles Mumby and the late George Bailey, who he said, had tried to make Harold factory one of the best. He referred also to Gordon Bailey, current president for his efforts in making Harold an ideal plant.

Other short addresses were given by John Murray, dairy instructor, of Campbellford, George Pollard, William Moore, E. Henderson, Roy Brown, J. Wilkinson, Geo. E. Thompson, Reeve J. Morrison, and Deputy Reeve W. Spencer. Gordon Bailey presided over the meeting.

False Statements On Unemployment Ins. May Bring Jail Term

Thursday's appearance in county police court of a Bancroft district man who appeared on a charge of giving a false statement in connection with the collection of unemployment insurance, is only one of several which are pending in the Hastings district, according to Mr. H. H. Reed, local manager of the unemployment and selective service office.

The case heard on Thursday involved the worker accepting casual employment while collecting unemployment insurance.

"At least half a dozen cases of this nature are now pending against county residents," stated Mr. Reed. "The act definitely states that a worker cannot accept unemployment insurance and at the same time earn money from casual employment."

Suspended sentence was given by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in the case heard Thursday. Under the act, however, there is no option of a fine with jail terms being regularly awarded following convictions of this nature.

DISPENSARIES PLANNED

Indore, India (CP)—With a view to providing more and better medical facilities to rural population, the Indore government is opening a large number of dispensaries in the state. The objective is one dispensary for every 1,000 inhabitants, and 47 such institutions have already been opened.

NATIONS

It was at this point that Mr. Smuts listed "the Slav general group" as an example, together with the British Commonwealth and Pan American union and chapulepec treaty.

Declaring that the small regional groups were better qualified than the world organization to watch particular situations in their own areas—"New York is far away, and not only in space, from Europe with all its age-old problems and tangles forming a fruitful sourse of future troubles"—Mr. Smuts said decentralization through such groups might "prove a powerful weapon in our international arrangements."

2. Economic co-operation: "If none will venture to take the lead towards such a political regional solution, there is a fourth way open on a smaller scale. Let a start be made on the economic plane.

"Let a European economic council be formed to co-ordinate and guide the common economic affairs and development of the continent or of as much of it as may choose to join the scheme.

"Such a European council has already been recommended by a committee of the social and economic committee of United Nations.'

Need for Carefulness

How necessary it is that there never be let up in the war on fire is indicated in the report of the Fire Marshal of Ontario for the three-month period ending September 30 of this year.

11 persons lost their lives, of whom seven were men, three women and one a child.

There were 4,153 fifires for a total loss of $3,325,655 and an insurance loss of $2,692,824. The number of fires was 274 greater than for the same period last year though the total loss in the third quarter of 1945 was $1,060,669 higher. Insurance loss a year ago in the period was $451,119 over the period this year.

This year there has been a vigorous planned campaign to educate the citizens, to inspect properties, to correct defects if any in fire protection equipment and to train personnel responsible for fire safety. The result should be important.

The aim is to keep ever before every individual the need for constant vigilance and inspection. No effort along these lines can be wasted.

Smoking led all causes known. No fewer than 1,497 fires were credited to this for a total loss of $113,669. Electricity as a cause was given in 468 fires with the greatest known loss attributed to any one source. 339 of the buildings affected were unrodded and 22 rodded before 1922. Stoves and furnames were blamed in 206 fires with the total loss placed at $123,320. Petroleum and its products are listed as having caused 173 fires and chimneys and flues with 91 fires (loss $21,637). Hot ashes, coal and open fires were given as causes in 95 cases.

Spontaneous combustion was credited with fires in two barns and in all 25 other cases.

Of course there were mescellaneous fires numbering 207 and a very large number of 641, where cause was unknown. In this last category the loss was $1,419,783.

It may be wondered what were the buildings burned or damaged by fire. Here are the figures of the Fire Marshal:

Brick dwellings, protected, 1,285 fires; frame dwellings, protected, 1,454; frame and brick buildings, unprotected, 205; farm risks, 416; churches, 12; hospitals and sanatoria and asylums, 9; public halls, 1; schools, 14; institutional buildings, 9; warehouses, 14; buildings of retail stores and office buildings, 163; hotels (buildings only), 21; contents only of retail stores and office buildings, 135; contents of hotels only, 49; food and food product plants, such as breweries, bakeries, and wineries, cereal mills and grain elevators, 6; service stations and oil risks (not garages), 17; saw and shingle mills, 9; lumber yards, pulpwood or elsewhere, standing timber, 18; wood works, excluding saw mills, 9; metal works, garages, hangars and foundries, 43; mining risks, 3; railway traction properties, electric light, power plants, gasworks, waterworks and telephone exchanges, a total of 14; miscellaneous manufacturing, 194 and sprinklered risks 75.

U.K. Veterans' Training Scheme

Under the United Kingdom Government's Businses Training Scheme, carefully selected ex-service men and women, and others who performed war service of national importance, are attending a three months' general business course to train them to take a place in the business administration of the country. The general course completed, the veteran is eligible for a specialized course, a second program also in business administration, but connected with a particular section of industry or commerce. Responsible firms throughout the country have been encouraged by the Ministry of Labor and National service, which is sponsoring the whole plan, to run classes for students who might qualify for jobs in those firms, following their apprenticeships. In this way the student has the opportunity of getting practical experience in a desired field, while the employer has a chance to train a man, with the Government paying the student a living allowance during training. Under this scheme trainin gfor business administration is now put on the same general footing as training for a profession.

Works of Art Perish

Works of genius are rarer than men. Nor can they be held entirely inanimate, for the spirit of their maker can be seen in them, and only when they are destroyed does that enduring part of him vanish from sight. That is why the devastation of Italy, summed up in the official report Works of Art in Italy, still leaves one aghast. "The old cities of Italy," says Br. James Mann in his introduction, "have seen many wars, but none so fatally destructive." This is the second report, on cities north of Bologna though it has added information about the south. At Milan, of the 27 churches on the official list of protected monuments only five escaped damage.

As we know, Leonardo's The Last Supper escaped by a remarkable chance, but at Padua the Mantegna frescoes were lost — "the greatest individual disaster to Italian are that resulted from the war." Venice, "entirely prohibited as an aerial target," is intact. But the pictures in this report of ruined churches and gutted theatres reveal all too clearly where lay the most vulnerable part of Europe's "soft under-belly."

—Manchester Guardian.

Why Car Insurance is Higher

Insurance men meeting in Toronto last week were told that if the present highway accident trend continues motorists can expect another increase in their insurance rates. Just another reason for the average car owner to encourage and give his full support to any scheme which might possibly make highway travel safer. Possibly appealing to the pocketbook may have more effect than other measures so far taken.

Car insurance rates have increased steadily since the war ended. There was an increase when gasoline rationing ceased. and owners who used their cars partially or wholly for business found they had to pay a still higher rate. In some instances this resulted in as much as fifty percent increase over rates paid a few years ago.

A natural, and very serious, result of higher automobile insurance rates is that fewer people take out such insurance. This trend may not be very noticeable just now, but should there be any decline in general earnings and employment it can reasonably be expected that more and more people will decide they can get along without insurance as one way to cut expenses.

The first persons to drop car insurance when premiums rise are all too often the very persons who need it most — those with old cars, young people who drive mostly at night, the family car that is driven by a score of people and is often in not too good shape mechanically. These people need insurance most because in all too many instances they are financially unable to bear the costs of an accident, costs of even a minor one let alone one where serious injury is done to the body or property of a wholly innocent person.

—Ottawa Journal.

Ingenious manufacturers have grabbed up many unlikely war-surplus materials and converted them into civilian products. Helmets have been fashioned into wall brackets and ash stands. Gasmask harnesses reappear as gents' garters.

But there's one war surplus that nobody can figure out a use for: cold cream. It sounds simple enough, but there are thousands of jars that will probably stand on government-warehouse shelves for eternity. Trouble is, the cold cream was prepared for commando use, and it's coal-black says This Week Magazine.

BOY TRAINING

Don't fill a youngster's head with fears.
Don't mutter, "Can't" at all he tries.
Instruct him in his early years
That he has legs and arms and eyes,
A brain to use, and two good ears,
And to the heights with these can rise.

Don't sigh at every fall he takes.
Don't counsel him: "It's vain to try,"
Or sneer at blunders that he makes.
Support him, lest his courage die.
Say to him when his young heart aches:
"You will do better by and by."

Beware of "Don't" and "Can't" and "No!"
Say: "Try once more! I'm sure you can!"
Don't try to spare him every blow;
Disaster follows such a plan.
Encourage him, and he will grow
In God's good time to be a man.

Convict Stepinac, 16-Year Term Is Imposed

Zagreb, Yugoslavia, Oct. 11 — (AP)—Archbishop Alojzijc Stepinac, charged with Axis collaboration, was convicted today on all main points of the indictment against him and was sentenced to 16 years imprisonment at forced labor.

The three-judge people's court of Croatia which since Sept. 30 had been trying the Archbishop, head of the Roman Catholic Church of Yugoslavia, also ordered that all his property should be confiscated and deprived him of all legal rights for five years.

Archbishop Stepinac was accused of aiding the Axis, the puppet Croatian republic of Dr. Ante Pavelic and the Ustashi terrorist organization.

Erik Lisak, Ustashi colonel, was convicted also and was sentenced to hang.

A third defendant, described by the court as a "Ustashi terrorist," will be shot.

In all, 13 men were convicted and were given sentences ranging from six months' imprisonment to death. Three were acquitted.

Lisak, informed of his death sentence, shook his fist at the court and shouted in a high-pitched voice: "I will die for Croatia. Long live the independent state of Croatia."

The Archbishop stood expressionless and looked straight at the court throughout the hour-long reading of the judgment and showed no emotion when his sentence was pronounced.

The audience, which had stood through the reading, cheered and clapped when the sentences of the archbishop and Lisak were announced.

Long List of Findings

The court president read a long list of findings against the Archbishop. He was convicted of alleged approval of the forced conversion of Serbs to Catholicism, of sponsoring the organization of terrorist units and of glorifying the Ustashi in the Catholic press and in pastoral letters and speeches.

Archbishop Stepinac also was found to have inspired the hope that the present Tito government would be short lived and to have been seen in public with German and Italian officers during the occupation.

The Archbishop's secretary, Ivan Schalic, was sentenced to 12 years at forced labor upon conviction of having introduced Lisak into the episcopal palace and helped him organize terrorist bands.

Josip Simocki, found by the court to have been a Ustashi captain and consecrated the terrorist organization plan, was given 14 years at forced labor.

Friar Modesto Martincic, a provincial priest of the Franciscans who turned prosecution witness, was sentenced to five years' forced labor.

Other sentences of forced labor were 13 years for Mamerto Margetis, a Franciscan monk; one year for Franjo Pavlek, and six months for Josip Vidovic and Mirko Kodelnjak, both Franciscans.

Three Franciscan monks for whom the prosecution had asked clemency were freed.

The courtroom was packed with 600 spectators for the reading of the sentences. In closing, the court president remarked, "you can see that the accused Stepinac is guilty by his long silence."

Hay and Grain In Concrete Barn Lost in Fire

Gananoque, Oct. 11 — (CP) — Fire of unknown origin destroyed a quantity of hay and grain in a large circular concrete barn property of W. H. Conner, Maplecroft Dairy, Wednesday. The fire was first noticed by R. M. Richardson of Mitchell and Wilson Contractors who was supervising a job at the Gananoque Arena and who turned in the alarm.

Firemen ran three lines of hose approximately 2,500 feet to the scene of the blaze and labored over two hours before they had it under control. Fire watches remained at the scene to see the blaze does not re-occur.

The owner was away at the time and no estimate could be given as to the loss but it is expected it will run into several thousand dollars.

The roof of the concrete structure was completely destroyed as was the contents. The $80,000 structure was erected about 35 years ago by the late W. S. McDonald, former proprietor of the dairy.

FRANCE TO OFFER 700,000 POW'S CHANCE TO REMAIN

Chicago, Oct. 11 —(AP)— France will offer 700,000 German prisoners-of-war the opportunity of staying in France as part of an increase-the-population campaign, Paul Robert Prigent, 36-year-old French minister of population, said. The young French Minister classified the rebuilding of his country's population as "one of the main problems facing France today."

PYORRHEA IN JAPAN

A news bureau reported recently that a Japanese veterinarian has been awarded the degree of doctor of medicine for "conclusively proving" that pyorrhea is caused by tooth brushes and tooth powders.

Hold your horses, manufacturers and dentists. The quotation marks were used by the news bureau. They are not mine—although I'd very likely use 'em like that to indicate doubt in my own mind that the Japanese veterinarian has so simply ended the controversy.

But I must admit I can't savvy how even the most meticulous daily brushing of the teeth can possibly cause or in any way contribute to the development of pyorrhea alveolaris.

I do not use the term to impress or confuse the uninitated, but in order to quote the definition given in Dorland's Medical Dictionary, '45:

Dorland then gives several other names for pyorrhea alveolaris, but heavens to Betsy, who cares?

Now I'll try to define or interpret Dorland's definition for the layman:

Purulent inflammation means inflammation associated with the formation of discharge of pus. The dental periosteum is the dense membrane that covers bone everywhere, but here it is the lining of the alveoli (tooth sockets). When the periosteum is destroyed or irreparaby damaged the bone is denuded of the vessels which normally supply it with blood, and the denuded bone undergoes necrosis or death.

I had a pamphlet on pyorrhea, but (maybe this is a confession of weakness) my good friends the dentists didn't like it at all, some for one reason and some for another, so I have discontinued trying to tell people what to do about pyorrhea—except a chapter in No. 1 Little Lesson "Save Your Teeth"—booklet mailed on request if you inclose twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope.

The truth is, I am afraid, that it is too late to expect more than arrest of the degeneration, inflammation, involution or whatever you prefer to call the morbid process, when the teeth are falling out.

But I am equally sanguine that you, the victim, may get a good deal of benefit in the way of prevention if you begin preventive treatment in time I give detailed information and instruction in the booklet, but here I may say it consists essentially of (a) good nutrition, (b) good dentistry and (c) proper use of the teeth—all 32 of them, your own or the dentures installed by your dentist—in the masticating of natural food.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Aluminum Chloride Solution

My father used with much satisfaction a remedy for excessive perpiration you gave in a pamphlet..but has lost the formula. (O. H.)

Answer—Several remedies are given in the pamphlt "Excessive Sweating" (by the way, it is not spelled perspiration in the Bible). Send stamped addressed envelope for the pamphlet. One lotion is a solution of one-half ounce of aluminum chloride in three fluid ounces of rain water, snow water or distilled water—sponge on the skin say of armpits, and let it dry before dressing. An application every second day controls excessive sweating in most instances.

Wait for the Delivery Wagon

Please send me as soon as possible your literature on infant care and feeding. My new adopted baby is unexpecterly arriving next Sunday and my experience is nil, so I need your help. (Mrs. L. W. H.)

Answer—(a) Shucks, wait till the delivery wagon stops before the door—plenty of time to study up while they're carrying the bundle from heaven in. (b) Although it touches my heart deeply to know you are adopting the baby, I'm still Ol' Stingy about paying the freight on stuff I give away—so (c) write me again some time, ask for The Brady Baby Book, and inclose a clean dime and a stamped self addressed envelope. (d) I hope you have complete success and happiness with the baby, and as soon as you feel you are in the groove, make way for another—a lone child is out of luck in any family, needs a brother or sister to share things with.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why was Mexican money used in China?

For many years Chinese financial transactions were generally made in terms of Mexican dollars. For instance, newspapers would report that the government of China had appropriated $1,000,000, Mexican" for this or that purpose.

During the early decades of the 19th century the Spanish dollar or peso was introduced into the Orient by Western traders. Before that there was no coin in general circulation in China except the small copper piece known as the "cash." In the larger transactions uncoined silver bullion was employed, one Chinese ounce. of silver being called a "tael."

Chinese merchants found the Western coins more convenient than bullion as a circulating medium and Spanish dollars were imported in large numbers. A shortage in the supply of Spanish dollars led to the introduction of Mexican dollars about 1840. A Mexican dollar or peso was then worth slightly less than fifty cents in American money. Within a very few years these coins, minted in Mexico by the Mexican government, circulated freely everywhere in China and were practically the only currency that had universal acceptance in that country.

Fnally even coins of the popular unit of value "made in China" were stamped "Republica de Mexico." Their only rivals were British dollars coined in India or Hong Kong and circulated in Chinese seaports.

The continual exportation of Mexican dollars to China and other Oriental countries on a silver basis became an important factor in the distribution of Mexican silver.

In 1902 China signed a treaty with Great Britain in which she agreed to establish a uniform system of national currency. During his regime Yuan Shih-k'ai coined Chinese silver dollars in the hope of initiating currency reforms, and after that several attempts were made to substitute native coins for Mexican dollars. Even in the late 1930's Chinese finances were still reckoned in terms of Mexican dollars, although the coins themselves were becoming scarce and their place was being rapidly taken by silver dollars of equal weight and value coined in China or Hong Kong. A few years later the Chinese central government adopted the "yuan" as the unit of currency and after that Chinese financial transactions were no longer reckoned in terms of "dollars, Mex."

Canada Vitally Is Interested In Nations' Policies

By JACK AVESON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg, Oct. 10 (CP)— Canada runs a greater risk than most nations of becoming involved in any future international struggle, Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, former Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting today.

"Our political associations, our geographical associations inevitably place this nation in such a position," Mr. Justice Davis said. "If we accept that fact then it must naturally follow that we are as much interested as any nation on the face of the earth that international policies shall be adopted and pursued which will eliminate the threat of war."

Fiscal Agreement

Last night delegates heard Premier Stuart Garson of Manitoba warn that failure of the Dominion and Provincial governments to make a fiscal agreement would leave Canada open to an "ideological aggression directed against our economic and political system by socialist and totalitarian groups."

Mr. Garson said Manitoba offered "no apologies for its stand at the (Dominion-Provincial) conference, for it was the only Province in Canada which accepted the Dominion proposals without any strings, not because they were perfect for Manitoba's needs, but because we thought it was infinitely preferable for the whole of Canada that they should be accepted rather than rejected."

Provincial governments which had rejected or partially rejected the federal proposals would have "quite an interesting time explaining their position to their own taxpayers."

Message to Prime Minister

Earlier yesterday the Chamber sent a telegram to Prime Minister Mackenzie King urging that existing laws governing labor conditions be strictly enforced. Specifically criticized in the message were illegal strikes, intimidation and violence, together with "the recent statement by certain labor leaders that they are prepared to breach the criminal code to achieve their objectives."

In his address at today's early session, Mr. Justice Davis told the chamber it was "inevitable that over the years this nation will emerge as one of the great powers of the world."

"We have the will to work, we have the imagination to develop, we have the resources upon which development can be based, and we will over the years acquire the population needed to make of this country what destiny has prepared for us."

He suggested three separate factors as a framework for Canadian foreign policy:

1. Pursuance of a policy which would keep together in friendly association the nations which presently constitute the British

Stelco Operations Being Resumed As Fast as Possible

Hamilton, Oct. 11 — (CP) — Operations at the Steel Company of Canada "are being resumed as fast as possible," and by the week of Oct. 21, production will be at the highest level possible under existing conditions, R. A. Gillies, works manager, revealed Thursday. A combination of shortages of materials and building labor will affect normal load production for some time, it was pointed out. A lack of skilled construction workers for repairing blast furnaces is running the firm into difficulty, as one is now out. As soon as it is repaired, and in operation, another, now in operation, will have to be overhauled.

All departments of the Steel Company, with the exception of the sheet and plate mills, now are in operation. Mr. Gillies said that he expected that the sheet mill would be in production sometime during the week of Oct. 20, and predicted that operations in the plate mill would be resumed next week.

Since last Friday, the day following the settlement of the 11-week old basic steel strike, over 1,600 employees have returned to work here, Aubrey Lott, personnel manager, disclosed. This number, added to the some 2,000 workers who stayed within the plant, brings the grand total of employees working today up to about 3,600, as against the 4,800 normally employed by the company.

CROWD DEMONSTRATES AGAINST SCHUSCHNIGG

Argentine Beef May be Used To Pry Open Market

By ROGER D. GREENE

Washington, Oct. 11 — (AP)— Signs multiply that the government might welcome Argentine beef to meatless American dinner tables as a lever to pry home-bred cattle off western ranges.

With the prevailing meat controversy boiling at peak intensity — and amid forecasts of "emergency" action by President Truman within a few days—Oscar Ivanissevich, Argentine ambassador, said he is ready to offer Argentine's help to combat the shortage.

One of the world's largest meat exporters, Argentina for years has been prohibited from shipping meat to the United States on the ground that hoof and mouth disease is prevalent among Argentine cattle.

However, an aide to the ambassador told a reporter this is no issue now because the meat Argentina will offer is boneless and canned. He said there is about 4,000,000 pounds available for immediate shipment to the United States.

While 4,000,000 pounds would not go far toward relieving the current shortage, the acceptance of the Argentine offer conceivably could spur the marketing of domestic cattle.

The possible resort to South American imports was emphasized by the presence of William Clayton, undersecretary of state, at a White House meeting of president Truman's top advisers last night.

For 2½ hours, six key administration officials — democratic national chairman Robert E. Hannegan, Office of Price Administration administrator Paul Porter, agriculture secretary Anderson, reconversion director Steelman, Mr. Clayton and Clark Clifford, Mr. Truman's legal adviser — discussed the darkening meat situation. The president himself did not join in the conference, it was said.

Those in a position to know said the six-man meeting had discussed at least these possible steps:

1. Use of the president's extraordinary war powers to end the shortage. How was not explained.
2. Relaxation or junking of O. P. A. price controls.

WEDDINGS

HASS—DOMENICO

Renfrew.—St. Francis Xavier Church was the scene of a pretty Fall wedding on the morning of October 3rd., when Miss Catherine Frances Domenico, of Renfrew, became the bride of Ambrose Martin Hass, also of Renfrew. Rev. M. J. Hasss, brother of the bridegroom, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Wedding music was played by Sister Mary and the Academy choir, with Mrs. Harold Denlham as soloist.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Frank Domenico, of Belleville, and was attended by Miss Kathleen Murray as maid-of-honor, and Miss Margaret Sullivan, as bridesmaid.

John Hass, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. The ushers were Armand Letang, Leonard Kobus, Lawrence Hass and Rodney Moran.

For her wedding the bride wore a white corded silk dress with fitted bodice and her floor-length veil was held in place with a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Following a wedding reception at Hotel Renfrew, the young couple left by motor on a honeymoon trip to Grey Rocks Inn, St. Jovite, Que. For travelling Mrs. Hass wore an English glen plaid suit and black accessories. On their return they will reside in Renfrew.

IODE Scholarship Presentation Made To Jack Burrows

On Thursday evening the Queen Mary Home and School Association held its opening meeting in the assembly room of the school. After a lively sing song, Mrs. H. L. Croll, President, opened the meeting proper with the song "O Canada", and conducted a short business period.

Mr. C. I. Frederick, Principal of the school, spoke about the improvements which have been made to the school building during the summer recess.

A chorus by eight of the boys who have recently left Queen Mary school to continue their education in the B.C.I. and V.S. was much enjoyed. Mr. Ed Shortt presented diplomas to the class graduated from Grade 8 to the various courses open to them in the higher grades at the Collegiate. Ronald Elmy contributed the solo "Always", which added much to the evening's enjoyment.

A highlight of the program was the presentation to Jack Burrows of an I.O.D.E. scholarship by Mrs. E. J. Neate of St. Julien Chapter. She also presented two pictures, one of King George VI and one of Queen Elizabeth to the school. It is expected these will be hung in the assembly room.

Children Should Choose

Rev. J. Grant Sparling was the speaker of the evening. He addressed the graduates on "Choosing a Vocation". He said, "There are two kinds of vocations; i. e. work done with the hands, and work done with the mind, and children should be allowed to make their own choice. If any of this class should choose religious training, it is hoped that the parents will encourage them, as ministers are so badly needed in all denominations of the Christian Church". Appreciation was expressed to Mr. Sparling for his inspirational address.

The members of the graduating class took this opportunity to demonstrate to the Principal, Mr. Frederick, their appreciation of his efforts in their behalf during the past years, and Jack Burrows read a short address, while Betty Sinfield presented Mr. Frederick with a silver candelabra as a token of the regard in which he is held by all the members of the class.

After the meeting a social hour was spent while delicious refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Tyendinaga Couple Honored On 50th Anniversary

Tyendinaga — The golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry McWilliams, 5th concession of Tyendinaga was celebrated September 28.

Fifty years ago Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams were united in holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Thos. McCarthy of St. Charles Church. Mass was celebrated by Rev. R. Coyle, P.P., at Read that morning who spoke of the blessings that had been bestowed upon the happy couple.

During the Mass, music was rendered by Mr. William Hanley and solos were sung by Mr. Harry McWilliams, Mrs. Joseph McDermott and Mrs. Bernard Freeman. About sixty people were present during the Mass.

At twelve o'clock a dinner was served to forty guests among whom were all the members of the family of children, and old time friends.

Mrs. Gussie Fairman of Belleville being Mrs. McWilliams' bridesmaid was present and Mr. James Hanley of Edmonton, groomsman for Mr. McWilliams being unable to attend. Mr. McWilliams' sister, Mrs. Thomas Hanley, was also present at the anniversary.

During the evening about two hundred friends and neighbors gathered and presented Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams with an address read by Mrs. Adrian Calaghan and a substantial purse presented by Bartley Walsh, John Farrell, Dennis Callaghan, and Guy Leavens. Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams made suitable replies, and thanked the crowd for the purse which they presented, Refreshments were served and an enjoyable evening was spent with Mr. and Mrs. McWilliams, friends wishing them many more years of happiness in the years to come.

Judge and Mrs. Deroche Honored on Golden Anniversary of Wedding

Toronto, Oct. 11. — Judge George E. Deroche and Mrs. Deroche were honored on the occasion of their golden wedding at a dinner given at the Old Mill by their daughter, Mrs. F. Greer Roberts and Mr. Roberts, and their son, W. E. P. Deroche and Mrs. Deroche. Mrs. A. W. Clemens, who had attended her sister on her wedding day; Dr. E. A. McCulloch and Dr. R. J. P. McCulloch, brothers of the bride, who had assisted at the wedding breakfast, as well as their nephews and nieces were present to fete the couple. Following their marriage in Newburgh, Mr. Deroche had a successful legal practice in Deseronto until his appointment to the bench in 1906, one of the youngest men to be so honored. They moved to Belleville and lived there for 34 years until the judge retired. Later they came to Toronto. Both are members of the lawn bowling club at Timothy Eaton Memorial church.

Teachers' Federation Hears Talk on Holland

A meeting of the Teachers' Federation was held in Centre School, the guests of Miss Doris Blakely on Tuesday evening.

It was decided to hold a book display from the Clarke Irwin Co., at the next meeting to be held Nov. 12, at Massassaga School, the guests of Mr. Roy Dulmage and Mrs. B. Garrison. Those on the program committee for that meeting will be Mr. Dulmage, Mrs. Garrison, Mrs. Diamond and Mr. DeLong.

Miss Vera Pyne gave a further report of the meeting held in Auguse at Toronto, and outlined points on trouble cases, superannuation, reserve fund and educational research.

Miss Doris Blakely extended a welcome to all and took charge of the following program. The guest speaker for the evening was Rev. B. Squire, who gave a very interesting address on his visit in Holland telling of habits, dress and customs of the people. Miss Hester Cook conducted a flower quiz with the winners being Mrs. Ragsdale, Mr. Squire, Miss Stark and Miss Huff. Mrs. Ragsdale then outlined some language games suitable for the Junior grades. Miss Huff took charge of the sing-song. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served and a social time was had by all.

BELLEVILLE GROUP MEETS

Hunting season is now open, however, in spite of that Bugs Bunny and Donald Duck managed to safely attend the Belleville Women Teachers' Federation meeting on Wednesday night at the Y.M.C.A.

While waiting for members to arrive, the teachers were kept busy guessing which cartoon character's name was pinned on their back.

After even Dagwood's well-known appetite was satisfied, Tillie the Toiler led the group in a short sing-song.

On the serious side, Miss Lillian Hart, the new president, expressed her wish to serve the Federation as well as possible.

School representatives were asked to introduce any new additions to their staffs. Miss Norah Dane, Miss June Crosby, Miss Mabel Chapman, Miss Phyllis Beatty and Miss Jean Allan were welcomed as new members of Belleville Federation.

A bulletin from the W.P.T.B. was read urging Canadian women to carry on their noble fight against inflation.

Mrs. Anderson, who was a delegate last Summer at the Royal Commission on education, held in Toronto, read her summary of discussions. Mrs. Anderson was very pleased that she was given an opportunity to attend such an interesting meeting.

In honor of Miss Norah Dane who is teaching this year in Belleville on exchange from Ilford, England, the meeting took a social turn.

Miss Hart conducted a novelty contest which tested everyone's dramatic ability. Miss Gwen Neal, a member of the B.C.V.I. staff organized two energetic folk dances. When all had recovered their breath the meeting adjourned.

Co-operation of Parents Needed to Safeguard Children From Disease

Doctors do not claim to know all the answers. There are many aspects of health and diseases which the science of medicine has so far been unable to explore. No medical man claims infallibility in dealing with all the ills to which flesh and mind are heir. For instance, the cause of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) which has been claiming victims across the country is known but it's method of transmission is still not definitely established and, as a result, no sure preventive measures can be formulated. Again, in the case of cancer, despite heroic efforts in the laboratories and in our hospitals, no cure has yet been discovered. Even the secret of the common cold has not been unveiled.

• • •

Nevertheless, in the slow march from the dark days of witchcraft and superstition, there has been progress, expanding knowledge, increased ability to prevent, control or cure many of the dreaded diseases which crippled and killed our forefathers. From the long hours over test tubes and microscopes in the laboratories, from the thousands upon thousands of patients which have passed through the physicians' hands, from the experience gained since the days of the first Chinese physicians and the Greek savants, there has accumulated a tremendous mass of information, proven theoretically and in practice, on the proper care of the human body and the most efficacious methods for combating the diseases which attack it. For proof, we can see today that some of the major afflictions still to be overcome are those peculiar to old age. The reason is that medical and allied sciences, through the application of their discoveries in the fields of health and disease, have appreciably lengthened man's life span. We now have more people who live to old age.

One field in which modern medicine has contributed greatly to healthier childhood and happier homes is in virtual conquest of the communicable diseases of childhood such as diphtheria, scarlet fever, and whooping cough and of that scourge of other days, smallpox. Medical science has practically compete data on all diseases and has developed vaccine and toxoids to prevent or modify their appearance. Your doctor and your health officer have the knowledge, the ability and the tools with which to fight these afflictions. What is needed now is your co-operation, as a parent, teacher, clergyman or citizen interested in the welfare of your country, in seeing that every Canadian youngster is provided with the inexpensive, efficient and painless protection offered by your doctor and public health officials.

Why should we forfeit the life of a child for want of attention that every physician and public health doctor in Canada would gladly provide? It seems criminal, doesn't it? Let us grant that there are certain diseases that still baffle medical science. But here we have preventive measures for childhood's communicable diseases—diseases that can mean death as well as suffering — that are sound and sure. It would seem to be only common sense to take advantage of such measures.

'Don't wait for fate,
Be wise and immunize."

COLLEGE HILL GROUP

The College Hill Women's Group met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. Jeffrey, 162 Foster Ave., with Mrs. Rose, the president, conducting opening exercises. During a business period Mrs. W. Tebworth, the treasurer, reported $7.35 cents on hand. Letters and "thank-you" notes were read from sick and shut-in members. Some discussion followed a request from the Salvation Army that the group continue its contributions to the work of the Red Shield.

Mrs. A. Dickens gave an interesting reading, "The Month of October". The president closed the meeting with prayer. During the social half-hour which followed Mrs. George Stanton conducted a contest, after which delicious refreshments were served by Mrs. Jeffrey and her assistants.

CHILDREN OF MARY

A very interesting and timely meeting of the Children of Mary took place on Monday evening at 7.30, in St. Michael's High School. After the singing of 'Mother Beloved' and the reading of the minutes, the office was recited, directed by Reverend Sister Mary Lenore, moderator of the Sodality.

Following the business part of the meeting a well-arranged treatise on the Rosary, introduced by Miss Sheila Doyle and continued by Misses Loyola Chapelle and Agnes Marie O'Connor, was presented. These young ladies dealt with the origin of the Rosary, and some outstanding proofs of its efficacy. Miss Barbara Forhan, of Our Lady's Committee, made an appeal to the girls for the international drive for rosaries for the people of Greece. To help on this good work, a pair of Nylons were raffled at the meeting. Miss Joyce Royall was the happy winner. Under the convenership of Miss Rita Frawley, plans were formulated for a Hallowe'en Dance. The President, Miss Mary McDougall, recommended that the members of the Sodality sing at the eight o'clock Mass on their Communion Sunday. This suggestion was received with great enthusiasm. Reverend Sister Mary Lenore then addressed the meeting, commending the girls for their fine work and urging them to introduce into their homes the practice of the family rosary. The members then retired to the Assembly room for a social hour and refreshments. Musical Charades were particularly enjoyed; the prize for the highest number of points was awarded to Miss Mary Joan Hansman.

TRINITY WOMEN'S CLUB

Madoc.—On Tuesday evening, Trinity Women's Club met in the church parlors, with the president in charge. After the opening exercises several important items of business were discussed, and it was decided to make a donation to the church anniversary fund. A committee was appointed to select a few books for a church reference library. Plans were made for attending the "Cavalcade" to be held in Bridge Street Church, Belleville, in the near future, when Dr. 'Bob' McClure, recently returned from China, will be one of the speakers.

Mrs. Poulter, taking charge of the worship service, chose "Thanksgiving" as her theme. She was assisted by Mrs. Nickle reading the Scripture passages centred around the thought that we ought not to observe Thanksgiving only on the day set apart as a feast day, but rather that we show our appreciation of God's good gifts, material and spiritual, by daily "thanksliving".

Dr. Grant Fraser, guest speaker, gave an interesting account of the great work being done by Shriners for crippled children whose parents are unable to finance the necessary treatments. Irrespective of race, creed or color about eighty-five thousand of these children have been treated since 1922. He presented a graphic picture of these children as he has seen them in the Shrine hospitals, where everything is provided for their entertainment and instruction while they are undergoing medical treatment.

Mrs. Spry read an interesting paper on "Child Training in the Home" high-lighting parental influence in the building of character.

Appreciation for these splendid addresses was expressed by Mrs. Nickle. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction and dainty refreshments were served by the ladies in charge.

Suggestions For The Thanksgiving Menu

Every year, a day is set aside to give thanks for the crops, whether they are small or large. This custom was started by the early settlers who, after suffering privations and hardships, saw the promise of a winter with food for all. Theirs was indeed a thanksgiving and Canadians more than any other peoples in the world should be thankful for this year's bountiful harvest.

The Canadian Thanksgiving menu will probably vary considerably throughout the country because of various festive customs still followed, although originating years ago in the homelands of the pioneers. However, Canadian thanksgiving dinner, whether it be served in the east or in the west, in the urban or rural home, will usually have one thing in common "poultry" as the main course.

What could be nicer than ice cream for dessert—a good food and so good as the last course of a good meal! For this special occasion it might be served as a fresh fruit sundae or as an ice-cream roll.

The home economists of the Consumer Section of the Dominion Department of Agriculture suggest a fairly simple menu with recipes for this Thanksgiving day.

Grape Juice Cocktail
Chicken or Turkey with dressing
Cranberry Sauce
Or Crabapple Jelly
Creamy Mashed Potatoes
Gravy
Honey Glazed Carrots
Cauliflower au gratin
Ice-Cream Roll
Coffee

HONEY GLAZED CARROTS

12 small carrots
or 6 large cut in half lengthwise
1 tablespoon vinegar
1-4 cup hot water
1-2 cup mild flavored honey
1-8 teaspoon ginger
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon melted fat

Place carrots in greased casserole. Mix vinegar, hot water, honey, ginger, salt and melted fat. Pour over carrots and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, for 1 hour or until tender. Six servings.

The carrots may be parbolled for 30 minutes and then covered with sauce in casserole and baked in moderately slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, for 30 minutes.

ICE-CREAM ROLL

3-4 cup pastry flour
or 2-3 cup all-purpose flour
1 1-2 teaspoons baking powder
Pinch of salt
4 eggs
3-4 cup fine granulated or fruit sugar
1 pint ice cream

Measure and sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat egg yolks until light adding sugar gradually. Add dry ingredients a little at a time with sifter beating well with rotary beater. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry and fold into first mixture. Turn in a shallow greased pan (15 x 10) lined with greased paper. Bake in a hot oven of 400 degrees F., for 12 to 16 minutes. Working quickly, since cake must not cool, trim off crisp edges with a sharp knife, invert in a clean towel, lift pan off and peel off paper. Using both hands, quickly roll cake with the help of the towel. Wrap towel around closely and cool thoroughly. Just before serving, unroll and spread with the ice cream at serving consistency. Serve immediately. Garnish with sliced fruits and melon balls. Six servings.

Note: Sprinkle with powdered sugar if you can spare it.

A Neater Curve on the Calf

By HELEN FOLLETT

STAND BEFORE a full length mirror and look at your legs in profile. Have you ever done that? Observe the outline of the calf. It may be neater than you realize. To come up to the ideal it should extend outward about five inches from the ankle, to a graceful inward curve as it reaches the knee.

If Madame Fashion didn't have her own ideas as to the correct length of the skirt, every woman would have her hem precisely and exactly where the calf is fullest. That practice would make for pleasing figure proportions.

Sliding Hem

When you get a new frock, try sliding the hem up and down at different levels. Plump girls look even plumper when the frock is of knee length. Only the cuties can get away with that trick. The woman who is afflicted with fat calves should wear stockings of as dark a shade as she can find. A "receding" color will cause her legs to fade into the background to a certain extent, the outlines will be indefinite.

Miss Spindle Pins can get her supports to normal if she will give them sufficient exercise to strengthen and fill out the muscles. Let her bang a pillow in a doorway, try high kicking. The higher the kick the more of a pull on the fibres. Bicycling helps too. Walking tippy toe is recommended by instructors of physical education and experts who specialize in figure remodelling.

Rough And Chapped

Before long, as the season advances, there will be a new grief to contend with, legs that have become rough and chapped. Heavy massage with a soothing cream will be found beneficial. Use an up and down movement of the palms. Do that at night so you can sprinkle borated talcum on top of the cream, forming a healing pack.

Goose flesh is a horrow that may remain with one all the year round. Massage with cream is good for that too. The treatment should be preceded by a warm soapy scrubbing with a heavy brush and the applicaton of moist, hot compresses.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Problems of a Separation—Not a Divorce

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are separated, but not divorced. Should not my name still be 'Mrs. John Smith'? My friends are now addressing me as 'Mrs. Mary Smith' which I believe is incorrect.

2. When I am divorced, would the correct form of my name then be 'Mrs. Jones Smith' (suppose 'Jones' as my maiden name)?

3. Since my husband's desertion, I feel so "all alone" when I sign greeting cards. May I include my 2-year-old daughter? If so, would the signature be "Mrs. John Smith and Susan" and "Mary Smith and Susan" or should the signature be "Mary and Susan Smith"?

4. I have a beautiful engagement ring which my husband gave me and which I should like to continue to wear, since I very much admire the beauty of the stone. Is this proper?

5. When my daughter is enrolled in school and they ask me for her father's name, and so forth, should I give it, or simply state that "he is no longer living with us." (He has never seen his daughter, and probably never will.)

Reader

1. Yes, until your divorce, your name is 'Mrs. John Smith', and since apparently it is your wish to have your friends use the correct form of your name, you might hint to them, as gently as possible, that although you realize their intentions were kind, you prefer to be called 'Mrs. John' rather than 'Mrs. Mary'.

2. Yes.

3. Yes, indeed, include the name of your little daughter when you sign your greeting cards. A title should not be included in a signature . . . so 'Mrs. John Smith and Susan' is incorrect. 'Mary Smith and Susan' is a correct form.

4. Yes, it's quite proper for you to wear this ring now if you wish to. And some time in the future, after your divorce, you might like to have the beautiful stone set in a different setting and wear the ring on your right hand.

5. You might try stating that "my husband is no longer living with us." I believe this will be enough information for the school authorities, but if they ask for more informaton, I am sure they will respect your request to reveal as little as you wish to, probably just your husband's name.

"Sincerely Yours" for a Business Letter?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle an argument, will you please answer this question: Is it ever correct to close a business letter "Sincerely yours"? (I had always thought a business letter should be signed "Very truly yours," or "Yours very truly".)

Roberta

Yes, it is correct to close a business letter "Sincerely yours" when one is writing to a specific individual. . . but this is not appropriate when writing to a company.

Godparents should be invited to serve

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should we, the parents, ask a friend to be godmother and another friend to be godfather to our child? This is not our first child. In the past we have had no difficulty in decided about the godparents, but we are wondering whether we should ask someone or whether some of our friends should offer?

E. D.

It is you and your husband who should decide on whom you wish. A friend would not assume the right of asking you and your husband for the privilege of being a godparent to your child.

The Untrimmed Coat

THERE'S A NEW and vivid smartness about the untrimmed coat this Fall that makes its appeal to every type of shopper. Deep yellow ochre colored woollen is used for this effective coat, a color that goes beautifully with brown, black or purple accessories. Interest is centred on double pockets, one slit, one patch, placed at the shoulder line. The back of the bodice is slightly bloused and the front is double-breasted, fastening at the waist.

The Experts Say

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 11. (CP)—Whisk the family out of the kitchen today and dig into that mountain of fresh vegetables waiting to be turned into relishes and chutneys for your winter dinner-table.

And what if your supply of sugar coupons has become low. Honey does wonders for sweetening pickles, either when used with 50 per cent sugar, or alone. The stronger flavors of the dark honeys add extra spiciness to relishes.

Just in case you're new at the pickling game, or haven't done any in a long time, here are a few general directions which, if followed, will guarantee good results:

1. Use fresh vegetables for pickling.

2. Use the best vinegar. Cider vinegar has the best flavor, but white (spirit) vinegar gives better color. Blended vinegar combines the flavor and color of the vinegars.

3. Soak in brine to draw out water and make pickles firmer. Salt also checks spoiling. For brine, the best proportion is one cup salt to two quarts of boiling water.

4. For crisp pickles, scald slightly but never cook.

5. Keep pickles airtight in sterilized jars. If pickles are kept in crocks, they should be well covered with vinegar solution to prevent moulding. A plate or wooden board (cut to shape of crock) should be placed on top of pickles and weighed down with a clean stone or weight.

If tomatoes are your strong point this season, here's a two-in-one recipe for both chili sauce and cocktail.

The ingredients: 18 large tomatoes, two onions, one small head celery, four tablespoons sugar, three sweet red peppers, three sweet green peppers, two tablespoons salt, half a cup of vinegar.

Boil all together 20 minutes, then turn into a colander. Strain wtihout stirring. Return juice to kettle and boil five minutes. To the solid pulp add one cup vinegar and a small piece of ginger, eight cloves and one stick cinnamon (spices in muslin bag). Boil until thick. Pour into hot jars. Seal.

Yield: about three pints chili sauce and three pints juice.

Home gardeners have produced such tremendous quantities of vegetables this year they'll find it impossible to can them all and the family cold storage locker will become more popular than ever.

Root vegetables, squash, pumpkins, onions, cabbage and celery, require special care in storing and the temperature and humidity must be just right. All vegetables selected for storage should be fully mature and of good quality; they should be dry and clean since moisture induces decay.

Handsome Hat

THE OFF-WHITE shades are everywhere, so that a hat of dazzling white shows up in sharp and interesting contrast, especially if it is a handsome hat in its own right. Madame Reine uses snow white felt to fashion a handsome fez and accents it with a combination of fancy feathers and ostrich in harmonious shades of white, brown, soft yellow and black. This is a model that is dressy, yet youthful, a hat which will go beautifully with a short fur jacket or a suit and separate furs.

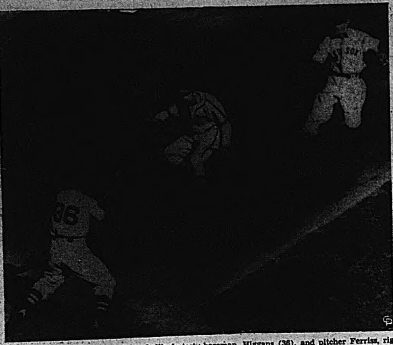
TORTOISE AND THE HARE



St. Louis' Stan Musial, one of baseball's fastest runners, didn't have much trouble stealing second, but he evidently went to sleep off the sack. Instead of trying to get back to base he tried for third but was run down between the Boston third baseman, Higgans (36), and pitcher Ferriss, right. Ferriss gets credit for quick thinking in running over to help make the putout. The action occurred in the first inning of the third series game. Boston won 4-0.

Rampaging Cardinals Loose Heavy Barrage of Hits on Six Red Sox Hurlers to Win 12-3

Series Tied Up and Teams Move Into Fifth Game Today; Harris or Dobson Will Hurl for Sox With Pollet Slated for the Cards

By JACK HAND

Boston, Oct. 11 — (AP)—Eddie Dyer can face his 46th birthday today with the knowledge that his St. Louis Cardinals rate a solid chance of scoring the sports upset of the year — beating the powerhouse Boston Red Sox in the World Series.

All even in games after their first four meetings with the American League champions the Cardinals now can fall back on their southpaw aces, Howie Pollet and Harry Brecheen.

Wednesday the shoe was on the other foot and manager Joe Cronin was primed to push the Redbirds to the brink of elimination.

That was before the 20-hit barrage the Cards loosened on big Tex and five successors to send the "experts" digging into the record books. They found that only one other team, New York Giants in 1921, ever collected 20 hits in a World Series game. Never before had two teams pooled a total of 29 sale blows as happened yesterday in St. Louis' 12-3 rout of the Sox.

For today's fifth game and last at Fenway Park, Dyer has Pollet ready to go after four days rest and confident he can succeed where he failed last time on Rudy York's 10th-inning home run in the opening game.

Cronin passed on the word he will use either Mickey Harris, a left hander who lost to Brecheen in the second game 3-0, or Joe Dobson, a right hander who won 13 and lost seven during the regular season.

No matter who wins the Boston finale, Brecheen and Dave (Boo) Ferriss will hurl the sixth game at St. Louis Sunday. If it goes 7, they will take Monday off for selling tickets and play the big one Tuesday.

Although many of the 35,645 Fenway customers won't agree, yesterday's game in many ways was one of the most interesting of a series that had been dominated by pitching.

Leading the parade of St. Louis hitters were rookie catcher Joe Garagiola and the veterans Enos Slaughter and Whitey Kurowski, each with four hits. Wally Moses of the losers also chipped in with four, joining 22 previous stars in the record books.

George (Red) Munger husky Cardinal righthander, was in trouble several times but was able to strong arm his way thru with the help of some sparkling defensive play.

For the first time in the series, the outfielding was spectacular. Throws to the plate by Slaughter, Ted Williams and Dom DiMaggio each caught a base runner diving for home. Terry Moore, favoring his swollen left knee, made a tumbling catch off a Rudy York drive in the second that was a classic.

Slaughter's first hit was a 370-foot home run into the right field seats that broke a scoreless tie and started the Birds off on a 3-run inning in the second. Kurowski's first double, a single by Harry Walker, a costly wild throw by Johnny Pesky and a squeeze bunt by Marty Marion had Hughson on the ropes.

When Musial's two-run double followed Red Schoendienst's single and a two-base wild peg by Hughson in the three-run third, Cronin yanked his 20-game winner and called on Jim Bagby, who yielded the third run on Garagiola's first single.

Doubles by Slaughter and Kurowski added one run to the scoring total in the fifth.

Garagiola's double behind singles by Slaughter and Kurowski added an eighth score in the seventh off Bill Zuber.

The real riot came in the ninth when 10 men batted and Cronin hurriedly shifted from Mace Brown to Mike Ryba to Clem Dreisewerd. Four runs came home.

Boston broke Munger's shutout in the fourth on York's double to centre following Ted Williams' single, his only hit of the day. The other two Sox runs came in the eighth on Bobby Doerr's homer.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

There was misery, consternation and mental chaos in the back room last night. The boys were wearing faces longer than grandpop's winter underwear, with some of them just as red as the awful import of the news struck home. Those amazing Cardinals, whose stouthearted manager took a terrific gamble when he sent George (Big Red) Munger who had nothing on the ball but some speed and rosin to the mound where he flung a nine-hitter against those pesky Red Sox, and strew the clouts over the nine-inning trail to hand the Scarlet Hose one of the worst shellackings they have received since Tom Yawkey kissed his last baseball million good bye.

• • •

Ah, but 'twas a bitter dose for the lads who smilingly flung their greenbacks willy-nilly and odds yesterday morn, to back up their ideas that the Sox would make mincemeat of the saucy Cardinals especially with a "sucker" of a right-hander in there.

• • •

"Jeez, it's a pip, a cinch," they chortled laying down the mazuma on the line, while quiet, more or less tight-lipped Cardinal backers "covered" the deposits. "Why, Ted Williams and Rudy York will murder that right-handed stuff. We can't lose."

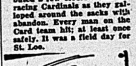
But there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of molars after that first innings as the Cardinal batters took to the slants of Tex Hughson like a baby to his bottle. In fact anything that wore red sox and looked like a pitcher out there yesterday was just another flinging lamb going to the Slaughter — and to Musial, Kurowski et al.

• • •

Twenty base hits, home runs, triples and doubles rode the slugging bludgeons of the battering Cardinals while the Cabots and the Lodges and Yawkeys looked on astounded. They crashed hits over the wall, on it, underneath it and around it to equal the record established by the New York Giants against the Yankees way back in 1921.

• • •

And the Beantowsers, flabbergasted at the sudden surge of power that erupted from the Cardinal hickories stood by amazed and even contributed a few errors to aid the racing Cardinals as they galloped around the sacks with abandon. Every man on the Card team hit; at least once safely. It was a field day for St. Loo.



Now, the Cards' management, dancing in more or less unholy glee are so to speak, sitting pretty, from a pitching staff point of view. As you read this it is quite likely that young Howie Pollet, Cardinal ace southpaw is out there on the mound throwing his forkside slants at the more or less anaesthized Boston heavy artillery. And if the slender youngster with the sore back and stout heart wins today's classic, the boys with the books will wonder what to do next.

• • •

For Manager Dyer has his other lefthander ace 'The Cat' Brecheen in reserve just waiting and itching to toy once more with those pesky Boston mice. The "Cat" hurled a superb game to win 4-0 the other day, and if he can come through, there will be plenty of headaches among the wise guys of the betting fraternity.

The Saturday afternoon sports tidbit in the district will be the Batawa-Trenton Flyers baseball tilt at Batawa come three of the clock. The joust will be the first of the titular series for the Belleville Baseball League championship and should prove one of those ding-dong battles for which both squads are noted.

• • •

The Flyers are still smarting under the elimination defeat earlier in the season in the first round of the Intermediate "A" playdowns, and "Moose" Matthews is out to wipe out that stigma "if I have to use bombers." Al Wade will likely get the pitching nod for the air laddies, while Manager Bill Easton refused to comment on who will do the flinging for his Shoemen. The game is called for three as we said before, and no doubt large gobs of the baseball faithful will trek to Shoetown for the tilt.

• • •

Or if you like the sound of leather on leather and derive seasonal sports enjoyment from football, mosey up to the Trenton Air Station where Coach Norris' gridders take on the Oshawa Red Raiders in their second ORFU Intermediate tilt of the pigskin season. Flyers have tacked some practice under their moleskins since the Cobourg Galloping Ghosts fashioned a neat 26-0 victory at their expense and should give a real account of themselves on Saturday afternoon against the scarlet marauders from not so motory Motor City.

• • •

Sheik Emir Badul, strangely-dressed Arabian who fluttered his be-robed figure into Belleville Arena last week and proved himslf to be a powerful mat threat, comes in again tonight in the main bout against Karl Krippler Davis. The Sheik knows his wrestling, and while a little new to our Western rules, comes up with the right answers matwise.

• • •

In his mixed and broken Arabian-English the swarthy-hued grappler from far away Iraq explains that his special mission in this country is "to try gain Breeteesh Ampire Chieftainship", meaning that mat crown of Whipper Watson's. But first Emir has to overcome a very tough and perhaps insoluble problem in the ruthless Mr. Karl Davis. "I be certain I conquer him" said the Sheik and the way he spoke and the way he looked made it seem that he at least thinks so. Perhaps they don't have anyone who acts as tough as the Krippler in Iraq, but then again there have been some pretty tall stories come out of the Near East as to the mercilessness of Arab tribesmen. Tonight's main joust should give Badul every chance to test the theory of what happens when East meets West.

• • •

Bunny Dunlop will bring his two hundred and fifty pounds back to the Belleville ring against the magnificently built Mike Sharpe in the semi-final. Dunlop has been doing a spot of refereeing while his broken hand healed and claims that that job is even tougher than wrestling In the third bout Mike's brother Ben Sharpe takes on Jan Gotch who has never failed to get himself thoroughly disliked by Belleville fans.

ACCIDENTS IN WELL

Barrie, Oct. 10 —(CP)— Well trouble afflicted man and beast in two parts of Simcoe county Monday. At Stroud, farmer Fraser Sutherland, while cleaning out his well, crashed to the bottom when a rope holding him up snapped. He was taken to hospital in Toronto with a fractured skull. At Minesing, a cow fell 50 feet into a well, killing itself and cutting off the farm's water supply.

PRE-WAR STARS TO BRIGHTEN BOSTON BRUINS' LINE-UP

Veterans Will Form Nucleus of Young, New Team

This is the fifth of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of the N.H.L. clubs. Today's story covers Boston Bruins. Tomorrow: Montreal Canadiens.

By JOHN D. HAMILTON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 11—(CP)—The National Hockey League will be liberally peppered with new faces this year but Boston's rabid fans are likely to get a large shaker-full of pre-war stars.

That's because the Bruins who went to war were, on the whole, younger than those of other N. H. L. clubs. This was illustrated sharply last year when Boston, starting slow with a line-up of returned veterans, picked up velocity and ended up second to Montreal Canadiens in the standings.

Frank (Mr. Zero) Brimsek, Terry Reardon, Milt Schmidt, Bobby Bauer and Woody Dumart all served in the armed forces. But they'll be back on the icelanes this season competing with the best the circuit has to offer.

Manager Art Ross and coach Dit Clapper are non-committal about the Bruins' chances so far, but the giant Clapper says cautiously:

"You can bet we won't be the worst in the league."

31 In Training

"As a matter of fact, every club should be improved," Dit adds. "We should see some pre-war quality hockey all around the loop by mid-season. The class of the league? Well, Canadiens can't be sold short."

Ross, noted for his taciturnity throughout the hockey world, allows he will have a "fair" club and that it will be a "great race."

The Bruins have been training here with their farm club in the American Pro League, Hershey Bears, and 31 hopefuls, regulars and rookies, have turned out.

Clapper says of the old-timers:

"The Kitchener line of Schmidt, Bauer and Dumart should be all right. Joe Carveth, whom we got from Detroit, is fast and should help the club. Babe Pratt, who came to us from Toronto, looks fine but needs to lose weight. You don't have to worry about Reardon; he's a fighting kid."

As an indication of the speed with which the Bruins are progressing, the scores of pre-season tune-up matches against Hershey are a good barometer.

Last Saturday night the Bears held Boston to a 2-2 tie. On Wednesday, the Bruins played a double-header against the Bears—and won both ends, 4-1 and 11-3.

Bauer got three goals in the second game and Carveth got a pair. Pratt, former all-star defenceman with the Leafs, also figured in the scoring.

Mr. Zero in Goal

But the first game of the twin-bill was even more significant. A kid line, just up from the amateur Boston Olympics, dominated the scoring and smothered the Bears.

"Babando and Ronty are very good kids," Clapper said after the game. "Marquess, too, is very fast."

In goal, of course, it's Mr. Zero himself.

On defence there are the dependable Jack Crawford, fiery Pat Egan, Babe Pratt and Murray Henderson, all of them veterans. Clare Martin, a youngster, also has looked good in training.

Finally, there's Clapper himself, who has been playing NHL hockey for almost 20 years.

"Well, now, I just wounld't like to say about that," Dit drawls when asked about retirement.

With at least four first class forward lines, four star defencemen, an ace goalie and a few promising spares, Clapper may not find his active play is needed.

GORDON GRANT WINS Dow Award

THE DOW AWARD is a citation for outstanding heroism and includes, as a tangible expression of appreciation, a $100 Victory Bond. Winners are selected by The Dow Award Committee, a group of editors of leading Montreal daily newspapers.

A school bus rumbled along the highway near Standard, Alberta. Suddenly there were screams of terror! The bus with its 24 young occupants hurtled from the road — out of control! Ripping through a ditch, the huge vehicle rolled over twice . . . coming to rest with a sickening jolt 80 feet away — upside down!

When Gordon Grant, 11, opened his eyes he saw smoke curling from the dashboard. Pulling himself together, he fought his way through the scramble of inert bodies to the front of the bus. There he found the driver pinned by the steering wheel. Working feverishly, the boy managed to release him. The driver, although injured, was then able to sever the ignition wires and stop the fire.

Thanks to the quick thinking and cool courage of Gordon Grant, not one life was lost. We are proud to pay him tribute through the presentation of The Dow Award.

WHEN THE CARDINALS DID NOT SHIFT FOR WILLIAMS

INJURY BUGABOO FACTOR IN GRID PLAYOFF SERIES

Several Senior Clubs Heavily Crippled as Spot Games Loom Ahead

By The Canadian Press

Old man injury, the bugaboo of all football clubs, gets his big chance to wreck the playoff hopes of Canada's senior teams in this 13-game holiday weekend in which the Montreal Alouettes-Toronto Argonauts tilt, with more angles than a saw-edge, wins headline billing.

With several clubs heavily crippled already, a program that finds nine teams scheduled for two games each means more than the turkey will be laid low this Thanksgiving.

Alouettes are still smarting from the "lucky" tie the Dominion champions gained with them on opening day. Lew Hayman would probably declare an ex-dividend if his Montrealers can humble the Argo Club he piloted to three Dominion titles and a loss could just about sink Montreal's playoff hopes.

Ottawa Rough Riders, a point ahead of Montreal in the standing, takes on the winless Hamilton Tigers at Ottawa. Unless the strengthened cats can upset the dope, Alouettes need two points badly if they hope to catch the Riders for the second and last playoff spot.

The Argos, well out in front of this jockeying for position, can make it even easier to coast home Monday, when they in turn take on the Tigers at Hamilton.

That takes care of three week-end games in the interprovincial league. The 64-year-old Ontario Rugby Football Union has a bigger and just as tasty a menu with six games carded.

In the Western Canada Union, all three clubs will see action, with the big game the Saturday clash at Calgary between Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Calgary Stampeders, tied for first place. Blue Bombers go at it again Monday against the trailing Saskatchewan Rough Riders at Regina.

In the Intercollegiate Union, where the teams have no Grey Cup challenge, two Saturday tilts comprise the program. University of Western Ontario are at Kingston, against Queen's and McGill at Toronto against Varsity.

Enos "Country" Slaughter, slaming outfielder of the rampaging Red Birds from St. Loo whose early-game homer in yesterday's world series tilt started the Cards off on one of the heaviest series hitting sprees in years.

"Red" Munger, Cardinal righthander who strong-armed his way past the Boston Red Sox in that fourth game thriller yesterday while his mates were blasting six Red Sox hurlers for twenty hits and an even dozen runs.

LORNE CHABOT FORMER TORONTO GOALIE, DEAD

Was One of N.H.L.'s Outstanding Net Guardians Who Wore Colors of Five Clubs

Montreal, Oct. 11 (CP)—Lorne Chabot, a great goaler of the National Hockey League, is dead.

He died yesterday of arthritis, just five days after his 46th birthday and after an illness of more than a year.

Chabot, who wore the colors of five different clubs in the N.H.L. started his professional hockey career with New York Rangers in 1925 after starring on two Port Arthur Allen Cup winning teams. He hung up his pads in 1937 after winding up his hockey days with the now defunct New York Americans.

His best season was in 1934-35 with Chicago Black Hawks when he won the Vezina trophy, awarded annually to the goaler with the least goals scored against him. That year he was also named on the Canadian Press All-Star team.

Two incidents written into hockey records will be associated with Chabot as long as the game is played.

The first was the 1927-28 Stanley Cup series when Lester Patrick, New York Ranger manager at the time, donned the pads and shut out Montreal Maroons after Chabot had been struck in the eye by a puck shot by Nels Stewart.

Chabot needed 34 stitches to close the wound and the effects of the injury were partly responsible for his numerous switches to other teams in later years.

The other incident occurred in the Marathon game of the Stanley Cup series between Maroons and Detroit Red Wings in 1936. The game took 176 1-2 minutes to play and ended at 2.25 a.m., with Detroit winning 1-0. In the 17th minute of the sixth overtime period Mud Bruneteau snagged a pass from Hec Kilrea and rifled it past Chabot in the Maroon yet.

Sportsmen ,players and hockey managers were high in praise of Chabot when they heard of his death.

Frank Boucher, manager of the Rangers, said "the hockey world has not only lost a brilliant goalkeeper but a grand sportsman."

A former Maroon, Archie Wilcox, said "he was liked by everybody both in and out of hockey."

SPORT FALLACIES

By MARGERY MILLER

Although surf angling clubs have been organized on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, and the sport is widely indulged in, it brings remarkably poor results. Fishermen who stand on shore and cast into ocean surf get a great deal of exercise but not many fish compared to anglers who specialize in other types of fishing.

Surf casters provide themselves with equipment heavier than that used by fly casters so they can make longer casts; use up a great deal of bait; stand patiently casting for hours, and often have nothing to show for their time and effort but a sunburn. They are the kind of anglers to whom catching fish is strictly incidental.

BAG OF BONES

SLIDE THAT FAILED

Slaughter of St. Louis makes a valiant effort to hit second base in the seventh inning of the third World Series game with the Boston team. He was forced on Kurowski's infield grounder, Pesky to Doerr. The Boston team won 4-0.

CANADA UNLIMITED — The Formative Years

Scene from "Expedition Muskox"— after a painting by R. York Wilson, O.S.A., Official Government Artist to Expedition.

The Last Frontier

EXPEDITION MUSKOX. Forty-five men travelling where men had never travelled before with mechanized vehicles, shattering the white silences of the Arctic with the thunder of their passing . . . Breaking through Canada's last frontier—3,500 miles of forest, tundra, and frozen Arctic seas.

Forty-five men pushing forward day by day over the centuries-old trails of the pioneer fur traders. From Churchill to Victoria Island in the Arctic Ocean . . . to Coppermine . . . to Port Radium . . . Norman Wells . . . Fort Simpson . . . the Alaska Highway.

Names,—romantic names that so closely combine Canada's past and Canada's unlimited future. Coppermine, discovered by Samuel Hearne in 1770 . . . Port Radium, as new as tomorrow. Fort Simpson, that knew the tread of Alexander MacKenzie when he charted the route to the Arctic in 1790 . . . Norman Wells, storehouse of oil for Canada's future needs.

And the men of Expedition Muskox, they too combine the old and the new; the courage and hardihood of the pioneers with the skills and methods of the 20th century. They have shown us the ever-widening horizons of Canada Unlimited—a country young, strong, confident . . . marching forward into a new and greater era . . . into a future in which we can share in a way open to every Canadian: our purchase and holding of Victory Bonds.

DAVE CASTILLOUX LOSES THIRD TITLE TO DANNY WEBB

Former Champion Injures Hand in Early Rounds but Gamely Stays Limit

By SID THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 11 — (CP) — Fighting like a true champion, with every jab from his injured left hand stabbing him with pain, game Dave Castilloux dropped his Canadian lightweight title before the flailing fists of Danny Webb, a scrappy little Montreal Negro. Though he lost, Castilloux withstood the assault of his savage young rival and weathered the storm for the full 12 rounds last night.

Castilloux injured his hand in the early stages of the fight — he thought it was the first round — and after that was unable to land a good, solid blow, although he tried courageously in the 11th and 12th rounds when he was far behind on points and the sands were running low for him.

Castilloux, who once held the Canadian featherweight and welter titles as well as the lightweight, weighed in at 137½ and Webb at 133½. Although the defending champion was over the recognized lightweight limit of 135 pounds, the fight was staged under National Boxing Association rules which allow either fighter to come in up to 140 pounds.

Castilloux's hand was badly puffed after the fight, and it was believed he had broken a small bone when he landed a solid left jab to the challenger's head.

For the aging Castilloux, who gives his age as 30 but who is believed to be pushing well along in the 30's, it was just about the end of the trail. He was forced to resign his feather title when he grew past the weight limit, and lost his welter title last Aug. 28 before the bruising fists of Montreal's Johnny Greco.

The old champion carried the fight to his 26-year-old rival in the fourth round and pinned him with some solid blows, but lost the round for hitting low.

But from then on it was just the case of a game old campaigner holding on desperately while his eager young rival moved in for the kill.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

Boston, Oct. 11 — (AP)—Now that the Cardinals have squelched that "minor league" talk they've been hearing ever since the All-star game, you can begin looking forward to quite a tussle when the real minors stage their annual get-together in December . . . the minors may stage a rebellion against big league domination through the commissioner's office, according to one man who knows his way around the minors, if Judge W. G. Bramham decides to retire as head of the National Association . . . the judge hasn't given any real hint so far, but our informant believes Bramham will step down if the Association requests it and that many of the Association members believe the guy who led them through hard times deserves a rest at $10,000 a year . . . the catch is that the big major league 'chain gang' operators might get together to handpick a successor. And in that case the judge might get his dander up and refuse to resign, or the numerous small leagues might find a leader who would take them on an entirely independent course.

Back Bay Breezes

When Enos Slaughter clouted that homer for the Cards yesterday, he probably jogger around the bases humming: "I've Been Working for the Railroad." . . . Slaughter drove the ball into the stands and he drove several thousand dollars into the coffers of the common carriers . . . The day's most obvious crack came when the public address system revealed that Bobby Doerr had retired from the game because of a severe headache. All the Red Sox must have had a terrific headache by that time.

SPORTS FALLACIES
By MARGERY MILLER

Many followers of the track believe that champion horses demand and receive special or unusual care and feeding. Actually the champions do not.

Horses are temperamental animals, but in general the best ones are comparatively stable, gentle and easy to handle. They eat regularly the type of food thoroughbred trainers are in the habit of offering their charges — hay of various kinds; oats, crushed and whole; mash mixtures and of oats, bran, corn, and carrots, and of course, grass.

Champion horses have no more peculiarities or quirks of nature than do most equines. Their greatness is neither the cause nor the result of special care.

POISON TYPES

There are two basic types of snake poison, one of which attacks the victim's nervous system, the other the blood cells.

World Series Notes

By JOE REICHLER

Boston, Oct. 11 — (AP) — A rookie catcher Joe Garagiola, who with four straight hits and three runs batted in, played a prominent role in the Redbirds' 20-hit attack, almost didn't get into yesterday's game.

Only an hour before the start of the game, Garagiola was receiving hot towel applications on his bruised left shoulder where he was hit by a foul tip from Bobby Doer's bat in the fourth inning of Wednesday's game.

"It interfered with my swinging," said Joe, "but gee, I'm glad it's my left shoulder and not my throwing arm."

Tris Speaker, former baseball great, who possessed a powerful whip of his own, said the Enos Slaugher's long throw home from deep right field to catch Rudy York in the sixth inning was one of the best he has ever seen in world series play.

Jim Bagby, who relieved starter Tex Hughson in the Cards' 3-run third inning, is a son of the World Series hero of the same name. Jim Sr., a 31-game winner in Cleveland's championship 1920 season, turned in a winning effort against Brooklyn Dodgers in the World Series.

Boston, Oct. 11 — (AP) — It doesn't matter whether St. Louis Cardinals or Boston Red Sox win the World Series, the players' share will be the lowest since the war series of 1918 between the Red Sox and Chicago Cubs.

With Cardinals dividing the money into 34 shares and the Red Sox into 41 (highest in history), a total of less than $4,000 per player is assured.

With $304,141.25 set aside for the players — 60 per cent of the gross receipts of the first four games after the commissioner's share has been deducted — the winning share of each Cardinal player will amount to $3,736.45. Should the Red Sox win, each Boston player would receive $3,098.52.

No World Series split in the last 28 years has failed to net the winning players less than $4,000 apiece.

In fact, only five times since 1910, when the series began taking on big proportions, have winning players cashed in a lesser prize than this year.

The small size of the two parks — Sportsman's Park seats 34,006 and Fenway Park 32,000 — is the big reason for the small shares. Another is the loss of the $175,000 radio broadcasting fee, which appears certain to be put into the players' pension fund.

Should the Cards win, the Red Sox' losing share will be only $2,094.14.

A Red Sox victory would net each Cardinal player $2,525.28, the lowest since each losing Brooklyn player drew down $2,419.60 in the 1920 World Series.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

When Coach Frank Boucher decided to alternate two goalies during the course of play as his New York Rangers hobbled along in the National Hockey League cellar last season, there was plenty of criticism from the fans, some of whom also thought it unfair that one club should hold two topflight netmen.

But the heckling never bothered Boucher and the logic of his judgment may pay off early in the current campaign. Just after he'd named Chuck Rayner as his starter, the goalie stopped a puck with his nose in practice at Winnipeg and suffered fractures in two places.

How long Rayner will be on the sidelines is questionable but Jim Henry, other half of the Rangers' net duo, will see duty for the "important" series with Chicago Black Hawks in Winnipeg Friday and Saturday. The Blueshirts are most anxious to trim the Hawks because they figure it was preseason drubbings aministered by Chicago set them off on the wrong foot last year.

Conn Smythe is always coming up with surprises in Toronto Maple Leafs camp but he hit the jackpot when he announced at St. Catharines camp that Harry Watson would play left wing instead of defence. This move followed weeks of ballyhoo which labelled the former Detroit Red Wing forward as the savior of a wobbly Toronto defence set-up.

As though the Leafs were not taking their share of injuries, they sent defenceman Bob Goldman off to bed with an infected throat. He won't see action when the leafs tackle Buffalo Bisons in an exhibition affair Saturday.

Out west it's getting to be a habit for minor leaguers to down N.H.L. clubs. Kansas City Pla-Mors started the fad by trimming Chicago Black Hawks and last night New Haven Ramblers edged out their parent club, New York Rangers 4-3.

DRIVER EXONERATED

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—Murray Boyce, 32-year-old transport driver, Wednesday was found innocent of manslaughter by an assize jury trying him on charges arising out of the death of Harvey Mathews, fatally hurt when Boyce's 14-ton truck smashed into a street car at mid-town intersection here last May 3. Testimony had shown the truck's brakes failed and it rolled down a slope on Bathurst Street into the car moving across the intersection of Bloor Street.

MAN ÇAN TAKE IT

Brisbane, Australia (CP)—Men çan stand high temperatures much better than animals, says Prof. D. H. K. Lee, after sweltering three university students and four cows for periods during 15 days in a hot box up to 110 degrees. The students lost one pound an hour in the hot chamber but put it on again during the hours spent outside.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Washington, Oct. 11 (CP) — Hugh Dalton, British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and John Snyder, Treasurer Secretary, had a quiet talk here the other day and, according to most reliable report, did a little weeping on each other's shoulders.

Their mutual plaint was something like this:

"A few months ago we were taxing the pants off our people and going on short rations in order to kill Germans, Japs and Italians.

"Now we are taxing the pants off our people and going on short rations in order to keep Germans, Japs and Italians alive and healthy."

The report does not indicate which minister first saw this aspect of the futility of world wars. The stocky Missourian who came out of the obscurity of a small town bank in the president's home state to take one of the highest cabinet posts, is more or less feeling his way along the paths of international dealings.

Hugh Dalton, tall, urbane and genial veteran of international politics, has few illusions left but the thought of his unpleasant duty of bleeding the taxpayers to help former enemies hurt him.

They agreed that it would be no more than just if the neutral countries which suffered only minor annoyances from the war and made money from both sides, kicked in a reasonable amount to help rehabilitate the vanquished.

Their meeting was incidental to the meeting here of the combined Boards of Governors of the International Bank of Reconstruction and Development, and the International Monetary Fund. Mr. Synder was chairman and Mr. Dalton said he was a good one. The meeting ended two days ahead of time. The boards elected Mr. Dalton chairman for the ensuing year.

Fiorello H. Laguardia, Director General of U.N.R.R.A., on a radio program, asked retiring Canadian Ambassador L. B. "Mike" Pearson if Canada could send some meat to the United States. Among other things Mike told him Canada's surplus meat went where it was needed more than in the United States.

A Nice Gesture

Toronto, Oct. 11 (CP) — An incurable Halifax paralytic, whose hitherto remote dream of seeing the Toronto Maple Leafs in action will come true, is indirectly responsible for a plan whereby both civilian and war veteran paraplegics will be guests of the Maple Leaf Gardens this season.

The scheme started when someone showed Manager Conn Smythe of the Gardens a newspaper clipping telling of the desire of Joe Al-Molky to see the Leafs play. It turned out that Joe was a helpless cripple who had organized a baseball and hockey team in the congested area in which he lived, and despite the fact that the only means of locomotion was a child's wagon pulled through the streets by friends he had managed and coached the team himself.

"Why can't he see the Leafs play" was Smythe's comment. "We'll bring him here as our guest. And why couldn't we make it possible to bring wounded war veterans from all over Canada to see Leaf games Saturday nights."

Things happened fast after that. The Canadian Paraplegic Association took over details of the scheme, and worked out plans by which heads of municipalities will select three war veteran and one civilian paralysis case each month. Expenses, including transportation and a four-day stay in Toronto will be borne by the Gardens and each visitor will be the guest of the Paraplegic Association, during his stay.

PENICILLIN AIDS CATTLE

London (CP)—Britain's minister of supply has announced that by arrangement with the ministry of agriculture and fisheries, penicillin is to be made available for use by veterinary surgeons in the treatment of bovine mastitis and other diseases of dairy cattle.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You may not like our bridge so well, says Elva Tyme's relations. But you should hear the way we tell about our operations. Incisions we discuss with pride until somebody itches to hold a contest to decide who has the longest stitches.

The main purpose of party bridge is the sociability. They even change partners so more gossip can be exchanged. Of course, some poor bridge is played. But the eats are usually good.

Party bridge is more concerned with amenities than with playing rules. Legal procedure is often abandoned for acts that seem more adaptable to the group. Some wierd practices are thus added.

In rubber bridge, if all four players pass without a bid, it is considered one deal. The deal then passes to the next player. Even though no points are gained or lost by either side.

Some party bridge groups ignore that law. They do not call it a deal if all four players pass without a bid. A new shuffle and deal is by the same dealer as if the preceding deal never happened.

Some groups go even farther. Even if a bid has been made, they call it no deal if the bid is only one. All of which comes under the head of ungood bridge method.

It does not lend itself to the best efforts in each deal. It gives a schemer the advantage of passing fair openings until he gets a whopper hand. It is unfair to others playing for the prize.

In a recent party session, a player dealt several times until he got a hand like this:

♠ A K Q 7 5 3 2
♥ A K J
♦ A
♣ A Q

At such parties, also, a player does not deduct from his score when defeated. So, with nothing to lose, he bid a grand slam. He made it and won the hand painted whatnot.

Some have eyes for nothing but the prize.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 11 (AP)—Cameras were still grinding and stars were still glittering in front of them today as the Hollywood labor battle entered its third week. Film making has been slowed, but not stopped.

It is apparent that although not all studio jobs are being done, the "stuff" is getting on celluloid. And that's what pays off.

Selznick has postponed two epics, but most of the other studios are plodding along. How much new production can be started is problematical, although two films, a maisie picture and the expensive "Forever Amber" got the starting gun this week.

The actors, seem to be more concerned about the studio strife than any of the other workers. Some performers are even sleeping at their studios.

The Screen Actors Guild has instructed its members to pass the picket lines, but most of them do so reluctantly, some fearful of their personal safety.

At Jerry Wald's opening at the Palladium Frank Sinatra made his first public appearance since his break-up with his wife . . . Henry Fodna was bitten in the eye by an insect resulting in the temporary shutting down of production in the "A Time to Kill" set, costing thousands of dollars. . Joel McCrea and Frances Dee made one of their rare public appearances at the "Inspector General" opening at actor's lab. The show is below lab par . . . Esther Williams retires for several months after making underwater shots for "This Time For Keeps."

In the film palaces . . . "Angel on My Shoulder' 'is the most effective movie fantasy in a long time. It concerns the devil and his desire to raise a little hell on earth.

CHAPTER 26

"I knew today," Isabel said, that I am your wife—that everything else doesn't matter. We're knitted to each other, Dennis, forever and ever. And having said that," she added quietly, leaning her head back against the cushion behind her, "there's nothing more to say. We — we mustn't see each other again."

"No, I suppose not," Dennis agreed slowly.

"It'll only be—like this if we see each other, you know," Isabel said, her head thrown back and her eyes closed. "Only it will get harder and harder."

"Yes,—I know what you mean," Dennis answered, in a hurried, reluctant voice. "Today—I had no intention—I wasn't conscious of thinking it out all day. I just —well, I was on my way here. And as I got nearer, it seemed to me that my heart would burst."

The phrase was commonplace enough, but not when it came from him. Not even in the days of their courtship had Isabel heard Dennis talk in this way.

"Yes, I know, yes, I know," she said, feeling her breath come short. Suddenly she was on her feet; she laid her arm, in its tissue draperies, along the low mantel, and rested her forehead against it, Dennis looked steadily at the fire.

"What can we do now, Dennis?" Isabel asked.

"I don't know. I don't know," he said in an almost absent voice In the silence Yeats discreetly entered and unobtrusively announced dinner.

During the meal they had necessarily to talk with Yeats in mind. Isabel drew from Dennis the story of his experiences in Guadalcanal and at the engineering bases on the various islands. The meal was flawless; to Isabel an everyday affair, and not one of the things that would especially impress Dennis. Like all men, he liked the table service to be pleasant and inconspicuous; the magnificent silver candlesticks that flanked a silver bowl in the centre heaped high with transparent crystal fruit meant nothing to him, nor the heavy napkins, the bouillon cups in gold and black, the crab meat cooked in wine and cream, the crisp little sizzling squabs served on beds of brown wild rice.

He ate with appetite, but with complete indifference to detail; food was food, and he was talking to Isabel again. Her interest, her glowing eyes and half-parted lips, her eager encouragement of all he had to say were making this an hour of complete enchantment to them both, and however inadequate he felt himself as a narator and however monosyllabic her words of comment, Isabel was conscious of a deep inner sense of rightness and peace. She and Dennis could talk without restraint; they knew each other through and through.

When they went back to the library the replenished fire was a deep bed of glowing coals, and Dennis said that he must go.

"They'll bring coffee in here," Isabel countered, almost absently. She sat down beside the low table on one side of the fire, and Dennis, after a moment's hesitation, took the chair opposite her. She looked up at him, smiling, when he came across to get his cup.

"Just the marriage ceremony, with the flowers and bridesmaids and primroses, isn't marriage, Dennis, is it?"

"No. One might forget that," he said.

"And the ceremony I went through with Avery—making new promises, having just broken old ones—what a farce it is!"

Isabel was not speaking to him, she was thinking aloud, and Dennis made no answer. He set down his coffee cup and resumed his study of the fire.

"Marriage is that long process of melting into each other, body and soul," Isabel mused on. "The growing familiar—the growing so comfortably at ease!—with each other."

"Having had that once, I think perhaps it never comes again," he said, looking at her now.

"No, never again. And we had it. We belonged to each other—in all the trouble—all the fun—all the sacredness of being one instead of two."

"Oh, a woman, too— a woman, too," Isabel said. "I remember the way we planned together, Dennis," she went on. "You with a pencil and an account book, and I with a lot of tumbled bills and lists before me—in that little dining room in the Sacramento Street house."

"I don't remember that you ever had bills."

"Oh yes—receipts and vouchers and things. Don't you remember that I used to write down 'old woman in street' so much and so much, when I couldn't make things balance?"

He looked at her gravely, looked away again.

"I remember the night Pussy was born, when you came creeping in—was it two o'clock?—and said I've just seen your little girl,' and they seemed to me the most wonderful words I ever heard."

"You were worried about her hands."

"Feet. I don't know why, I was dopy, I suppose. I said "Are her feet all there?"

"And I went home to Mother's and slept seven hours."

"Remember your mother's face when we told her she was to be Mary?"

"You were always—you are always good to my mother," he said with a little effort.

"Your mother has always been like a real mother to me. Dennis," Isabel broke off to say, with a puzzled half smile fighting a half frown on her face, "isn't this a strange talk for us to be having —you and I? Like a dream. Like a nightmare."

"War." he offered, briefly.

"No, no, it wasn't the war. It was that I didn't understand, either what you and the children meant to me, or what I myself meant—what the values were, what I was destroying. And now—now Dennis," Isabel finished, laying her hand on her heart, "it's all here—the ache of it, the futility of it—and it will always be here."

Dennis stirred restlessly, felt in his pocket, in the way she so well remembered, for his pipe, clasped his hands again.

"It won't always be so bad—it can't be," he said.

"Smoke if you want to, Dennis."

She got his quick grave smile, and he took out his pipe and the familiar leather pouch and pressed the tobacco into the bowl without moving his eyes from the fire.

"We have to go on from here," he said.

"Yes, and it won't always be so bad."

"I shall always—be grateful to Madge," Dennis began slowly. "I shall always feel that— when she turned to me—I needed her, too."

Isabel put her cup on the tray and pushed the low table away; she sat back in the high brocaded chair and laid her arms against the arms of the chair, her fingers grasping the carved dragons' heads that finished them. Dennis pulled steadily on his pipe. He did not look at her.

"She had lost everything. Perhaps, even for her, it wasn't — quite the real thing—"

She stopped short. The man spoke as if he had not heard her.

"She was very lonely," he said. "She—she says she needed a man —someone to—hold on to, or she would have gone mad. I think we straightened each other out. Madge was in a bad way—I was too. At first—" He hesitated. 'But that wasn't fair to her," he said, answering some thought of his own. "So we were married."

"She threw herself at him, she was hungry for a husband, perhaps she let him in for the whole thing and then reproached him—he doesn't love her," Isabel's thoughts ran swiftly. Aloud she said: 'But you do love her, Dennis?" and immediately, not waiting for any answer, she added, "But that doesn't matter now, does it? You're married and I'm married. There's nothing more to say. Except—"

Suddenly she got to her feet. She came across to his chair and moved a hassock against his knee. Dropping upon it, with her linked hands laid on his, she looked up into the face so near her own. Her sweetness, in the sweeping dress whose deep neckline showed the rise of her bosom and the golden firmness of her throat, was very close. Her eyes burned and shone like sapphires.

"Except this, Dennis," she said. "I've been an awful fool, I know it now."

"I was a fool, too. You were too much alone. I followed my own ambition," he interrupted, in a thickened voice. "I never forgot how beautiful you are, I never loved anyone else. But once you were mine you seemd mine forever. I never doubted it! If you think I have anything to forgive, Isabel—my God, you have things to forgive, too!"

"I developed too slowly," Isabel said. "I look back only half a dozen years and think how blind I was, how much in the dark! I loved you when we were married—I'd had other admirers, you were the only one I liked. But it was only liking, then, it was curiosity and affection and wanting to be married and enjoying the idea of living in a real city. Oh, darling, I couldn't have married anyone who wasn't attractive to me, but what did I know about love? I loved the excitement and the presents and the new name! I loved the our little four rooms out on Sacramento Street—and then, when I was so miserable before Pussy came, I loved your getting up in the black early mornings and bringing me tea—"

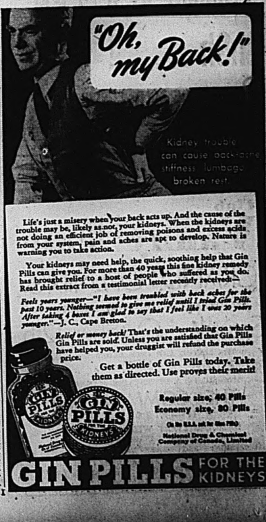
Conscription in China Resumed on Chiang's Order

Nanking, Oct. 10 — (AP)—The Chinese Military Bureau announced that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek had issued country-wide instructions for the resumption of military conscription, effective today.



"Oh, my Back!"

Life's just a misery when your back acts up. And the cause of the trouble may be, likely as not, your kidneys. When the kidneys are not doing an efficient job of removing poisons and excess acids from your system, pain and aches are apt to develop. Nature is warning you to take action.

Your kidneys may need help, the quick, soothing help that Gin Pills can give you. For more than 40 years this fine kidney remedy has brought relief to a host of people who suffered as you do. Read this extract from a testimonial letter recently received:—

Feels years younger—"I have been troubled with back aches for the past 10 years. Nothing seemed to give me relief until I tried Gin Pills. After taking 4 boxes I am glad to say that I feel like I was 20 years younger."—J. C., Cape Breton.

Relief or money back! That's the understanding on which Gin Pills are sold. Unless you are satisfied that Gin Pills have helped you, your druggist will refund the purchase price.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Oct. 11 —(CP)— The industrial stocks registered a sharp advance, led by the paper issues in the second and third hour. At noon, the industrials were up 1.52 in the index, trailed by the base metals holding a gain of .77. Other groups had smaller advances. The turnover continued comparatively light at 503,000 shares for the first three hours.

Gains of 1 to 3 points were boarded by the papers, including International, Great Lakes, Minnesota and Ontario, Donnacona, Consolidated and the Abitibi issues on a report that a new advance for newsprint was in the offing.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 11 — (AP) — The recovery drive was resumed in today's stock market although momentum was lacking. Dealings tapered after a fairly active opening and extreme gains running to three or more points were reduced in most cases near the 4th hour.

Canadians were mixed at midday. Dome Mines dropped 5/8 and Hiram Walker 1/2. Distillers Seagram gained 1/8 and Canadian Pacific 1/2.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

London, Oct. 10 — (Reuters)— Father Gassman, a priest described as administrator of the Franciscan Monastery in Celovec, Serbia, was sentenced to death by hanging on charges of having been a war criminal, Gestapo spy and traitor, Prague radio reported Wednesday.

He pleaded guilty before a peoples court in Celovec, the broadcast claimed.

Historic Estate of Col. Talbot May Become Memorial Park

Port Talbot, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—The "castle" and estate of one of the most storied figures in the history of Upper Canada—pioneer colonist Col. Thomas Talbot—may become a provincial memorial park on Lake Erie's shore midway between Windsor and Fort Erie—or may be disposed of publicly and broken into lots.

Women's Institutes in this part of Western Ontario are urging provincial authorities to purchase the land and preserve it for the sake of its historical associations. At Toronto, Provincial Secretary Roland Michener says the government will consider purchase of the land—now for sale—and reach a decision by next month.

Owner C. A. Pfeffer of Detroit—who has expressed the hope the property may be sold as a unit to some organization which will preserve it—says it will go on sale at public auction if it is not disposed of to the government or a historical society by November.

Interest Aroused

Interest has been aroused in the property and its landmarks by the near-fabulous character and career of Col. Talbot—scion of a noted Irish family who came to the new world a century and a half ago ambitious to become a great land-owner and colonist.

Descendants of one of the barons who fought at Hastings in the army of William the Conqueror, Col. Talbot was born at Malahide, Ireland, and served as an ensign in the British army at the age of 12. From 1784 to 1787 he was associated with another young officer, Arthur Wellesley—later the Duke of Wellington, victor at Waterloo.

Three years later young Talbot was transferred to the garrison at Quebec and in 1791 was attached to the staff of Sir John Simcoe, first Lieutenant-Governor of Upper Canada. As Sir John's confidential secretary he travelled extensively throughout the country surrounding the Great Lakes. His favorite section was this area and in 1803 he gained a charter from the crown to colonize it.

Opinions differ as to the Colonel's success as a colonizezr but old records indicate settlers came slowly at first but finally as a swelling stream—men and women eager for a home for themselves and their children in a land of opportunity, often with the necessity of privation and danger in building the home.

Prestige Waned

As the settlement grew, Col. Talbot's prestige in the area waned. Settlers complained his schemes of development were antiquated and unimaginative, his temperament domineering, his politics repressive. He won popularity when he commanded the London district forces in the War of 1812 but lost it when he opposed the reform movement of 1837.

By 1850 the lonely, gruff old Colonel who had never married signed his 1,300-acre estate over to a nephew and went to Britain for a visit. When he returned next year he found strangers in control of the land. He lived his last years in London and died there in 1853

The land eventually was bought in 1925 by Mr. Pfeffer who planned to convert it into a gigantic summer resort. The depression prevented that plan and Mr. Pfeffer's interest now is in having the site preserved as a memorial.

16-Room Home

Still standing on it is Col. Talbot's "castle"—a 16-room frame house built of the most solid materials available in the early part of the 19th century. The low, spreading architecture makes the house appear to be huddling against the hillside in defence against winds sweeping in from property's 7,000-foot waterfront. To one side stands a lodge for the guests of Col. Talbot. The story goes that he would permit none but his most intimate friends into his own home.

Whatever his faults, the Colonel left his mark on this section of the province. St. Thomas, the city that grew up a few miles from the spot where he landed in 1803, bears his Christian name; Talbot Road extends through St. Thomas to Amherstberg on the west to Delhi on the east; the county court house in London is patterned after his birthplace; a hotel, a creek, two towns—Talbotville and Port Talbot—a show, a cigar and innumerable children have been named after him.

The remains of Col. Talbot lie in St. Peter's cemetery at nearby Tyrconnell, a few miles west of the land where he once lived and ruled like an uncrowned king.

MORE FALL WHEAT SOWN

Brantford, Oct. 10 (CP)—This has been a good farm year in Brant county. James Moore, agricultural representative reports the amount of pasturage is above average for this time of year, more acres of fall wheat have been planted than usual and livestock is in good condition.

NOW IT'S WATER SHORTAGE

Clarksburg, Oct. 10 (CP)—The country around here is in need of water, and more water. The shortage is being felt by fruit growers, wells and cisterns are low, and several mills in the district have been forced to shut down, owing to the low level of the Bever River.

Tighten Up On Border Crossing by Canadians

Detroit, Oct. 11 —(AP)— E. E. Adcock, district immigration director here, said yesterday he had ordered a "tightening up" on admission of Canadians to the United States, because "more than 100" have crossed the border illegally to join the United States army in recent months. The situation came to light Tuesday, he said, when 18 Canadians were detained by immigration officers in a Toledo, Ohio, railroad station as they waited for a train for Cleveland, where they were to be inducted. They are still in custody, he added.

CARDINAL CRITICIZES

Nottingham, Eng., Oct. 11 —(CP)— Bernard Cardinal Griffin last night criticized the press, radio and movies for what he called — attacks on family life and the dignity of marriage. "Sensationalism and free love are too often featured," he said.

640 lb. Wrestler Poses Problem For Airliners

Denver, Oct. 10 — (AP)—A decision by Maurice Levy, 640 pounds of professional wrestler, to fly from Denver to Grand Junction, Colo., poised an engineering problem for Western Airlines. Airline employees here said they had to communicate with their engineers in Burbank, Calif., before putting Levy on the reservation list. "They told us to seat him in front of the plane, to remove a chair arm so he could sit on two seats, and to get him an extra wide safety belt," a ticket agent reported.

Little Hope is Held For Man Tied in Barn

Sudbury, Oct. 11 —(CP)— Hospital authorities yesterday said they held little hope for the recovery of Charles Woods, middle-aged farmer of Carnarvon township, two miles from Minemoya, on Manitoulin Island, who was found Wednesday night in his barn, tied and badly beaten. Provincial Police are scouring the countryside in a search for two unknown men reported seen in the district near Woods' farm shortly after dark Wednesday. Mrs. Woods told police that she found her husband in the barn when she set out to search for him after he was missing.

Strikers Accept Terms in Welland Labor Dispute

Welland, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Plans were being speeded today for resumption of operations at the Electro-Metallurgical Company plant, following decision last night by strikers to accept terms of settlement of the three-month-old strike.

Approximately 1,300 workers were involved in the strike which began July 8, when the company refused to meet demands of the United Electrical Workers (C.I.O.) for a 25-cents-an-hour wage increase for all employees and a 40-hour week.

The terms of settlement, drawn up at a meeting Thursday between provincial labor minister Daly and company and union officials, included granting of a 13-cents-an-hour increase and shift bonuses of three and five-cents-an-hour respectively for the two night shifts. Increases will be retroactive to June 8.

There is no change from the 48-hour-week which was in force when the strike was called. The workers will have time and a half for seven statutory holidays.

The decision to return to work on Tuesday was made by unanimous vote of 550 workers. Normal operations are expected to be attained in three weeks or one month.

Industry and Commerce Must Take Lead

Niagara Falls, Ont., Oct. 11 — (CP) — Canadian industry and commerce must take the lead in campaigning for labor legislation, J. C. Adams, general counsel of the Central Ontario Industrial Relations Institute, said yesterday. Addressing the annual meeting of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association, he said new labor legislation is pending in Canada and industry must present its case to the government and the people if it is to be protected "from its enemies within and without the confines of industry itself."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 12—(CP)—Synopsis: Friday, cold air spread over all but the southeastern part of Ontario. The advance of cold air was accompanied by rain which continues over the eastern part of Southern Ontario this morning. A small area of low pressure which developed along the leading edge of the cold air is presently centred south of Lake Ontario and moving northeastward about 25 mph. This will cause prolongation of rain in southeastern Ontario during the day today. North of Lake Superior snowshowers continue but are expected to diminish today as the deep centre of low pressure now over southern Hudson Bay continues northeastward. Temperatures will be to 15 degrees lower today than they were Friday and cool cloudy weather will persist through Sunday with improvement Monday. Frost is expected in most parts of southern Ontario tonight.

Demand Grows For Psychiatric Services

Ottawa, Oct. 12 (CP)—An increasing demand for psychiatric services was reported yesterday at the annual conference on mental health sponsored by the Health Department.

Dr. C. G. Stogdill, chief of the Mental Health Division was chairman and Dr. G. F. Davidson, Deputy Minister of National Welfare, emphasized the part played by mental health in the field of social welfare.

Mental Health Commissioners from all provinces attended the conference and representatives were also present from the Department of Veterans Affairs and from the National Mental Health Committee.

The need for trained psychiatric personnel was emphasized in all discussions. Approximately 51,000 patients are under treatment in mental hospitals it was stated, and more are needed in the broader field of mental illness prevention.

Several provinces reported work underway in this connection through mental health clinics but the difficulty of gettting trained staff, not only psychiatrists but also psychologists and social welfare workers was constantly reiterated.

A committee was appointed to study requirements in regard to psychiatric training, research and preventive work in Canada.

Members discussed the means of propagating mental health information and it was resolved to ask the National Committee on Mental Health to communicate with the Provincial Departments in connection with motion picture censorship. It was felt that many pictures gave a misconception of true psychiatric aims and practice.

Missing Boy Walks Back

Kirkland Lake, Oct. 12 — (CP) —Missing from his home for more than 24 hours, eight-year-old Ray Tuisku of Kirkland Lake calmly walked back into town yesterday to inform searchers that he spent the night in a bush shack.

The youth had sought adventure in woodland surrounding the community causing police to organize a search party. Just as the search got underway, Tuisku returned. It was his third such escapade.

RUSSIAN PEOPLE DO NOT TALK WAR SAYS GILMORE

Are More Interested In Football And In Living Problems Of The Moment

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Oct. 12 (AP)—Returning to Russia after five months' absence, one is immediately struck by the startling difference in what people are talking about abroad and what they're discussing here.

In the United States it was the Third Great War, fear of it and a definite pessimism about the prospects of peace.

In Britain it was war and far off war but to somewhat less extent than in the United States.

In Sweden and Finland, while war was not the uppermost topic for talk, it was still high on the list of subjects for conversation.

In Russia there is little or no talk about war, certainly no expressed fear of it. The question of burning interest at the moment is football.

The Russians I've talked to — and they include officials— are stratled at these reports from abroad.

"Why a war?" they ask with genuine amazement.

"Well," I replied, "people are talking about it and there are many of them who are actually afraid we'll have one."

"With whom?" they ask.

"With Russia," I have told them.

"But why, why does anyone in the world think Russia could possibly be interested in war?" they persist. "Can't you see here all about you there's no thought of war, no mention of it?"

Truthfuly and(factually one must agree with his Russian friends — not only is there no talk about war — there is great talk about peace,, about gigantic plans for the future, about better living conditions, about new jobs, about new clothes, apartments and furniture and prospects of getting them — but above all about football.

From 50,000 to 65,000 spectators are turning out daily in Moscow's Dynamo Stadium. The radio and newspapers carry the details of each contest to every corner of this vast country.

Exploring beyond this seasonal interest, one comes to these conclusions:

There are no' signs of war jitters here.

There is every indication of peace and long-term plans for peace.

Russia is getting back on her feet after a terrible war — but slowly, for she was grievously hurt and her land, broad and long, contains 190,000,000 people.

There is more conviction that there exists an organizzed effort to gang up by vote and declaration against the U.S.S.R.

There is more confidence than I have ever seen before in Russia by Russians—confidence in the government and the men at its head.

There is an after-war soul-searching, a self-examination of national life, wrongly interpreted in some quarters abroad as an internal weakness. It is not this at all but the fact that Russia now has more time to look after things that she had not time for during the war.

PROSPECTOR OVERDUE

Fort St. John, B.C., Oct. 12 — (CP)— The legendary "Headless Valley" of the South Nahanni may have claimed another victim, a seeker of gold in the country of "wierd, wailing winds" in the Northwest Territories. John Patterson, 55-year-old veteran prospector, now is six weeks overdue at Watson Lake, Yukon where he was to have met his partner, Frank M. Henderson, Sept. 5. An air search is planned.

Duke and Duchess of Windsor Back Together in England First Since '39

London, Oct. 12 (CP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor were back in London together today for the first time since 1939. They expect to spend a month visiting before going to the United States.

The Duke and Duchess, who arrived late yesterday from Paris, are guests at the picturesque Sunningdale estate of their friend, Lord Dudley, near famous Epsom Downs.

"We are staying here until Nov. 6, when we leave, I hope, for the United States," the 52-year-old Duke told reporters.

"We shall be seeing Mr. Attlee and Mr. Churchill and hope to make a number of visits to London."

London's newspapers greeted the Duke's return with prominent picture displays.

The Daily Express carried on its front page a four-column picture of the couple stepping ashore at Dover from the ship that brought them across the channel.

Canada's Behind Scenes Work at Conference Has Been Extensive

By ROSS MUNRO

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Paris, Oct. 12 (CP Cable) —Although Canada's part in the Paris Peace Conference has been unspectacular in public, her delegation probably has done more work behind the scenes than in open meetings.

By private negotiations Canada sought to facilitate the progress of the conference in its attempts to reach an agreement on treaties.

Frequently throughout the conference Canadian delegates privately met leading representatives of western countries, and some Slav nations, to advance compromise solutions on tough subjects.

But it inevitably was a stony path to travel. Prime Minister Mackenzie King devoted a good deal of his time here to talking over conference questions with other delegations in a conciliatory mood.

Health Minister Brooke Claxton, who succeeded Mr. King as leader of the Canadian delegation; Dana Wilgress, Canadian Ambassador to the U.S.S.R., and others carried on this policy.

Other delegations were naturally working along this line too but Canada seemed to be one of the most active among the mediators.

However, even with her backstage work and public utterances, Canada did not emerge from the conference as a leader of the middle and small powers as some observers thought would be likely early in the conference.

If any country tried to give this lead it was Australia but even she did not win the support she felt she warranted for her avalanche of amendments

In fact, there did not seem to be any real leader of the 17 invited countries. This was not a conference which made for leadership of the middle and small states. They either voted with the western group or with the Slav Bloc right down the line.

Canada, without exception, voted with the western powers.

Some observers here were disappointed that Canada did not play a more prominent public part in view of the new importance most countries recognize she now holds in the world as a supplying country, one with plenty of foreign exchange, and as a result of her war record.

But the Canadian role throughout the conference was one of restraint and conciliation. She made few speeches, no glaring blunders and she did not press her views persistently on any subject apart from a few economic clauses of the Italian treaty in which she was particularly interested.

Canada followed the general policy of taking a broad interest in all treaties but not biting off more than she could chew. She also recognized the limitations of the conference and the fact that the Big Four hold all the cards in the writing of the final treaties.

A limiting factor in her participation was her small 10-member delegation which carried a heavy burden, especially during the hectic day and night work of the commission's last wek.

Canada did not share in any of the violent disputes which rocked the conference and for the most part the Dominion delegation made constructive, rather than partisan or inflammatory, speeches. This won her considerable respect from other delegations, including, it seems fair to say, some Slav nations.

As far as relations with Russia go, they certainly have not suffered as a result of the conference. No one can say for certain that they improved although some members of the Canadian delegation believe they have.

There is this one fact for what it is worth:

When Mr. Claxton, Mr. Wilgress and Lt.-Col. Maurice Pope, military members of the Canadian delegation, lunched at the Russian Embassy with a group of other delegates, they were cordially received by V. M. Molotov, Russia's foreign minister, Andrei Vishinsky, Mr. Molotov's deputy, and others. Mr. Vishinsky, particularly, was genial and friendly.

BUSH WORKERS STRIKE IS CALLED IN NORTH AREAS

How Many of 12,000 Men in Camps Are Affected is Unknown

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CSP)— A strike which may affect all bush operations in the vast Northern Ontario districts of Cochrane and Thunder Bay and stretch down into Algoma began at midnight.

So far it is not known how many of the 12,000 men employed in camps in the districts, have joined the walkout. Sources here said that this may not be known until next week because of lack of communications with most of the camps, in remote areas.

W. A. Delahaye, of the Ontario Forest Industries Association, speaking for the operators, said today the employers are not certain of the issues. He said that in the northeastern part of Northern union had not presented its demands to any of the companies.

Earlier this week a spokesman for the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (A.F.L.) said the men wanted a $5 a day minimum wage, union recognition and improved living and working conditions.

Mr. Delahaye said wages were based largely on piece work rates and that an average workman made $7 a day with more skilled men making up to $10.

He said the companies planned to have 20,000 men in the bush in the next few weeks, with winter operations just ready to hit their stride.

In calling the strike, the union rejected an appeal from Labor Minister Daley for a postponement pending mediation by a conciliator from his Department.

It is believed here that the halt in pulpwood cutting, chief job in most of the affected camps, may not be felt in terms of newsprint production until next year. Newsprint and pulp mills normally have enough pulpwood on hand to carry them through winter operations. Wood cut in winter is driven down rivers and streams for shipment to mills in spring for use the following summer, fall and winter.

Minister's Statement

Mr. Daley said in a statement released yesterday that he had been asked by Jack Quinn, President of Union Local 2786 at Port Arthur, to intervene in the dispute with a view to settlement without a strike.

Advocates Easing Of Present Tax Policies

Winnipeg, Oct. 12 — (CP) — The 17th annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, largest in its history, ended yesterday after approving a strongly-worded resolution demanding elimination of wartime tax regulations which allegedly hamper postwar industrial development.

A motion advocating present tax policies be eased in the interests of industry and that the judicial powers of the federal finance minister and his deputies be curbed was one of many approved by the convention during its four-day session.

Other resolutions approved by the annual meeting concerned development and improvement of shipping services to and from Canada; development, on a basis mutually acceptable by both provincial and federal governments, of a national trans-continental highway; maintenance and extension of the Alaska Highway; institution of daylight saving time on a national summertime basis; establishment of a national accident prevention week annually; and maintenance and extension of irrigation programs by the federal government.

C. Gordon Cockshutt, of Brantford, whose re-election as president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce occasioned one of the most popular ovations of the conference, indicated his approval of easement of tax restrictions in speeches encouraging the development of private enterprise.

Development of international trade between Canada and foreign countries was also a prime subject on the convention floor. The current tax situation occupied a prominent place in this discussion, delegates being unanimous that maximum industrial development directed towards this field could only be achieved if taxation was eased to the extent that peremptory financial outlays did not counter-balance the incentive to step up production.

CABINET REJECTS PROPOSAL

Toronto, Oct. 12 — (CP) — A request by the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves that Mayor Robert Saunders of Toronto, be appointed consumer representative on the Milk Control Board, was rejected by the Ontario cabinet Friday. Reason given for the action was that the cabinet felt it inadvisable to make any change pending the report of the Royal Commission, recently appointed to investigate all phases of milk production and distribution in the province.

ADMISSIBILITY OF EVIDENCE ARGUED, JURY IS EXCLUDED

What Mrs. Dick Said While on Stand Was For the Court Alone—Argument Continues

By ALAN RANDAL

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hamilton, Oct. 12 (CP)—Argument continued in Ontario Supreme Court today over the admissibility of certain proposed crown evidence in the torso-murder trial of Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick, focal point this last week of Hamilton's hundreds of morbidly curious and surprise witness in her own behalf only a few hours ago.

What she said on the witness stand she said for the ears of the court alone—and for those spectators and newspapermen present.

Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario Supreme Court excluded the jury during this argument late yesterday over admissibility of evidence and ruled testimony heard during this time should not be published.

But he did admit one statement the widow accused of murdering her husband last March 6 made to police 13 days after John Dick was last seen alive. And when court adjourned for the day this legal argument was still going on so he scheduled full Saturday session and there were indications court also would sit Thanksgiving Day should it be necessary.

Testimony Came as Surprise

Mrs. Dick's testimony came as a surprise and at the call of her counsel, John T. Sullivan. For him she spoke only a few minutes. Then J. T. Rigney, K.C., crown prosecutor took over and quietly, speaking almost as a father to a daughter, he put his questions, smiled and drew a smile in return and was gently helpful when Mrs. Dick found she could not remember things.

In the body of the courtroom spectators craned forward the better to hear the accused's low, well-rounded voice. This was the woman who had been on the front pages. But spectators and most of the press had not yet heard her speak. She was calm, unruffled and, if anything, as she stood in the witness box she had moments when she looked prettier than at any other time during the trial.

The light coloring of her coat showed off to an advantage with her dark complexion against the ornate woodwork of the courtroom behind His Lordship's chair.

But apart from Mrs. Dick's surprise appearance the fifth day of her trial for the slaying of her tram-driving husband was dull. It concerned police testimony on the recovery of human bones from ashes about Mrs. Dick's home and the number of men missing in Hamilton in the last year and how they were eliminated from consideration as torso victims.

The crowds of curious were larger than ever before, so large that extra Hamilton city police kept them in check and formed them into a huge queue from which segments were taken at intervals for admittance to the courtroom until court was filled.

16,587 Students Register at Varsity

Toronto, Oct. 11 — (CP) — Registration for 1946-47 at University of Toronto has reached an all-time high of 16,587. That's 4,000 more than last year, according to a report issues last night by the Registrar's office.

Daring Band of Tough Commandos To Prospect Deadly Brazilian Jungle

London, Oct. 12 (Reuters) — Pitting their lives against the green hell of Brazil's Amazon jungles, a daredevil group of British and American ex-servicemen hope soon to uncover lost treasures and ancient civilization.

The men, who have been picked for their fearlessness, have banded together under the leadership of Capt. Claud Robert Spriggs—a 46-year-old British mariner, ex-fighter pilot and former gun-runner—to form a prospecting company called the "Anglo-American Pioneers."

Purpose of the company is to penetrate the Brazilian jungles in search of "oil, gold and silver subject to that country's permission," Capt. Spriggs said. According to the Captain, two ships, 14 Americans and 14 Britons will take part in the attempt to conquer the jungle.

Capt. Spriggs said that equipment never before used in an expedition of this kind—a Helicopter, bulldozer and tractors—will be employed to invade the dense jungles and amphibious vehicles will be used to overcome the treacherous swamplands. Members of the party are all former Commandos, fighter pilots and merchant navy men who have become accustomed to danger. The party will be equipped to last for 12 years in the jungles.

Capt. Spriggs, a physical giant more than six feet in height, said that he had chosen his crew from 3,000 applicants who answered his advertisement for tough and fearless men. Each man has put up £500 ($2,000) in for his share in the adventure.

The Captain estimated the cost of the expedition will be between £40,000 and £60,090. This sum already has been raised, he said.

During their stay in the Amazon jungles, Capt. Spriggs said a search would be made for Col. H. P. Fawcett, an explorer who disappeared 20 years ago in that territory. "I believe that Fawcett is still alive and am determined to find him," he said.

Two Planes Crash Within Eight Miles During Dense Fog

Five Killed in One Craft 26 Escape Injury in Other

Alexandria, Va., Oct. 12 (AP)—Two plane crashes in a pea soup fog eight miles apart Friday midnight killed all five aboard an army bomber but spared 26 persons who crawled from the blazing wreckage of a big Eastern Air Lines DC-4.

The planes, attempting to land under a 300-foot ceiling, struck within 40 minutes of each other in the scrub pine countryside near here, a few miles south of Washington.

Eye-witness said the DC-4, en route from Miami to New York via Atlanta, apparently hit a farmer's lumber pile as the pilot groped blindly through the dense fog for a landing. The ship careened against a well house, ripped into a 2,300-volt high tension power line crashed in a valley and burst into flames.

Debris was strewn over half a mile of the wooded muddy terrain about five miles south of here.

"It was incredible that anybody got out alive," said one of the first persons to reach the scene.

"The plane's wings were ripped off and the cabin fuselage was burning furiously halfway down the hill. Part of a wing lay 1,000 feet away on the hilltop. One of the plane's four motors was 500 feet off to the side. Little pieces of steel were scatterd all over the field."

Stewardess Shepherds Passengers

One of the stewardesses, Miss Betty Camera, 26, of Allentown, Pa., checked off the 21 passengers as they emerged from the escape hatch of the flaming fuselage. Then she shepherded them to the top of the hill for safety in case of an explosion.

Mrs. Marvin Edward of Sweetbor, N.J., came out with her shoes torn off by the plane's impact, but with her 19-month-old son safe in her arms.

The pilot, Capt. Joe S. Morris, of Miami, stepped dazedly from the plane, after the passengers had got out and said:

"I'm all right. I was right on the beam..."

Then he began to gush blood from his mouth. Capt. Morris and his co-pilot, P. K. Zepernick were reporter by Eastern Air Lines officials to have been the only ones injured.

In the night's first and more tragic accident the B-25 United States army plane was en route from Langley Field, Va., to Andrew Field, Md.

At 11:26 p.m., the army craft reported heavy fog and asked permission to land at National Airport, Washington, or at the navy's Rolling Field, across the Potomac River. Told to wait a moment, that another plane was coming in to land, the B-25 circled away and nothing more was heard from it until it crashed in a wooded area about six miles south of the airport.

Plane Heard Circling About

Farmers living in the isolated area said they heard the plane circling around about three or four times "and then suddenly it blew up in the air." The army withheld names of those aboard pending notification of next-of-kin.

One of the passengers on the Eastern Airline craft, 34-year-old C. H. Elliott, druggist of Rome, Ga., said:

"I was asleep when suddenly I felt the plane drop right out from under me.

"We seemed to somersault half a dozen times before we finally hit. The cabin lights were on, and I think the pilot had the landing gear down. At first, there was just a mild bump, like in a normal landing, and then we were thrown all topsy-turvy."

Parts of the plane burst into two separate blazes some 300 yards apart. It was nearly three hours later before firemen succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

Still there was druggist Elliott searching vainly for his baggage. He said it contained $25,000 in cash and cheques for $27,955 which he was taking to New York to buy supplies for his firm.

Six Thousand Lumber Workers Out on Strike

Port Arthur, Oct. 12 (CP)—Six thousand members of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union in the Thunder Bay area were scheduled to go out on strike early today following a failure to reach a settlement with district timber operators.

A division of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners (A.F.L.), the union demands an increase in wages and improved working conditions.

Jack Quinn, President of the Thunder Bay Local, said last night it would be impossible to call off the strike on short notice. The walkout was to begin officially at midnight last night.

Quinn estimated an additional 6,000 bushworkers in the Cochrane and Sudbury districts of Northern Ontario would walk out at the same time.

Many workers in the Thunder Bay area left their jobs Thursday and Friday, although strike orders were not to be issued until last Friday.

An attempt by Labor Minister Charles Daley of Ontario to prevent the strike failed yesterday. Replying to a telegram from the Minister, Mr. Quinn said the union was prepared to negotiate, but only on definite and concrete terms. He said everything would be done to achieve a speedy settlement, but the strike could not be called off without a guarantee as to wages and working conditions.

Francis, 336 Bleecker Ave., Belleville.

MOTORISTS WARNED OF SLIPPERY STREETS

With the approach of the fall season and consequent falling leaves wet and slippery pavements, Police Chief Walter Probert today asked that motorists use extra caution while driving about city streets. The increasing use of synthetic tires which are claimed by many to afford poorer traction, adds considerably to the danger, it was stated.

Bicycle riders also came in for a note of warning from the police chief as he urged riders of the two-wheeled steeds to exercise greater care now that the time of slippery streets has arrived.

TWO STOLEN CARS ARE RECOVERED

Although the department had not received word from other centres of the thefts, local police believe that two stolen cars have been recovered overnight.

On South John Street two young men were observed to have parked a car and then disappear in a hurry down the street. Search of the car later revealed a letter addressed to a party at Ajax.

On Coleman Street a second car was discovered with the ignition wires having been taped together with police believing that this vehicle also had been stolen.

TOO MUCH "JAY WALKING" COMMENTS CHIEF OF POLICE

Traffic lights are intended to be observed by sidewalk pedestrians the same as by drivers of motor vehicles, according to Police Chief Walter Probert who reports an increasing amount of "jay walking" on business streets in the city. Continued practising of "jay walking" will ultimately lead to a date with the doctor and a visit to the hospital, he stated.

The Police Chief particularly urged that pedestrians strictly observe traffic lights at street intersections and cross only with the green light. Many pedestrians have the annoying habit of crossing the intersection in complete disregard of traffic signals. Crossing the street only at intersections or at recognized safety zones, was also urged by the Police Chief.

Y's Mens Club Hears Prominent Church Speaker

Rev. Jack Thompson, of Toronto, assistant secretary of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the United Church, who is in Belleville with the Cavalcade Crusaders was the speaker at the regular dinner meeting of the Y's Men on Thursday evening. The speaker was introduced by Don Amos, and dealt with the church and present day conditions. The problems facing the church today with the younger people and the returned soldier were not being met, he said. He urged the Y's Men to work in their churches and help the church find the proper answer. Oscar Wagar thanked the speaker and Bryson Leslie was sergeant at arms. Decision was reached to hold a Ladies' Night in November, and also on motion of Jack Wilson it was decided that the Y's men would sponsor the Hallowe'en Party at the Y.M.C.A. A committee of Larry Buck, Bill McCoy and Gerry Hyde was appointed to look after this.

President Archie Boyd presided

Bus Companies Must Build Suitable Terminals or Parking Privileges Will Not be Granted Council Recommends

Bus companies operating passenger buses through the city will have to make a definite move before March 1st., 1947, to erect at their own expense a suitable bus terminal or parking privileges on Belleville streets will no longer be granted.

Such was the decision of members of city council at their regular committee meeting held Thursday night when following considerable discussion on the matter a resolution to the above effect was passed.

The recommendation further stated that it will be up to the bus companies secure their own locale and that the bus terminal must be constructed at their own expense.

Ask For Particulars

The Peace Foundry Company of Toronto, will be invited to furnish particulars of a suitable heating unit for the public lavatory which it is proposed to be constructed on the market square near the city hall. Examination of the present heating boiler at the city hall has shown that it is already taxed to capacity and to adequately heat the lavatory from this source would require two additional boiler sections. A separate heating unit was recommended.

May Withdraw Offer

The offer of $6,000 by the city to the Ponton Estate for the property north of Marshall Road will be withdrawn if the Estate is not prepared to accept the offer, it was decided. The city contemplated purchasing the property for the development of a commercial airport.

Will Sell Lot

Part of Lot 5 at the corner of Yeomans and Herchimer Sts., will be sold to Clifford Phillips, a veteran of the last war, it was recommended. The usual building covenants will apply.

To Close Tourist Camp

The city tourist camp will be closed for the season on October 15, it was decided, while Chairman of Tourist and Publicity, Alderman E. E. Follwell, was authorized to attend the convention of the Association of Tourist and Publicity Bureaus at Ottawa on October 24 and 25.

Primrose Displays Mastership In Violin Technique

From the opening number "Romance" by Benjamin Dale characterized by broad, richly flowing melodic line, to the closing "Caprice" by Paginini illustrative of every kind of difficult violin technique and intricate fingering, Mr. Primrose held his audience in absorbed interest, and the sustained applause attested to the enthusiastic reception given by his listeners.

Accompanying Mr. Primrose at the piano was Mr. David Stimer whose sympathetic renditions were accomplished with delicate precision and finesse.

The Sonata in F Minor by Johannes Brahms was presented in four parts. These were mature compositions of Brahms. The opening Allegro Appassionato is full of passionate melancholy, the two middle movements are highly original in detail; and the finale, a whimsical theme completed the first part of the program. At the insistance of the audience Mr. Primrose returned and played the only opus which Beethoven ever wrote for the viola, "Polonaise."

Two numbers were presented as solos by the pianist Mr. Stimer, "Valse Doubliee" by Franz Liszt, and "L'Isle Joyeuse" by Claude Debussy. As an encore, Mr. Stimer offered "Nocturne".

In introducing a Suite by the French composer Darius Milhaud, Mr. Primrose used muted strings for the "Air" with charming tone phrase. The Litany by Schubert was a beautifully simple transcription of the song, "Litany for All Saints' Day." In lighter vein were the compositions of Arthur Benjamin inspired by Jamaican folk songs which the author heard on a visit to that island. These were of special interest to a Canadian audience as Mr. Benjamin is residing in Vancouver, B.C. These joyous little pieces had a tuneful sequence that appealed to the listeners, who demanded a "La plus que lente" (the more than slow) was an offering which showed details of beautiful tone phrase and the light and shade effects were perfectly expressed in the mellow, soft tones of the viola.

After insistent curtain calls, Mr. Primrose obliged the audience which was loathe to let him go, with three encores. The familiar and tender "Ave Marie" by Schubert; and the sincere refinement of Kreisler's "Liebestraum" proved especially popular.

William Primrose, a native of Glasgow, Scotland, is acclaimed as one of the greatest of violists, and his accomplished performance Friday evening sustained his reputation. To a discerning audience which packed the auditorium his grace and skillful manipulation of strings and bow in difficult and subtle movements was a delight to watch.

When he was only ten years' old Mr. Primrose made his debut in the Mendelssohn Violin Concerto as a violinist. Later, however, Mr. Primrose was irresistibly attracted to the mellow sweet tones of his father's viola. Encouraged by the Great Ysaye, this became his medium of expression, and it is the same instrument which his father owned that Mr. Primrose plays today.

Following the concert, a reception for Mr. Primrose was given at the home of Mrs. A. E. Purdy, Bridge Street East, when guests were given an opportunity to meet the visiting artists.

Poultry Plentiful But Turkeys Scarce on Market

Despite the fact that Monday is Thanksgiving Day turkeys were practically a minus quantity on the local produce market Saturday morning with only two birds being available at ten o'clock. One or two farmers stated however that they had filled orders at local hotels.

Ducks and chicken were quite plentiful, the former bringing from 48 to 50 cents the pound, while chicken saw good demand at 40 cents with capons bringing up to 45 cents the pound.

A steady rain which fell throughout the morning put a damper on the outside market although all lines of vegetables were quite freely offered with potatoes bringing $1.65 per bushel and bag lots at $2. Tomatoes were 30 cents the basket, cauliflowers up to 40 cents and corn 25 cents the dozen ears.

First grade McIntosh brought $3 per ring packed hamper with No. 1 Snows bringing $2.75. Talman Sweets were $2.50 per hamper and cooking varieties from $1.75 to $2 the bushel.

Red and blue grapes were 65 cents the basket with frost plums fetching 75 cents and Flemish Beauty pears at 90 cents. Hickory nuts were 35 cents the qt.

Eggs held at 50 cents for firsts with pullets selling at 40 cents and mediums at 45 cents the dozen.

Optimist Club Expresses Thanks For Co-operation

Proud of the success of their first "Optimist Week" held here in conjunction with other Optimist Clubs all over the continent, the Belleville club today expressed its grateful appreciation of city organizations and individuals for the co-operation given its members during the past week.

Officials expressed their gratitude to Ross Hunter, and his Belleville Municipal Band, Dr. Bert Howard, Rotary President, Alderman Lorne McDougall, the city Fire Department, city and provincial police departments, Fair Board, Board of Education, Home Appliance Store, The Ontario Intelligencer, the local radio station, Jack Bonn, Alderman N. Wilbur and ex-mayor Harry Rollins and last but not least, the citizens of Belleville.

"Their co-operation has been magnificent" Optimist president Bob Kidd said today. "All the funds raised will be devoted to our reason for existence, "Help the Boy." We feel that by helping the boy of today, we are helping to make this a better world to live in tomorrow."

Souverain Wins King George VI Stakes at Ascot

Ascot, Berks, England, Oct. 12 —(AP)—Souverain, winner of the Grand Prix and French St. Leger, won the two-mile £5,000-($20,000)-added King George VI Stakes for three-year-olds today.

Owned by the Paris restaurateur, F. R. Schmitt, Souverain finished ahead of Bright News while Airborne, England's horse of the year and winner of the Derby and St. Leger, wound up third.

The final odds on the winner were 11-2. The payoff on Bright News was 20-1 with the odds on Airborne, the favorite, 4-5.

Fred Jobson Leaves City For New Position

Mr. Fred Jobson, Bridge Street East, foundry superintendent of the Corbin Lock Company for the past twelve years, has severed his associations with the company and will join the staff of the William Kennedy and Sons Co., Ltd., of Owen Sound, Ont., as foundry superintendent of the iron, bronze and centrifugal moulding division.

Mr. Jobson leaves for his new post on Monday. The family will remain in Belleville for a brief period before joining him in their new home.

The move to Owen Sound brings an Alger touch to the story of Mr. Jobson's career as a foundryman for it was in the William Kennedy and Sons plant that he served his apprenticeship 32 years ago. Then a young man he walked from the plant to face the world and has since gained invaluable experience and knowledge in his work at Hamilton, Niagara Falls, Guelph and Belleville.

Came Here 12 Years Ago.

He came to this city twelve years ago as foundry superintendent for Corbin Lock Company and during that time has enjoyed the confidence of his superiors and the esteem and high regard of those under him.

Mr. Jobson will be missed in Belleville especially in musical circles. For years he was the director of the Belleville Municipal Band and through his knowledge and efforts brought it to a high plane in band circles of the province. He is a past-president of the Canadian Bandmasters' Association and for some lengthy period has been director of music and choir leader at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

He was a member of the Board of Directors of the Canadian Concert Association here and a few years ago was honored with an associate membership of the ex-members Belleville Kilty Band Association.

Evidence of the high regard in which Mr. Jobson was held in his various spheres of activity is seen in the presentation of a number of handsome gifts on the eve of his departure for his new environment.

On Friday evening just before he served his connections with the Corbin Company, the staff of that organization presented him with a handsome De Forest Crossley radio. The members of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church honored with him with a sterling silver candelabra while the Lions' Club of Trenton, gave him a cocktail set. The band of that service club of which he was the director presented Mr. Jobson with a valuable cigarette case and lighter.

Mr. Jobson today stated that he leaves Belleville with feelings of regret at the severance of happy associations and the many friendships the family has made. He made a splendid contribution to the musical life the city and also took a keen interest in civic affairs.

Obituary

KATHLEEN JANE O'MALLEY
(Trenton)

Trenton, Oct. 12 (Special) — Kathleen Jane O'Malley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Malley died at home here on Wednesday, Oct. 9th., at the age of one year, one month and twenty one days.

Surviving besides the parents are four sisters Mary Ellen, Genevieve, Rita and Aileen.

The funeral was held on Friday morning to Mount Calvary cemetery where interment took place. The prayers were said by the Rev. Father Carley of the Church of St. Peter-in-Chains.

MRS. ALICE GRISWOLD
(Trenton)

Trenton, Oct. 12 (Special)—The funeral of Mrs. Alice Griswold, wife of Mr. Harry Griswold, 72 Marmora Street, was held from her late residence on Thursday morning to the Church of St. Peter-in-Chains where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Carley, who also said the committal prayers at the graveside in Mount Calvary cemetery.

The late Mrs. Griswold, who died on Monday, Oct. 7th, after an illness of three years' duration, was born in Trenton and resided here all her life. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Greaney. She was a member of the Church of St. Peter-in-Chains, and a member of the Catholic Women's League.

Modern All-Steel Freighter Acquired by W. McCreary For Belleville-Montreal Service

A handsome all-steel 151-foot freighter, recently completed at the Port Arthur, Ont., shipyards will inaugurate a new water freight service between Belleville and Montreal next spring, it was announced here today.

The ship, purchased by Mr. W. R. McCreary, head of the Bay-Quinte Transportation Company of this city, will replace the well-known lake freighter "Glen Allan", also owned by Mr. McCreary, which has operated on the Belleville-Montreal run for a number of years.

The new ship, as yet unnamed, will perpetuate the business acquired by Mr. McCreary some time ago and its acquisition has been made possible only through the sterling co-operation of the four members of his family who are associated with him, and the members of his crew and staff, he said today.

Will Improve Facilities

Also, he added, it will improve to a great extent shipping facilities for the cheese business of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, something Mr. McCreary has been vitally interested in for a considerable length of time.

The new ship, which completed satisfactory trial runs in Thunder Bay last week with Mr. McCreary on board, was originally planned for wartime duty. It is a Type "C" China Coast lighter design with an overall cargo capacity of 600 tons. Its original purpose was to lighter heavy sea-going craft in the Southern Pacific and off the Burmese and China coasts, where shallow-draft vessels can operate closer inshore than can heavier vessels.

Diesel Powered

The freighter has a 27 foot beam, and is diesel powered with a single screw. Its power plant is 400 brake horsepower at 300 revolutions per minute. Its cargo space is approximately 30,000 cubic feet.

Twenty of the vessels were built by the Dominion Government for the Pacific run. Two have since been acquired by the Chinese Government and others are being sold to individuals or companies in the Dominion and the United States. Cost of construction of each vessel was $500,000.

Mr. McCreary plans to insulate and refrigerate the cargo space inasmuch as the greater majority of his freight is cheese. The freighter will be the only one of its kind with this equipment operating on the Great Lakes.

Greater Speed

The ship moved through the waters of Thunder Bay at a speed of 10 1-2 knots or roughly twelve miles per hour. This, in comparison to the 7 knot speed of the "Glen Allan" indicates that voyage time on the Belleville Montreal run will be cut down considerably. The "Glen" navigated the distance in 36 hours in good weather, but the new ship will reduce this time by a substantial margin.

Her fuel tanks which hold 32 tons of diesel oil; and 49 tons of donkey engine fuel are ingeniously situated in a double bottom immediately below the holds. The fuel capacity is such that refuelling will only be necessary every sixth or seventh trip. A fresh water tank holds 24 tons while water ballast tanks have a capacity of 66 tons.

Good Accommodation

Accommodation for the crew of seventeen is modern and well equipped. The captain's cabin as well as those of other officers of the ship are spacious and comfortable. The crews' quarters are the last word in comfort. The galley contains a modern refrigerator of 150 cubic feet which maintains a temperature of from 28-30 degrees. It can accommodate sufficient fresh meats and vegetables for a thirty-day trip.

The crews' quarters contain showers, laundry tubs and recreation rooms while the ship's officers have modern toilet and bathing facilities.

The new freigher will carry besides cheese, a general cargo including sugar, breweries' products and other freight. Her cargo capacity is approximately 50 per cent greater than that of the "Glen Allan".

Lifeboat Equipment

Included in her equipment are two staunchly built lifeboats. One has a gasoline engine installed while the other is equipped with oars. The boats are 24 feet long with an eight-foot beam.

Mr. McCreary who said that he intends to dispose of the "Glen Allan" will winter his new craft in Port Arthur. In the Spring the crew will bring her down the lakes to Belleville where she will be put into commission shortly after the opening of navigation.

Wm. McKenna Is New President Of Army, Navy Vets

William McKenna, well-known First Great War veteran, was elected president of the Belleville Branch No. 201, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, at the annual meeting of the body held in the Front Street club rooms on Thursday night.

Other officers elected are, 1st vice president, Jack Lundberg; 2nd vice president, Robert Browning; house chairman, Frank Poste; treasurer, W. J. Holland; secretary, A. R. Galbraith; sergeant-at-arms, H. Semark; sergeant major, M. Rashotte. Executive members, Thos. York, J. H. Lazenby, E. Sunderland, Rex. Young and James Cretney. Auditors are Dick Hewson and John Fisher. Finance member, Cecil Cherry.

A feature of the meeting was the presentation of a ring to immediate Past President W. J. Ford by J. H. Lazenby on behalf of the members of the club in recognition of his faithful and efficient service during his 1945-1946 tenure of office as president. Past President Ford expressed his appreciation of the gift and assured his club comrades of his further co-operation with the new executive in the interest of the members and the club.

Thirty-one applications from prospective members were presented to the meeting and approved.

Arrangements were discussed and completed for the observance of Remembrance Day, November 11. The club will hold a church parade and will attend divine service at St. Thomas' Church on Sunday, November 10. Major Arthur Smith, veteran padre of the last war and rector of the church, will address the assembled veterans.

The veterans will parade to the Station Street Cenotaph at 7 p.m. Monday, November 11, where a brief memorial service in honor of dead comrades will be held.

President McKenna is one of the original members of the club and has held several important posts on its executive for a number of years. His election met with the unanimous approval of the club members.

Thanksgiving Day Brings Reminder of Hunger Abroad

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Heavily-laden freight trains headed for Canadian ports testify to the abundance of the farmer's produce as the Dominion prepares to celebrate its second peacetime Thanksgiving Day Monday. But the bare spots on the pantry shelf and the ever-present ration book in the housewife's purse are eloquent reminders that while Canada's granary is full, her resources and those of other nations of the New World are strained by the needs of less fortunate peoples abroad.

Canadians may well be thankful that they will not lack food in the coming winter and that they are in a position to make a substantial contribution to areas in many parts of the world which are perilously close to the starvation level.

With British crops hard-hit by disastrous late summer rains and many lands badly disorganized by the effects of war, the list of countries in need of outside aid reads almost like a roll-call of Europe and Asia.

A day of thanksgiving for material blessings was first set aside by the Pilgrim Fathers who expressed their gratitude to God for their first New England harvest in 1621. In 1864 President Lincoln proclaimed the last Thursday in November as Thanksgiving Day and this date is still adhered to in the United States.

A regular thanksgiving holiday was first observed in Canada in 1879 when the Marquess of Lorne, then governor-general of the young Dominion, fixed Nov. 6 as a day "to attend church and give thanks." Days of thanksgiving had been held earlier to celebrate specific occasions, usually British victories in battle.

The early French settlers held similar celebrations and on the capture of Quebec in 1759, the British held a service in the Ursuline chapel "to give thanks to Almighty God for victory." A similar service was held the following year to celebrate the fall of Montreal.

But Monday's holiday will be of a different nature. The Thanksgiving turkey has become one of the holiday's most magnificent features — especially in the minds of the young — and families take advantage of the long weekend to hold reunions around the festive dinner table.

From 1918 to 1930 the holiday was celebrated in conjunction with Armistice Day on Nov. 11 and took on a greater religious significance. But in 1931, in response to representations by First Great War veterans and other organizations, the latter date was set aside as Remembrance Day and Thanksgiving reverted to a Monday in October.

Toxoid Can Overcome Rise in Death Rate Of Diphtheria

Diphtheria, the one-time scourge of childhood, has been the target of preventive medicine for the past twenty years. This dread disease is rapidly becoming a clinical entity of the past, but it is not conquered yet. Constant and united efforts are absolutely necessary to eradicate diphtheria from our communities.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics gives figures for Diphtheria which indicate a definite rise in the mortality rate—213 deaths in 1940, 309 in 1944.

There are certain cities in Canada where diphtheria has not occurred for a period of years. There are other communities where diphtheria still takes a toll of life, usually in children under ten years of age.

Antitoxin is a wonderful therapeutic means of attacking diphtheria but, unfortunately, it does not prevent those subsequent complications affecting the heart and nervous system. Toxoid, on the other hand, started at six months of age and followed by a booster dose six months later, with a second "booster" just before the child starts to school, affords practically 100 per cent protection against death from diphtheria. Toxoid, with complete instructions for it's use, is obtained from local health authorities, in many areas free of charge.

Considered from a practical point of view, there are three main reasons why diphtheria is still a health problem. First, there is neglect on the part of the parents. Second, there is prejudice. And third, there is laxity on the part of the medical profession.

In spite of hectic war years, Britain appreciated the neccessity of protecting her children against diphtheria and nearly six million children were immunized. The United States has waged war against diphtheria for nearly two decades with most dramatic results — the diphtheria mortality rate in that country is one-third of the Canadian rate.

Canada cannot be less zealous for her children! Let us make Canada safer for our children by wiping out diphtheria.

Picton Notes

Picton, Oct. 11—Condition of Thomas Forbes, Jr., is reported as good and his injuries are not as serious as first expected. Driving a truck which smashed off a telephone pole and crashed into another, the young man suffered severe concussion and facial lacerations. He was unconscious four hours.

Ministers Meet

Prince Edward County Ministerial Association held its annual meeting on Wednesday at the home of Rev. W. J. Shier with ministers of different churches throughout the county in attendance. Rev. J. F. Lane, Wellington, was elected president, Rev. R. Todd, Rednersville, vice president, Rev. E. V. C. Lewis, Cherry Valley, secretary. Guest speaker was Dr. Wilmot B. Lane. A donation was made to the Salvation Army Home Front appeal. Mrs. Shier served refreshments during the social hour.

Mr. Fred E. Walden who has been a patient in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, returned to his home here Wednesday.

Parallel Parking

Parallel parking is being observed on half of Main Street. Parking strips were painted this week. Picton has unusually heavy traffic on its streets and the new plan makes more space for passing in the busiest section.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Rady are expected to reach Montreal from England on Monday. Mrs. Rady who has been overseas two years, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Wilkinson. Mr. Rady was formerly a corporal with the R.A.F. here, and later served in Australia and New Guinea.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Liversidge arrived this week from England and are with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emmerson Mason. Mr. Liversidge was formerly with the R.A.F. here.

Fine weather is permitting harvest of the late tomato crop and corn and most factories are working steadily.

W.A. of Anglican Deanery Meets

The Woman's Auxiliary for the Anglican Deanery of Prince Edward County, was held at St. Andrew's Church, Wellington, on Wednesday. Guest speaker was Miss Jean Marindin of London, England, who is training officer of the National Association of Girls' Clubs with head office in London. Discussing her work, the speaker said the teen-age girl should enjoy modern activities in keeping with the times. Throughout Britain, the government sponsors youth group activities and had found them beneficial.

Holy communion opened the session, Rev. E. N. Grant, Rural Dean, being the celebrant, assisted by Rev. A. Smith of St. Thomas' Church, Belleville. Rev. S. H. Coleman, Carrying Place, was the preacher and urged that the W.A. take the world as their parish for missionary work. Unless Christianity is the underlying factor, all plans for a new and better world will fail, he said.

Mrs. E. N. Grant, Deanery secretary, presided. Reports indicated growth in the work of the W.A. Others who spoke briefly were Mrs. Read of Brockville, Girls' secretary of the Diocese, and the Diocesan president, Mrs. Wright. The Wellington ladies served luncheon to the large number in attendance. Mrs. Grant was re-elected Deanery secretary.

Carmel

Mr. Frank Whitney received a back injury while at work last week. His friends hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Dafoe and Shirley were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. Hicks.

Mrs. F. Hicks returned home last week from Belleville General Hospital and is progressing favorably.

Mr. Joe Brintnell spent Sunday visiting friends at Millbridge.

Marmora

Marmora—Mr. W. L. Aunger and son Robert have returned home from a motor trip to points in New York State. They attended the funeral of the late Mrs. F. L. Aunger on Oct. 2 and at Watertown, N.Y.

The following attended the annual Hastings Deanery W. A. meeting in Tweed on Tuesday — Rev. and Mrs. E. M. Brownlie, Mesdames W. H. Wilkins, W. D. Lavender, J. A. Rice, R. G. Winters, A. Niblet, I. B. Nickle and Miss Jennie Jones.

Mrs. L. R. Bourne, with baby daughter, Mary Joan, of Victoria, B.C. is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Shannon.

At a card party sponsored by the Holy Name Society in Sacred Heart School on Monday evening, the prize winners were: Bridge—Mrs. E. Eggleton. Euchre—Mrs. Rose Maloney and Hector Auger and Albert Laton, who tied for the gentlemans prize.

Thanksgiving

In the course of the seasons the time of Thanksgiving has returned. One year ago Thanksgiving took on much of its old pre-war aspects for it was celebrated in the time of peace, following the close of the most exacting and destructive conflict in all history. Now we are one year further away from the struggle though on all sides there are the evidences of the tremendous effects which that struggle has had and will continue to have upon the entire world. In a year much has been accomplished, but the task remains heavy with duty for peoples in danger of food shortage so great as not so long ago to cause grave anxiety lest mankind would not be able to measure up to the demands of the time for food in the name of suffering humanity. In the beneficence of nature the crops across the world have been able to remove the spectre of starvation, though shortages will not disappear suddenly. So disrupted are some lands, populations and man's occupations so disturbed that the outlook is such as to demand the closest attention of the leaders of all peoples.

With whole-hearted zeal nations that produce have extended their hand to help in the past year. Britain went on bread rationing so as to be able to help suffering peoples.

In Canada there has been a good harvest and in the United States the corn crop is the greatest of all time. In Britain crops unfortunately are not so good owing to unfavorable weather conditions.

Here in Canada the people with the returned men and women who have taken their places in civilian life again and are working with those who kept the civilian services going during the war are cheerfully working and building for a greater Canada in a greater and happier world than yet has been.

This land has reason to be grateful for the blessings which Providence has shed on all sides with harvests so large that this country is able to lend its aid to peoples on the Continents of Europe and Asia and to arrange large contracts with Britain for the large shipments of food to the British people. Though there are the grave anxieties of periods of readjustment after so momentous a struggle as the late war, this nation is going forward with high hope, thankfulness and gratitude.

At this season when the harvest festival spirit is in the land Canadians have every reason to be deeply grateful for all that this people in Canada have been and are. How much they have felt dependence upon Providence, the Giver of all things ,every individual Canadian knows in his heart. In songs of gratitude and in prayer for continued blessings and in supplication that they may be worthy of these blessings from Heaven the people cannot but unite in the dedication of themselves as worthy custodians of the gifts which have been so generously showered upon this land and her men and women and children for Canada's and the world's good.

With grateful hearts the people turn at this time to bow in prayer and lift their voices in praise. There should be an outpouring from all hearts of the hopes and prayers that the people may be worthy of so inspiring a heritage of the human spirit and of the material blessings of this life in this favored land.

During these latter years Canadians have played their part on the world stage in a way which has drawn mankind's attention to this young land which has through the advantages of its location, its people and their courage, optimism and faith given it a prominent place in the eye of all mankind. Across the world Canada is known. Her leaders have played their role in these momentous days of the making of the peace treaty. Her voice has not been silent. So the world takes note and expects great things of Canada. That promise of the future will be redeemed by the united effort of Canadians for their country, for the British Commonwealth of Nations and for the world.

Especially at this season when the products of her wide ranges of acreage are in the eye of mankind, is the world inspired with the potentialities of this country among the nations of the world.

In true gratitude and in brotherhood of spirit at what has been offered Canada through the blessings of nature and the national spirit, Canada will find the inspiration of her service as one of the world nations.

Health in Wartime

A remarkable record, compiled by the Chief Medical Officer of the Ministry of Health, has recently been issued by the Stationery Office: "On the State of the Public Health during Six Years of War," says London Calling.

It touches first on the birthrate, and points out that it has been rising from 1941 onwards, and in 1944, reached the highest figure since the year 1926. In addition, the infant mortality rate for 1944 touched a new low record in Britain.

The report goes on to draw attention to the fact that "despite the loss of 7,000 lives at ages under fifteen as a direct result of enemy action, and an increase in accidental deaths arising out of war conditions," the mean annual death rate in that age-group, during 1940-1944 were below the rates for any year prior to 1939.

Tuberculosis, a typical wartime disease, increased from 1939 to 1941, but by 1944, total deaths were only ninety-five percent of the 1938 figures, and much less than half the total deaths in 1918.

The only serious epidemic during the war was cerebro-spinal meningitis, and it was successfully countered by modern methods of treatment by the sulphonamide group of drugs. In 1944, death from diphtheria were only one-third of the pre-war average.

Why All This Scramble?

Time being what it is, and man's span of the approximate measure of 70 years, what is the urge which forces some people to press on the seconds at the "rush" hours of the city's traffic? asks the Victoria Colonist. Why is one second between five p.m. and six p.m. of any greater importance than the same measure of human time at any other hour of the day? Yet the scramble to save that second in the rush hour gives this community — and every other one of comparative size in Canada— its main crop of accidents, near-accidents, fits, starts and bad turns.

Same Girls—New Faces

"American girls are going to de-glamorize in 1947 and makeup is going to be toned down to sweet simplicity, says a speaker at a cosmetologists' convention in Chicago. The gals are going to have to start learning to paint their faces all over again, she says," so says the Detroit Free Press.

"Maybe so. But while the faces may be different, they are going to be the same old gals. The makeup and the technique may change, but we'll bet our favorite pocket comb that they'll still be putting on the lipstick in restaurants, slapping on the powder on streetcars, and primping wherever they may be."

With characteristic cleverness in making use of what other folk waste, the practical Chinese harvest lotus leaves and use them in place of paper sacks and wrapping paper. When I lived in Peking, my Chinese cook usually came home from market with the meat and fresh fruit done up in leafy coverings. This idea should commend itself to American grocers, who, with paper none too plentiful, would probably welcome several billion nicely dried lotus leaves with which to eke out their supply of paper bags, says Mabel I. Higgins in Natural History Magazine.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Do wagons pull harder near the tops of even hills?

Theoretically less power is required to pull a carriage near the top of a hill of even slope than is required farther down, because the force of gravity decreases as the carriage gets farther from the centre of the earth.

For the same reason an object weighs less at high altitudes than it does at sea level. In the case under consideration, however, the hill itself has some attraction that offsets slightly the decrease in the earth's gravity. Of course the difference is negligible for all practical purposes. The fact that motor cars lose momentum and horses become exhausted the farther they proceed up a hill accounts for the popular belief that a carriage pulls harder near the top.

Who were the seven wise men of Greece?

Already in ancient times certain men had acquired the appellation of the seven wise men or sages of Greece.

They were Thales of Miletus, Solon of Athens, Chilon of Sparta, Cleobulus of Lindus in Rhodes, Bias of Priene in Ionia, Periander of Corinth, and Pittacus of Mythilene in Lesbos. Of these seven sages the physical philosopher and mathematician Thales was known as the chief. All these wise men, whether their actual profession was that of statesmanship, arms or learning dabbled in poetry, philosophy and epigrams. A motto by each of them in later times was inscribed in the temple of Apollo at Delphi. The mottoes were Suretyship is the predecessor of ruin.—Thales.

Know thyself.—Solon.

Consider the end.—Chilon.

Avoid extremes.—Cleobulus.

Most men are bad.—Bias.

Nothing is impossible to industry.—Periander.

Know thy opportunity.—Pittacus.

All these men died in the sixth century B.C. and the popular classification of them as the seven sages dates from that period, which accounts for the fact that the list does not include the names of ancients now better known. The names of all except Solon and Thales have been completely eclipsed by great Greeks of later periods. Nearly two centuries after the death of the last of the seven sages, the oracle at Delphi pronounced Socrates the wisest man in Greece. In commenting on the decision of the oracle the great philosopher said that if he was the wisest man of Greece it was because "I alone of all the Greeks know that I know nothing."

NOT COLLECTING POLL TAX

Toronto, Oct. 11 (CP)—Strikes at two large industrial plants at New Toronto have had an unexpected result. Because many citizens are idle, council of that suburban town has decided not to collect poll tax this year.

Thanksgiving

With gratitude the Spirit sings
For all life's common little things—
For sun that warms the Autumn
air,
For folk who with us daily fare;
For busy day and peaceful night—
With friends around the home-fire bright;
For corn in shock and grain in bin,
For Autumn's fruits all garnered
in;
For neighbor's light across the way,
And children's laughter, bright and gay;
And oh! for all the countless things
The dawn of every new day brings,
We living, O God, our thanks to Thee—
Oh! grateful may we ever be!

Capital Closeups

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 12 —(CP)— Almost every time John Q. Public sits down to write a letter to the government the boys of 42 Besserer Street in Ottawa get a headache.

That's because John Q. usually doesn't address his government mail correctly and the boys at No. 42, the Ottawa city post office, have to tax their memories and their talents to make sure the letter, be it complaint or compliment, reaches the right official.

They get a lot of mail for the government, so much that they have a special division with a staff of 28 who do nothing but sort out letters and parcels for government departments.

The run - of - the - mill stuff, mainly business mail, gets to its proper place in proper order but its the little guy who's taking his first stab at governmental correspondence who produces the grey hairs you see around the division.

Likely as not, he'll simply address his letters to "The Government, Ottawa," and some, with far greater ambitions, have sent theirs to "The King," or "The Queen," or "The Royal Princesses."

Some letters on which the address cannot be deciphered go to the dead letter office to be destroyed if unclaimed. Others, like the letter to royalty, are sent to either the External Affairs Department or Rideau Hall, residence of the Governor-General.

One letter landed in the government division the other day addressed to "Big (Sic) Crosby, Ollywood (Sic), Ottawa." It was sent on to singer Bing Crosby in Hollywood.

E. B. Duguay, brisk district director of postal services for Ottawa, estimates that the division handles anywhere from 10,000 to 30,000 pieces of government mail a day, depending upon the time of the money and even the time of the year.

Baby Rhino Given Home

Pretoria —(CP)— The first white rhino to be seen in a zoo is now in the Pretoria National Zoological Gardens. It is a three-weeks old baby and it has been named "Zuluana" after its home in Zululand. "Zuluana" was found abandoned recently, it is thought its mother left it behind during one of the game drives taking place near Hluluwe Game Reserve.

Since its arrival in Pretoria, the baby rhino has been the object of great attraction. White rhinos are only found in two parts of the world, Zululand and in the Upper Nile Valley.

DEGENERATES AND DEFECTIVES PLEASE LISTEN

A lot of defectives, as one should expect, and some degenerates, I am sorry to note, have written more or less revealing complaints or protests against Brady's teachings about the effects of alcohol and about addiction to alcohol.

In the first place most of these defectives and degenerates went off at half cock, probably under the influence of alcohol. They jumped to the conclusion that I used these terms as epithets or in the irresponsible way in which the cub reported, the yellow journal editor or this week's best seller uses them. Now, children listen carefully to the real meaning of the terms.

A defective, says Webster, is a person who is lacking physically or mentally.

A degenerate, says Webster, is a person who has declined or deteriorated to a state or condition lower than one's former state or condition—physically, mentally or morally.

Here we are concerned only about health, physical health, and mental or moral questions are beyond our province except when they have direct bearing on physical health. For instance, the question of drinking.

The defective is subnormal or inferior because his or her physical or mental growth or development is retarded or arrested short of normal. The degenerate is subnormal or inferior because he or she has declined or weakened in one respect or another, whether from aging or premature aging, from disease, from nutritional deficiency, from injury or deprivation (as of sunshine or skyline).

Every one past "middle age," that is, past the time of full maturity, is a degenerate.

The moron or sophomoron never has attained and never will attain full mental growth of development, regardless of the state of his or her physical development quotient of a normal child 8 to 12 years of age. A sophomoron has the intelligence quotient of a normal child 15 to 17 years old. Only a few of the 'steenteen million morons in the country worry much about their feeble-mindedness but most of the 'steenteen sophomorons strive constantly to conceal their lack of intelligence—and that is their inferiority complex. A defective may believe he or she can cover physical deficiencies by means of various articles, but if he or she is not a low grade moron the defective is painfully aware that lack of intelligence is difficult or impossible to conceal for any length of time.

This inferiority complex of the sophomorons accounts for the great popularity of the cocktail habit among the defectives in America. Under the influence of alcohol for an hour or two they forget their inferiority and feel equal to everybody else. Alcohol remember is a narcotic. In any less than poisonous does it benumbs sensibility.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Starch is Food

I like starch, not starchy foods but lump starch that is used for clothes. I am 67 1-2 inches tall weigh 129 pounds, have no appetite at all, but I eat a five cent box of starch nearly every day.

(Mrs. F. R. C.)

Answer—I am astonished that anybody can buy anything anywhere for 5 cents a lump, piece or box. Starch is starch, in a potato or in a cereal or in anything made of flour or in laundry starch, corn starch, ice cream etc. It is virtually the same in caloric value as so much sugar or candy would be. If you eat a lot of it you get all the calories you need and have little appetite for other food. But like the kids eating candy or sweetened fountain beverages, ice cream and other pap, you get little or no mineral matter, vitamins, protein amino acids etc., which are essential for good nutrition. So, if you continue the bad habit you inevitably suffer nutritional deficiency disease.

VARIOUS

My mother asks about various vains.Which is best, cutting and tying or injections alone? (J.P.)

Answer —Injection treatment is better, if the deep vein is not occluded. Send stamped envelope with your mother's name and address on it, and I'll mail her a phamphlet about Varicose Veins.

NERVOUSNESS MY EYE

Can nervousness be passed on from one generation to the other? Are most cases of nervousness a result of environment? (J. H. E.)

Answer—I have no idea what you mean by "nervousness." You may get some help from the green book "Nerves and Nutrition"—send twenty-five cents and stamped self addressed envelope, for a copy.

Vatican Paper Attacks Sentence Given Stepinac

Vatican City, Oct. 12—(AP)—The Vatican's O'Sservatore Romano last night denounced the sentence of Archbishop Alojzijc Stepinac to 16 years of forced labor as "ignominous" and said the trial was a trial against the Catholic church.

"The sentence," the newspaper said, "does not admit of any appeal in Yugoslavia. But in the world the code of legal procedure is otherwise. It is difficult before history. There is the appeal to public opinion, to all who are honest, those who regard things without passion."

Describing the trial again in the word of Pope Pius XII last Sunday to the Sacred Roman Rota—"Saddest"—O'Sservatore said the hearing had been reduced to a level where "every testimony is rendered superfluous, every denial useless."

Child Fatally Injured; Rifle Unexpectedly Discharged

Kingston, Oct. 11 — (CP)—The unexpected discharge of a rifle resulted in the death yesterday of five-year-old Douglas Mitchell, at Keelerville, 20 miles northeast of Kingston. The boy was looking on while Gerald Jackson, 12, was examining a .22 rifle recently purchased by his father, in whose home the Mitchell child had been living since the death of his own father by drowning. The gun went off suddenly, striking Douglas in the abdomen.

Reason for Decrease in Honey Production Stumps the Experts

Guelph, Oct. 11 (CP)— The traditionally-busy bee went on a work stoppage in Ontario this summer and apiarists have garnered only a 20 per cent crop in the Dominion's banner honey-producing province.

Official reports to the Agriculture Department of the Ontario Agriculture College here indicate a yield of from 2,400,000 to 3,900,000 pounds compared with normal production of 11,000,000 to 19,000,000. In good years it is much higher—the 1938 yield, best in recent years, amounted to 24,092,000.

The slump represents a loss of at least $1,500,000 to the province's honey men who will receive about $450,000 compared to the $2,000,000 they get in a normal year.

The situation stumps the experts here. Dry early summer weather, frost in June and soil conditions may be factors but M. M. Webster of the Apiculture Department remarks that "the only way we can account for it is that the bees must be on strike like everyone else."

Western Ontario, hardest hit, has no honey at all. One prominent apiarist says it has been the worst year since 1919. In Central Ontario, the picture is brighter. There there has been enough honey so apiarists haven't had to feed their bees. There is some honey in the eastern and northern parts of the province but the yield is below normal.

Mr. Webster reports that the only bright spot in the picture is that bee colonies are strong and free from disease. Last year — when Ontario production was down to 9,095,000 pounds—the wet spring and prevalence of disease cleared out the hives and left the bee population poor and weak. This year there are more bees but less honey.

But Ontario isn't alone. Dominion government officials in Ottawa report that the honey yield is below normal all through Eastern Canada. In the west Manitoba and Saskatchewan have a normal yield. Alberta has the biggest crop in its history and British Columbia has a good yield.

The all-Canada crop for 1946 is estimated at somewhat more than 23,500,000 pounds although it may reach 25,000,000. This compares with 33,020,000 in 1945 and 45,702,000 in 1938.

MARMORA

Mr., Mrs. J. Goodrich Honored by Friends

Marmora.—A large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Goodrich on Wednesday evening, to spend a social evening before they move to Marmora Village. Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich were presented with a floor lamp and a sum of money and Barbara with a Waterman Fountain pen. An address was read by Mrs. J. Bell. Mr. and Mrs. Goodrich expressed their thanks and appreciation. Delicious refreshments were served by the ladies in charge.

Bride-Elect Honored At Consecon

Consecon.—The home of Miss Annis Johnson, Consecon, was the setting at Wednesday noon hour, for a delightfully arranged shower in honor of Miss Edith McDonald, bride-elect.

Mrs. Booth, on behalf of the friends and co-workers from United Canners, presented Miss McDonald with a pyrex coffee percolator and silver. The hostess added a beautiful handmade quilt.

Edith graciously expressed appreciation to her friends for their kindness and for the lovely gifts.

The tables were nicely decorated with Autumn flowers and centred with a huge mound of red apples and a delicious dinner followed. The hostess was assisted by Mrs. Lindsay Irvin and Mrs. J. LaRue.

AVONDALE NEIGHBORS' AID

The Avondale Neighbors' Aid meeting was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harold Wright with an attendance of thirty-three. The president Mrs. Lough was in the chair. After the opening hymn the Lord's prayer repeated in unison. Mrs. H. Elvidge and Mrs. L. Reid took charge of Devotional Exercises. Pins were presented to the members from the Salvation Army in recognition of the volunteer war work which they have done. Each lady introduced the person sitting at her right. A sing song was enjoyed, then Mrs. M. Button introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. G. G. Wright who chose her subject "Parental Atmosphere in the Home". This talk was most interesting and thought provoking. Her challenge was "Do your children enjoy a bright cheerful atmosphere at home, or a dull chilly one." A vote of thanks was given by Mrs. H. Elvidge. A "Personal" contest created much hilarity for which prizes were awarded.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Wright, Mrs Frederick and Mrs. White. Mrs. J. Rapson and Mrs. Elvidge were prize winners during the social hour. A vote of thanks to the hostess and to any others who helped to make the meeting so enjoyable was expressed by Mrs. L. Reid.

South Hastings Teachers Meet; Problems and Methods Discussed

Teachers of Hastings South Inspectorate had crowded into Friday the discussion of many problems concerning their work as they met in annual convention at the Prince of Wales School, S.S. 5 Thurlow. They were welcomed by Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., for East Hastings and F. W. Sherbert, president, occupied the chair.

A talk urging teachers to strive for and attain higher standing in their qualifications was given by H. K. Hutton, M.A., B. Paed., Director of Extension, Queen's University, Kingston. It was hinted that in time there would likely be the requirement that public school teachers have university training and degree.

Inspector R. H. Macklem spoke on the psychology of teaching in getting the pupil to work. He suggested methods which might be applied to get backward children to make progress, and laid stress upon "the see, the will and the can" method of progress.

On the subject of the "New Course in Agriculture" Robert Phillips, B.S.A., outlined the aims of study and the methods used to get the boys of public and high schools interested in agriculture. He showed the value of exhibitions, judging and prizes in furthering this objective.

Brief reports on the work of the summer school were given by Miss Sutherland and Miss Judge on arts and craft, Miss Rhea McCullough on music, Miss Fox and Miss Treverton on kindergarten primer.

Mrs. Wanda Sine, secretary of South Hastings Teachers' Educational Association outlined its work, paying special stress on public speaking as sponsored by the association.

Mrs. H. Jones, discussing primary reading outlined the course as proposed and introduced a number of teaching techniques which are employed in her own school at Avondale.

At the noon hour the Tabernacle Church ladies served lunch for the members of the convention in the church rooms. Mr. Ronald Elmey sang two solos.

Major J. W. McCrimmon, B.A., B. Paed., supervisor of Visual Aids for the Ontario Department of Education, pointed out the various uses and advantages of visual education, suggesting that this method of training was not a new thing but had been known and taught since long ago. He illustrated his remarks with reference to the ancient Bible teaching methods in the time of Christ.

K. M. Bird was elected president and Mrs. H. Jones Secretary-treasurer.

Mrs. Mary Campbell of Sidney, president of the Women Teachers' Federation, spoke on organization and plans for federation work.

WEDDINGS

BARTON—LUMMISS

An effective arrangement of baskets and other containers of Fall flowers decorated Christ Church, Belleville, for the marriage, on the afternoon of October 5, of Miss Gladys Winnifred Lummiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lummiss, 98 Catherine Street, to Mr. James Tovell Barton, son of Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Barton of Kingston, Ont., with the Rev. J. Grant Sparling officiating.

Entering the church to the strains of wedding music played by Mr. Kaye Martin, the bride, given in marriage by her father, made an attractive picture in her street-length, sunny-blue dress, with blue lace mitts and hat of pink ostrich tips. She carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliffe roses. Her only attendant was Miss Lenora Wilkes, wearing a pink dress with black accessories, and a hat of blue ostrich tips. Her bouquet was of Rapture roses.

Mr. Robert Barton performed the duties of groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. Harry and Gordon Lummiss.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Lummiss received the guests in a dress of heavenly blue with black accessories, black hat with fuchsia feather and wearing a corsage of fuchsia colored gladioli. The groom's mother assisted, wearing a dress of teal blue, matching hat, black accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

For a honeymoon trip to Brittannia Lodge, Lake of Bays, the bride chose a blue wool dress, beige top coat and black accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Barton will reside in Kingston.

Out-of-town guests were present from Beachville, Kingston, Toronto, Marmora, Napanee and Lake St. Peter.

IRELAND—ARMSTRONG

Trenton.—On Thursday afternoon at St. Peter's rectory, Trenton, a quiet marriage was solemnized, when Miss Helen Catherine Armstrong, daughter of Mr. John Armstrong and the late Mrs. Armstrong, of Sidney Township, became the bride of Mr. William Alfred Ireland, of Trenton, with Rev. Father Carley officiating in the presence of the immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride made a charming picture in a wool suit of heavenly blue shade, with matching feather hat, and wearing a corsage of cream colored roses. Miss Aileen Armstrong was her sister's only attendant, wearing a pink wool suit with black accessories, and a corsage of Talisman roses. Mr. Bruce Ireland assisted his brother.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Dutch Mill Inn, where the tables were attractively decorated with gladioli and asters. Mrs. Ireland, mother of the groom, received wearing a black crepe dress with matching hat and accessories, and a corsage of pink roses.

For a motor trip through New York State, the bride chose a blue suit with black accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Ireland will take up residence at 38 Marmora Street, in Trenton.

SHANNON—MULLIGAN

Marmora.—The marriage was solemnized recently in the Church of Christ, the King, Sudbury, of Idamae Mulligan, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Mulligan, of Sudbury, and James Laughlin Shannon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Shannon, of Marmora. Very Rev. Father J. C. Humphrey performed the ceremony, and Mrs. T. Caron played the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an ivory satin gown fashioned with a basque bodice, a centre inset and yoke sleeves. There was a slight train at the back of the full skirt. Her headdress was a half cap of Alencon lace, trimmed with a halo of feather flowers. A double finger-tip veil of tulle fell from the cap. She wore matching lace elbow-length mittens and carried a Colonial bouquet, centred with white gladioli and cornflowers.

The matron of honor, Mrs. G. C. Grogan, wore moonstone blue crepe with a drape front; a dusty rose deep-brimmed hat with blue feather trim and matching rose elbow-length mittens. Her bouquet was a sheaf of dusty pink gladioli and cornflowers.

Mr. William Shannon, brother of the groom, was best man, and the ushers were, Messrs. Gerry C. Grogan and Thomas J. Mulligan.

Mrs. E. D. Wilkins, sister of the bride, sang Rosewig's "Ave Maria" and "On This Day", at the signing of the register. Mrs. A. Hitchon, of Toronto, cousin of the bride sang Cesar Frank's "Panis Angelicus", at the Communion.

Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was held at the bride's home for the immediate families. Mrs. Mulligan, mother of the bride, chose black crepe, trimmed with sequins, a black velvet hat decorated with pink birds and matching pink gloves. Mrs. T. Byrnes, of Toronto, sister of the groom, also received the guests. She wore a gown of black sheer, with black accessories, a fur neckpiece and a corsage of red roses. Mr. E. D. Wilkins, K.C., acted as toastmaster. The wedding breakfast table, covered with a filet cutwork cloth, was decorated with Sweetheart roses, sweetpeas and pink tapers and was centred with a three-tier cake. Mrs. H. F. Sefton, of Toronto, aunt of the bride, poured coffee. Mrs. J. H. McKinnon cut the ices and Mrs. D. G. Mulligan displayed the gifts.

The out-of-town guests were, Mrs. H. F. Sefton, Mrs. T. Byrnes, Mrs. A. Hitchon, all of Toronto; William Shannon, Marmora; Miss Jeanette Miron, Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Keeley, Kirkland Lake; Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Keeley, Virginiatown, and Rev. Father J. A. Mulligan, of Capreol.

FITZGERALD—CRAWFORD

Marmora.—A quiet wedding was solemnized at Sacred Heart Church, on Monday morning, at 9.30, when Catharine Frances Crawford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Crawford, of Marmora Township, became the bride of Raymond William Fitzgerald, of Otonabee, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fitzgerald. The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. Farrell. The wedding music was played by Miss Reta Deacon and Mrs. James McGrath sang Gounod's "Ave Maria". The children's choir also rendered hymns during the Nuptial Mass.

The bride was given in marriage by her father and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond McDonnell, of Trenton, were the attendants.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Royal Hotel, after which the couple left on a motor trip to points east. On their return they will reside in Peterborough.

PATENAUDE—WHALEN

A pretty Autumn wedding was solemnized at nine o'clock on the morning of September 28, in St. Vincent de Paul Church, Deseronto, when Rev. Father G. T. Martin united in marriage Marguerite Isabel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Whalen and Pte. Marcel Paul Patenaude, R.C.R, Brockville, son of Mr. V. A. Patenaude, of Limoges, Ontario, and the late Mrs. Patenaude. The wedding music was played by Mrs. M. Huyck. The altar was tastefully decorated with gladioli. Two brothers of the bride, John and Terrance Whalen acted as altar boys.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white net over satin with puff sleeves. The bodice of white silk jersey with a sweetheart neckline, was designed in points at the waist over the full net skirt. Her embroidered fingertip veil fell from a heart-shaped headdress and she wore elbow-length gloves of silk jersey. She carried a bouquet of red roses and fern tied with lace ribbon. Her only ornament was a strand of pearls.

The groom was attended by his brother, Pte. Rheal Patenaude, of Kingston.

Following the marriage a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The living-room was decorated with pink and white streamers and flowers and the bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake.

For travelling to Montreal and points east the bride chose a rose wool dress with brown accessories. After their return Mr. and Mrs. Patenaude will reside in Deseronto.

HOGG—WRIGHT

Picton, Oct. 12—A wedding of interest was solemnized at Bloomfield United Church this afternoon, by Rev. M. Buttars, when Wanda Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Wright, Picton, became the bride of Walter N. Hogg, son of Mrs. E. L. Hogg, West Lake. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a tailored suit of light blue wool with pink blouse, a pink feather hat and black accessories with corsage of pink roses. Mrs. Russell Wing was bridesmaid, wearing a brown wool suit, pink hat and black accessories with corsage of pink roses. William Drew was groomsman.

Mr. and Mrs. Hogg left by motor for points west. The groom served overseas with the R.C.A.F. and was a prisoner-of-war in Germany for two years.

ROSLIN

Young Couple Feted by Friends

Roslin (Special) — On Friday evening the Roslin hall was the scene of a very happy gathering when friends and neighbors met in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Newton Demill (nee Evelyn Cross) who were married recently. As master of ceremonies Mr. John Hart called the gathering to order and invited Mr. and Mrs. Demill to the front of the hall. Miss Helen O'Neil read an address, signed on behalf of the Roslin community, and the guests of honor were presented with two occasional chairs and an end table for which the recipients very graciously expressed their thanks. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening.

CHILD ELECTROCUTED

Fonthill, Oct. 11 (CP)—Four-year-old Kenneth Farrell died almost instantly yesterday, police said, when he grasped a 220-volt electric cable and was electrocuted. He had been playing near a machin at the rear of a canning plant.

TRENTON

Eastern Star Elects Officers

Trenton — The regular meeting and election of officers of Trenton Chapter No. 118, Order of the Eastern Star, was held in their chapter room, Front Street, on Monday evening last. The following officers were elected:

Worthy Matron, Sister Evelyn Hadley; Worthy Patron, Bro. Bruce Yarwood; Associate Matron, Sister Jessie Sprague; Associate Patron, Bro. John Pinch; Secretary, Sister Stella McQuade; Treasurer, Sister Hilda Goodsell; Conductress, Sister Helen Bowen; Associate Conductress, Sister Juanita Cook; Trustees, Bro. Alex Fleming, Bro. Nostrand Sprague, Bro. Albert Cook; Auditors, Bro. Harry Gray, Bro. John Pinch, Bro. E. A. McQuade.

The annual election of officers of Trenton Encampment No. 71, was held recently in the Oddfellow's Hall, 19 Front Street, and the results were as follows:

Chief Patriarch, F. T. McKend; Senior Warden, Ray Odrley; High Priest, George Jones; Scribe, J. E. Thow; Treasurer, T. R. White; Junior Warden, Arthur Walker; Trustee, 1 year, W. D. Watson; Trustee, 2 years, W. T. Whaley; Trustee, 3 years, J. R. Brown.

Customs and excise collection at the port of Trenton for the first six months of the current fiscal year which began in April amounted to half a million dollars. This amount is lower than the previous year because of the removal of many wartime taxes which formerly brought a lot of money into the local office. Collections for August and September were $80,000.

At the 18th annual convention of the Young People's Union of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, which closed in Perth on Tuesday last, a Trenton man, Jack McNeill, was elected treasurer. Other officers were: Rev. J. E. Beckel, chairman of the Bay of Quinte Conference, honorary president; past president, Don Williams, Belleville; president, Roy Ormiston, Brooklin.

V.O.N. News

Among the various services identified with the Victorian Order of Nurses is one which is probably most familiar with the citizens of the district and that is the general maternity service available. This service begins with pre-natal visits of an instructional nature, and for which no charge is made. Pre-natal clinics are held when mothers-to-be can meet together and receive information of vital importance for their health and that of their baby.

The Victorian Order Nurses assist at many home confinement cases. Then after the birth of the baby, either at home or in the hospital, the nurses are called to demonstrate, in the home, the best manner of bathing and caring for the tiny baby. Calls are made at all homes about six weeks after a baby is born, as an educational service ,and mothers are invited to bring their babies to the weekly Child Health Conferences where careful check is kept on the progress of the child until it is ready to enter school.

All visits of an educational nature are made without charge and are part of the V.O.N. health program. While adding to the cost of the service, their value in maintaining the health of the home and the community cannot be estimated. Citizens who have donated to the Community Service Campaign of which the V.O.N. is a part are doing their share in maintaining this service so valuable and necessary for the welfare of the community. Those who have not already made their contribution are asked to remember this annual appeal as soon as possible.

Consecon Lake District

AUTUMN

The meadow's green with aftermath,
The harvest fields are bare,
And lo! along the country road
The golden-rod glows fair;
And on the lake-side hill-top
The sumach's turning red.
And from a dainty hanging-nest
The orioles have fled.
And in the early twilight
We hear the south wind sigh—
It seems like Summer's quiet voice
Bidding the earth good-bye.
—Helen B. Anderson

Words of mine are inadequate to portray the beauty of the countryside at Consecon Lake in Autumn. From my kitchen window I view a scene of glowing color and of tranquil beauty—a maple in crimson crown and nearby the more subdued foliage of brown and bronze and green and gold, with the glowing velvet of the sumachs at their feet and the blue waters of the lake glimmering beyond the sand-strewn beach. As in the burning bush of Holy Writ, one feels in the thrilling autumnal beauty, the very presence of God.

A haze on the far horizon,
An infinite tender sky,
The rich, ripe tints of the cornfield
And the wild geese wheeling high:
And all over upland and lowland,
The charm of the golden-rod
Some of us call it 'Autumn'
But others call it God.
—W. H. Carruth.

The members of Hillier Guild were very pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Merritt McFaul on Wednesday afternoon. With the President, Mrs. C. L. Jones in the chair and Mrs. M. McFaul pianist. Mrs. Fred Morton gave the financial report, which included the generous donation of $100 to the church building fund. Plans were discussed for the annupal bazaar which will be held in the Town Hall, Hillier, in the afternoon of Nov. 15.

Readings were given by Mrs. C. L. Jones and Mrs. Warner McFaul. At the close a social hour was enjoyed when refreshments were served by the hostess and her daughter, Mrs. Ray Ferguson.

Farm Changes

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Weese and family, who have occupied the F. S. Anderson farm, are removing soon to Pleasant Bay where they have bought the Bennie Palmer farm. They will be followed by the best wishes of their many friends.

It is understood that Mr. A. Wight has bought the farm of the late John Morton. Mr. and Mrs. Wight and family have occupied the farm for a few years. They are now welcomed as permanent residents.

The Kinnear homestead of late years owned and occupied by the late Stewart Kinnear has been purchased by Mr. Cannons, Ameliasburg.

Mrs. D. H. Young, Cannifton Road, is spending a few weeks with Mrs. Marsh Trumpour, Hillier.

Mrs. Gilbert Osborne, Whitby, is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. C. B. Clapp and Mrs. Clapp Hillier.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield French and Mrs. W. H. Anderson were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clapp on Friday, Mrs. Anderson remaining for the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Morton spent Sunday with friends in Bloomfield.

The October meeting of Melville Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Clayton Zachariah on Thursday afternoon.

The warm weather is favorable for the ripening if late tomatoes. A number of men and women from his locality are employed in the canning factories—Greer's, Eggleton's and Platt's.

TWEED

W.A. OF HASTINGS DEANERY MEETS

The annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Hastings Deanery of the Church of England was held in St. James' Church on Tuesday. The morning session opened at ten-thirty, with the dispensation of Holy Communion. Rev. Mr. Hutchison of Madoc, special speaker for the occasion, preached an impressive sermon touching on the duties of each W.A. member.

Dinner was served at the noon hour in the basement of the Presbyterian Church to about one hundred and twenty-five delegates and friends.

The afternoon session was held in the auditorium of St. James Church, with Miss Edna Tanner, Deanery Secretary, presiding. Ten parishes were represented and the secretary of each gave a brief account of the year's work. The Diocesan President, Mrs. Wright of Kingston, introduced Miss Brooks, missionary speaker for the afternoon, who told a detailed story of her work at Aklavik.

Mrs. Wright, who attended the Dominion Annual at Winnipeg, Man., gave a very interesting report of the work accomplished there. The Diocesan Literature Secretary, and the "extra-cent-a-day" Secretary, spoke briefly. Mrs. (Rev.) Brownlee made an appeal for funds in support of the Diocesan Camp at Lynhurst. Miss Edna Tanner resigned as Deanery Secretary, and Mrs. Lindsay Tanner of Rawdon was elected in her stead.

The final speaker was Miss Marjorie Elliott, who told of her experiences with the Sunday School van during the past summer in the diocese of Qu'Appelle. During the tea hour an invitation fro mthe Stirling W.A. was extended to the Deanery meeting for 1947.

W.A. MEETING

Roslin.—The October meeting of the Women's Association was held on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. H. Chisholm with nine members and three children present.

The President, Mrs. S. Colden conducted the meeting which opened with a hymn and The Lord's Prayer. The Scripture lesson was the 95th Psalm and was read by Mrs. K. Carter. During the business period it was decided to hold a bazaar and supper in November.

Mrs. S. Carter gave a very interesting reading, "Feast of Harvest".

Rev. B. Heywood closed the meeting with prayer. The hostess served delicious refreshments.

GUN FAILED TO FUNCTION

Cochrane, Oct. 11 — (CP) — Bank manager William McDowell of South Porcupine said Wednesday he tried twice to shoot at a man who held up his branch of the Bank of Toronto, last November but both times his pistol failed to work. McDowell testified at the re-trial of Marcel Desserres, 23, on a charge of murder arising from the shooting of John Dubinsky, 48, a customer who attempted to leave the bank during the holdup.

Madoc Junction

Eggleton Church Anniversary

Madoc Jct.,—Sunday, October 6th. marked one of the most successful anniversary services ever held at Eggleton United Church. The pastor, Mr. Kenneth Stewart, conducted the service and preached inspiring sermons.

The church was crowded both morning and evening when friends from far and near joined the congregation to celebrate the anniversary occasion.

Special music was provided by the choir at both services, with Mrs. Bruce Stapley as pianist.

The church was decorated with a profusion of cut flowers and potted plants, among which was a beautiful mauve chrysanthemum, placed there by Mrs. Geo. Eggleton in memory of her husband, the late George Eggleton, a former steward of the church.

Mr. Stewart read a letter received from Mrs. A. Andrews of Belleville, who through ill health was unable to attend the anniversary service. Mrs. Andrews spoke of the dedication of Eggleton Church, when she, as a young girl with her parents and grandparents, attended the service. Along with her letter Mrs. Andrews enclosed a substantial donation in memory of her parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. David Eggleton.

Mrs. Andrews after her marriage lived in this neighborhood for many years and attended services Sabbath after Sabbath, and was a great help with her gift of song in this little rural church.

Mr. Stewart also read another letter received from Rev. W. H. Clarke of Deseronto. In his letter Mr. Clarke also spoke of the time the Eggleton church was built, of the dedication service, of his early training in the Sunday School, and the Sundays he had attended worship here in his youth.

These letters with their memories of by-gone years, brought much encouragement to the members who are endeavouring to carry on at the present time, and challenged one and all to work together and stand firm in the "Faith of Our Fathers" who had the vision to build this church in the community.

Personals

GENERAL

Q What are Canada Savings Bonds?

A Canada Savings Bonds are the successor to Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. They are your country's promise to return your money to you at any time and to pay you interest at an attractive rate.

Q Why are Canada Savings Bonds being offered?

A Because during the war, millions of Canadians learned the savings habit by buying Victory Bonds and War Savings Certificates. A recent survey shows that 82% of them want to keep on saving by a similar plan.

Q Is the Government selling Canada Savings Bonds just to raise money?

A No. Borrowing needs of the Government can be met by other types of loans. The main purpose of the Canada Savings Bond is to provide Canadians with a convenient way to continue this kind of saving and investment in peacetime.

Q Is there any limit to the amount of Canada Savings Bonds that one person may hold? If so, why?

A Yes. There is a limit of $2,000 for each individual, but each member of a family may hold bonds up to the limit.

Q What is the price of Canada Savings Bonds?

A 100%. That is, a $100 bond costs $100. If payment is not completed on or before November 15th, 1946, interest will be added to the purchase price.

Q In what denominations are Canada Savings Bonds available?

A $50, $100, $500 and $1,000.

CASHING OF BONDS

Q Can I cash my bond at any time before November 1st, 1956?

A Yes, any branch in Canada of any chartered bank will cash your bond immediately at full face value, plus interest at 2¾%, upon your identification as the registered holder.

Q Can Canada Savings Bonds be assigned or transferred?

A They can be cashed, but not assigned or transferred. This is necessary to prevent any individual from acquiring more than the authorized limit.

INTEREST COUPONS

Q What interest is paid on Canada Savings Bonds?

A 2¾%—payable yearly on November 1st from 1947 to 1956, by coupon cashable without charge at any branch in Canada of any bank.

Q Are interest coupons registered?

A No. They are payable to bearer.

REGISTRATION PROTECTION

Q Why is it necessary to register Canada Savings Bonds?

A Registration gives protection in case your bond is lost, stolen or destroyed. It is also the simplest way to ensure that individuals do not hold more than the $2,000 limit.

Q In whose name can Canada Savings Bonds be registered?

A They can be registered only in the name of one individual, adult or minor, up to the amount of the authorized limit.

Q Can Canada Savings Bonds registered in the name of a child be cashed?

A Yes. Banks are familiar with the necessary regulations.

Q Can Canada Savings Bonds be disposed of when registered in the name of a deceased person?

A Yes, any bank will supply the necessary information.

Q Can I replace my Canada Savings Bonds, if they are lost, stolen or destroyed?

A Yes. It is wise, however, to keep Canada Savings Bonds in a safe place, as you would any other valuable documents. In case of loss you should immediately notify the Bank of Canada, Ottawa, of the circumstances.

HOW, WHEN AND WHERE TO BUY

Q Where can I buy Canada Savings Bonds?

A At any branch of a bank or from an authorized investment dealer, stock broker, trust or loan company—or through the payroll savings plan if this is in operation at your place of employment.

Q How do I pay for Canada Savings Bonds?

A In any of the following 3 ways:
1. By payment in full at time of purchase.
2. By monthly instalments through a bank, trust or loan company.
3. By regular deductions from pay, where employers operate the Payroll Savings Plan.

8 out of 10 will buy again....

Sheik Emir Badur Subdues The "Krippler" in Fast Main Go At Arena; Will Meet Watson

Colorful Arabian Wins Second and Third Falls in Aaction - Packed Bout; Wrestles Empire Champion Here Next Friday; "Bunny" Dunlop Nearly Steals Show

If Lee "The Scowl" Henning had been in the Hume Arena audience last night, he would have howled in unholy glee. For Karl "Krippler" Davis, who presented La Henning with as neat a mat shellacking as the faithful has ever seen in a local ring, last Friday, was in turn subjected to the ignominy of defeat—and at the hands of that agile aggressive olive-skinned son of Araby, Sheik Emir Badul.

The swarthy, bewhiskered scion of a noble tribe of Iraquians who is in Canada in an effort to wrest the British Empire wrestling title from the Apollo-like brow of one "Whipper" Billy Watson, took a terrific drubbing in the first fall of the main bout but came back to win the second and third falls and earn the right to meet the "Whippah" here next Friday evening.

The be-gowned Badul who spotted the "Krippler" several pounds in weight, showed a different style of wrestling to what the pewholders are generally accustomed. Lithe, agile and not too tall, he displayed a more or less spectacular style of footwork to elude on several occasions the lumbering style of the Texan. He favored a chopping stroke with the side of his hand that landed on several occasions with paralyzing force on the shoulder muscles of the "Krip" causing that worthy to grimace with pain.

In the first fall the "Krippler" appeared to all intents and purposes, to be anxious to end the little matter of subduing the smaller foe from the sunny clime of Iraq. He punished him severely using his famous cobra hold but favoring cross-ring shoulder smashes into the ropes. He won the fall by this method in roughly 18 minutes of aggressive action.

But the second and third falls were different. The Sheik apparently not accustomed to bowing to defeat by this American Effendhi, crashed into sudden action. He tore into the "Krip" like a whirling Dervish into a binging Zulu and finally heaved him lock, stock and barrel out of the enclosure. The "Krip" landed with startling force on the south side of his lap near the ring apron, and decided to stay there until Referee Ernie Powers counted the fateful ten.

In the third fall the wily Iraquian displaying some fine foot work and not ducking away from the heavy smashes and leg rolls of the Krippler finally applied a single leg crab hold and pinned the foe for the fall and the match.

Manager Walt Gerow announced after the bout that he had completed arrangements for the Sheik to meet champion "Whippah" Billy Watson in a match for the British Empire wrestling title here next Friday night. These two favor similar styles of action and the bout should be one of fast scientific action with speed being the keynote.

That Man Again

"Al Bunny" Dunlop nearly stole the show with another of his "villainous" displays against dashing Mike Sharpe, Hamilton adonis. "Bunny" pulled out all his tricks from his wrestling warbag and had the customers screaming for his blood as he used his unorthodox methods in an attempt to subdue the foe. Sharpe was given a referee's decision after thirty-minutes of slap-bang action.

In the preliminary Billy Stack, of Bowmanville also earned Referee Fox's accolade when he fought the wily Jan Gotch to a thirty minute standstill.

CALM ON LAKE INJURES FISHING

St. Thomas, Oct. 10 — (CP) — Quiet calm on Lake Erie may be good for nature lovers — or any kind of lovers — but it isn't good for fishermen. The lack of wind to stir up the surface of the lake is causing limited catches of perch and herring, and local fishermen say the water is at its lowest point in the last three years.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The lads who are indulging in some extensive pigskinning operations in the southern section of the Bay of Quinte and mixing the odd spot of pugilistic calisthenics while meleeing on the gridiron were set sharply back on their respective haunches at the Albert College-BCI "seconds" game on the college campus the other day.

• • •

It seems that in the first two games, the boys were giving one another odd dig in the ribs and weren't a bit averse to throwing furtive left hooks and right crosses to each others maxillaries while in the heat of battle or when they thought the Umps were day-dreaming.

• • •

Bud Johnson and Al. Wiley were the officials in charge of the melee that saw the two "second" teams of the schools tangle, with Albert nudging the Church Street studes by a 7-6 count.

• • •

Now it seems that M'sieu Wiley, himself a broth of a football player who sports the colors of Albert during his pigskin peregrinations, and knows the majority of the rules and regulations as laid down for pigskin punters, left the old school tie in his dresser drawer. He gazed upon the scene with impartial eyes as did Referee Bud Johnson, and gently but firmly tossed the erring squads back twenty-five yards on occasion for roughing.

• • •

Al showed no favors. If the lads representing his Alma Mamma pulled a few secret punches back they went 25 yards. If St. Mikes did likewise, which they did, they were tossed back the same amount of yardage. By the end of the first half the gridders forget their pugilistic tendencies and paid strict attention to football.

• • •

And while on that subject, our Picton Gestapo informs us that there was a merry comedy of errors with the officials in the leading role the other day when Pete Beach's senior gridders defeated the Picton Collegiate squad by a 5-0 score in an exhibition tilt, "across the bay."

• • •

It seems the umps in question were very limited in their knowledge of the rules of the game, egad, and pulled off some amusing decisions. On one occasion, 'tis related, Albert went to the air in an offensive and tossed the leather pellet for a number of completed forwards to march to the hometown 25-yard line. Then for some unaccountable reason, unknown to the realm of pigskin science, and much to the surprise and later amusement of the many who have at least a glimmering of the rules, the Picton umps tossed the Albert squad back to the original starting point.

• • •

"They're not gointa get that much yardage on our guys with nary a comeback" chortled Their Nibs. And those naughty Albert College seniors, were actually rough. They surreptitiously slapped down the home-brew knowledge knibblers from the old county town, gently but firmly, it is alleged, pummelled their beardless faces, and in general acted like rough young hanigans. But the lads from the heart of the tomato-growing county took it like little gentlemen. They suffered the mayhemic tactics of the rude collegians from the city and actually 'tis said on a number of occasions turned the other cheek.

• • •

But "they who got slapped" according to our underground operator did not retaliate. No sirree, never let it be said that the gallant P.C.I. gridiron gladiators would stain their unblemished football escutcheon with such low tactics.

• • •

"We'll go out there and die — for good old PCI." But never let it be said, that we blacked an Albert eye," was their unsung slogan.

And that must have been the case for according to the official scorekeeper, the Albert squad was tabbed with 18, count 'em, penalties for roughing. WHILE PICTON DID NOT DRAW A PENALTY. Tsk, Tsk. Walter m'lad, what Nelsonian tactics are these? Didst place the telescope to the blind eye?

• • •

Coming back to that Albert-B C I "seconds" joust. McGaughey, starry Albert half went over for his team's only touchdown early in the first quarter with Bullock kicking the convert. The halfback kicked for another point in the same quarter giving his team a 7-0 lead. BCI came back strongly in the third chucker to crash over the Albert line for a touchdown which was converted.

• • •

On Saturday Oct. 19 the strong Regiopolis squad from Kingston will be at Albert College where they tackle the senior team of the school at 3 p.m. On Saturday, Oct. 26 the junior and senior teams will trek to Kingston to play the return game against Regiopolis teams.

• • •

St. Mike's fielded a strong squad of gridders in their tilt with BCI the other day, defeating their traditional rivals on the Albert gridiron by a 16-0 score. Both teams used over-age players and the game was purely of an exhibition nature.

• • •

Baseball trails this afternoon lead to Batawa where the Shoemen take on "Moose" Matthews impatient Flyer nine. The game is the first of the Belleville Senior Baseball League finals and should be productive of some fine baseball. While Bill Easton's crew are awaiting western Ontario finalists in the OBA Intermediate "A" championships, they are anxious to bring dual honors to Tom Bata's shoe town, and will be all out to tack the Flyers scalps to their baseball belts. But the Matthews' manager has other ideas. They haven't forgotten that elimination dealt out by the Men of Easton, and this afternoon they won't be fooling. Curtain rises at 3 p.m.

• • •

The boys from Beantown surged right back into the world series lead yesterday afternoon when they regained some of their batting orbs and hung a 6-3 defeat on those cocky Redbirds from St. Loo. The Cards now have their backs to the wall and tomorrow will see the "croocial game of this somewhat screwy series. Boston can cop the world's title (Mexico barred) with a win Sunday afternoon but the Reds from St. Loo must now win two straight if they want to split the biggest half of the series melon. "The Cat" Brecheen who flung a masterful chore against the Red Sox the other day will be the Cards mound choice, while Joe Cronin may throw "Boo" Ferriss at the Dyermen to end the agony. Game at 2.30.

• • •

Mayor Frank (Fleetfoot) Follwell, who in August showed a clean pair of heels to other entrants in the mayors road race during Old Home Week in Cornwall, has more than press clippings to prove himself a winner. The proof is a handsome silver trophy, suitably inscribed, which recently was received by His Honor attesting to his ability on the cinder track.

• • •

Inscribed on the silver mug are the words "Ontario Mayors' Challenge Cup, Road Race. Won by Mayor Frank S. Follwell of Belleville, the Friendliest City in Canada, August 8th, 1946". The handsome cup together with press clippings and pictures from a Cornwall paper are on display in the window of Paul Mercier, Front Street watch, repairman.

Manager Bill Easton announced this morning that his Batawa baseball squad will play a double-header with Trenton Flyers this afternoon in the final series of the City Senior Baseball League. The first game starts at 1:30 p.m. and will be a seven innings affair. The second joust will go the full nine innings.

A new duck-shooting wrinkle made its appearance in Peterboro waters on Monday according to a story from that city and it was used on Pigeon River. The stunt consists of using dead ducks as decoys and when properly arranged these are more effective than the wooden variety of "stools."

A three-quarter or half-inch board measuring 10 x 16 and made of cedar or pine is used. At the foot of the board is stiff steel wire sharpened to a point, and near the other end of the board are two small holes through which the duck's feet are pushed. The wire is used to hold the duck's head in a natural upright position, and the board is set out in the water. The bird looks perfectly natural.

IRVIN STAYS PUT WITH LAST YEAR'S CHAMPS

Coach Will Rely on Team That Brought Him the Stanley Cup Twice in Three Years

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Oct. 12 — (CP) — While the other National Hockey League teams have been juggling frantically all during preseason training for a winning combination, the Stanley Cup-holding Montreal Canadiens have been sitting pretty, and new faces are as scarce around their camp as spinsters in a speakeasy.

When you're the champ, you don't have to worry so much.

As a result, the Canucks will take the ice this season with a squad that you won't find any difficulty in recognizing as last year's titleholders, and not much different from the outfit that has taken the historic old mug two years out of the last three.

Canadiens hit the deck next Thursday, Oct. 17, when they tangle at the Forum here with New York Rangers, who ran a rather hapless last in the 1945-46 race.

Coach Dick Irvin isn't saying much about his prospects — he isn't exactly the type to bubble over with enthusiasm — but it's been noticeable this fall that he is much happier and more quietly confident about the whole thing than he has been in a long while.

Dick's biggest worry in the preseason grind, in fact, was how to weed his squad down to the 16-man — including goalkeeper — limit. He had so many good rookies and prospects in his camp it was downright embarrassing.

So he just played it canny and decided to stick with his winning combination.

From the goal out there's plenty of what it takes — stonewall backstopping, bruising defence and razzle-dazzle speed and playmaking up front.

Between the pipes of course, with a long-term lease that would be the envy of any hapless house hunter, is Vezina Bill Durnan, the league's leading goalie the last three years. It's become so hopeless trying to dislodge him that Canadiens finally traded Paul Bibeault, a netminder who deserves much better than a substitute's fate to Chicago Black Hawks.

To keep the wolves away from Bill's door are such well-established rearguards as Kenny Reardon, big Butch Bouchard the barkeeper, Leo Lamoureux, Frankie Eddolls and Glen Harmon. Reardon, who came out of a recent exhibition game all twisted up with a Charley Horse, should be all set when the season opens.

Coach Irvin, who doesn't throw superlatives around too often, thinks Reardon will be the prize defenceman in the league this year.

What, Those Three Again!

As for the starting line up forward, keep it a deep dark secret, but you won't go far wrong on the punch trio — swivel-hipped Elmer Lach, Rocket Maurice Richard and the old minute man himself, Toe Blake.

That threesome, who notched 145 scoring points among them last year, still stands as the forward line most likely to be dreamed about by N. H. L. goalies this year. The aging Toe, although he will never see 34 again still has plenty of that old ice savvy and is good for a few more games yet before he falls back on the crutches.

When the big three are off the ice, the secondary line won't give opposing teams much respite. Buddy O'Connor is out with a broken wrist for a few weeks, so Kenny Mosdell likely will centre the line with battling Murph Chamberlain and Jimmy Peters on the wings.

Then on the third line there's scrappy little Billy Reay, a 29-point scorer last year, with Joe Benoit and Bobby Fillion.

Then, as utility man Irvin has George Allen, obtained from Chicago in the Bibeault deal, who notched 26 points last year and may be worked in on one of the secondary forward lines before the season is too old.

Besides all that, Canadiens have strings on some top quality minor league stuff like husky Roger Leger and Jack Portland, with Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League, and Johnny Quilty of the Bisons. All are signed to Canadiens' contracts, subject to immediate recall.

Leger was voted the most valuable player in the A. H. L. the past two seasons while Portland, a former Canuck, showed great guns in training. Quilty, who copped the Calder rookie award back in '40-41 before he went in the R.C.A.F., has been burning up the ice this fall and might land with the world champions before next play-off time rolls around.

So is Dick Irvin worrying? Don't kid yourself!

KILLED AS CAR STALLS

Napanee, Oct. 11 — (CP) — Mrs. Marshall King of Moscow, Ont., was killed last night when the automobile in which she was riding, stalled and was struck by an approaching train at a crossing two miles from here.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

WHAT? YOU AGAIN? DON'T YOU EVER RUN OUT OF SOUND TRACK?
MISTER CHAIRMAN!! I RISE TO A PERNT OF ODOR TO INTERRUP! OUR FREN' HERE MEANS WELL, BUT HE'S FULL OF HOOEY!! ME- I BELONGED TO A LOT OF ASSERCIATIONS. NOW, LEMME TELL YOU HOW YORTER HANDLE THIS! I MAKES A MOTION AND SECONDS IT THAT—
WHO IS THAT LOUD-MOUTH CUTTING IN ALL THE TIME? NEVER SEEN HIM BEFORE
IF HE'D MAKE A MOTION LIKE LEAVING, THE VOTE WOULD BE UNANIMOUS.
OH-HIM? HE GETS AROUND TO A MEETING ONCE A YEAR AND WANTS EVERYBODY TO KNOW IT WHEN HE DOES OH, HE'S A WELL-POSTED GUY. JUST NOW HE'S POSTED FOR 6 MONTHS' BACK DUES.
LISTENING—AND STILL LISTENING—TO THE GUY WHO SHOWS UP ONCE A YEAR.

World Series Notes

By BILL KING

Boston, Oct. 12 (AP)—Today is Red Sox Manager Joe Cronin's 40th birthday but he has asked his players to delay their gift for another 24 hours and make it the clinching victory over the Cardinals.

Meanwhile all American League-minded numerologists are keeping their fingers crossed. The Sockers have taken the first, third and fifth of the current world series clashes and the Sunday renewal in St. Louis will be even No. 6.

About 500 of yesterday's spectators followed the winners to the airport last night when they, along with owner Tom Yawkey, boarded a special plane for the six-hour trip to the Mound City. Cronin, his coaches and eight players, including ailing Bobby Doerr, preferred the 25-hour train ride. Erstwhile slugger Ted Williams had a book on trout fishing to take his mind off his batting slump.

Cardinal pilot Eddie Dyer has a hunch that 20-year-old Vernon Jones, who was whiffed by Joe Dobson while batting for Brazle as leadoff in the eighth will be his 1947 third baseman. That should please Lou Perini and the rest of the Boston Braves "little steamshovelers." They are eager to have Whitey Kurowski doing their third basing and are ready to top all bids for him.

CHAPTER 27

"Oh yes! And then you began to be away, down in San Diego for weeks, and in Las Vegas, and Gary—remember you went with Mr. Christensen for five whole weeks to Gary? And then the war—and it seemed as if we'd never have any home life again. No, I don't know that I thought it out like that, or thought anything out," Isabel interrupted herself to say honestly. "Looking back, it's impossible for me to say what I thought, I don't seem to be the same person. I was asleep. There was a sort of fever burning in me, 'I mustn't miss everything, I'll only be young once!'

"Now," she went on, in a silence, "to be on that hilltop with you, watching the summer grow and get lovelier every day, to wait for the winter storms, to give you your breakfast coffee and sleep with my head against your shoulder, now that would be heaven to me, Dennis."

"Don't," he said briefly, gruffly.

"Yes, just this once. I want you to know. I want you to understand that because I grew up stupidly, selfishly, spoiled by my father, given my head in everything, I didn't understand. I do understand now. I know now that there's only one thing in life for a woman, that's companionship. Love and companionship with the man she lives with. That's what makes every hour magic, Dennis, and every meal a sacrament.

"And we had our children, too," she went on, in a low voice, her face flushed now and her lips trembling. "We had two daughters—now that I've lost them, what a miracle those words are!"

"You've not lost them," he said in a voice as low as her own.

"But I have, Dennis. Don, I don't mean that I won't see them, have them here, take them places and buy them new coats," Isabel said feverishly. "But I've ended something for them—and for me. No matter which family they live with, it isn't their own family. It's a stepmother there, and a step-father here—they'll never come first any more! If you have a child, Dennis, you and Madge, he'll be all the world to her — you can't make it fair to them! If I do—and I suppose that I will, before Avery went away we talked of it—then they'll not fit into that picture either. Those are the things I didn't know about. It sounded so simple; I told myself they'd still be my little girls, no matter whom I married! Nothing would be changed for them. Well, everything's changed, and I'm changed. And it's too late. It's too late.

"Avery'd like a son," she finished miserably, on her feet once more. "He'll be the important person in this house, if and when he arrives. They'll not count!"

She circled the room, stopping to straighten a picture frame, putting a book back into place; came back to her chair and sat staring at the fire.

"Madge loves them, I think she loves them," Dennis said, in a troubled voice. "God knows I do."

"Yes, and they are better there than here!" Isabel answered, without raising her eyes. "Money can be a funny cage, Dennis," she went on. "I wonder if some of the women who want to be rich know just what a cage wealth can be! In my case, now I get a fine nurse for the girls—and there is nothing left for me to do. Everything is an even routine, the fine nurse keeps the wheels moving, whatever I do just interrupts their day. They can't come running in here, as Pussy used to run into our room. Sometimes, naturally, Avery sleeps late; sometimes he's shaving or dressing. No time for little girls to be free to break in. I go upstairs for breakfast, they've had theirs, they're already to go walking with Yelta. They come in at noon, ready for lunch—of course if I'm here I see them, but that's a time I'm not usually here. Then naps, then out of doors again—oh, if they were Avery's children, then they could come in to me for an hour before dinner—and sometimes they do, but that's not really having children! The nurse has your children. But when you have seven other house servants you must have a nurse. You can't devote all your time—"

She broke off short.

"I love them more than my life," she said under her breath.

"We both love them."

"Yes, and what have we done to them! Not you. What have I done to them! Dennis," Isabel said, "a hundred times in these last months I've said to myself that if I had it to do again I never would do it —for them sakes—and for mine! I would wait for you until the end of the world! Oh, my God, if I had! And that was before I saw you at your mother's house and knew that I loved you and would always love you!"

After a long silence she added, "So that's that."

Dennis had been staring into fire, his linked hands hanging between his knees.

"That's that," he echoed with a brief upward glance at her. "Yes," he went on more firmly, after another silence, "that's that. always be together in one way, I suppose. But now—for the present—" He hesitated. "Yes, I see that," he said slowly. "We won't see each other. Only, there are the children, we'll both want to see them, we'll have to manage that somehow they don't get an impression of breakage—of disruption—"

Isabel was silent, staring ahead of her with hopeless, shadowed eyes.

"We can do that, Isabel?" Dennis said.

"Yes, I think so," she answered lifelessly, not meeting his look. "Other people do. Thousands, and thousands of other fathers and mothers are divorced, and they manage it somehow."

"You don't suppose," he offered, "that many of them feel like this?"

"I don't suppose many of them find that they really care for each other. Let me say this just this once," Isabel said, leaving her chair, coming back to the hassock at his knee. "Let me say that no feeling I have ever had in my life has ever been as strong as what I feel for you now. No feeling I have ever had in my life has equaled the longing—the longing I have to be with you again, to belong to you, Dennis, to share every hour of that life on top of the hill with you and my children! Since I saw you today you've been possessing me—possessing me, the sound of your voice, the look of you, the touch of your hand! Nothing will ever stop that, as long as I live. But I know what I have to do, and I can do it. I can be a good wife to Avery, join him somewhere—wherever his orders are when he comes back, make a home for him. And after the war we'll travel—go to Mexico—buy a plane— buy a duck club—anything that will make him happy. And to you I give our children—yes, you mustn't shake your head. I don't know anything about Madge—perhaps I didn't like her very much—that doesn't matter. What does matter is that you love them and you and your mother can give them the sort of home they ought to have, with no show and no waste and no ostentation about it. It may not be forever," Isabel concluded, bursting into sudden tears, "but for now, that's best."

"Please don't," she heard Dennis say. She felt his hand on her head, and she caught his other hand to her cheek and let her tears flow against it. "Don't, Isabel," he said.

"We can't even be friends," she said crying bitterly, "but we can remember this—that we love each other. Don't ever forget me, Dennis, don't ever forget what we might have been to each other. And perhaps someday—perhaps someday—"

He had been her husband for five years; he had never seen her cry this way before. Dennis put her hands aside, got to his feet, went to stand at the fireplace.

"I am human, Isabel," he said in a low tone, "and I have loved you ever since I first saw you. For God's sake—"

"I am human, too," Isabel sobbed, with her face hidden in her hands, and the brocaded robe sweeping about her bowed figure like the draperies of a statue of grief.

Dennis did not move or speak. When she raised her drenched face and looked at him he was standing with his hands in his pockets, his pipe gripped in his teeth.

"Go on loving me, Dennis," Isabel said wiping her eyes, pushing back her hair.

"Ha," he answered briefly. He knocked his pipe against the bright steel rods of the grate, put the pipe in his pocket.

"If I could go back and be your wife again I think I would do better," Isabel went on, smiling up at him, with her dark eyelashes wet like those of a tearful child.

"I wouldn't want you to do any better."

She put her face suddenly down in her hands again. A moment later she felt his cheek against her hair; she did not raise her head as he went to the narrow glass door that led to the terrace and opened it and was gone. She could hear his footsteps on the bricks of the shallow terrace steps, and the engine of his car, and the slamming of a car door.

After a long while she got to her feet and went wearily to the window. She stood motionless, staring out into the dark. On the circle of the driveway a dim band of yellow light shone; it touched the tips of the shrubbery with tiny glittering spangles. The evening was dark, with no stars and no moon; fog was pouring silently in over the western hills; the guardian oaks dripped moisture on the dark stretches of the lawns.

The days began to wheel slowly by, melting into each other. Isabel faced them steadily; she would not let herself be afraid. "I won't think, I won't think," she told herself in the night, when she awakened to see the illuminated dial of her small gold bedside clock pointing to two o'clock, to three. "I'll read—I'll work on my puzzle—" ....

"They say you grow better and stronger for things like this," she would tell herself, walking hard and fast through the woods that lay all about, making herself notice the greensward under the great oaks, the beauty of an unexpected glimpse of a paddock with young horses running in it, or a herd of cows wandering toward the barn in the late afternoon. "They say that doing what you don't want to do, and doing it hard—all day long and every day—is the way to grow. Spiritually. Inside. Maybe—even though I did it—did it to myself—there'll be some way out."

It was hard. The taste had strangely gone out of life. She had no one near her to whom confidence would be natural, with whom consultation, confession would help.

The mail—the telephone bell—the sound of a car making its way up the drive in the quiet afternoons, all of these said only "Dennis." The library where they had had their talk was haunted by his ghost, the ghost of a lanky, dark quiet man, filling his pipe, raising his head to her his slow smile, saying in his dreamy, almost absent-minded voice, "I wouldn't want you to do any better."

When she thought of her children. It was always with their father in the immediate neighborhood. They were all laughing together, as they carried their luncheon up to the ridge in the Sunday sunshine, while the fog rolled silently away, and the bay, far below the oaks and the hillside roofs, shone melting blue in noontide light.

Or dark demure little Mary and Catherine were creeping down the stairway in the evening, peering below to be sure of welcome, romping the last few steps in their quilted wrappers and furry slippers, to kiss everyone good night again and warm themselves at the white-brick fireplace before being dismissed for the night. There had been great debate about the fireplace; would the flue of the older, smaller chimney accommodate it? Isabel remembered the triumph of the first fires there; the flames had leaped for escape at the chimney mouth, and Dennis had grinned in satisfaction.

"Nothing like marrying an engineer!" Isabel had said.

Now Madge shared the hearth with him. Sensible Madge, with her lifeless blond hair braided about her temples, and her honest, good-looking face. She had loved him long before he thought of her, of course. She had thought of all this.

Red Sox Take Strangle-Hold On Series Defeating Cards 6-3 Hectic Fifth Game

Teams Resume Battle on Sunday in St. Louis; 'Cat' Brecheen Stands Between Sox and Championship

By JACK HAND

En Route to St. Louis, Oct. 12 —(AP)—Harry (The Cat) Brecheen stands between Boston Red Sox and the 1946 world championship as the travel-weary baseball caravan heads back to Sportsman's Park.

Out in front of St. Louis Cardinals by a 3-2 margin in games, Joe Cronin's Sox need but one more victory to clinch the big prize.

That one victory must be earned tomorrow over Brecheen, a crafty lefthander who holds a 3-0 series shutout, or the decision will be hanging in the balance until a seventh game is played Tuesday.

Cronin has listed an "either or" pitching selection, refusing to go any further than to say it will be Mickey Harris or Dave (Boo) Ferriss.

Boston climbed back into the driver's seat by yesterday's 6-3 victory as three Red Sox players who had not figured prominently in pre-series discussion wrapped up the fifth game all by themselves: Joe Dobson, an overlooked starting pitcher, threw a four-hitter in winning his first series effort. Don Gutteridge, a last minute sub for the ailing Bobby Doerr, came up with two big hits, one of which drove home the tie-breaking run in the second inning and Leon Culberson, an added starter in right field, smaked a home run that gave Dobson a comfortable working margin in the sixth.

Howie Pollet didn't have a thing and was hammered off the hill in one third of an inning after allowing three hits and one run.

Some effective relief pitching by Al Brazle was all that saved the Cards from a first-inning rout. As it was they tied up the game in their half of the second but once Boston grabbed the lead in its half of the same frame, it was evident to most of the 35,892 spectators that it was not going to be a St. Louis day.

Williams Finally Clicks

Ted Williams drove in his first run of the series with a first inning single that knocked out Pollet and Gutteridge scored Roy Partee with the tie-breaking tally in the second provoking quite an argument.

Partee slid into the place as rookie catcher Joe Garagiola took Terry Moore's peg and lunged at him, trying for a tag. Plate umpire Lee Ballantant ruled Partee safe and Garagiola protested bitterly. Even Dyer, who seldom wrangles with umpires, kicked up a fuss after Garagiola showed him spike marks on his left forearm.

It was a big run for the Birds had tied the score in the top of the second on Harry Walker's double to left following Johnny Pesky's two-base error on Joe Garagiola's grounder. Walker drove home all three runs, the other two with a ninth-inning single.

Following Culberson's clout in the sixth, the Sox applied the crusher in the seventh with a 3-run blast on doubles by Dom DiMaggio and Pinky Higgins, two intentional walks and a two-base error by Marty Marion on a wild throw.

Enos Slaughter, hit on the right elbow by a pitched ball in the fourth inning, was forced out of the game in the seventh and reported last night there was some doubt about his playing Sunday.

The Sox' ailing second sacker, Bobby Doerr, was expected to resume his place in the lineup after a two-day rest necessitated by a severe headache.

Nova Scotia Coast The Spot for Tuna

New York, —(CP)— Nova Scotia as a Utopia for anglers received another boost recently when it was reported by a fishing news service here that Mr. and Mrs. John Manning, Los Angeles, Calif., boasted a total of 115 tuna off Wedgeport, N. S., on periodic trips since 1938.

In 1938 the couple reeled in 27 blue fin tuna with rod and line. In 1939 they landed 42. In 1941 they made a brief visit and caught three, one an 810-pounder. This year, the couple caught 40. Of the total accounted for during these years, Mrs. Manning caught 32.

The total poundage of tuna caught in Nova Scotia waters by the "angling Mannings" to date is 25,537 pounds, nearly 13 tons.

Barbara Ann Scott Debutant Skater To Receive Award

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 12 — (CP)—She's just 18, but Barbara Ann Scott will hold the Canadian athletic world in the palm of her hand when she steps up to receive the Lou E. Marsh Memorial trophy at a civic reception Tuesday.

It's a double-barrelled honor for the blond wide-eyed debutante, who will be presented to Ottawa society this season. Not only does the award name her the most outstanding Canadian athlete of the year, but she is the first woman ever to receive it.

Ladies figure-skating champion of Canada for the last three years, Barbara won the North American championship in 1945. In November she starts in training again, which means anywhere from seven to eight hours a day for the next four months—then her worries begin. Barbara's in a quandary. She wants to go to Stockholm in February to try for the world figure-skating title but to do so probably she will have to forfeit her Canadian and North American titles as those competitions are held around the same time.

What made Barbara Ann decide to turn her skating into a full-time career? She doesn't really know. "It just came naturally, I guess."

Just like many a performer she has her little superstitions to help her on the way to success. Her mascots — three miniature elephants and a toy donkey — always are somewhere near when she is preparing to enter a contest.

Five feet three and a half inches in height, she's not a member of the "fluffy" set, but carries her passion for tailored clothes even into her decorative skating costumes.

Barbara, already a horsewoman hopes to get her private pilot's licence some time this fall.

The young athlete is getting her final year of high school through a private tutor. She hopes to go to university.

Schoharie

Schoharie—Everyone is glad to welcome Mrs. Clare Campbell back as the teacher for the coming year.

Refreshments were served and round and square dancing was enjoyed.

"Flash" Gordon Goes to Tribe In Surprise Deal

By TED MEIER

New York, Oct. 12 — (AP) — The long-expected shakeup in the ranks of New York Yankees, once the scourge of the baseball world, has started in earnest.

In a surprise announcement at midnight the Yankees announced they had traded Joe (Flash) Gordon, star second baseman to Cleveland Indians for Allie Reynolds, a 27-year-old righthanded pitcher who won 11 games and lost 15 the past season.

The Yanks also sent Joe Edward Bockman, a rookie third sacker, to the Indians for an undisclosed amount of cash and players to be announced later. Bockman trained with the Yanks in Panama last spring before being shifted to the club's Kansas City farm in the American Association.

The deal, apparently made by Larry Macphail, president of the Yanks, and Bill Veeck, president of the Indians, at the World Series in Boston, follows the unexpected resignation of Bill Dickey as manager in the closing days of the season. Dickey had succeeded Joe McCarthy at the helm in May.

Speculation other Yankee trades has long existed. One rumor is that centrefielder Joe DiMaggio has been offered to the Red Sox in a trade for Ted Williams. Macphail has made no official comment on that. Neither has he indicated who will succeed Dickey. Coach Johnny Neun finished out the season as manager.

CAMPAIGN FLOPS

Dereham, Norfolk, England — (CP)—This market town (pop. 6,000) decided by ballot to raise £17,000 ($68,000) to build 10 homes for servicemen. When the subscription list closed only 35 had subscribed and the total collections were £446 ($1,784).

Every new Wage Earner

. . . should answer these questions:

How MANY 'earning years' are you looking forward to?

Right now you take pleasure and pride in that job of yours! But later in life, retirement is going to seem pretty attractive too. Years slip by quickly. You should, accordingly, SAVE through Mutual Life of Canada insurance which will provide for your retirement and protect your dependents . . .

Does it matter WHICH life insurance company you choose?

Yes! Life insurance companies are much alike as to policies and rates, but actual long-term results vary widely. We invite you to compare The Mutual Life of Canada's record with that of any other company. Evidence of the satisfaction of our policyholders is furnished by the fact that whole families and succeeding generations have entrusted their life insurance programs exclusively to The Mutual Life of Canada, and each year approximately 35% of its new business comes from policyholders. Ask your Mutual Life representative to explain the special features of this Company.

Price Controls On Meats Lifted By Pres. Truman

Early End to Restrictions Except on Rent Expected

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington Oct. 15, (CP)—President Truman's announcement ending price controls of meat in the United States as the "only remedy" for the country-wide shortage was expected to bring back steaks and roasts on butcher counters within two to three weeks although prices probably will be higher than current ceilings.

The President—to the tune of Democrats' applause and criticism, Republican taunts and industry jubilation—also signalled an earlier end to virtually the whole series of wartime restrictions, except those over rents.

Mr. Truman said the removal of ceilings on items other than meat will be speeded up and this will hasten the end of wage controls.

Sharply reversing his previous stand, the President told Americans the "real blame" for his action "lies at the door of the reckless group of selfish men who, in the hope of gaining political advantage, have encouraged sellers to gamble on the destruction of price control."

Speaking in a country-wide broadcast last night, three weeks before the Congressional elections, Mr. Truman said that the office of Price Administration and the agriculture department would formally scrap the meat price lids today. Their action was all that was required to make the elimination of controls legally effective.

Administration officials were ready today to put the President's order into immediate effect and anti-control groups were confident there would be an immediate push of cattle to the slaughter houses.

Tacit Admission

The President's action was tacit admission that he and others were wrong when they declared no more than three weeks ago that the meat famine was due to excessive slaughtering during the price control holiday last July and August, and not to a general revolt against continued price control.

Moslem League Definitely To Enter Government

New Delhi, Oct. 15 (Reuters) — The Moslem League announced today it has decided definitely to enter the Interim Indian government.

Names of the League's five nominees have been sent to the Viceroy, Field Marshal Viscount Wavell.

Representation on the Interim Government had been a chief point in dispute between Moslems and Hindus and had accentuated bitter feeling between the two groups, often flaring into violent communal demonstrations.

On the Interim Government the Hindus have six of 14 seats. The Moslems are allotted five and the other three are reserved for minority groups.

Previously the Moslems had refused to enter the Interim Government.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)— Weather synopsis: Warm air covers Southern Ontario and all but the extreme northwestern States. This warm air will cover Southern Ontario today and Wednesday with clear skies and above normal temperatures. The cool air that overlay Eastern Canada Tuesday continues to persist in Northern Ontario and Quebec with considerable cloudiness throughout and a few light showers in Northern Ontario. Much cooler air has driven southward from northwestern Canada bringing near freezing temperatures and occasional snowflurries. This cool air is expected to push across Northern Ontario tonight and Wednesday and to reach extreme southwestern Ontario late Wednesday.

Unrest Feared In Germany During Winter

By RICHARD O'REGAN

Frankfurt, Oct. 15 (AP)—High American intelligence sources said today that overcrowding, hunger and economic uncertainty might cause "bad unrest" in Germany in the winter.

But, they said, the United States army doesn't expect much Nazi subversive activity. Anti-American resistance, they added, is "at its dullest," though a "careful watch" is being kept on German veterans organizations, termed "the biggest potential threat to our occupation."

"We have plans to meet any possible trouble in the American zone," said these quarters, speaking unofficially. "It's problematic whether there will be any, but all the potentialities are there."

They listed these major factors:

1. Population increases: United States zone population is expected to jump to 17,450,000 by the end of the year—against 16,000,000 three months ago.

2. Overcrowding: Available housing is taxed 43 per cent over 1939 standards. There is not enough for all new arrivals, even though "most Germans live like sardines."

3. Food: The German crop was better than expected, but the minimum calory ration for Germans depends on grain shipments from the United States—"we're going to feel the effects of the shipping strike right in the middle of the winter, when we can least afford it."

4. Major crimes are dropping but "potentialities exist for a crime wave."

Christian Democrat Party Maintains Lead in Election

Hamburg, Germany, Oct. 15 — (AP)—Unofficial figures released yesterday indicated that the Christian Democrats were maintaining their lead in Sunday's British zone Kreis (county) elections with 5,389,608 votes and 2,221 seats. Next were the Social Democratic with 5,053,265 votes and 1,422 seats.

Running a poor third was the lower Saxony Party with 446,782 votes and 239 seats. The Communists actually had a third highest in total votes—1,051,647, but had gained only 75 seats.

The vote was for 28,000 candidates for 7,777 county council and borough council members.

Millions in Europe Fear Another War With Soviet Union Says Ross Munro

By ROSS MUNRO
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Oct. 15 (CP)—From Paris to Berlin, millions of people, in Europe, looking cynically at the hard-won peace, are seriously concerned over the possibility of war between the Russian group and the western nations.

The disputes at the peace conference here, the creation of a semi-military frontier down the length of eastern Europe from the Baltic to the Adriatic, the never-lessening tension, and the terrifying degeneration in relations between east and west in Europe provide an alarming picture to Europeans, living in a traditional battlefield

Fears that haunt Europe are compounded of a spate of loose and frequently completely irresponsible talk of war which has increased during the last three or four months on the continent.

In three typical cities of western Europe, Paris, Berlin and Brussels, I've heard over the last few months unfeigned, inflammable war talk that makes one's skin creep. It is as depressing a development as Europe has seen since the end of the last conflict.

The really serious aspect is that you now meet scores of people, some in responsible positions, who seem to accept the inevitability of war with the Soviet.

In Berlin, a senior officer spoke openly of the probability of a fight. Another expressed sincere concern to me as to how he would get his wife and daughter out of the city in time before the "balloon went up."

Belgian friends in Brussels, one of the most prosperous and settled capitals in Europe, talk with bewildering alarm at the outlook in Europe. When Hon. Brooke Claxton, head of the Canadian delegation to the peace conference, was here in September he was given a reception. Within 15 minutes, three Belgians asked him whether he thought there would be another war before long.

The Paris conference itself has hardly been a peace conference. Suspicion, distrust, stubbornness and fear have dominated its proceedings from the beginning. In private, war talk is mixed with peace talk among many delegates.

A leading delegate from a western country said this to me the other day: "We have seen exposed in the Nuernberg trials the way in which aggressive war is started. There seems to be a remarkable parallel today in Europe to the situation in the late 1930s. It is a terrible prospect for humanity."

781 U-BOATS WERE DESTROYED SAYS NAVY, AIR REPORT

69 Per Cent of Allied Tonnage Lost And 2,775 Merchantmen Sunk During War

London, Oct. 15 —(Reuters)—The Admiralty and the Air Ministry today gave their official account of the war against German U-Boats in a short book written by Capt. H. T. Darling, R. N., and published under the title of "The Battle of the Atlantic."

The book relates how during the 68-month long struggle, German submarines almost suceeded and how the war against them was a vital, protracted and bitterly fought sea and air campaign.

Prepared for the Admiralty and the Air Ministry by the central office of information, the book's hundred-odd pages are illustrated with eight charts to correspond with the phases of the battle wihch began with the sinking of the Athenia a few hours after the declaration of war and lasted until May 7, 1945, one day before the German surrender.

During that time, 781 U-Boats were destroyed.

Part Played By Canada

The book gave due credit to the vital part played by Canada in the Battle of the Atlantic.

It contains a detailed account of the achievement of Flt. Lt. D. E. (Bud) Hornell, former Mimico, Ont., schoolteacher, in sinking a submarine by air attack. Flt. Lt. Hornell, fatally injured in the attack, was posthumously awarded the Victoria Cross.

"The Battle of the Atlantic," also relates the surrender of the U-Boat 501 to the corvettes Chambly and Moose Jaw while they were on shakedown cruise.

The report discloses that when war broke out, Germany had 57 operational modern U-Boats and at the end of the 1942 the number with Italian submersibles, was was 485. Until the end, the German U-Boat fought with discipline and efficiency and only the night before the surrender sank two allied merchant ships.

In all, 69 per cent of allied tonnage was lost through them and they sank 2,775 merchantmen of about 14,500,000 gross tons. Sixty four per cent of these losses occurred in the Atlantic and 54 per cent of the losses were British.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN TRAIN WASHROOM

North Bay, Oct. 15 — (CP) — The body of a man identified as Hector McEachern, of unknown address, was found today in an eastbounr Canadian National Railways train shortly after it left North Bay. The man's throat had been slashed with a razor blade and he lay in a train washroom.

The man carried a ticket which showed he had started from Vancouver, and a letter found in his pocket from a sister in Prince Edward Island indicated he was en route to visit her.

Executions of 11 Nazis Begin at Nuernberg At 12.01 a.m. Reported

Nuernberg, Oct. 15 —(AP)—Official reports circulated today that the hangings of the 11 condemned Nazi ringleaders would begin in the Nuernberg prison yard at 12.01 a.m. Wednesday (6:01 p.m. E.S.T., Tuesday.)

It previously had been expected that the executions would start at dawn, although there had been no official announcement concerning the time.

It is expected that the executions will take about three hours altogether and that a formal announcement of the completion will be forthcoming about 4 a.m. (10 p.m. E.S.T. today).

The four power commission has made plain that there will be no official announcement concerning the executions until after the last man has gone to the scaffold.

Reports that the hangings will begin at one minute past midnight tonight were given credence by an American officer, a Russian colonel and several prison employees.

There has been no information given out concerning the arrangements for the hangings, but if they are to be completed within three hours this probably will mean that more than one scaffold and more than one hangman will be employed.

The 11 men scheduled to die:

Hermann Goering, Adolf Hitler's No. 2 man.

Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister.

Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the high command.

Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl, German army chief of staff.

Alfred Rosenberg, philosopher of the Nazi party.

Hans Frank, governor general of Poland.

Fritz Sauckel, Nazi labor boss.

Arthur Seyss-Inquart, gauleiter of The Netherlands.

Julius Streicher, the Jew baiter.

Wilhelm Frick, "Protector" of Bohemia and Moravia.

Canada Savings Bonds on Sale Very Heavy Buying Expected

Ottawa, Oct. 15 —(CP)— Heavy sales of Canada Savings Bonds were expected today as the new issue went on sale across Canada at chartered banks investment and brokerage houses, trust companies, and through the payroll savings plan.

About 92 per cent of Canadian concerns will make it possible for their employees to continue savings habits acquired during the war when Victory Bonds were purchased by deductions from pay envelopes.

The new issue, bearing 2.75 per cent interest by annual coupon, is of registered bonds only, since it is designed solely for individual Canadian purchasers, who are limited to $2,000 each. This will eliminate purchases by banks, financial concerns and also foreign investors, since each registered bond must bear a bona fide Canadian address with the purchaser's name.

While the bonds are for a one-year term, they are cashable at full face value plus interest at any time.

REPORTS CONFLICT ON EFFECTIVENESS BUSHMEN'S STRIKE

Situation Will be Clarified When Men Come Out of Bush to Key Centres

Timmins, Oct. 15 (CP) —Conflicting reports trickling in from the vast Northern Ontario timberlands failed to give a true picture today of the effectiveness of the strike of an estimated 12,000 bush workers.

Six thousand men in this area and a like number in the Thunder Bay district went on strike Friday seeking a $5-a-day minimum wage and improved living and working conditions.

At Port Arthur last night officials of the Lumber and Sawmill Workers Union (A.F.L.) which called strike said there was "no doubt" most of the camps were out and that the walkout was general. However, a spokesman for the Thunder Bay Timber Operators Association said he knew "definitely" that many men were still working and that some camps were not out.

Yesterday provincial and town police stood by here to halt any attempt at violence as about 60 workers crossed picket lines to enter four strikebound sawmills. Until the police arrived more than 125 picketers massed on two roads leading to the mills, attempting to prevent non-striking workers from crossing their lines.

Of the four mills on the city's outskirts one—the Feldman Timber Company—is shut down completely, mill managers said. At the A. E. Wicks Company production was reported at 98 per cent of capacity and the Mochesney Lumber Company, Limited, said only 30 per cent of the normal complement reported for work.

At the other firm, the Mountjoy Timber Company, Limited, a subsidiary of Hollinger Gold Mines, teamsters and maintenance men staffed operations.

Warning to Pickets

The workmen entered the three operating plants after a police warning to pickets blocking the road which leads to all four.

Picketers, warmly garbed against near-freezing temperatures, turned back a small truck which tried to cross their line to the Feldman property. Then the non-striking workmen appeared.

The pickets were turning them back when Sgt. Ber Braney of the local detachment of the Provincial Police arrived along with a constable.

YUGOSLAVIANS WITHDRAW FROM PEACE PARLEY

Letter Says Delegation Will Not Participate in Final Approval of Parley Decisions

Paris, Oct. 15 — (AP)—Yugoslavia withdrew officially from the peace conference today as the delegates of 21 countries conducted their final session.

The Yugoslav delegation, which had contended strongly but without success for the Italian port of Trieste, addressed a letter to the conference chairman, Quo Tai-Chi of China, announcing Yugoslavia would not participate in the final approval of the conference decisions and would not associate herself with the recommendations.

The action followed denunciation Monday by Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia of some of the conference's decisions as "unsatisfactory," suggesting that questions such as Trieste, free navigation of the Danube and the Bulgarian-Greek border would be reopened when the Foreign Ministers council meets in New York Nov. 4 to draft the final terms for Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland.

Deputy Premier Evard Kardelj of Yugoslavia, who wrote the withdrawal letter, said his country was withdrawing in protest against what he termed "unjust decisions" imposed upon Yugoslavia by asserted ruthlessness in "outvoting."

Departing for Home

Delegates, meanwhile, made preparations to depart for home or for further international debate at the United Nations General Assembly in New York, beginning Oct. 23.

Foreign ministers of the Big Four arranged to meet in New York on Nov. 4 to take final action on the five peace pacts written here and to begin work on a treaty for Germany.

Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia told the delegates yesterday that portions of treaties written here were "unsatisfactory" and said he would insist that the Big Four reconsider parts of these pacts. Russia has the power of veto in the foreign ministers' council, a power it did not have in the peace conference itself.

The conference had no authority except to make treaty recommendations to the Big Four, which in turn will submit the treaties to the United Nations General Assembly for final ratification.

Fifth Statement Said Made to Police by Mrs. Dick Is Read Into Court Records

Accused Says She Was In Car When Dick Was Shot

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Oct. 15 —(CP)— In a vivid description given police on April 12 during retracing of the alleged murder route of March 6 when John Dick was killed, Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick declared William Bohozuk killed her husband and with two shots in the back of the head and later added another shot "in the stomach or chest."

The 26-year-old Hamilton woman said her father Donald MacLean gave Bohozuk $300 or $400 to "do the job."

This was the fifth statement from Mrs. Dick read in evidence at her Ontario supreme court trial before Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, for the murder of her streetcar-driving husband, a killing for which her father Donald MacLean and Bohozuk will stand trial later.

Today's statement in court was no less fantastic in its detail than her previous statements admitted to evidence, the first two of which she repudiated in statement No. 4 which declared statement No. 3 was the truthful version.

Says Bohozuk Killed Dick.

But in statement No. 5, she told that Bohozuk killed her husband with two shots from a gun loaned him by Donald MacLean during a motor ride in which she did part of the driving.

The body, she said, was returned to her garage.

She saw it later, minus legs and arms—"The head was almost off" —and a few days later Bohozuk took the body and dumped it on Hamilton mountain where it was found last March 16.

This statement was given to Det. Sgt. Clarence Preston of the Hamilton police force in company with Inspector Charles Wood of the Ontario Provincial Police. He read the statement in its question and answer form and said it was a verbal statement. He used his notebook to refresh his memory.

She said she met her estranged husband about 2 p.m. on March 6 and later they picked up Bohozuk.

The statement said she stopped the police car at the alleged murder spot and placed her finger on the back of Inspector Wood's neck and said:

"This is where Bohozuk shot John in the neck and blood spurted out of the right eye. He shot him again there. The car was filled with smoke."

She sat beside the man as he was killed with shots from the back seat, and slumped forward.

Then Bohozuk took the wheel and when Dick groaned, fired again "I thought in the stomach or chest."

"I'm not lying, I'm telling the truth now, why should I take the rap for someone else?" the statement quoted Mrs. Dick.

The detective said when she was returned to the police station after the tracing of the murder route and was told she could write out the statement. She said she would think it over.

Became Indignant

When Inspector Wood suggested her statement did not add up she insisted it was the truth and became indignant, said Sgt. Preston.

"That's the only time in my experience with this woman," the Sergeant told crown prosecutor Harvey McCulloch, "that I knew her to show any emotion other than being in a good mood."

This statement made no mention of the alleged "Windsor Gang" which, according to statement No. 1 killed her husband and in which she said she helped in taking the torso to the mountain March 6. It said nothing either of the unidentified man Romanelli who according to statement No. 2 and 3 was mixed up in the killing.

A routine appearance of the petit jury and dismissal later delayed the start of court proceedings on this eighth day of this trial.

During this early wait J. G. O'Neil, managing editor of the Hamilton Spectator waited on Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow to ask lifting of His Lordship's instructions to the press against reporting in this trial, evidence concerning William Bohozuk and Donald MacLean, father of the accused. The two men are to be tried for the Dick murder at a later date.

Abides by Direction

It was understood His Lordship said he must abide by his previous direction to the press on grounds mention of Bohozuk and MacLean in news reports of this trial might prejudice their trial.

The petit jury was dismissed until Thursday morning, a possible indication that the trial of Mrs. Dick may be concluded by then.

His Lordship said "I must again call the attention of the press my injunction against the mentioning of evidence concerning Bohozuk and MacLean, also applies to the radio."

He said it had come to his attention that the ruling had not, in some cases, been followed.

"I want it clearly understood," he said "that my injunction still holds."

"There is only one reason for my injunction — to prevent any prejudice to these two men who are charged with the most serious offence."

He said it was "regrettable" some of the press and radio "had not co-operated in the administration of justice."

Detective Called

Det. Sgt. Clarence Preston was called to the stand to tell circumstances of the taking of a fifth statement—verbal—from Mrs. Dick, charged with the March 6 dismemberment murder of her husband John Dick.

He quoted the accused as saying "when are they going to bring the old man in?"

Asked who she meant she said, "my father," and went on to say he had loaned his gun to Bohozuk.

The Sergeant said he was asked was Bohozuk in the case.

"Absolutely."

"My father paid Bohozuk $300 or $400 to do the job and was sitting in the Astor getting drunk when it was done."

"My father hated John Dick's guts," the young widow said in statement.

Drove to Mountain

It told how on March 6 with Bohozuk and John Dick she drove to Hamilton Mountain.

"I drove some of the time and Bohozuk some of the time."

Preston said he asked "how many shots were fired?"

"Three."

The statement said the murder took place "on a sideroad" in daylight.

"What would you say if you were asked to go out and show us the spot?" the detective asked in this statement taken April 12.

She agreed and said her father and Bohozuk looked after the disposal of John Dick's body.

Drove Over Claimed Route.

"I think it went to 32 Rossyln Ave," she said.

Later on April 12 Sgt. Preston arranged a drive over her claimed murder route from Mrs. Dick with himself and Inspector Charles Wood.

They drove to a blue-trimmed farmhouse and on to a culvert Sgt. Preston said but failed to find pop bottles which she said were thrown from the car.

At another point, she said, "Here is where John started to get drunk."

Later in the drive John worried about being late for work. She was driving at the time, the statement said with Bohozuk in the back seat and he signalled her to keep going.

By now they were on the Ancaster township road.

John "got mad" when the drive continued, the statement went on, Detective Sgt. Preston reading the whole thing.

It quoted Dick as saying he would start divorce proceedings the following day—March 7—and told Bohozuk he would be the "laughing stock instead of the bigshot," at the plant where he worked.

Showed Where Man Shot.

The police car drove on a bit until the accused said "stop," went on Sgt. Preston.

"This is where Bohozuk shot John Dick," the statement quoted her as saying.

Sgt. Preston said the accused placed her finger on the back of Insp. Wood's neck and said "He shot John here. The bullet came out the right eye and blood spurted all over. The car was full of smoke and I was choking."

Then, said the statement, Bohozuk shot Dick again, a little lower in the back of the head.

"John groaned."

Car Filled with Smoke

So, the statement said, Bohozuk shot the 40-year-old motorman in the chest.

Sgt. Preston said Insp. Wood told the young woman her statement did "not add up."

She insisted "I'm telling the truth."

"Bohozuk fired the two shots and blood was over everything. The car was filled with smoke. "John slumped forward.

"The Indian blanket lay across the seat where I was sitting. Bohozuk came and got the blanket and covered John with it and got in behind the wheel.

"John groaned. Bill turned, and pulled the gun from his right pocket and said 'I guess I'd better finish him off.' Then Bohozuk shot John, I thought either in the stomach or chest.

Placed in the Garage

She said her borrowed car was driven to her Carrick Ave. house and there Bohozuk placed Dick's body in the garage.

Then she drove uptown, parted from Bohozuk, and returned home. She bought some cleaning fluid and tried to get the blood off the car.

"I tried to get it into the garage because I didn't want people to see the blood," said the statement.

In early testimony at this trial witnesses have told of Mrs. Dick trying in vain last March 6 to try and get a large car into her garage.

The statement went on to tell how Mrs. Dick had cleaned up a bit and then returned the borrowed car.

She said she saw the body the next night.

"The arms and legs were cut off."

"What about the head?"

"It was not quite cut off."

And on the following Sunday Bohozuk came and took the body away and got rid of it, the statement said.

Recounted Story of Drive

After the morning recess Inspector Wood took the witness stand and he recounted the story of the April 12 drive with the accused when she gave statement No. 5. He said he did the driving and the accused was in the back seat with Det. Sgt. Preston.

Throughout all the testimony Mrs. Dick, still in black and with the now-familiar fawn coat, sat unmoved. She looked up and down from her sheets of notepaper to both Wood and Preston and appeared to be sketching.

Inspector Wood's story of the drive followed that of Sgt. Preston in close detail.

Inspector Wood said he asked her about the man named "Romanelli" who she had involved in the killing in earlier statements.

"She said, there may be a Romanelli, but not in this case."

Inspector Wood said at the conclusion of the drive Mrs. Dick was given opportunity to put this latest story in writing but she declined and said her lawyer had told her she didn't have to so she would not.

Mrs. Dick seemed to find the police testimony about the route she took them, boring in the extreme.

Court was adjourned for lunch until 2.30 p.m.

Hamilton, Oct. 15 — (CP) — Scheduled for the court record today in the torso murder trial of Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick was her fifth statement to police, following hard on her fourth statement in which she said words from William Bohozuk that "We've got him at last" were her true declaration.

The comely young widow made this claim in what was her fourth statement to be admitted as evidence by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow of the Ontario Supreme Court in her trial for the March 6 murder of John Dick, 40-year-old Hamilton street car driver.

That claim went into court testimony when the accused denied that her statements Nos. 1 and 2 were the true story.

It, in effect was her statement No. 4 to police and finished off a bizarre day in court where the jury heard her tale of how her husband met his end, an end which would be with him being killed on March 6 and his headless, limbless body deposited on Hamilton Mountain, to be found there March 16.

HASTINGS HOLSTEINS WIN AT SHOW

Local entries were among the prize winners at the fifth Annual Regional Championship Holstein Show held October 9, at Peterboro, John Burnside, Madoc, won second prize on Pabst Posch Philip in the Senior Yearling class which was headed by the Junior Champion. Other local prize winners were E. Masse, Belleville, fifth prize two-year-old bull; Philo Harris, Madoc, ninth Aged Cow; McComb Bros., Bonarlaw, ninth Senior Progeny and Jack McComb, Bonarlaw, tenth Heifer Calf.

In the special Inter-County Calf Club Competition, the Hastings entry stood third, with Durham first and Ontario second.

CHARGE FAILURE TO SECURE THEIR RADIO LICENCES

Charged with failure to procure their radio licences, 32 Belleville residents in the East Hill district were delivered summonses today requesting them to appear in local police court.

The above charges were laid following investigation made by the district radio inspector, A. G. E. Argue, of Kingston.

Sales of radio licences in Belleville this year are considerably behind normal, according to Mr. Argue, who warned that charges would follow in cases where set owners neglected to renew their licences.

FRESH RASPBERRIES, STRAWBERRIES SEEN

If one wandered about the country this balmy Autumn weather he might be able to gather enough fresh fruit to make himself a delectable fruit salad, according to various reports from several parts of the district.

Over near the Carrying Place, Prince Edward County, Mrs. Marie Lockwood has picked fresh blueberries and strawberries on the farm of the Goodman brothers. The strawberries were nearly an inch in diameter and were of good quality. The blueberries were tasty and of good size and the report states there are plenty of blossoms and green fruit on the bushes.

Near Halloway, Emory DeMille has picked a considerable number of raspberries of fine quality and size.

SENTENCE IS SUSPENDED

Pleading guilty to the theft of a sum of money from his employer, Ernest Dunley, driver for a local taxi firm, was given one year's suspended sentence when he appeared in local magistrate's court today before Magistrate T. Y. Wills. Dunley was ordered to pay the costs of the court and to make restitution.

REV. A. M. LAVERTY APPOINTED JUDGE SPEAKING CONTEST

The Rev. A. M. Laverty, Stirling, an overseas padre, has been appointed judge of the Northumberland County public speaking contest being held in Cobourg on Friday, Nov. 1, it was announced today. In collaboration with Mr. Laverty will be H. W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative of Hastings County; Douglas Deviney, Vernonville; Shirley Harnden, Grafton and Ralph Banbury, Brighton.

The winner of the contest will appear in a district competition to be held later. Mr. Laverty will address the gathering on his experiences with the armed forces overseas.

Three of Family In Hospital After Crash

Three persons were admitted to Belleville General Hospital, one of them suffering from critical injuries, as result of a motor-truck crash which occurred Saturday evening in the village of Foxboro.

Injured are Calvin Tanner, 44, R.R. 2 Madoc; his wife Gladys Tanner, driver of the car, and son Glen, age ten years. A second son, William, aged 12 years, fortunately escaped injury and was permitted to return to his home.

According to provincial police the Tanner family were proceeding north towards home when at the intersection of Highway No. 14 and Madoc Road, an east bound truck coming from the direction of Stirling and driven, it is said, by James Kehoe of Read, crashed broadside into the side of their car. The impact forced the Tanner car across the sidewalk with Tanner being thrown from the auot narrowly missing a tree. He suffered concussion and internal injuries, while Mrs. Tanner sustained a broken arm and facial lacerations. The son also suffered lacerations. Both car and truck were badly damaged.

The injured were given first aid at the scene of the accident by Dr. Russell Scott of Belleville who was passing and were rushed to hospital by ambulance.

Suffers Cuts From Glass In Car Collision

Carman Tracey, Roslin, was slightly injured when lacerated by flying glass, and two cars were considerably damaged as result of a collision between two motor vehicles at the intersection of 5th of Tyendinaga and the Shannonville Gravel on Monday evening.

Joseph Buckley, Corbyville, was west bound on the concession road when entering onto the Shannonville gravel police stated his auto was in collision with a southbound vehicle driven by Edgar Burleigh of Roslin. The Buckley car struck the Burleigh car broadside, according to police. Tracey was a passenger in the Burleigh auto.

R.C.A.F. Mobile Recruiting Unit Seeks Men for Ground Trades

A mobile recruiting unit of the RCAF will be at the office of the Unemployment and Selective Service office at Belleville from one o'clock until nine o'clock Tuesday afternoon and evening to interview young men interested in air force ground crew trades.

The Air Force has opening in all ground crew trades such as air frame mechanics, electricians, radio operators, radar mechanics, clerk administration and many other trades, it was stated by the recruiting officer. Young men wishing to enlist and without previous service experience must be over 18 years of age and under 26 and should normally have junior matriculation. Skilled tradesmen without previous experience will be accepted up to 30 years.

All enlistees accepted are given free transportation to No. 1 Air Command at Trenton, where they will go through details of enlistment. Then they are posted to No. 1 Manning Depot Portage La Prairie, Manitoba, for basic training in the service trade selected.

Splendid Response In Essay Writing On Fire Prevention

A splendid response on the part of school children from the four local public schools and the Separate school was seen in last week's essay writing and poster drawing competition which was stated in connection with the observing of Fire Prevention Week.

Drawings and essays this year were particularly good examples according to Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance who this morning with another party acting as judge commenced the task of deciding winners. Six prizes of cash and merchandise are being offered at each of the four public schools and at the Separate school.

Special fire drill at all Belleville schools and at the Ontario School for the Deaf was held during the week with visiting firemen noting a slight improvement in the orderly manner in which children filed from their school rooms. They admitted, however, that there was a minimum of time in which children could clear their school building without rushing and disorder resulting.

Times at the different schools were as follows:

Obituary

MRS. EFFIE BARNHART

Mrs. Effie Barnhart, widow of Charles Barnhart, died at her home, 18 St. Paul Street, on Saturday afternoon after an illness of three years' duration.

Born in Glasgow, Scotland, the late Mrs. Barnhart was in her 81st year and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Campbell. For the past sixty years she resided in this city. She was a parishioner of St. Thomas' Anglican Church.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. Jessie Kemp, Belleville. A son, Harry Barnhart, lost his life in the First Great War. Her husband died in 1940.

The funeral took place Tuesday afternoon from her late residence. The service there and at Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. Arthur Smith, Rector of St. Thomas Church.

FOSTER SIMPKINS
(Roslin)

Foster Simpkins died at his home at Roslin on Sunday afternoon after a lengthy illness. He was born 63 years ago in the 4th. concession of Hungerford township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Simpkins. All his life was passed in the district.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church St. until early Tuesday evening then at his home in Roslin; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. GRACE (Gilbert) COLE
(Toronto - Belleville)

Mrs. Grace Cole, wife of Mr. Percy T. Cole and formerly of Belleville, died at her home, 6 Glen Stewart Avenue, Toronto, early Tuesday morning. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Cole was born in this city and was a daughter of Mrs. Bertha Gilbert and the late William Gilbert. The greater part of her life was passed in this city and for the past fifteen years she resided in Toronto. To many friends here the announcement of her death will bring much regret.

Surviving besides her husband are one son, Richard George Gilbert Cole, and her mother, Mrs. Bertha Gilbert, Toronto.

MRS. ASCENATH J. HINCHCLIFFE
(Wallbridge)

After an illness of two months' duration Mrs. Ascenath Jane Hinchcliffe, wife of Mr. James Albert Hinchcliffe, Wallbridge, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Sunday morning.

The late Mrs. Hinchcliffe, who was in her 69th. year, was born in Cashel township, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Haggerty. For the past forty years she resided at Wallbridge and was highly esteemed in the community. She was a member of the United Church at Wallbridge and when able took an active part in church work, being a member of the Ladies' Aid and a life member of the Women's Missionary Society.

Surviving her besides her husband, are two daughters, Mrs. William Blackburn of Eldorado, and Mrs. Charles Fair of Wallbridge; one son, Barton C. Hinchcliffe of the 5th. concession of Sidney township; two sisters, Mrs. Jenat Twiddy, Belleville, and Mrs. Arthur Wilson, Halloway; two brothers, John Haggerty of Simcoe, and James Haggerty of Oshawa.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon and interment took place at Frankford cemetery.

MRS. ISABELLA HARRISON
(Sidney Township-Peterborough)

Mrs. Isabella Harrison, widow of Arnold Harrison, and who made her home with her grandson, Mr. Harry Coulter, 6th. concession of Sidney township, died suddenly in Peterborough on Sunday morning, Oct. 13th., at the home of her grandson, Mr. Orby Weese, with whom she intended to spend the winter. She had only arrived there one day prior to her death.

The late Mrs. Harrison, who was in her 87th. year, was born in Hungerford township, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Blakely. For some years she lived in the 1st. concession of Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward County, and for the past twenty years she lived in Sidney township. She was a member of the Marsh Hill United Church.

Surviving her are one daughter, Mrs. Addison Coulter, Foxboro; two sons, Winfield of Roslin and Wesley of Plainfield; one brother, Albert Blakely, Tweed.

The funeral was held this afternoon from the home of her grandson, Mr. Harry Coulter, to the United Church at Thomasburg where service was conducted at 2.30 o'clock.

Interment took place at Thomasburg Cemetery.

LATE JAMES HERBERT INKSTER

The death occurred on Friday last at his home on Madoc Street of a well known resident of Marmora in the person of James Herbert Inkster in his seventieth year, after a lengthy illness.

Deceased was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Inkster, pioneer residents of Marmora Township, and all his life was spent in Marmora Township until three years ago when he gave up farming and moved to Marmora Village. Of a quiet disposition, he was highly esteemed by a large circle of friends and neighbors, who sincerely regret his passing.

Besides his widow, the former Margaret Clemenger, he is survived by four daughters—Mrs. Henry Fluke (Helen) and Mrs. Harry Brown (Jean) of Marmora; Mrs. Donald Nobes (Edna) of Marmora Township, and Josephine at home. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Ida Parker of Norwood.

The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 from his late residence to St. Andrews United Church, Marmora where service was conducted by Rev. E. M. Cadigan. Interment took place in Marmora Protestant Cemetery.

JOHN DINGMAN

John Dingman, 140B Front Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Monday morning. He was in failing health for a number of years.

Born in South Fredericksburg township, near Napanee, the late Mr. Dingman was in his 74th. year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Dingman. For the past 31 years he made his home in this city. He was a member of Christ Church and fraternally he was a life member of the Orange Order and was a Past Wor. Master of Benjamin L.O.L. No. 274 and a Past Master of The Apprentice.

Surviving are his wife, the former Beatrice Ovey; one son, Gordon of Belleville, and brother, William of Belleville.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

MRS. ANNIE SEMARK

After an illness of two months' duration Mrs. Annie Semark, wife of Mr. Charles S. Semark, died at her home, 291 Pinnacle Street, early Monday morning.

Born 64 years ago in England the late Mrs. Semark was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Skelton. For the past 39 years she resided in this city. She was a parishioner of St. Thomas' Church.

Surviving her are her husband; two daughters, Mrs. Rose Murray and Mrs. Mary Post, both of Belleville; six sons, Jack, Charles, Harry, James and Albert, all of Belleville and George of Toronto. Also four brothers and one sister in England.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street, until late this afternoon, then at her late residence; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

TERRY DOUGLAS MOORE

Terry Douglas Moore, the twelve days'-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford T. Moore, 14 Grove Street, died in the Belleville General Hosptial on Saturday evening. Surviving besides the parents are two brothers and three sisters.

On Sunday afternoon the Rev. J. W. Houston, minister of the Tabernacle United Church, conducted service at the Grant Funeral Home, North Front Street, and interment took place at Belleville Cemetery Tuesday afternoon.

St. Michael's High School Holds Graduation Exercises

The graduation ceremonies of Saint Michael's High School began at 8.30 Friday morning, October 11th, when the entire student body gathered for a Mass of thanksgiving and a general Communion. The celebrant was Right Reverend Monsignor Nicholson.

At four o'clock numerous friends and relatives assembled in Saint Michael's Auditorium to do honor to the Graduating Class. The parting of the curtains revealed a charming picture. On a stage artistically decorated with a profusion of chrysanthemums, gladioli, asters, marigolds, and other autumn flowers and foliage, the graduates were arranged in pleasing groups. The girls of the class were beautiful in their traditional floor-length white gowns with corsages of red roses, contrasting with the dark suits and red boutonieres of the boys.

The duties of chairman were carried out with ease and efficiency by John Briand, a student of the High School. After cordially welcoming the guests, Mr. Briand called upon Mr. A. Dutton, President of the Holy Name Society, and Mr. M. J. Callaghan, Grand Knight, to present the awards donated by the Holy Name Society and the Knights of Columbus. Those meriting the awards were as follows:

Grade XI

Prize for Religion, Miss Jean Marie Trudeau; Highest Aggregate, Miss Diane Upper; Second Highest Aggregate, Lawrence Power; Third Highest Aggregate, Norman Kalney.

Junior Matriculation

Highest Standing in Religion, Miss Nora Flurey; Highest Standing in English, Miss Maureen Upper; Highest Standing in Mathematics, equal marks obtained by Miss Mary Jean Hudon and Ted Boyle; Highest Standing in French, Miss Mary Dunlop; Highest Standing in History, Miss Maureen Upper; Highest Standing in Science, William Ross; Highest Standing in Latin, Miss Mary Dunlop.

(Miss Mary Dunlop was also the recipient of a Dominion-Provincial Scholarship for $100.00.)

Senior Matriculation

Highest Standing in Religion, Miss Ruth Pfeifer; Highest Standing in English, Miss Ruth Pfeifer; Highest Standing in French, Miss Ruth Pfeifer; Highest Standing in Mathematics, Miss Ruth Pfeifer; Highest Standing in History, Miss Betty Flynn;; Highest Standing in Latin, Miss Sheila Doyle.

During the past year some students who had already completed their Upper School returned for extra courses. The prize winners in this group were:

Highest Standing in Science, Miss Mary Agnes Wilkinson; Highest Standing in History, Miss Mary Flynn.

Refers to Achievement

Mrs. George Wilson, President of the Catholic Women's League, in congratulating the graduates made special reference to the excellent achievement of Miss Ruth Pfeifer, and presented her with a scholarship of twenty dollars on behalf of the Catholic Women's League. Mrs. Wilson also announced the decision of the Catholic Women's League to donate a prize annually for the new Commercial Department of the School.

Mrs. Pringle, President of the University Women's Club presented the scholarship of ten dollars awarded annually by this Club, and merited this year by Miss Ruth Pfeifer. Calling attention to the fact that this scholarship is open to girls of all Senior Matriculation classes in Belleville, Mrs. Pringle paid gracious tribute to Miss Pfeifer and to the teaching staff of the school.

As valedictorian, George Wilson eloquently expressed the sentiments of the graduates on leaving their Alma Mater, and warmly thanked all those who had helped them to attain the laurels of graduation.

The diplomas for Middle School and Upper School were conferred by Right Reverend Monsignor Nicholson, who also delivered the address to the graduates.

Class Congratulated.

Monsignor Nicholson congratulated the graduating class, crowned with the laurels of academic success, and stated that their friends had gathered to honor them and to express the esteem and affection in which they were held. The future lights the skies of time with its cherished hopes to be realized. They had garnered ideals of devotion to God and country under the aegis of their Alma Mater.

A philosophy of unbelief strives to undermine the foundations of our Christian heritage and way of life. The Western civilization is based on Christianity, on the acknowledgment of a Personal God, on belief in the spiritual dignity and eternal destiny of man. The materialistic state represents none of these truths and has no ideals beyond this world.

In conclusion, the Monsignor said that strong in the inspirations of their ideals, under God's Benediction, they would receive an immortal crown on the great day of Life's Graduation.

Rev. J. Mackey S. J., a missionary to Nepal, India, spoke on the need of sacrifiice in maintaining ideals in life. A lesson may be learned from the life of Saint Isaac Joques, who may be termed an early Ontarion.

The Reverend A. L. O'Donnell asked the graduating class to ever cherish grateful remembrance of the inspiration gleaned from their Alma Mater.

Music was supplied by St. Michael's High School Glee Club who sang beautifully "Prayer Perfect," and their Alma Mater songs, "Shoulder to Shoulder," and "For the Sake of Alma Mater."

At the close of the convocation ceremonies, tea was served to the graduates and their friends by the gracious ladies of the Catholic Women's League, who were also hostesses later in the evening to a delightful "At Home" in honor of the graduates.

Pupils to Wear Heaviest Clothing to Save Fuel

London, Oct. 15 — (CP) — In order to save coal London's council schools have been ordered not to light fires unless the temperature falls below 50 degrees. A London county council directive said children should be encouraged to wear their heaviest clothing in class and, as a further aid to warmth, be given calisthenics every hour.

Presbytery Youth Rally In Bridge Street Church Hears Indian Missionary

Rev. Wm. Fletcher of Yarker presided over the meeting in Bridge Street United Church, Monday evening, when about two hundred young people representing the Young People's Unions throughout the Belleville Presbytery gathered for a "Youth Rally."

Rev. Lloyd Shorten of Foxboro conducted a rousing hymn sing after which "Bill" Thompson, who drives the Cavalcade van, introduced the speakers for the evening, Mrs. Russell Graham, Reg. N., who has spent more than twenty-five years in India, and Miss Wilna Thomas, W.M.S. Youth Secretary.

Mrs. Graham carried over her arm an Indian lady's "sari" of bright red and gold silk, made in one straight piece, six yards long, which she put on, being adept in arranging skirt fullness and head-covering. She remarked that in India there was no difficulty in matching your costume with your "fall hat," since it is combined in the one piece of material.

Addressing the young people Mrs. Graham said: "You should feel great appreciation for having been born in a Christian country with its cleanliness and its many educational advantages; where a democratic form of government makes all men free and equal. But what is at the bottom of democracy? The religion of Jesus Christ."

Helping Indian People.

"The Christian church in India is producing young people like yourselves, in spite of the system of castes; young people who are thinking; who are gathering in groups like this for worship or for a discussion of their problems."

When Mr and Mrs. Graham went to India it was impossible to address such a gathering because the Governor had forbidden Hindus listening to a Christian preacher.

Hindus Cannot Attend,

But Mr. and Mrs. Graham would speak to the low caste people in a public square, if they were successful in getting an audience without being stoned or having dogs set upon them. Today the Hindus are still forbidden to attend Christian gatherings. Huts are too small to hold the Christians, and too dark for reading or teaching, so the missionary speaks to the people in front of a hut where there is always a small grass plot, and the Hindus come without invitation to listen, sitting on roofs to see what is going on, and gradually crowding in until the speaker is almost stifled with the intense heat.

In the early days the Hindu was reserved, holding a protecting hardness over his heart to keep out a new religion which, he thought, was being thrust upon him. Today he draws nigh to learn all he can of what the missionary is teaching the Christian groups.

Four Things Happening

Mrs. Graham said, "Four things are happening in India today, — first, the point of view of all India in changing, living standards of the people are becoming higher.

Second: Individuals are becoming Christian converts, even though it means sacrificing everything, property, home and family relations, because, according to law, a Hindu who embraces another faith becomes an outcast.

Third: Indians are fast becoming free thinkers. Soon there will be a religious upheaval as well as a demand for self-government, when practically overnight, thousands will appeal for Christian teaching and baptism.

Fourth: India stands at the crossroads. Her people have become dissatisfied with the Hindu and Mohammedian religions. If India does not become Christian, she will become atheistic,—but when India becomes Christian she will also become one of the world's greatest countries."

In closing Mrs. Graham appealed for prayers for missionaries, saying to the young people,, "This you can do. A strong church abroad means a strong church at home."

Had Sympathetic Attention

Miss Wilna Thomas, herself young and energetic, had the sympathetic attention of the audience. Speaking directly and without preamble she said: "Let us take a good look at the world and then look at ourselves and take stock of our talents. How shall we decide to use them? Let us look to God for guidance in deciding where we are most needed."

She told a story of a Christian Japanese girl who came to Canada for higher education, in preparation for Christian work in her homeland. During her college years she volunteered for church work, and was given a Sunday School class of children living in the neighborhood of the Metropolitan Church, Toronto. During the week she made a practice of visiting the homes of the scholars in this class. Here she encountered discouraging conditions, i.e., in some homes indifference of the parents; in many homes drunkenness, poverty, filth; and even bad manners in others where the door was slammed in her face and she was never admitted. Returning from one of these experiences on a Saturday afternoon, she said to some girls who were her fellow students:

Japan Not Christian

"When I left Japan for Canada I thought I was coming to a Christian country, but this is not Christian. Japan is at war with China, yes, but Japan is not Christian."

Miss Thomas asked "Is Canada Christian?" "This land of ours" she continued, "challenges you, the youth of today, to be missionaries in your own communities. Here in Canada there are real needs in rural areas where children do not get religious training and education. Let us ask ourselves, "What have we done personally?"

Another story was told of a young Chinese doctor working in a rural area who had a Canadian guest. His visitor asked him, "Why have you buried yourself in such an isolated section?" The Chinese took his friend to the top of a hill from where he could see miles of countryside in every direction. Reaching his arm in a circular motion he said: "I'm the only medical doctor in all this area. It is here that I hear God's call to answer world need."

In closing Miss Thomas asked: "Where does God call young Canadians to answer world need?"

The silence of appreciation was broken when Mr. Fletcher announced a hymn of dedication.

A dramatized pantomime, "Adventuring with Jesus", was presented by members of the Young People's Unions of Belleville Presbytery. Introducing the pageant Mr. Raymond Gunsolus paid tribute to Miss Maude Burke for the arrangement of same, and to Rev. D. C. Amos for his able assistance in preparing the presentation.

Soft Organ Music

Soft organ music by Mr. Alec Gordon made a beautiful and effective background, with the setting of dim lights over the greenery of ferns, for the opening scene in the story of a young man's indecision concerning his life work. But, with the council of a good mother, who offers him "The Word" as a guide, and the encouragement of a youthful minister, who is his friend, he answers the appeal of the cross, forgetting the scorn and sneers of youthful, thoughtless companions.

Throughout the drama, suitable solos and choruses were rendered, emphasizing three aspects in the life of "Youth",—difficulties, decision, dedication.

As the closing strains of the last hymn died away the hush of prayer enveloped the whole auditorium.

"Faith Triumphant", a pictorial presentation of St. Paul's persecution for the cause of Christ, ending with his oration before King Agrippa, furnished a fitting climax to an inspiring and challenging program for youth.

PICTON

Wellington To Consider Plans For Waterworks

Picton, Oct. 12 — Plans for installation of a waterworks system in the village of Wellington have been received by the council there from a Toronto engineering firm. Estimated cost is $185,000, which would be $35,000 less if canning factories are not included. The annual operating cost is estimated at $15,800, including operator $1800, chemicals $500, electrical supply $1000, debenture charges on $185,000 at 3 per cent for 20 years, $12,500.

An annual operating revenue of $12,500 is forecast, leaving $3300 to be raised by taxation and charged to the village for protection. On an assessment of $781,200 this would be a mill rate of 4½ mills.

Water would be secured from Lake Ontario and a pumphouse, chlorination and filtration plant built. An elevated water tower would be erected on Consecon road, holding 100,000 gallons, to give a water pressure of 60 pounds per square inch along the main street of the town.

Life Underwriters Attend Educational Sales Congress

A number of life underwriters from this district were in Kingston on Wednesday to attend the fifth educational Sales Congress held under the auspices of the Life Underwriters Association in Canada. Those attending included representatives from Brockville, Kingston and Belleville Associations, about one hundred and twenty being present. Sessions were held in the La Salle Hotel with Mr. Willard Dodds as Congress chairman. Among those taking part in the sessions were the presidents of the three Associations represented, Mr. D. G. Williams, of the Mutual Life, Belleville, Mr. F. E. Johnson, Metropolitan Life, Kingston, and Mr. H. L. Campbell, Canada Life, Brockville.

Addresses were given by Mr. P. M. Monahan, C.L.U., who is President of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada, and branch manager of the Canada Life at Simcoe; Mr. Frank M. See, General Agent with the New England Mutual Life Insurance Company in St. Louis, Mo.; Mr. Russell Wood, Assistant Superintendent of Agencies of the Imperial Life, Toronto; and Mr. Gordon Nairn, Field Supervisor of the Life Underwriters Association of Canada.

The Life Underwriters Association of Canada is an Association of the life insurance salesmen of all life insurance companies, with the major objective of improving the calibre of life insurance salesmen and thereby improving the quality of service rendered the public. For many years the Association has granted to those of its members who qualify, the C.L.U. designation, signifying that they have successfully passed all the required examinations of a course which takes at least three years to complete. There are now over 700 C.L.U. holders in Canada.

During the course of the Sales Congress, the following interesting facts were disclosed: During the war 25% fewer life insurance salesmen sold considerably more life insurance than was sold in the years before the war, with the result that the life insurance protection owned by Canadian policy holders and their families increased during the six war years by fifty per cent: In this same period the life insurance companies doing business in Canada invested 1 1-2 billion dollars in Victory Bonds, with the result that about 45% of their total assets are now invested in Victory Bonds. Some 2,200 life insurance salesmen also worked during the war as Victory Bond salesmen, comprising fifteen per cent of the total Victory Bond salesmen and their record was without parallel.

Since the war life insurance sales have continued on the increase. More stress, however, is being put today on the proper selection, training and supervision of life insurance salesmen so that the public will receive an ever increasing measure of competent service.

Letter From Czechoslovakia Expresses Gratitude for Parcel Sent From City

Conditions in Czechoslovakia and the sacrifice which people of that nation gave to assist British prisoners of war to elude the Germans during the last war, are outlined in this letter recently received by Mrs. W. Lockyer, Bleecker Ave. Mrs. Lockyer some time ago forwarded a parcel to war refugees in that country and received the following letter in reply and appreciation.

Dear Friends:—

"Our whole Czech nation, the people of this small town in the east of Bohemia, thank you very much for the great sacrifice you have made for us and our country.

We cannot express our deep gratitude in words. We can only say God Bless You for all your kindness every day! The UNRRA work has freely fulfilled the commandments of Jesus Christ, has saved many countries from hunger and death. We can only pray for you with the deepest love and gratitude. The help you gave us cannot be measured. May you be happy all your life through. May God bless Canada and its brave and generous people.

Now I have still one thing on my heart and please excuse me in mentioning it here. My husband is a Protestant preacher in Czechoslovakia. There are not many Protestants in our country and our church is very poor. My husband has a wide country parish and has hard work to go to the villages some of them 22 km. away. We have five children and three of them are students. My husband's salary is small and we are so short of money that we cannot buy the most necessary things, neither all the food on the food-cards, as it is too dear.

Now here is the thing I am deeply ashamed of. I have never asked anybody for help but I see your generosity is so great and perhaps you will be able to send us some old pieces of clothing which you have laid by and cannot use. Our class of people do not receive anything of the parcels you are sending, though our need is as great as that of the others.

The last half year of the terrible war we were helping the British prisoners of war with all our hearts, giving them all we could spare. There were also some Americans among them. They were hiding in our woods in the country. They ran away from the German prison camps because they were so unbearable.

They were of course in a great need and we loved to meet them and help them and we shall not forget that time of friendship and love as long as we shall live.

We are enjoying the freedom now though not everything turned out the way we dreamed of. There are still many hardships to overcome. We shall ever be your best friends and we are satisfied as long as we shall have our clever President Benes who leads us. We are thankful to God who gave him to our nation.

Once more we express our deep gratefulness to you,

Yours,
Ilana Resnekova,
Chocen,

Australian Bags 2,000 Crocodiles

Prosperine, Queensland, Oct. 15 (CP) — Sid (Crocodile's Death) Robinson celebrated his 71st birthday anniversary in this little town on the Queensland coast with a crocodile hunt.

In 50 years' hunting along the Herbert and Prosperine Rivers in North Queensland he has accounted for 2,000 crocodiles and hopes to get another 50 before retiring.

Once on the Herbert, Robinson killed 31 in one day. Another time he shot 64 in four days along the Prosperine. He thinks he can get the 50 more without much trouble. "I can still see them a mile off," he says.

Immunization

This week is being observed as Immunization Week under the sponsorship of the Belleville Board of Health.

Immurization against disease is one of the great steps which modern medicine has achieved with the protection of life against the dangerous and deadly diseases.

Parents today have a responsibility — the obligation to give the children and the community the fullest protection which medical science has provided. The record of the success against diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox and scarlet fever is one of the proudest achievements of melical research.

Children of this age are therefore particularly favored in that they live in an era when medical science and research have thrown so many safeguards around them for their own sake and for the sake of the health of society. Departments of health and local boards see to it that the rising generation on whom the future so greatly depends is protected. At the same time it places a responsibility upon parents to see that their children are guarded through immunization against the incidence and ravages of disease. The story of success against diphtheria and these other diseases which are particularly mentioned in connection with Immunization Week is one that marks this period of medical history as one of the greatest advance. Toxoid, started with a child at six months and followed by a booster dose six months later, with a second booster just before the child goes to school, affords practically one hundred per cent protection against death from diphtheria.

Such is the safeguard which modern science and discovery have given the modern child if the parents will but take advantage of what preventive medicine offers.

Canadians Thankful

Canadians have celebrated Thanksgiving with much of the oldtime spirit of prewar days and large numbers of people travelled by train and by automobile, attracted by the season's sights and other attractions, the long weekend holiday but most of all the spirit of the harvest-time celebration of Thanksgiving.

As the greatest struggle in history recedes into the past, and though there are uncertainty and unrest, Canadians find themselves thinking in terms of peace which came more than a year ago with the collapse of the enemy in Europe and in Asia.

The war found many thousands of people in new cities and towns, at new occupations and the period of readjustment following return of the members of the forces from the theatres of war has made many to settle in cities far from their old home. Marriages have added to the increase in travel. The people have the longing to visit what they call "home" at this season of the year when this home festival is observed. Thanksgiving has always meant heavy travel to the home for there is the natural inclination to turn towards home at the very idea of festive occasions such as Thanksgiving, Christmas, and New Year's. Besides this appeal of home and the festive board, there is the appeal of the national observance of prayer and praise for the blessings of harvest. So travel for Thanksgiving is always very heavy.

Then with the war over Canadians have had opportunity to compare the good fortune and the blessings which have been Canada's in the richness and bounty of her fields, lakes and streams. For Canada is truly great among the the grain-growing nations and in the output of industry and mines. The richness of this great heritage naturally calls for the expression of joy and praise and voices itself in the services of the churches.

Canadians have every reason to be grateful, Thanksgiving is a nature expression of a people so blessed with the heritage of the fields and the spirit of the founders of Canada. So Canadians marked Thanksgiving, 1946, with more than ordinary observance, for the world harassed during the past year with the dread shortage of food has watched the reports of crops across the world and the reports of harvests in Canada and the United States not only cheered the people of these lands but the hundreds of millions of other lands.

Reconstruction of Europe

"The most practical scheme that has yet come out of U.N.O.," as the Manchester Guardian described the proposed Economic Commission for Europe, is to be discussed by a working party of Unitel Kingdom, American, Russian and Chinese delegates to the Economic and Social Council at Lake Success, New York. They have been appointed to find agreement on the recommendations for the reconstruction of devastated areas.

The Economic and Social Council's European sub-commission, subject to reservations by the Russian member, put forward long-term measures implying co-ordinated reconstruction and development with the help of the United nations agencies.

The Russian delegate has since made clear his view that the Economic and Social Council should confine itself to giving material and financial aid to countries requiring it.

The European report was based on a paper prepared by the United Kingdom delegation while investigating teams were on tour in August but underwent many changes before emerging in the form of definite proposals. It is thus a collective effort to solve Europe's problems and is more comprehensive, more constructive than any single delegation could have made it. That does not mean that from the United Kingdom point of view it leaves nothing to be desired.

All through the report it was evident how much remains to be done to repair the devastation of war and how long it will be before most Europeon countries' economy is on a satisfactory footing.

The sub-commission drew up a proposal for the Economic Council for Europe which would foster relations between regions which now tend to be shut off from one another to the detriment of each. It would help link Britain, which has to bear in mind her predominantly world-wide economic interests, to the Continent. As regards the last point it is recognized in London that any European organization would need to take care not to infringe on the sphere of the proposed International Trade Organization.

The United Kingdom delegate favored confining the full membership of the European Commission to European countries with the addition of the U.S.A. as an occupying power in Europe. As is well known it is Britain's policy to bring about the utmost collaboration between all European countries and prevent the establishment of exclusive regional blocs. Clearly the Russian attitude is of prime importance and if Russia joined she would be likely to bring in other states with her. Nevertheless discussions in the sub-commission showed that even in the contrary case there was likely to be sufficient support for the idea of a strong permanent commission to enable other countries to benefit by proceeding with it, in the hope that all Europe would ultimately join in order to make it as effective as possible. Britain, at any rate, will be found as hitherto a strong supporter of whatever European co-operation can be agreed on; though this certainly will not denote any lessening in her estimation of the primary importance of her contracts outside Europe. Her main concern is to promote the prosperity of both Europe and the rest of the world as both are essential conditions to her own prosperity.

JUST FOLKS

HOME BUILDER

He fashioned a house from the cellar to roof.
'Gainst all sorts of weather he wanted it proof.
The sturdy foundations from water were sealed.
To wind, neither doorway no window would yield.
But when builders depart the real work must begin,
Since happiness rests on what's carried within.

Make houses as stout and as fine as you may,
'Tis the dwellers themselves must keep anger away.
The walls may resist, when the winter wind howls,
But there's never a wall that can keep away scowls.
A door may be locked against thieves through the night,
But carry rage in, and the home it will blight.
The storms on the outside will pass in the hour,
But the storms on the inside have terrible power.
The hearts of the founders of home must be stout
To keep love within, and keep bitterness out.
'Tis theirs, through the long years ahead, to make sure
That whatever may happen the home will endure.

Many American Veterans to Seek Election Nov. 5

(By CLYDE BLACKBURN)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 15 (CP) — Almost 500 of the candidates nominated for the November 5 Congressional elections are veterans of service in the United States armed forces in wartime — including the Spanish American War in 1898.

Both parties claim to have the greatest number of ex-service candidates to find those who have the slightest claim to the "veteran" appellation.

Many of the available sketches, particularly those incumbents who are running for re-election, are vague on this point or fail to mention war service.

However, it seems certain that there will be more than 500 veteran candidates for the 435 seats in the House of Representatives and 32 Senate seats.

The Democratic party has completed and published its statistics on this point, and published the list in detail. It is broken down as follows:

Veterans of the Second Great War 99; veterans of the First Great War 87; veterans of both the First and Second Great Wars 10; veterans of the Spanish American War 3; total 199.

These include 67 present members who seek re-election and are veterans of one or more of these three wars during the last fifty years.

At this writing the Republican committee was searching the records and querying new candidates but its incomplete report showed 172 veteran candidates, as follows:

Veterans of the Second Great War 53; veterans of the First Great War 97; Veterans of the First and Second Great Wars 17; veterans of the Spanish American War 5; veterans of all three wars, 3; total 172.

One of the most distinguished of the Democratic veteran incumbents up for re-election is Senator Thomas Conally of Texas, who served in the ranks in the Spanish-American War and as an infantry captain in the First Great War.

A Republican candidate who is a veteran of the First and Second Great Wars is Gen. Patrick Hurley, running for the Senate in New Mexico.

Medical Missionary Will Be Heard At Crusade Cavalcade

Well acquainted with present day conditions in Central China where for a number of years he has acted as medical missionary, Robert B. McClure, formerly of Toronto, will speak to a Belleville audience Wednesday evening in connection with the Crusaders Cavalcade now showing in the city. Mr. McClure's talk will be given at Bridge Street United Church.

Robert Baird McClure is a son of Dr. William McClure, LL.D., (McGill) and the late Mrs. McClure, who were among the pioneers of the Canadian Presbyterial Mission in North Honan, China. Dr. William McClure, after fifty years, first as a medical missionary and later as professor in Medicine in Cheeloo University, is now retired and living in Toronto.

"Bob" McClure received his education in Toronto, graduating from the University of Toronto in Medicine in 1922. He received the coveted degree of F. R. C. S. from Edinburgh in 1931. In 1934, he spent the summer in Europe in the study of radiology and for a time was the only medical missionary in all inland China with radium for the treatment of cancer. Subsequently he studied Public Health in Sweden.

Field Director

In 1937 he was lent by the Honan Mission of the United Church of Canada to the International Red Cross as Field Director for Central China during the Sino-Japanese conflict. In June, 1938, he was sent by the China Red Cross by air from Hankow to London as delegate to the International Red Cross meeting, and to promote the raising of funds for Red Cross work. In December, 1938, he attended the International Missionary Council meeting at Madras as the only medical missionary among China's delegates, returning early in 1939 to China to resume his work for the China Red Cross. For over a year he was in charge of the transport of medical supplies from abroad to various areas in Southwest and West China. This involved his travelling extensively through the Provinces of Kwangtung, Kwangsi, Honan, Kweichow, Yunnan and Szechuan in South and West China, and also in French Indo-China, and on the Burma Road. From June, 1941 to June, 1946, he was the medical director of the Friends' Ambulance Unit in China.

Talented Missionary

Dr. McClure is one of the most talented, versatile and dynamic missionaries in all China. He is probably more intimate than any other Canadian with the recent conflict in China and with leaders of the government in China and of the so-called Communists.

He is a missionary of the Board of Overseas Missions of the United Church of Canada and is supported by Bloor Street United Church, Toronto. His wife is Amy Louise Hislop of Whitby, Ontario. They have three daughters and one son.

Dr. McClure is now on furlough and expects to rejoin our Mission in North Honan, China, in 1947.

Charge Ottawa Man Assaulted Police Officer

Aldric Ethier of Ottawa is in custoday of police here charged with assault causing bodily harm and Police Constable Moore is wearing a patch of adhesive tape covering a gash which required five stitches to close.

Saturday evening P. C. Moore arrested an Ottawa man for drunkenness and while taking his prisoner to the station was struck from behind by some party swinging an empty bottle. Although dazed, Constable Moore managed to lodge his prisoner in the cell and then established a search for his attacker.

Later in the evening Ethier came to the police station inquiring for the man whom Moore had arrested and was promptly detained by the officer at the desk. A charge was forthwith laid against Ethier, that of assaulting the officer.

DO YOU GET ENOUGH IODINE?

All the iodine in the world comes from the sea and sooner or later it returns to the sea. Of course you might seal some iodine or iodide, organic or inorganic iodine compound, in an air-tight, leak-proof container and keep it for several years, but there would be no point in that unless you wanted to prove I'm a liar, and that I'm willing to stipulate provided the lying be unlikely to do anybody any harm.

Scientific authorities estimate that annually there is exaporated, from the entire surface of the ocean, water to the depth of one yard—that's a lot of water even from just one of the seven seas. This water is pure water, leaving behind, in the ocean, whatever organic matter or mineral matter it brought to the ocean from the land. Left behind in the ocean are all of the iodides, the organic or inorganic iodine compounds or the elementary iodine the water dissolved out of the land of mountain or plateau or valley on its way back to the sea.

Then how does the iodide, organic or inorganic iodine compound or elementary iodine get back to the land from the sea?

Some of it gets back in the winds that blow sea spray off from the crests of waves and carry the droplets of water over to the land.

Some of it gets back in sea salt where sea salt is used in seasoning or preserving food or animal feed.

Probably most of it returns to the land in sea food—sea weeds, fish, shellfish, fresh and canned, for human consumption, yes, fresh, frozen, canned, salted, smoked or otherwise preserved sea food of any kind is the best source of iodine for man.

Then a great deal of iodine comes back from the sea in fish liver oils used medicinally, and still more in the refuse of fish canning plants which is so highly prized as a fertilizer.

In certain regions of this country the soil, water, vegetable or animal food grown on the grain, pasturage and fodder grown on the soil and water, not only meat but milk and eggs, are deficient in iodine. Fowl, sheep, hogs, cattle and men, women and children raised on iodine poor food and water are bound to show faults of growth, development, vitality or health.

As for iodine deficiency manifestations in man, I'll mention a few, but, please remember these signs are only suggestive and by no means conclusive evidence that one needs iodine. There is a simple way to find out in every instance—take a suitable daily ration of iodine in one form or another for a year. If it does no good it can do no harm, no matter what ails you. A suitable daily ration of iodine, in the opinion of good nutrition authorities, is approxmately 1/650th of a grain, as much as one would get, say, in a small helping of canned tuna, canned salmon, lobster, shrimp, oysters, codfish, sole or other sea fish, or in a smoked herring.

Well, folks, it is nearly time to report at the bowling green now, so be sure your subscription is paid up, and in a day or two we'll tell you more about the manifestations of iodine deficiency.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Salt Peter

How can salt peter be given secretly, and over how long a period to be effective? (G. G. R.)

Answer — Don't be so credulous. It has no particular effect. Salt peter is commonly used in the brine for curing corned beef etc., sometimes it is used to keep fresh meat red. Potassium nitrate and niter are other names for it. You might as well administer bread and milk or a dish of string beans secretly.

Acidity

Hard to reconcile the following: Some say eat lemons, oranges, grapefruit to counteract acidity, as acid kills acid. Others say take——as an alkazer . . .

(Miss H. C. M.)

Answer—The citrus fruits or their juices tend to maintain the normal acidalkali balance in blood and tissues and to keep the urine from being too highly acid. Acid never "kills" acid. Effect of these fruits or their juices on the acidity of gastric juice is another matter. Sometimes patients with hyperacidity can take them with comfort; in some instances these fruits or their juices give hyperacidity patients considerable discomfort.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Can honeybees pollinate red clover?

Clover and other legumes are virtually self-sterile and their flower structure is such that wind is a negligible pollinating agency. These plants depend largely on bees and other insects in quest of nectar for both self-fertilization and cross-fertilization.

Insects get pollen on their legs, bodies and mouths and carry it from the male to the female parts of the same flower and from the male to the female parts of different flowers and thus insure fertilization and cross-fertilization. Charles Darwin first demonstrated that clover depends chiefly on bees for fertile seed.

Honeybees are many times more valuable for their part in fertilizing blossoms than they are for their honey.

Large red clover however, has such deep corolla tubes that the tongues of ordinary honeybees are too short to reach the nectar readily. Accordingly these blossoms are often passed up by honeybees when smaller varieties are available.

As a rule bees restrict themselves to one species of plant so long as it is plentiful and they do not mix their honey except when necessary.

There is a common but erroneous impression that honeybees play no part at all in pollinating red clover and that only bumblebees can do that. But red clover is not dependent solely on bumblebees for fertilization. Although honeybees have difficulty in getting nectar from red clover, they persist in trying and do get small quantities of honey from that source especially from the smaller blossoms. When there are no other plants to work on honeybees visit red clover blossoms and are rewarded with large quantities of pollen to feed their young.

Their efforts to get nectar from red clover, however, are not successful enough to procure red clover honey in commercial quantities. But in trying to get nectar and in getting large quantities of pollen honeybees are important pollinators of red clover.

Studies covering a three-year period showed that red clover in Henry County, Ohio, was pollinated 82 percent by honeybees, 15 percent by bumblebees and three percent by other insects. The difficulty is that honeybees, which are generally privately owned, are not always available for the job.

Crusade Cavalcade on Exhibit At Bridge Street United Church Viewed by Many Visitors

Cavalcade Called Atomic Energy in the Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom

The Sunday School hall and adjoining classrooms in Bridge St. United Church are a hive of activity with scores of visitors, who are in the city to view the Pictorial Exhibit arranged by the Crusade Cavalcade. It is worth seeing. This is the Cavalcade! Artistic, beautiful, educational, original! Crusading voices may be heard from the loud speaker of the van on the city's streets and from the pulpits of the city's churches, but the Cavalcade is in the nutshell of the Pictorial Exhibit.

Interest is aroused immediately upon entrance into the hall by a huge poster with the words, "Crusade Cavalcade!" "The atomic energy in the Crusade for Christ and His Kingdom."

To the right, a beacon light flashing from the Missionary and Maintenance Lighthouse directs visitors to the safe harbor of Christian Stewardship, where posters suggest the best uses for time, abilities and possessions.

Literature Has Place

Literature has a large place in the exhibit. One long table and a whole class room is given over to books, for all ages.

"Books by those who know
For those who want to know," is the slogan.

Also on display is the new United Church Calendar for 1947 with the church crest for its cover, and beautifully colored pictures of actual scenes in churches from coast to coast of Canada and in lands abroad.

Outstanding is a huge book-cover introducing "India at the Threshold" by Dr. L. Winnifred Bryce which is being widely read and recommended by groups in different denominations. Enlarged photographs present some conception of the Crusade project in this great sisterland of the Orient, where contrasts are in the extreme from the beauty of the Taj Mah Tal and the architecture of the Indore Christian College, to the misery of the leper colonies and the funeral peyrs beside the Ganges.

Map of World

Next door, the foreign missionary enterprises of the church are embodied in an immense screen, the central section being a map of the world under a concave glass, behind which flashes a bright light bringing out the brilliant shades of red and green against a dark background. On either side of this, narrow panels of illuminated colored pictures of scenes in different countries carry out the theme of the motto in gold letters above the central section — "The World to Christ We Bring." Other parts of the screen are in ivory frames—scenes from China and Africa both beautiful and challenging, for in these lands youth is eagerly and anxiously awaiting educational assistance from the people of Canada. All doors are now open for Christian Crusaders.

Korea's freed multitudes enter a new world and find new life in hospitals, schools and churches now available to them.

Trinidad pictures are of dark skinned dignified ladies with serious faces; of church groups with earnest mien, and there are the bright-eyed smiling faces of youth, which make a strong appeal for advancement.

The beautiful setting of the Sunrise Kingdom of Japan, rising from the blue, blue water of the Pacific Ocean, appears in a realistic relief map of its uneven shoreline and central elevations. In Japan there are fifteen continuing Christian churches, although four hundred and fifty Protestant churches were destroyed during the war.

Women Active

Women have a large and important place in United Church activities, working in two Dominion-wide organizations, i.e. The Woman's Assocation for the support of local projects, and the Woman's Missionary Society for service to others in Canada and overseas.

The W.A. poster tells the story of 152,726 women enrolled in 5,136 associations, the Dominion Council supervising the "Deaconess Order, and Women Workers." Their motto, "Let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us, and establish Thou the work of our hands," is given a place of prominence in the centre of the blue background.

The W.M.S. corner displays photographs of young women who are graduates of colleges in Arts and Medicine, or from hospitals as Registered Nurses with Post Graduate standings, eight of whom are volunteers for Mission work in Canada and fourteen for overseas.

Their motto reads: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it With Thy Might."

"The Church in Action" is vividly portrayed by an enormous map of Canada, filling the whole length of the stage in the Sunday School. It is dotted from Labrador and Sydney, N.S., on the east, to Vancouver and Prince Rupert, B.C., on the west, with stations in both rural and urban centres where the church supports 179 workers in hospitals, schools and homes. A system of electric lights flashes a change in the chain of color at the pressure of a button, to make more impressive the work of each department.

There is also a radio and letter service bringing the "Sunday School in the Home" to children in isolated areas of this country, supplies being mailed to them so they may be prepared to understand the lesson broadcast. This service is depicted with lines radiating from the broadcasting station like rays from the sun.

"The Chalmers"

On a small table beside and beneath the map stands a model of the new mission boat, "The Chalmers," to be used on the Newfoundland and Labrador coasts, and based at St. Anthony Harbor.

Social Service

Educational Advantages

In the immediate vicinity were photos of the sixteen colleges and secondary schools situated in some of the larger Canadian cities from Vancouver B. C. to Sackville, N.B., as well as the Toronto Training School for young women, which is affiliated with Emmanuel College. Under the supervision of the Board of Education are programs prepared for C.G.I.T. groups, for the Older Boys' Parliament, and for summer camps for both girls and boys.

Canada's Oldest Publishers

The space of a whole classroom is allotted to the exhibit from the United Church Publishing House, in Toronto. "Canada's Oldest Publishers" established in 1829.

Here are samples of dozens of church school publications, suitable for groups of all ages from kindergarten to adult, and equally important is the Ryerson Film Service covering a variety of subjects and available to any church organization. The slogan, "Learn by Seeing" aptly expresses the objective of this new innovation of teaching tactics. With a background of more than a hundred years of public service there can be no conception of the influence for good in Canadian life this branch of the church has exerted.

Seeing is believing! Not soon will even a casual observer forget the beauty and artistry of this phenomenal exhibit of the Crusade Cavalcade in Belleville, but to the interested church member it will be a source of inspiration because of the fund of information it presents.

Belleville Immunization Week

Parents Should Not Take Chances With Diphtheria

Diphtheria is not a disease with which to take chances. Not so many years ago it was known as "The Strangler." Three or four generations ago more than half the children who suffered from diphtheria died in spite of treatment and, in fact, the death rate often reached as high as eighty per cent. Fortunately, owing to the introduction of diphtheria immunization in Canada, all such wholesale suffering and tragedy is a thing of the past. But diphtheria is not dead yet. In 1944, 309 lives were lost to this disease, much better than the 913 deaths recorded in 1926 but still 309 deaths too many. And the past four or five years have shown an increase in the annual toll.

These lives have been lost because the victim has not received toxoid immunization, and then because his case has not been diagnosed early enough and diphtheria antitoxin, which is of great value in treating cases once they occur, has not been given in time. Toxoid protects children from taking diphtheria and affords 100 per cent protection against death from diphtheria.

Toxoid should be started at six months of age, followed by a booster dose six months later and by a second "booster" just before the child starts to school. Those most in danger of dying from diphtheria are pre-school children. It is not enough, therefore, to wait until they enter school before immunizing them. Remember that toxoid is safe and efficient.

There is a test — known as the Schick test—which tells if the child has been protected against diphtheria or whether further injections are necessary.

Urges Women To Uphold Religion

Montreal, Oct. 15 (CP) — Women should uphold their religion and put it into action, Miss Sara Comins, national president of the Women's Alliance of Unitarian and other Liberal Christian Women in the United States, said in an address here recently.

Much religious education was in the hands of women. They must retain their relationship with young people so as to learn their needs.

"In the educational work of the Alliance itself," said Miss Comins, "we must try to encourage an enlightening understanding of world problems, and develop our kinship with liberal Christian women in other countries .."

The sacred and secular should not be separated in applying religion to citizenship.

Women's Alliance groups are established in Toronto, Montreal, Ottawa, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Vancouver and Victoria.

Walks 20 Miles on 80th Birthday

Oakville, Oct. 15 — (CP)—To celebrate his 80th birthday, Charles Priestman of Toronto Sunday walked from his home town to Oakville — a distance of 20 miles—for the 33rd time. Sixteen other walkers started with him and only two dropped out. The finishers included nine-year-old Donald Hughes.

OBLONG ORANGE

Port Elizabeth, South Africa — (CP)—For some strange reason oranges in the famous Kat River citrus area are oblong this year instead of round. This is causing great difficulty in sorting according to size and it is almost impossible to adhere to the market regulations.

Friends Honor Bridal Couple

Recently at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hollinger, Foxboro, Mrs. Hollinger assisted by Mrs. Harold Wilson gave a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Hollinger, who were recently married. The house was beautifully decorated with roses, pink gladioli and potted ferns. Supper was served at eight. The table was effectively decorated, the centrepiece being the bride's cake. Guests for the reception were from Campbellford, Madoc and Trenton.

Following on Tuesday evening, October 8th., a large number of relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hollinger to honor the newlyweds. During the evening, Mr. H. R. Burke acting as master of ceremonies invited the bride and groom to seats of honor. Mr. Harry Dafoe led in community signing with Mrs. W. J. Fitchett at the piano. Recitations were given by Miss Marilyn Hollinger and Miss Marie Hollinger. Readings by Mrs. Clarke Rodgers and Mr. Carman Dafoe, song by Miss Marilyn Fitchett, duet by Messrs. Harry Dafoe and Carman Dafoe. Mr. H. Burke read an address and Mr. Clarke Rodgers presented the bride and groom with a purse. The groom replied very fittingly and invited one and all to visit his wife and himself in their new home in Barrie.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess. The remainder of the evening was spent in games and amusement.

WEST HUNTINGDON UNITED W.M.S.

The annual guest dinner and W.M.S. meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Foster Wilson, with a large attendance. The meeting opened with the hymn "Must Jesus bear the Cross Alone?" and the Lord's prayer. Mrs. Peter McInroy read the Scripture lesson from the 96th Psalm.

During the business period, Mrs. Peter McInroy invited the Auxiliary to her home for the November meeting, with Mesdames M. Sarles and H. Cook named as program committee. Mrs. F. Wilson was appointed delegate to the Fall Rally to be held in Cannifton Church, with Mrs. H. Cook as alternate.

A good program followed with readings by Mrs. Jas. Wilson, and Mrs. Robert Gay, and two suitable duets contributed by Mrs. Milton Shaw with Mrs. Gardiner Welch; and Mrs. Ford Stapley with Mrs. Russell Stapley; both of which were greatly appreciated by the ladies present.

Mrs. W. Shaw was guest speaker, taking as her subject, "The Power of Prayer".

Mrs. Wm. Fitchett expressed appreciation to the speaker and thanked all who had assisted with the program. The meeting closed with a hymn and the Mizpah benediction.

Anniversary, Thanksgiving Services at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church Well Attended

Frank Inrig Gives Thrilling Narrative of Missionary Achievement in Bolivia

Large congregations attending the combined Anniversary and Thanksgiving services at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church on Sunday heard a thrilling narrative of Canadian Baptist missionary achievement in Bolivia, told by Mr. Frank Inrig of Toronto, who was special speaker for the day.

Mr. Inrig who, with Mrs. Inrig, recently returned from an extended air tour of South America, is a well-known Christian layman Head of a Toronto manufacturing concern and a busy business man, he nevertheless finds time to render outstanding service to the church. He is a former President of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, is at present Chairman of the Convention Brotherhood Committee and, with his wife, is a zealous missionary worker.

Taking his morning text from the words of Christ, "I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it," Mr. Inrig stated. "These words ought to be burnt in our hearts, especially these days when the church is thought of so lightly by so many people. The church Christ meant was not so many buildings of brick and mortar but living souls. Are we building His church, or helping Him to do so? Ours is a church mission, concerned with living stones.

Gives Philosophy of Life

"In Romans, chapter one, the Apostle Paul gives his philosophy of life. The Spirit of God was calling him to go to Rome. He said 'I am debtor both to the Greeks and the Barbarians; both to the wise and the unwise'. He also said, 'I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth'."

"So many folk these days think the world owes them a living; and they are out to get it. What did the Barbarians owe Paul? When he met Jesus on the Damascus road he was given new life. The only way he could begin to pay his debt was by bringing this message of life to others.

"Not only had Paul a philosophy of life, he had a program, too. His Purpose was to preach the Gospel. He realized that was the only thing that would meet the needs of the people of Rome, and others. 'As much as in me is,' said Paul, 'I am ready to preach the Gospel.' The aspostle was hundred per cent in his efforts. No half-way measures would meet the challenge of the day.

"So often we hear the cry today 'Oh, they've raised our allotment. They shouldn't have done it. They are always asking for money.' But Paul said 'as much as in me is.'

Paul not only had a program but he knew where the power was. He had seen the Gospel work. He knew it would meet the needs of men, as it had worked in his case. He had established churches all over the Kingdom and he knew that the power of God with unlimited resources was at his command."

Doors Closed Against Them

Mr. Inrig stated that the pioneer Baptist missionaries in South America had started their work under almost impossible conditions. The doors were closed against them, there was persecution and long days with little results. "We were just holding the front till we caught our breath," said the speaker.

"On our arrival in Bolivia recently we were surprised and delighted beyond measure to see the results of our labors. Churches and Sunday Schools were crowded. There were virile young people's societies. Several new churches were being built, Bible School and Seminary planned. Up in the mountains, where the tin mines are, crowds of people want to hear the Gospel and a new church and school are being opened there.

"All the missionary world have their eyes on Peniel Hall Farm in the Guatajata area of Bolivia. It has been proved that these Indians are human after all. Ignorant and degraded slaves and beasts of burden for so long, these Indians were freed by the Canadian Baptists, who struck right at the heart of the economic system. Now they own their own land they are better workmen, don't get drunk any more. They've moved from their squalid hovels into clean homes. The Gospel has cleaned them up inside and out. Jesus has made them free. Christ is building His church with living stones."

Motion Pictures Shown

Mr. Inrig also spoke at the evening service, giving an outline of missionary achievement in the various South American republics which he visited. Motion pictures in color, taken by Mr. Inrig at the mission stations at LaPaz, Oruro and Peniel Hall Farm, were shown after the regular evening service.

Special missionary thank offerings for the day, the objective being $200.00 to establish one of the new schools which are being planned for the Peniel Hall Farm area, was considerably oversubscribed. A total of $357.00 was turned over to Mr. Inrig after the evening service by the Mission Treasurer, Miss Edna Jobson.

Special Thanksgiving music was rendered by the choir, under the leadership of Mr. Fred Jobson. Mr. Dorland Housten presided at the organ. The church was tastefully decorated for the occasion and further beautified by the new quartered oak panelling around the baptistry and choir loft, erected by Mr. J. A. Blackburn as a memorial to the late Deacon Blackburn and in honor of Mrs. Blackburn. The services of the day were in charge of the pastor, Rev. H. O. Eastman.

Fail to Find Trace of Man

Cayuga, Oct. 15 — (CP) — An intensive search over the weekend failed to uncover a trace of 33-year-old Donald Mowat of Cayuga, missing since Friday noon when he was last seen on a bridge on No. 3 highway near where he was constructing a service station. He recently recovered from a serious illness.

Miss Lenore Cronin Honored by Friends

The home of Mrs. Claude Finnigan, Earl Street, was the setting Thursday evening for a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Lenore Cronin, bride-elect, when Mrs. Finnigan, aunt of the bride-to-be, was hostess, assisted by Mrs. Fred Benson.

The rooms were effectively decorated for the occasion in a color scheme of white and yellow, and games of euchre afforded the evening's entertainment, after which an address was read by Mrs. Fred Benson, and gifts presented in two beautifully decorated baskets. After opening the inviting parcels, Miss Cronin graciously expressed gratitude to her friends and relatives for their kindness and for their useful and beautiful gifts.

Among those present was Mrs. H. V. Cook, of Chicago, an aunt of the guest of honor.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, to bring to a conclusion a most enjoyable social occasion.

TABERNACLE W.M.S.

On the afternoon of Oct. 8, the members of the Tabernacle W.MS. Auxiliary were privileged to have as their guest, Rev. C. A. Perkins of Holloway Street United Church, speaking on the subject, "Giving of Thanks". He said—"Do we show enough gratitude for blessings in our Christian life?" Referring to the cleansing of the ten lepers, when only one returned to give thanks to Jesus, Mr. Perkins continued, "Many people today are like the nine who failed to return. First, Why should we be grateful? Second, Where should we show our appreciation? In the home, in the business world and in the church. Third, When should we show gratitude?

Mrs. Arthur Wynne rendered an appropriate solo ,"Count Your Blessings" with Mrs. J. W. Houston as accompanist.

The President, Mrs. J. Ross, presided during the meeting, and had charge of the business period during which Miss M. Johns was appointed as delegate to the Sectional Rally soon to be held in Cannifton Church.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, after which dainty refreshments were served and a social hour spent.

TABERNACLE EVENING AUX.

The Evening Auxiliary of Tabernacle United Church met at the home of Mrs. Myrtle Lockyer, Station Street, on Thursday evening. The meeting opened with a hymn in keeping with Thanksgiving followed by a Litany repeated in unison. The President, Mrs. Edith Stanton, welcomed the visitors present. Mrs. Marjory Austin was in charge of the devotional period. Mrs. Myra Irvine gave a Watch Tower reading, "Tales of Challenge for Missions". Miss Ethel Horton was in charge of the Study Book entitled "India at the Threshold". During the evening Miss Clare, a visitor favored the Auxiliary with a piano solo which was very much enjoyed. Miss Rachael Fox invited the auxiliary to meet at her home for the November meeting. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Lockyer assisted by Miss Horton and Mrs. Irvine.

365 VICTORIES A YEAR . . .

"PEACE", they say, "has its victories as well as war". In textiles, these victories depend on the same things as in war; watchfulness, superior materials, teamwork.

The result is "quality". And quality wins victories every day of the year—victories over wear and tear, over sun and washtub.

Quality depends on everlasting supervision at every stage of production . . . and on laboratory tests of materials . . . and on rigid inspection of finished goods to detect the slightest flaw . . . and on teamwork between all departments. It is all these things combined which give you the quality which you rightly expect whenever you buy products of Dominion Textile mills.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Outdoor life stimulates the spirits

Mister Sun knows what is good for you.

This is the time of year when Mister Sun invites you. Not too warm or too cold. He yodels out a gay "Come on" to the tennis courts, the golf courses, to long roads where motor cars pass in an endless stream. He knows what is good for you. Sunlight puts zip and zest in your system and ginger in your heels. Fresh air washes out your lungs, paints carnation blooms in your cheeks. If you don't grab every minute you can spare for outdoor play you are missing something.

Outdoor life acts as a soothing sedative to the troubled spirits. It brings a healthy, yawny fatigue that is productive of restful sleep, and sleep is a beautifier, a repairer, a rebuilder. Muscles are grateful for exercise; they need it if they are to retain youthful firmness and resiliency. Women who go in for physical education are not touched by the years. They form the habit of carrying the spinal column tall, chest lifted, abdomen contracted ;all that makes for good posture and "style". The meal-bag shape will never be one of their beauty sorrows.

Women who fare forth to bring home the bacon, who spend seven or eight hours a day in shop or office, can't afford to lose snap, health or good appearance. They must have recreation if they are to avoid boredom.

The hard-working housewife may fancy that she gets plenty of exercise hustling the vacuum cleaner and chasing from front door to back, answering the bells. But, all too often, all this seems like drudgery of her. She needs the kind of exercise that includes the element of play, a change from the daily grind.

In games there is the fun of competition, and that is why golf and tennis are good for the dearhearts who have gone into a temporary slump, fancy they are not quite as young as they used to be.

Horseback riding is a marvelous exercise, just the thing for the lazy girl. The brisk pace of the horse slimmers down hip lines, acts as a reducing medium. What more charming picture can you imagine than that of a pretty girl dashing down the bridal path, eyes bright, figure erect, hair flying?

Archery is the queen of sports. Notice how graceful the Dianas appear as they draw the bow strings. Interest in this sport increases every year. Swimming is another excellent sport.

All exercises, properly accomplished, help to create good carriage, self-command, steady nerves, clear mentalities. If no other form of exercise offers itself, a woman can walk four or five miles at a brisk pace. Do we see the members of this beauty class falling into dead faints at the thought of that much effort? All right, then, let them stop wailing and lamenting about figure defects.

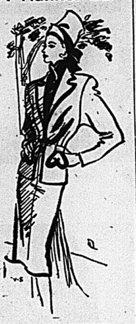
City Airs For A Flannel Suit



By VERA WINSTON

GRAY FLANNEL, so nice for suits of the casual or sports type, takes on air and goes to town when it is piped in black satin, as is this suit. The classic, notched collar and revers are piped in satin as are the pocket flaps. The set-in-belt in back just reaches the pocket flaps at the side front. The jacket has a smart one link-button closing at the slim waist. It is a good and youthful suit for date wear.

Remodelling The Silhouette

By HELEN FOLLETT

IT WOULD seem as if some casual shoppers think of a foundation garment as something that merely functions to hold up the precious nylons, not realizing how much such a garment can do to improve the silhouette.

Few of the sisters are lucky enough to sport a figure that calls for no restraint, no flattening of over-curves. The selection of the foundation is the first step in the good looks journey, as every movie star knows.

Some figures need correction in front, some in back, some at the sides. Because of the variations in the feminine shape corset designers have offerings for nearly all customers. Even so, the corsetiere may have to make alterations.

Experienced Expert

That's why the seeker after figure remodelling should patronize an experienced specialist. She understands the purposes of every little panel, gusset and insert. Boning is still introduced in spots for the over-sized supplicant for improvements.

The slender woman has most of her concern with the upper portion of the figure, not having to worry about waist line pressure. For her are offered such helps as the "fan" brassiere, a stiffened shelf-life support. Among the girls the brassieres are referred to as "falsies". Well, if a girl can't put up a home grown front, it is nice that corset designers have built those cunning facades for her.

One Piece Garmet

Many women object to the one piece garment because the bust measurement does not always coincide with the hips, making a fit difficult even with the aid of alterations. So, they select a detachment "top", which fastens to the lower selection by means of invisible hooks. The brassiere, coming well down over the lower garment, confines the over-developed, diaphragm better than a single design, creating the desired smooth, unbroken line of the front figure.

A well-fitted corset, fitted snugly over hips and abdomen is an incentive to stand erect. The slender girl with an inclination to stoop, let her arms fall forward, will improve posture if she wears the correct harness.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A Head-on Collision With Life

The longer one lives, and the more one learns by personal experience and by observation of the experiences of other people, the more clearly one sees that the age-old sayings, however hackneyed they may sometimes seem actually represent the best and safest rules of conduct we have.

The fact that we get sick and tired of hearing about them; that we so often tell ourselves that "times have changed", and the old conventions and standards do not hold in this fast-moving modern world, doesn't somehow seem to affect the basic working principles of life at all. Flout them or ignore them as we may, the day comes when we're forced right up against them again, and have to realize that they've been there all the time; that they never ceased to exist just because we insisted on looking the other way.

Take, for instance, the familiar saying: "You should have thought of that before.'.' We've all had it said to us at one time or another, and thought no doubt: "That old cliche!"

Yet the principle for which that cliche stands—the fact that it's wise to consider the consequences of an act before going ahead and doing it—is one that people are forever thinking they can disregard or outwit, and then—Wham! All of a sudden, they've met it in a head-on collision that sometimes leaves them crippled in one way or another all the rest of their lives.

Here's a letter from a young woman who failed to follow this particular basic principle, is facing the inevitable collision with it, and as a result may indeed be facing lifelong emotional crippling:

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I am a married girl 24 years of age, have two sweet boys and a very nice husband who is serving in the army overseas.

"I love my husband very much, but since he has been gone my loneliness has got the best of me. I have been seeing another man rather often, and have grown very fond of him. He is also married.

"I knew it was wrong to see him, but it always seemed that when I was down in the dumps he was always around to soothe me and give me the love I thought I needed.

"Now my husband is due home in a few months, and I don't know how I am going to explain the mistake I have made. I want very much to live happily with my husband as I did before he left.

"Please give me advice as to how I should go about telling him. Should I wait awhile, or tell him as soon as possible before others can spread the word?

"D .C."

Would there be any earthly use telling this woman that she should have thought about all this before she began her affair with another man? Of course not. And yet, that is the first thing one thinks of when somebody says: "I knew it was wrong, and still I went ahead and did it."

The trouble is that consequences belong to tomorrow; the thing we want to do belongs to today and most of us, except for the very strong characters, rarely look ahead any further than today, letting the consequences of tomorrow take care of themselves.

But now, in this case, as in, all others, that tomorrow when the consequences must be faced, has arrived and what is "D.C." to do about it?

Obviously, since she seems to think it possible that her husband may hear of her affair from others, she had better tell him herself before he hears of it from other sources. She will have to do this, knowing that either one of two things is likely to be the result. At worst, he may wish to leave her, and, at best, he will probably for a time anyway, have a little feeling of mistrust about her any time he has to be away from her. This is a big price to pay for the temporary comfort and satisfaction she got from the other man who, incidentally, was also double-crossing the person to whom he was married. Looking back on it, no doubt she feels that the pain of loneliness would have been less than the pain she will now have to go through in hurting her husband.

As for how she shall tell him, I don't believe there is any other way than coming straight out with it some day after he has had a chance to settle down and get used to being home again. Certainly, I wouldn't advise bursting out with this sad piece of news during the early days of his return. Better wait a week or so, and then tell him the story. There is no simple or easy way for a wife to break the news to her husband that she has been unfaithful to him.

If this husband has a generous and understanding nature, he may be able to look at the matter more sympathetically than many men could do realizing that the strain of separation, due to war is often more than some people can bear. If he is this type of man, this is a very lucky wife, and I hope she will appreciate him enough to resolve never to repeat her mistake.

Silver Ink For Silver Wedding Invitations

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I are to celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary next month, and we are planning to invite our relatives and many friends to an Open House. We are going to serve a buffet supper. Would "5 o'clock on" be good hours for this party? We have "Mr. and Mrs——" Informals. For the invitations to this party would it be proper to write notes on the inside pages of these in silver ink? If so, how should these notes be worded?

Reader

Since serving a buffet supper for so many guests is quite an ambitious plan ,you should, I think, name the hour most convenient for the serving and expect your guests to arrive fairly well ahead of this hour. . . say five o'clock for a six o'clock or six-thirty service.

Yes, use your "Mr. and Mrs." Informals ,white in silver ink (this is once more available in the shops), and word your invitions somewhat like this:.

Dear Lillian,

You and Jim will make us very happy if you will celebrate our 25th wedding anniversary with us on Saturday, October 28th. Won't you arrive at our house at about five or five-thirty, and stay for a buffet supper? Please tell me "Yes, we'll be there!"

Dearest love to you both from both of us.

Devotedly,

Announcing a Three-months-old Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a couple were quietly married out-of-town three months ago, would it be permissible to send out formal marriage announcements now? Relatives and friends are complaining about not being informed.

2. When a marriage announcement is received, it is necessary to send a gift?

L. A.

1. If the marriage were an elopement, a secret marriage, it may be formally announced now, But if by "quietly" you mean a small wedding which at least a certain number of relatives and friends knew about, sending out formal announcements at this late date would, I think, be both unnecessary and inappropriate.

2. No, a marriage announcement does not "call for' a gift,' as an invitation to a wedding reception is supposed to. And this is particularly true of the announcement of an elopment. As a matter of fact, formal announcements of an elopment aren't held in very high regard by people of taste; their viewpoint is that such an informal occasion would better be announced informally, by the couple's telling their relatives and friends, writing to those who live at a distance.

Semi-Informal Evening Wedding is Correct

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been told that a large, evening church wedding (8 p.m.) such as I am planning, must be strictly formal and that all my attendants, as well as myself, must be in white, and that the groom, best man and ushers must wear "tails". Isn't it permissible to have a semi-formal evening wedding?

K. C.

You have been misinformed. . . it is just as correct to have a semi-formal evening wedding as it is to have a semi-formal day-time wedding. At a semi-formal evening wedding the bride's wedding gown would have no train or a short sweep, her veil would be short, and her bouquet small; the bridal attendants would wear dinner dresses (which may be of any color the bride chooses) with small evening hats or suitable headdresses, wear corsages or carry small bouquets; and the men in the wedding party may wear either "tails" or if preferred, tuxedos.

FIFTH STATEMENT

Bad Feeling

Statement No. 3, jam-packed with detail, told how there had been bad feeling between Bohozuk and Dick because Bohozuk and the tramcar driver's wife were being seen together and then on March 6, the last day Dick was seen alive, Mrs. Dick got a telephone call from Bohozuk telling her Dick was dead.

The wild-eyed part came when she recounted in this statement how parts of Dick's body, which could not be done away with, were delivered to her garage at Carrick Ave., and put in a bushel basket there.

She said this was done by a man named Romanelli but she gave no identification for him.

The statement said she had borrowed a car on March 6 and then received a call from Bohozuk asking her to meet him and saying "we've got him at last." She kept the date and met Romanelli who wanted to borrow the car she had. Somewhat against her will she gave it to him.

And later that same day she was confronted with Romanelli driving into her yard and taking from the back seat of the car parts of John Dick.

"Wrapped in a piece of cloth was a part of the face which was all smashed and some other parts which he said they had tried to burn and were not able to succeed in," the statement said.

These were removed to the garage. Then she drove Romanelli downtown and returned the car, explaining the blood on the seat by a note saying she had had to take her daughter to hospital because of an accident in which the child cut herself.

Admits Intimacy

Throughout the story ran a thread of a yarn — that Bohozuk and John Dick had been bad friends because she was seeing Bohozuk with whom she admitted being intimate on Oct. 2, only four days after she married the slain, 40-year-old street car driver.

In November, 1945, said the statement, Bohozuk started to talk about "getting" her husband. She said he was in the "bumping off business"; that he "would pay his gang to do it."

The statement said she gave him $200 as a sort of "down payment" on the thing. She got the money back later because the gang couldn't handle it, due to other activities. Bohozuk had told her they planned to dope John Dick's drink and when she saw, on March 6, John Dick and another man leaving a beverage room she thought this was what they had been building up to.

It was after that that Bohozuk called and said "We've got him at last."

And it was after that that she loaned Romanelli the car she had borrowed from garageman Bill Landeg.

Wealth of Detail

Throughout there was a wealth of detail. But at the same time there was considerable matter that failed to jibe with the earlier statements.

In statement No. 2 she said she loaned Bohozuk money to get rid of her husband — "They were bitter enemies." And in it she went on to say how Romanelli and a man she did not know took John for a motor ride — with some drinks — when Romanelli "let him have it."

Then there was a short stop in North Hamilton to try and burn the limbs up.

But statement No. 1 was another thing. A group of men identified only as "a gang from Windsor" had done the killing.

The reason then, she said, was that John Dick had broken up a Hamilton family with his running around.

But this time — statement No. 3 — it was different. John Dick objected to her going about with Bohozuk and Bohozuk was annoyed at the things John Dick was saying about him.

PRICE CONTROLS

It also placed beyond possibility a restoration of price controls on butter and other dairy products, poultry and fish, which have soared in recent weeks.

However, no great quantity of meat is expected to begin appearing in butcher shops for perhaps 10 days—the time usually required to get livestock from the farms to meat counters.

Mr. Truman's dramatic decision, climaxing a mounting furore over meatless menus, drew immediate Republican cries of "death bed repentance," "confession of failure," and "too late."

Wants Buyers' Strike

In the administration camp the reactions was generally favorable, but representative Hugh de Lacy (Dem.-Wash.) indicated disapproval by calling for a "national buyers' strike" to hold down prices of meat and other items.

The American Meat Institute hailed the decision, but cautioned that it "will not mean much more meat for consumers in the immediate future."

Meat stocks, the Institute said, are at a low level and the distribution "pipelines are completely empty."

In deciding to follow the advice of many of his party leaders and discard ceilings, Mr. Truman in turn denounced "a few men in Congress who, in the service of selfish interests, have been determined for some time to wreck price controls no matter what the cost might be to our people."

He made no party line distinction between Republican and Democratic foes of O. P. A.

Rejects Alternatives

The President said he and his top advisers had considered and rejected these alternatives to an end of controls:

1. A price control holiday — "This would be politically expedient because it would bring animals to market in large quantities for a short period," but "a famine in meat would surely follow the temporary feast."

2. Higher price ceilings—"this would be ineffective because the livestock would still be held back in the expectation of the lifting of controls and even higher prices."

3. Government seizure of the packing houses—"this offered no real solution, because seizing the empty packing plants would avail us nothing without the livestock."

4. Seizure of battle on farms and ranges—"A drastic remedy, but we gave it long and serious consideration. . . . It would be wholly impracticable because the cattle are spread throughout all parts of the country."

5. Importation of dressed meat—"This would do little good, because the amount which could be brought to this country is very small in comparison with our demands."

Bacon for Breakfast Cheers Australians

By JACK HOLDSWORTH
(C. P. Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia, Oct. 15 — (CP) — Pork is back on the Australian home menu after a three-year absence. The federal government has released pork for civilian consumption after denying it to Australians during the war because of the needs of Britain and the United States troops in the Pacific.

Supplies are no longer needed by American troops and Britain requires less bacon from Australia because of the availability of Danish supplies. Pigs under 90 pounds, dressed weight, now can be sold by butchers as pork, while pigs over this weight are reserved for ham and bacon, and for export.

Pork requires meat coupons and supplies are not yet sufficient to meet public demand. Most butchers sold their week's quota within a few hours the day it was released for sale.

The re-introduction of pork to the civilian table has created a new cooking problem for many of the 220,000 Australian girls married since June, 1942. They must now learn to cook pork. Newspapers and women's magazines have recognized this problem, and are publishing pages of advice.

Australia is a big pork producer. The country provided 8,000,000 pigs during the war, mostly for bacon, and before the war produced 95,000,000 pounds of pork annually. Australians ate 54 per cent of this total, and the remainder was exported.

Canadian Nickel
will bring you real Silk Stockings

THE FIRST POST-WAR SHIPMENTS of silk from China are now beginning to move across the Pacific. Before long, it is hoped, real silk stockings and fabrics will again be available.

As the expansion of Chinese industry gains momentum, China will require more Canadian Nickel. Canadian Nickel will go to China; Chinese silk will come to Canada. Each product will help pay for the other.

Less than three per cent of the Nickel produced in Canada is consumed in Canada. The rest is exported, and the money received helps to pay for silk and other products necessary to good living in Canada. Canada cannot keep on importing from other lands unless she exports Canadian goods.

Each increase in the export of Canadian Nickel means more workers employed in the Canadian Nickel industry, and more employment for other thousands of Canadians who produce the lumber, power, steel, explosives, machinery and supplies used by the Canadian Nickel industry.

By expanding the use of Nickel at home and abroad, the Canadian Nickel industry brings additional benefits to Canada and Canadians.

Western Province Boosts System Of Social Services

By LORNE BRUCE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Edmonton, Oct. 15 (CP) — Alberta is a leader among the provinces in advanced social services to protect the health of its residents.

After care for victims of poliomyelitis and maternity hospital care are provided without charge as well as cancer diagnosis and surgery and treatment for tuberculosis and venereal disease. A municipal hospital plan sponsored by the government is expanding rapidly.

Alberta is the only province in Canada providing complete after-care of polio victims free of charge in special hospitals until maximum recovery is obtained. The province also provides a rehabilitation plan to train recovered patients to handle self-sustaining jobs.

Dr. A. Somerville, the province's director of the division of communicable diseases, said expert polio after-care begun in 1938 in Alberta is a logical thing, but most victims cannot afford the expensive treatment. He commented that there is no doubt the total amount of handicap has been reduced for many Albertans through this "early and adequate treatment."

In the field of cancer Alberta's Social Credit government established diagnostic clinics in 1940, added X-ray and radium treatments in 1942 and surgery in 1942 to make free cancer treatment in this province the most advanced in Canada. The province does not pay hospital bills for cancer victims but does pay bills for persons if they are sent to hospital while diagnosis is under way.

Residence Qualification.

The free maternity hospitalization is given to all mothers including married women if they have been a resident of the province for 12 of the previous 24 months.

The free V.D. treatment is standard across Canada but latest data available here shows Alberta is a leader in the free care of T.B. victims. This latter service started in 1936 covers treatment of any pulmonary disease and free sanitarium care until the patient is recovered.

Dr. Somerville said that thru its municipal hospital plan, the province has the highest ratio in the country of hospital beds per population. More than 50 hospitals are under the system of agreements with municipalities with the government paying each an annual subsidy and residents of the district paying a small tax based on the assessed value of their land.

Under the plan if any member of a family in the municipal district needs hospital care it can be obtained at a flat rate of $1 a day. Not all municipalities come under this plan but the scheme is expanding rapidly. In addition to these agreements with municipal districts, the province pays an annual subsidy to each approved hospital on the basis of 45 cents a day for each patient. Fifty of the 103 hospitals in Alberta come under the municipal plan.

Inaugurated in 1919 the plan includes widely-differing set-ups. For instance, one hospital covers only the city of Red Deer. Another in the Grande Prairie area of sparsely-settled northwest Alberta covers an area of nearly 1,000,000 acres.

U.S. May Protest Yugoslav Action In Prelate's Trial

(By ALEX. SINGLETON)

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP) — Possibility that the United States will protest against the way Yugoslavia tried and convicted a Catholic prelate of Axis collaboration was raised in diplomatic quarters.

Public concern of the state department with handling of the case by Tito's government gave plain evidence that the United States, in an apparent broadening of foreign policy, is interested now in civil as well as external affairs of other countries.

Dean Acheson, undersecretary of state, told a press conference Friday there were "aspects" in the trial of Archbishop Alojzijc Stepinac, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Yugoslavia, which have caused "concern and deep worry."

Mr. Acheson acknowledged that his remarks were based on press reports of the trials and that no account has been received thru' diplomatic channels.

From Zagreb, Yugoslavia, came word that the Archbishop had been sentenced to 16 years imprisonment at forced labor and that courtroom spectators cheered his conviction.

"It is the civil liberties aspect of the thing which causes us concern," said Mr. Acheson, "aspects which raised questions as to whether the trial had any implications looking toward the impairment of freedom of religion and or worship."

Lebanese Women Making Progress

Montreal, Oct. 15 (CP) — Although not granted the right to vote, women in Lebanon have been making steady progress since 1920, Miss Edme Bayouth, secretary of the Young Women's Christian Association in Beirut, said in an interview here recently.

Attending the International Labor Office sessions here, she spent seven months in the United States studying labor conditions under which children and women work.

Before 1935, there had been no laws protecting women and children in Lebanon. Private organizations, such as the Y.W.C.A., pressed the government which eventually passed legislation providing that there should be no night work for women and children and that no child under 13 should work.

Although it was a "great advance," the organizations "have still a long way to go."

Since 1939, Lebanon youth groups held annual meetings to discuss child labor problems.

"Thus in our country," said Miss Bayouth, "representatives of many different religions found common ground .. backing a program which is trying to bring about advanced educational and labor legislation."

They had the support of a representative government, said the Y.W.C.A. secretary.

Finds Bantus Musical Race

Regina, Oct. 15 (CP) — Back to the land of the deep-voiced Bantus on the west coast of Africa is where young Margaret Dawson will be heading following a term of art studies at Cleveland, Ohio.

The blond native of Niagara Falls, Ont., is enjoying her second furlough from Angola, Portuguese West Africa, where she has been a United Church missionary for 11 years.

Visiting the Women's Missionary School for leaders here recently, Miss Dawson said she wouldn't give up her work in Africa "for anything."

She said the Bantus are a very musical race and are "born actors." They are also the most foot-loose of African tribes and are found almost in nearly all parts of the "dark continent."

The United Church has three missions in Angola — at Chissamba, Commundonga and Lutamo—with 35 missionaries in the field. Their work includes religious education, hospital work, medical administration and teacher training.

Headquarters of the missionaries is at Dondi and is shared cooperatively by several church groups financed by the United States Congregational Mission Board.

Special Houses For Paraplegics

Montreal, Oct. 15 (CP) — In three of 40 wartime houses built in west-end Notre Dame de Grace now occupied by paralyzed veterans, special installations have been introduced.

Ramps lead from the curbstone to the door, eliminating steps, so the veteran may wheel his chair right into the house. Ropes are arranged over the bath tub, allowing paraplegics to take their daily dip without help.

Hospital beds have such physiotherapy aids as horizontal bars for exercising arms, shoulders and chest muscles.

H. L. Ward, a former Lieutenant with the Nova Scotia Highlanders who was wounded in Normandy, has high praise for the aids and the Canadian Paraplegic Association which co-operated with the Canadian Legion Quebec Command in introducing the special features.

He and his wife, the former Leona Fear, are from Springhill, N.S. They will have three other paralyzed veterans living in their two-storey home. They are Carl Hurlbert, Kentville, N.S.; Bernard Martell, Dartmouth, N.S., and Harold Kelleym, a Canadian-born American who served in the Canadian Army.

Tom Somerville, wounded while serving with the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, will live with his wife a short distance from Ward.

Another veteran is Charlie Kelsey, formerly of the Royal Montreal Regiment, who later served with the Manitoba Dragoons. Although partly paralyzed, he is able to drive his automobile.

Woman Rebuilds German Aircraft

Washington, Oct. 15 (CP) — The only American woman holding a mechanic's licence for both aircraft and motors is assembling a German Bucker "Jungmann" biplane which was brought from Berlin as a trophy by Col. Dallas B. Sherman of Clemson, S.C.

Mrs. Joane VanMaltzahn, wife of a United States Navy Lieutenant-Commander, is putting the former enemy training craft together without any engineering data to help her. Col. Sherman intends to use it as a sports plane.

Aided by six air force mechanics, Col. Sherman first assembled the trainer in Berlin, from abandoned German parts. He was attached to the Air Transport command.

Later he flew the two-seater to Paris, had it crated and shipped at his own expense to the United States.

He believes the Jungmann was the first and last such "war trophy" authorized by U.S. military authorities. Soon afterward, regulations ruled out aircraft, tanks and automobiles as souvenirs.

MORE STUDENT NURSES

London (CP) — More girls in Britain are taking up hospital nursing. From the beginning of this year, 12,460 began training compared with 10,004 in the same period last year — an increase of 25 per cent. In 1945 the number of new nursing trainees was 22,841.

Actor Wills Body To Medical School

Johannesburg, Oct. 15 (CP) — The first body ever to be received by the Witwatersrand University, Johannesburg, as a result of the provisions of a will has just been handed over to the medical faculty. It is also believed to be the first time in South Africa that this has happened.

The body is that of Lionel Rees, well known amateur actor and member of the Johannesburg Repertory Players, who was killed when he fell from the fifth floor of a city building.

The handing over of the body marks the practical application of a law passed in March, 1945, making it possible for, and even obligatory upon, an antomy school to accept a body donated to it in a will.

NEWSPRINT INDUSTRY BENEFITS

Washington, Oct. 12. (CP)—Canada's newsprint industry which supplies close to 80 per cent of United States requirements, benefits from the increase of $10 a ton in the ceiling price, announced yesterday by the office of Price Administration and effective at once. This increase, the second this year, brings the top price of standard newsprint to $84 a ton at the main ports of entry in the United States.

World's Title And $127,739 Await Winners in Finale Of the 43rd World Series

By JACK HAND

St. Louis, Oct. 15 (AP)— The world championship and $127,739 awaits the winner today as Dave (Bob) Ferris, the amazing Boston Red Sox sophomore, opposes pint-sized Murry Dickson of St. Louis Cardinals in the finale of the 43rd world series.

National League prestige, rocked to its foundations by the all-star game rout, has made a remarkable recovery in the Red Birds split of the first six games but the power-laden Bostons remain the oddmakers favorite at a 13 to 20 price.

Another capacity crowd of 35,000 is expected to pack Sportsman's Park.

Ferriss' 4-0 shutout victory in the third game and his 25-6 regular season win record give the Sox and edge over Dickson, a renovated bullpen artist who piled up most of his 15 decisions since his first starting chance June 7.

On top of Ferriss' past performance chart that includes a series win over Dickson, there is a solid suspicion that the Sox, who never have lost a series, are due to break out at least once with a splurge of extra base blows.

Seven Card pitchers have given fewer earned runs and pitched more complete games than the 10 Sox hurlers used by Manager Joe Cronin.

A Winning Pitcher

Only in the game Ferriss worked did the Red Sox show a marked superiority. All season long the 24-year-old righthander from Shaw, Miss., has been noted for pitching just hard enough to win whether it was 1-0 or 10-9. He has been what Cronin happily describes as a "winning pitcher." Detractors have pointed out that he does not have a real blazing fast ball but his 21 freshman victories and 25 wins this season provide a mouth-shutting rebuttal.

Eddie Dyer's Cardinals have been an unpredictable lot since spring training. Yet when backed up against the wall they have fought back magnificently. That is why you can't count out the birds even if Ferriss does give the Sox the pitching edge.

Dyer's closing pitcher, Dickson, often has been called a "righthanded Brecheen," although he really does not have as much "stuff" as the cat-like southpaw who kept the boys in the series with two important triumphs.

If either Dickson, a wiry 30-year-old campaigner from Leavenworth, Kans., or Ferriss falters the bull pen will be loaded with starting pitchers. George Munger and Brecheen will be ready for St. Louis and Tex Hughson and Joe Dobson awaiting a Sox distress call.

Montreal, Oct. 15 — (CP) — Death of Lorne Chabot brought back into the news limelight a number of old stories about the veteran netman who, in a 12-year National Hockey League career, guarded the goals of all but two of the league's teams.

One of the best stories goes back to Chabot's first season in professional hockey when he lined up with New York Rangers. Hockey was in its infancy in New York in those 1926-27 days and gamblers approached the young net-minder with a proposition.

Chabot's reply to their request that he "fix" a game was to report to manager Lester Patrick who in turn reported to N. H. L. president Frank Calder. The result was the gamblers were barred from all league rinks.

It was while Chabot was with Rangers, top, that Patrick moved from the bench to the nets to shut out Montreal Maroons in a memorable playoff game. A hard shot from the stick of big Nels Stewart struck Chabot in the eye, forcing him out of the game.

Rangers had no spare goal tender so Patrick donned the pads himself and with his team playing inspired hockey in front of him turned back the Maroons. The New Yorkers went on from there to win the Stanley Cup.

AMERICAN LOOP READY TO OPEN IN THREE CENTRES

(By The Associated Press)

The American Hockey League, which had its most prosperous year last season, is looking forward to another boom campaign today as the loop prepared for tonight's openers in three cities.

Expanded again to 10 teams with the readmission of Philadelphia and Springfield—both out during the war years—the circuit has mapped out its longest schedule in 11 years—a 64-game program winding up March 16, 1947.

Tonight's inaugurals finds Providence Reds at New Haven, Philidelphia Rockets at Cleveland and Pittsburg Hornets at Hershey. The rest of the clubs will swing into action Wednesday night with Indianapolis Caps at Buffalo, Philadelphia at Pittsburgh, Cleveland at St. Louis and Hershey at Springfield.

As in past years, the circuit will be separated into two divisions with the first three clubs in each sector qualifying for the post-season play-offs.

The eastern division is composed of Philadelphia, Springfield, Hershey, Providence and New Haven. The west is made up by Buffalo's Bisons, Cleveland's Barons, Indianapolis, Pittsburgh's Hornets, and St. Louis' Flyers.

Buffalo, which won the eastern division crown and then the play-offs by whipping Indianapolis, western division champion and later Cleveland's Barons, has been switched to the west to balance the circuit and make room for Philadelphia and Springfield in the east.

The strike threatened today by players of the English Soccer League was deferred when the Labor Ministry made last-minute arrangements for a meeting Thursday between league officials and the players' union.

The touring Marylebone cricket team from England played a draw with West Australia at Perth although the English captain Walter Hammond, rolled up a score of 208 runs.

The mixed doubles of the Pan-American tennis tournament at Mexico City yesterday saw an upset when Doris and Richard Hart of Miami, Fla., advanced to the semi-fnials by a two-set victory over Margaret Osborne and Tom Brown of California.

Former champion runner and a native of St. Marys, Ont., Alexander Grant, 72, died Sunday at his home in suburban Philadelphia. He was a graduate of the University of Toronto and of the University of Pennsylvania and held many running records.

Al Renet, heavyweight boxing champion of France, lost his title last night in Paris when he was knocked out in the seventh round by Georges Martin.

JOE CRONIN, dynamic manager of the Boston Red Sox whose heavy artillery has thus far only pluttered single rounds instead of the heavy barrages predicted by the wise ones. Messrs. Williams et al face the supreme test this afternoon in Sportsman's Park, St. Loo, when the rampaging Cardinals are even now battling them for the World Series title and that juicy, or is it?—financial melon.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Emir Badul the wrestling Sheik from far-off Arabia gets his big chance—the championship match against Whipper Billy Watson for the latter's Empire title—and he gets it right here in Belleville next Friday night. The Sheik won the right to meet the Whipper here by reason of his sensational victory over Karl Krippler Davis in last week's main bout.

• • •

Billy Watson was present the night Badul issued the challenge for his title in Maple Leaf Gardens several weeks ago and at the time the Canadian champion expressed a willingness to meet the Arab. However other previously signed bouts made it impossible to take the bout into the Gardens. As a result Manager Walt Gerow grabbed the important match as soon as the Sheik proved his ability by trimming Davis. In doing that little chore the Iraquian champion proved he is one of the smartest wrestlers Canada has seen in a long time. Most of the fans thought the little desert-man was going to the cleaners when big Davis started to throw him into the turnbuckles for the final fall. But the Sheik showed his class by out-smarting even the Krippler and slapping on that cruel single-leg-crab hold of his.

• • •

In the dressing-room afterwards Referee Ernie Powers stated Davis screamed "blue murder" as soon as the legbreaker was applied and the official quickly conveyed Karl's surrender to the Arabian. "If I hadn't made him understand that Davis wanted to give up," added Powers, "he could easily have broken Davis' hip with that thing". So now the supple and shrewd Moslem wrestler gets his first chance at Whipper. Move back the walls Walt!

• • •

In keeping with the importance of the main bout, two matches of main bout calibre have been added. In the semi-final Ivan Rasputin comes in against Natie Brown the ex-fighter and Terry McGuinness meets huge Olaf Olson.

• • •

There should be a Midway touch to that final and "croocial" world series game today with the Sox riding the Ferris wheel and the Cards on the Murray-go-round. While this is being written with one hand and the other giving the morning shekels to the milkman it's too early in the morning for sleep-filled eyes and hazy mind to progosticate anything. But the chips are down in this series which is the tenth in baseball history which has seen the games go to seven.

• • •

It has been something of a screwy set-up all round with the boys in the back room performing all sorts of mental and betting calisthenics as one upset followed another. The biggest jolt along long green byways came when the heavy bettors for a Boston "four-straight" took it on the button when a bunch of young upstarts wearing the red of the Cardinals set the boys from the town of the bean and the cod back on their baseball haunches in that second game.

• • •

But strangely enough, the faith of the betting fraternity in Boston to come through with the series has never been shaken. It has been jolted a bit but the big money had always rested on Ted Williams and company to come through. Even last night with the series all square at three each, the wise ones felt that Boston will come through in this all-important money game and accordingly laid odds at 8-5 on the beantowners. Help yourself. For us it should be an even-money proposition.

• • •

Slim slant-eyed Harry "The Cat" Brecheen has been the pitching herô of the piece and that goes regardless of whether "Boo" Ferriss wins today. The slender southpaw, cool as the proverbial cucumber after shutting out the Red Sox 4-0 in his first whack at the world series baseball kitty, came back on Sunday to notch up his second win. He was shaky in spots but his mates, playing superb defensive baseball behind him pulled him out of a couple of early-game holes and gave him a confidence that steadied him down as he went on and won his game.

The Cardinals were grand in the Sunday melee. They were of truly championship calibre behind the "Cat" and they thoroughly deserved to win. And if they play the same brand of baseball today and if Murray Dickson is "on" then our dinero goes on the gang that wear the grey and red of the town that made the blues famous.

• • •

Trenton Flyers' pigskin punters took it on the chin for the third successive time yesterday in Oshawa when the Red Raiders of that hamlet dunked them in the mud under a 35-6 score. On Saturday they held the rampaging Reds to a 7-0 score on the Trenton Air Station gridiron, that was featured by long runs by the swimmers of both clubs. At one time so we are informed, Referee Eddie Schreider had to be pulled out of four feet of goo with the station derrick. Today a working party will start excavations in an effort to locate three footballs which went down three times and came up twice.

• • •

Kitchener's doughty junior "A" baseball squad won the provincial title yesterday up in the town from which cometh the famous "Kraut" hockey line. And they performed superbly behind Pat Boehmer and George Arias their ace flingers to take a double-header from our friendly enemies the Ottawa Wrightvilles. The Hull kids won the first game down in the Quebec City on Saturday by a 3-1 score and they won on two home runs that nicked the fence in their bandbox ball park.

• • •

Kitcheners mighty little squad won the first game of the twin bill by a 10-7 score in the holiday morning fixture and starry Pat Boehmen, he of St. Michael's goalkeeping fame held the classy Quebec kids to five hits in the afternoon session. He struck out the last six men in order in the 9th and 10th innings of the third joust while his mates pounded out sufficient hits to get him a two-run lead and victory in the overtime innings.

• • •

Sault Ste. Marie Marconi Esquires defeated Sarnia Polymer yesterday for the intermediate A softball championship of Ontario in the two straight games by scores of 14-3 and 5-3 to win the crown for the second straight year.

• • •

Francis (Punchy) Paradis and George (Rocket) Crockett pitched great ball, bringing the Sarnia club to their first Ontario finals. Tony Bergamin, who won both games for the northern club, also deserves a lot of credit for the lovely ball he pitched.

• • •

After winning eight straight victories Polymer had a bad day on the opening game and could not seem to play in the right sports as the Sault club connected for 20 safeties.

• • •

Remember When—

Lefty Grove's fast ball, poison to American League batters for years, couldn't get him past the first inning of a Little World Series game 23 years ago today. Pitching for Baltimore Orioles against Kansas City, the young southpaw walked four and allowed three runs before being yanked. Grove later starred for Philadelphia Athletics and Boston Red Sox.

N.H.L. Training Camp Notes

(By The Canadian Press)

The years haven't cooled the fiery temper of carrot-topped Murph Chamberlain, peppery Montreal Canadian forward now starting his ninth season in the National Hockey League. The other night in an exhibition game against Montreal Royals, Canadiens' persistent checking was too much for old Murph.

He blew his top in the final period, dropping his stick and sailing into the shifty Royal centre with fists flying to start a real slugfest that spread to the other players of both teams in short order. Four habitants ended up in the cooler with majors and three Royals kept them company for a while with minors.

Chuck Raynor, named as New York Rangers' first-string goalie before being put out of commission when he stopped a puck with his nose in practice, hopes to be in fair enough shape to take his place between the posts when the Rangers open the season against Canadiens Thursday. Since it can happen to the best of them, coach Frank Boucher is hoping the accident won't make Rayner "puck shy."

The honor of facing the puck in the opener between the Canucks and Rangers has been given to Jack Laviolette, one of the originals of the Canadiens' team formed in 1909. He will be accompanied to the game by Joe Malone, Newsy LaLonde and Pete Payan, his team mates in 1909.

Prior to the game, Clarence Campbell, league president, will present two pennants on the ice —one, emblematic of the N. H. L. championship, to Dick Irwin, the quiet-speaking Canadien coach, and the other, emblematic of the Stanley Cup, to captain Toe Blake.

Trouble and more trouble has been the lot of manager Art Ross and coach Dit Clapper in their efforts to form a third forward line. The "Kitchener Line" of Woody Dumart, Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer will be together again as one combination and Joe Carveth, Bill Cowley and Bep Guidolin will make up another attacking force.

The personnel of the third line, however, still is doubtful. Injuries to Don Gallinger and Terry Reardon are preventing them from going at their best So, to see whether Norm McAtee can fit in with Don Grosso and Bill Shill, the Bruins' masterminds have purchased him from Hershey Bears.

The Rangers came up with a win and a tie in their holiday weekend exhibition efforts. The New Yorkers battled to a 5-5 tie with league rivals, Chicago Black Hawks, at Winnipeg Saturday and the following night whipped St. Paul of the United States league 9-5 at Port Arthur.

The game with St. Paul had more than a lot of goals. A fire broke out in the stands late in the second period and the crowd of 2,000 were asked to leave the building in orderly fashion. However, they returned in 10 minutes after the city fire department extinguished the blaze.

Brian Hextall scored three goals against St. Paul to perform the hat trick. Norm Larson with two markers, was the only other Ranger with more than one counter. Against the Hawks the veteran Neil Colville produced the only double scoring effort.

Other N. H. L. clubs involved in weekend exhibition games the Bruins and Canadiens. The Bruins whipped Hershey Bears 5-2 at Hershey Saturday and Canadiens edged out Providence Reds at the American league 6-5 at Shawinigan Falls.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

New York, Oct. 15—(AP) — Coach Frank Lehy of Notre Dame who has been boaning about the lack of a "breakaway" runner, may have just what he wanted in Ernie Zalejski, who just returned to school from the army. He showed plenty of speed as a freshman a couple of years ago and should be ready to run in time for the Army game... The Dodgers who tried unsuccessfully to get Clyde Kluttz, from the Cards last year nay have another fine catcher coming up. He's Roy Campanella, who hit .415 for Nashua in the New England League play-offs.

Natural Confusion

Sam Barnes, former Oklahoma Aggie grappler who is teaching English and assisting with intramural sports at Virigina Military Institute, worked out this daily schedule: 8 to 10 a.m., English classes; 11 to 1 and 2 to 4, touch football; 4 to 6, softball; evening hours, wrestling... Proudly he showed it to intramural Director Herb Patchin ... "By Gosh," Patchin exclaimed, "in a month you won't know whether you're passing a guy on his grades or grading a guy on his passes."

South was declarer at a contract of six hearts. West led the club jack. There should be no trouble in taking 12 tricks if the play is right. Or so it seems after you see all that you see.

South should win with the club ace and take one round of the trumps with his ace. It does not happen very often but the queen sometimes drops in the first round.

When the queen does not fall, dummy takes a club and leads a trump. East shows out. So, declarer can take his choice of losing the finesse or a later round of trumps to the queen.

Soon as possible, south pumps trumps until west has no more. Then south gets a diamond sluff on a top dummy spade. That does it.

However, they tell me south did not play it that way. Taking the first trick with club ace, he led king and small spade. Dummy won and led a small spade from there.

South trumped that third spade with heart ten and west obliged by overtrumping with the queen. So, south took the west return and pulled trumps. He breezed in with the rest.

My report is only as they told it to me. So do not ask me why south took such chances. When south trumped with the ten, west muffed a sure chance of killing the contract.

He should have refused to overtrump. Anything declarer does after that will not keep west from two trump tricks. The west Q 9 are by that time safe over the south J 4.

Both pairs seem to have slipped up on their side of the table; or under. They must have had other things on their minds; and table.

New York, Oct. 12 —(CP)— Jose Ferrer in a putty nose officially opened the 1946-47 season on Broadway this week with a rousing production of Edmond Rostand's 19th century French classic, "Cyrano de Bergerac."

Ferrer's subtle portrait of the long-nosed Gascon — coming on the frayed heels of a series of tepid-to-bad-plays — is the required shot in the arm to an ailing season.

The story of the ugly lover whose poetic words — in the mouth of a handsome friend — courted the vain Roxane, is retold in the grand manner.

This newest "Cyrano" had its premiere and pre-season engagement in Toronto's Royal Alexandra a fortnight ago.

Downbeat: Fine barrelhouse jazz raised the curtain on "Hear That Trumpet," a melodrama with syncopated overtones which opened this week. The final curtain went down on the same group of engaging jazzmen sending. But between those curtains it was a rather sad misfire.

Ted Lewis of the Battered Hat —"Is Everybody Happy?" — is luring the nightowls into the Latin Quarter in a new cabaret revue . . . Comic Joe E. Lewis—same vintage — is tickling the junior set at the Copacabana . . . Motion picture opening of the week is "The Jolson Story" at Radio City Music Hall where the lives — and some of the loves — of the minstrel of the 20s are detailed . . . It's open season for nostalgia.

Fenced In: The Eighth Avenue version of the Calgary Stampede is packing the cowhands into Madison Square Garden to see Gene Autry and Champion at the head of a cast of rodeo stars.

Whistle-Tooters Take Beating From Fans as Big Four And O.R.F.U. Stage Many Contests

Referees at Hamilton and Windsor Roughly Handled, Given Escorts

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

For one of the biggest football weekends in Canadian history, surprisingly few misplaced limbs and teeth today cluttered the battle sites as the players, for once sager than sanguinary, left it to the officials to take the roughest ride.

There were major upsets in the 13-game program, with the toppling of the Dominion champion Toronto Argonauts from the ranks of the unbeaten the most startling, but the standings came out virtually unchanged and the most disconcerting news was the bumps given the whistle-tooters.

In both Hamilton and Windsor, Ont., Thanksgiving Day crowds showed bad temper. At Windsor, referee Bill Consiglio of Hamilton was pushed in the face as police escorted him off at half time and at Hamilton, it took a cordon of police to break up an attack aimed at all three officials.

The Windsor demonstration came as Toronto Indians of the Ontario Rugby Football Union walloped the fifth-place Rockets to come through the weekend as the only unbeaten team in the 3 senior leagues that challenge for the Grey Cup. The Indians had dunked the winless Ottawa Trojans, 5-0, at Toronto Saturday.

Attacked by Fan

There was an argument just before halftime and as Consiglio left the field, he was attacked by one fan and pushed in the face by another who pushed past police. With Indians leading 21-0 at the half, the outburst seemed silly but maybe the fans were still smarting over the Rockets' Friday night loss in Toronto, a 16-2 whipping by Balmy Beach that just about shot their playoff chances.

In the Hamilton incident, the fans may have had more provocation. Their Tigers, who fanned slight playoff hopes Saturday by fighting to a 6-6 draw with the Rough Riders at Ottawa, looked even better against the league-leading Argonauts. Time and again, they worked into scoring position, only to have a penalty cut off the chance.

The big moment came with but minutes to play and Tigers trailing 7-2 largely as a result of Royal Copeland's second-quarter touchdown. Dan De Santis, starry Hamilton import, intercepted a pass to give his team possession on the Argo 15 but the ball was re-awarded to Toronto on a "roughing the passer" penalty.

A large block of the crowd of 10,000 lined the field as the game ended without scoring and made for referee Buff Horton. He was felled twice before players and police closed in for protection.

Alouettes Trounce Argos

The Argos were not so lucky in their first weekend contest, with Lew Hayman's Alouettes belting them, 28-6, on the smashing work of United States imports John Moody, Herb Trawyck, Virgil Wagner and Wally. Spencer and Winnipeg's Ches McCance and Dave Greenberg.

In the O.R.F.U. Hamilton Wildcats kept on the heels of the Indians by whipping Balmy Beach, 13-7, at Toronto yesterday after an 18-1 Saturday win over the Imperials at Sarnia. Young Don Toms picked up two touchdowns for Wildcats Saturday, while their majors against the Beach were scored by Ben Dyack, Bill Murmylyck and Gord Miller.

The Imperials rebounded for a Thanksgiving Day victory at home over Ottawa Trojans. Ken Moore and Dutch Davy contributed majors that shaded an Ottawa placement by Rocky Robillard and a touchdown by Ron Sharpe.

Bombers Gain Tie

At Regina yesterday, Winnipeg Blue Bombers regained a tie for first place with Calgary Stampeders in the Western Canada senior circuit by whipping the last-place Saskatchewan Rough Riders, 9-0. Half Harry Hood scored the only major.

The Stampeders had pulled temporarily into first place by downing the Blue Bombers 6-0 at Winnipeg Saturday.

University of Western Ontario remained the only unbeaten team in the East's Intercollegiate Union by turning back Queen's University, 8-0, at London, Ont., with George Curtis' touchdown the big points. University of Toronto beat McGill, 5-3, in the other Saturday game to deadlock the Redmen for second place.

A touchdown by Johnny Manson when he picked up a blocked kick by Ian Clark turned the tide in the Toronto game.

Texas Slips Into Third Place With Notre Dame Second

By BOB GRUBB

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—After only a week's absence, Army has returned to the head of the United States College football parade, and Texas has slipped into third place behind Notre Dame.

United States sport writers, balloting in the Associated Press' weekly poll, were quick to restore Red Blaink's Black nights, on the basis of their 20-13 victory over Michigan, to the No. 1 ranking they held for two years.

Sixty-three of 139 writers put the cadets back at the head of the class.

Based on a point-scoring system of 10 points for a first-place ballot, nine for a second, eight for a third, and so on, Army collecting 1,257 1-2 points.

The Longhorns squeaked through over Oklahoma by the same score that Army did in beating Michigan. Army previously had defeated Oklahoma 21-7.

The Longhorns were given 38 votes for the top spot, and while they drew more than Notre Dame's 31 for first place, the Irish rolled up a huge second-place score—51 1-2 to 31 for Texas. Apparently Notre Dame's 49-6 trouncing of Purdue made a better impression on the voters than did Texas' decision over the Sooners.

In spite of their setback by Army, Michigan's Wolverines dropped only one notch in the ratings, from fourth last week to fifth. Displacing Michigan at No. 4 position was University of California at Los Angeles, 26-6 victor over Stanford. The Bruins' third straight victory got them five first-place ballots and all of the writers contributed to a 763-point total for the U.C.L.A.

Penns Quakers, who have yet to encounter any bothersome competition, received a pair of first-place votes and amassed 502 points that gave them sixth place, just 40 short of Michigans 542.

Alabama dropped to seventh place with 470 and two other southern teams, Georgia and Tennessee, broke their eighth-place tie of last week. Georgie remaining in that spot with 356 while the Vols wound up No. 9 with 336 Northwestern stayed in 10th place at 203 1-2 as a result of its one-touchdown victory over Minnesota.

BOSTON BRUINS WILL CARRY 17 DURING SEASON

Famous "Kitchener" Line Will be Intact and Cowley Will be Back

Hershey, Pa., Oct. 15 (AP) — Boston Bruins will start the National Hockey League season with 17 players, 12 forwards, four defencemen and goalie Frankie Brimsek, it was announced today by Manager Art Ross.

The Bruins said the famous "Kitchener" line of Milt Schmidt, Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer was intact for another season and that the veteran Bill Cowley would pivot for wingers Joe Carvet and Bep Guidolin.

Until Don Gallinger's knee injury mends, the third line will be centred by Don Grosso with Jud McAtee and Bill Shill on the flanks. Terry Reardon and little Kenny Smith will be the spare forwards for the opening game.

The Bruins defencemen, all N.H.L. veterans, appear to be the strongest quartet in the circuit, Captain Jack Crawford, Pat Egan, Murray Henderson and Babe Pratt(recently obtained from Toronto Maple Leafs. Dit Clapper again will serve as non-playing coach .

Washington's Redskins Move into Leadership

New York, Oct. 15.— (AP) — Washington's Redskins moved the leadership in the Eastern division of the National Football League Sunday as Chicago Bears clung to the top spot in the Western division by gaining a 28-28 tie with the defending champions Los Angeles Rams.

The Redskins, Eastern titleholders in 1945 ,knocked off New York Giants, 24-14, while Green Bay Packers stopped Philadelphia Eagles, 19-7. The defeats, first of the season for the Giants, and Eagles, enabled the Redskins to move to the top.

With two victories and one tie apiece, the Bears and Redskins remain the only unbeaten teams in the circuit with the season scarcely a month old.

Chicago Cardinals crushed Detroit Lions 36-14, and Pittsburgh Steelers downed Boston Yanks 16-7.

At Detroit, Paul Christian stole the show, completing 20 of the 33 passes, four of them for touchdowns, and tallying the other touchdown himself.

FIVE KILLED IN CRASH

Rio de Janeiro, Oct. 12 (AP) — Five persons—two men and three women—were killed yesterday when a United States military plane crashed into a mountain peak in the suburbs of the capital and exploded. Earlier reports said the plane was carrying American nurses.

London (CP) — Rev. E. C. Unwin of London Methodist Temperance and Social Welfare Department said with a decrease in the number of public houses has come a new "menace" — Sunday concerts.

Little Benny's Note Book

In school today Miss Kitty was telling us about astronomy, including the sun, saying, There is no planet in the whole sky so usefill to us as the sun? Can anyone tell me why? she said.

Shorty Judge waving his hand and saying, Because it dissapeers at night and saves people from the temtation of working more than half a day.

I hardly think many people need such atronomical assistance to keep from werking too long, judging by the daily papers, Miss Kitty, and Artie Bromfield waved his hand, saying, The earth goes around the sun, and if the sun wasn't there for it to go around, it would go all different directions at once, and that would interfeer with everything because we'd all be dizzy all the time.

The consequences would be far more serious than that, I'm afraid Miss Kitty said. But Artie is right in a generel way. The sun is the center of what is known as the solar sistem, which is only one of many similar sistems scattered through infinite space. We know very little about the far distant sistems, or stars, as we call them, and yet they are usefil to us. Who can tell me in what way? she said.

Humfree Bond waving and saying, They give us a chance to wish on whatever one comes out ferst, and Miss Kitty said, That's very nice of them, I'm sure. The stars are usefill to mankind because for thousands of years sailers have guided ships by their position in the sky. This is known as celestial navigation and is one of the indications of mankind's great intelligence, which I hope some day will spread even to this class. We will begin the arifmetic lesson, she said.

Which we did feeling against it.

DREW CALLS ON LABOR TO PURGE COMMUNISTS

Guelph, Oct. 12 — (CP)—Premier Drew Friday night called upon labor to eliminate Communists from its ranks and charged court records prove Communists, under instructions from Moscow, are working to disrupt the ordinary social structure of this country. The Ontario premier, addressing the Guelph junior board of trade, said it was in the interests of labor to recognize that there are men in the unions who profess to speak for labor, yet whose last interest is advancement of labor.

EXPERTS SAMPLE CRITICAL VIEWS OF RADIO FANS

NBC Weathers Brickbats — and Bouquets From the Listening Audience

By EDGAR SIMON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

For 25 years radio's chief aim has been to keep its listeners happy. Scientifically-designed polls have assured network heads and station managers that their programs have an audience. Letters have poured in giving the individual listener's opinion of what he hears. But there have been few efforts to analyse audience opinion on any basis other than the drawing power of an individual program.

Today at least one network feels strong enough to go to its listeners for some information. NBC have engaged Capt. Horace Schwerin, former United States Army research expert, to make "qualitative analysis of radio," testing typical audience reactions to various segments of a radio program.

In NBC's New York studios, six times a week, a carefully-selected audience is given a chance to take pot-shots at a program, with a view to improvement of the program in accordance with their likes and dislikes. Each program is tested for several weeks and a graph is drawn noting recurrent attitudes toward the cast and material.

Some of the reactions are familiar to many listeners. An announcer was chided for talking too fast, for calling a singer by his first name and for being "insincere." A baritone had his ears pinned back just for being a baritone.

Almost unanimous disaproval greeted the middle commercial on a light musical program. Comments ranged from "Please no plugs—they're no good," to "It's exaggerated," "Too cute," and "Too long." One woman tempered her comment with "It's better than the singing commercials."

A survey conducted in Canada by the Commercial Radio Research Committee indicated a similar preoccupation with the quality of radio advertising. The survey, confined to the commercial field, found listeners generally favorable to the principle of sponsored programs but called for clearer, shorter, more sincere and more interesting matter in the sponsor's announcement.

Audiences for the NBC tests are attracted by spot announcements over the air. No refrigerators, nylons or other premiums are offered, but thousands write in. Schwerin picks his critics according to his own system with age, sex, education and occupation as prominent factors.

Besides their written reaction, which is carefully charted, the audiences are given a chance to cross swords verbally with the director of the test program.

To date, the only significant change in any of the programs, apart from minor modifications in commercials and textual material, has been the firing of a girl vocalist who was given a consistently low rating.

Toronto's first frequency modulation station is on the air full-time with an audience restricted for the present to the chosen few who can import FM sets from the United States.

Broadcasting from the top of the 34-storey Bank of Commerce building, the CBC's Station VE9EV operate on the 99.1 megacycle band at a power of 250 watts, later to be increase to 3,000 watts. Programs are selected from CBC local and network productions.

Soldier Singers Signed for Opera

London, —(Reuters)— Two brothers who sang during spare time as servicemen have been signed on by the New London Opera Company at the Cambridge Theatre.

William, 31, was a lieutenant-colonel and while in Italy took recreational training in baritone roles with the Modena and Bari opera companies. Murray, 22, a tenor, was an ordinary seaman.

MATRIARCH DIES

Freemantle, Australia (CP)— A woman who bore 29 children in 31 years died suddenly at her home here. She was Mrs. Annie Brown, who married in 1901. A number of her twelve surviving children attended the funeral. Mrs. Brown's family is believed to be a record for Australia.

AT THE CAPITOL—Star Leo Gorcey sees bad news in the newspaper for Bowery Boys Huntz Hall, Billy Benedict, David Gorcey and Bobby Jordan, while Bernard Gorcey watches, in Monogram's "Bowery Bombshell," now playing at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program in technicolor "The Spanish Main" starring Paul Henried, Maureen O'Hara and Walter Slezak.

Durban Puts Stop To Monkeyshiners

Durban, South Africa, (CP)— Durban city council has set aside £1,000 ($4,000) to trap all monkeys which are a danger or a nuisance to citizens.

In recent years Durban's monkey population has become so numerous and so bold that housewives in some suburbs complain that it is not safe to leave anything out of doors. Bands of monkeys raid gardens and verandahs, making off with anything they can carry, especially fruit or vegetables. There have also been cases when monkeys have come through an open door or window and raided the pantry.

Efforts by ratepayers to trap them in the past have failed for the animals are too clever, and it now has been decided to pay an expert animal trapper to do the job and remove the monkeys to an estate well outside the city. The mayor, Senator S. J. Smith, said in council that the monkeys could not be shot as the public never allow this.

Colonies of monkeys have for years lived in the bush bordering Durban's sea front and come up to people who have food for them. They can be seen climbing on to visitor's shoulder, feeling in his pockets, and exploring his car. The wise man empties his pockets of everything and locks his car before feeding the monkeys.

In parts of the Cape Province baboons are plaguing farmers because the eradication of a favorite baboon food—the prickly pear—has brought the animals out of the mountains into the flats in ever increasing numbers.

Cadi Cracks Down On Erring Drivers

Picton, Oct. 12—Charges arising out of accidents were heard in Magistrate's Court yesterday morning. Donald Monroe, Glenora was found guilty of dangerous driving. This charge arose out of an accident at Lake-on-the-Mountain on July 31, resulting in the death of Monroe's niece. Magistrate Wills reserved judgment until Oct. 23.

Donald Bovay, Wellington, was found guilty of careless driving and fined $10 and costs. The charge arose out of an accident on the Bloomfield-Wellington road on Sept. 4, when the car, driven by Bovay, left the road, struck a tree and overturned. No one was injured.

Found guilty of driving a car without undue care, Lester Holden of Bloomfield was fined $5 and costs.

Britain Relaxes Import Controls

Ottawa, Oct. 11 —(CP)— The Trade Department announced yesterday Britain has relaxed her important licensing controls to permit the importation from Canada and other countries of limited quantities of certain categories of products during the remainder of this year. The announcement said Britain is prepared to consider applications for import licences submitted to British firms which, having been regular pre-war imports of the types concerned, can satisfy the Board of Trade in London they have firm offers from prospective suppliers covering specified quantities and values of the goods.

FIRST HYBRID CORN

Chatham, Oct. 12 —(CP)— Ontario's first crop of hybrid white corn, grown by 1,875 farmers in this district will yield an estimated 750,000 bushels with a value to growers exceeding $1,0000,0000. Completing a two-day tour of the area yesterday, agricultural officials said the crop will surpass all early expectations.

Air Force Has Openings In Ground Crew Trades

The Air Force has openings in all ground crew trades such as: air frame mechanics, electricians, radio operators, radar mechanics, armourers, clerk administration, and many others.

Young men wishing to enlist without previous service experience must be over 18 years of age and under 26. They normally should have Junior Matriculation, but full consideration is given a young man with Grade 10 and with civilian experience in a trade.

R.C.A.F. veterans applying for re-enlistment will be advised as soon as possible regarding their rank they will receive on re-appointment.

Army and Navy veterans applying for enlistment in the R.C.A.F. will be given full consideration for their service time and experience.

Skilled tradesmen, without previous experience will be accepted up to age 30, whether married or single.

A mobile recruiting unit has made a complete tour of Ontario so that every young man may have the opportunity of presenting himself for enlistment. To date there has been a heavy response in recruiting. It is felt that once more many young men in this area will take advantage of this opportunity.

All young men not able to contact the recruiting unit here next Tuesday may, by writing to No. 1 Air Command, Trenton, receive full particulars on enlistment.

Meat Rationing May End in Spring

Ottawa, Oct. 12 — (CP) — The possibility that meat rationing, reintroduced last September to provide more food for Europe, may end next spring, was indicated in semi-official circles today.

Government experts said that by then Canada would have met her commitments to UNRRA and a number of foreign governments and meat would be in much larger supply.

The ration has cut consumption from a normal total of about 148 pounds per person per year to between 136 and 138 pounds.

Prisoners' Treatment Subject of Report

Toronto, Oct. 12 — (CP) — Criminals are often made into habitual offenders by cruelty and vengeful treatment of prison guards — frequently poorly-educated men of low intelligence — the Welfare Chest Council's committee on the adult offender said in a report issued yesterday after eight months' study.

The report maintained vengeance should have no part in the correction of offenders but "the attitude of vengeance crops out in our prison system where guards, particularly, express it . . . in both attitude and action.

"This attitude of hate breeds hate in return, and from this point springs much of the revengeful anti-social attitude of the repeated offender."

Big Distances Spur Aussie Air Services

By JACK HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Syney, Austrila, —(CP)— Big distances between cities and towns, favorable operating conditions, and the needs of war have stimulated the rapid growth of civil aviation in Australia. Plans are already laid for an even more rapid expansion over the next few years.

Privately-operated air services have been operating internally for nearly 25 years, and their growth has been most marked over the last ten years, particularly during the war.

In 1939, internal airlines carried 90,000 passengers and in 1945, 340,000. Air miles flown by these services in 1939 totalled 10,000,000 and in 1945, 13,000,000 miles.

Australian National Airways, the biggest internal operator, began with three aircraft and a few hundred miles of air routes in 1936 and today has 30 passenger aircraft and counts the miles flown by the million.

A. N. A. planes flew nearly 15,000,000 in the last 12 months on internal air services, carried 7,000,000 pounds of freight compared with 4,000,000 pounds in 1944-45, and 390,000 passengers compared with 250,000 in 1944-45.

Australia now is served with 28,000 miles of air routes operating from 500 landing grounds, airports and sea-plane bases, most of them controlled by the federal government under its powers interstate air navigation.

The routes link all the capital cities and a large number of the more important and isolated centres, and include, outside Australia, Singapore, Papua and New Guinea and New Zealand.

Overseas service to and from Australian terminals include a flying -boat and landplane service to Britain. The commercial passenger flight from Sydney to Vancouver, B. C., was completed recently when a four-engined DC-4 Skymaster of the Australian National Airways with a crew of nine brought 33 passengers to Canada.

Expansion plans include the entry of the federal government into the internal field, an American and British Commonwealth trans-Pacific service, Dutch services from Australia to The Netherlands East Indies and Singapore, and the building of a new international airport at Sydney which will cater for 500 planes a day.

CASH MONEY
- and some of it may come your way!
Yesterday Farmer Neilson got over $800 cash when he sold his grain. Through the processes of trade and commerce, some of that money may come to you. Banking service enabled him to obtain his money quickly.
The farmer doesn't have to wait for his money until his grain reaches the consumer . . . this is important to you, no matter where you live or what your work.
Farmer Nielson, and thousands like him, spend money for household and farm equipment, food, clothes, radios, paint and a hundred other things. This helps keep people busy all over the Dominion.
Your bank advances credit also to help farmers plant, cultivate and harvest crops of all kinds, to buy and raise livestock. Banking service is something like the good oil in fine machinery, you never notice it. But it is a prime factor in your prosperity . . . in the Canadian way of life.

The Traffic Is Terrific!
Voices, like people, must use crowded lines and busy central stations when travelling these days.
The cause is the same everywhere—traffic has increased tremendously since war started. Manufacturers were too busy on war orders to meet civilian demands—and now—materials are hard to get.
Under these conditions, telephone people are doing a magnificent job in keeping the service standards high. Our huge extension and improvement program is being rushed through as fast as the supply of materials will permit.
Facts Affecting Your Telephone:
In 1939 we served 780,000 subscribers; today we serve 1,140,000.
Local switchboards are handling more calls than ever before.
Long Distance calls are three times as numerous as in 1939.
In 1939 we had 9,000 employees. Now we have 21,000.

CHAPTER 28

"I won't think, I won't think, I won't think," Isabel would say aloud.

It would, of course, be better when Avery came home. She would devote herself to him. Wherever he wanted to go, hunting and fishing, she would go; to the hotel at Catalina, to the lodge up on the rouge. She would fish, too, wading deep in the rivers, booted to the hips. And when he hunted she would cook for the party, plucking the beautiful limp dead ducks and doves, watching the skinning of the horned deer.

Later they would travel, he and she, in the low-slung car, to find their luggage arrived ahead of them, in New York or Mexico City. Avery had always said, when impatient of the children's claims, that he only wanted her for himself. He would have her now.

And it wouldn't be forever. perhaps in a year—Oh, but a year stretched a long, long time ahead!—there would be a baby on the way. Then she must stay home; then she might well have her small girls once more with her—

But this thought led to flooding tears, and Isabel gulped them down, shook her head, told herself once again that she must not think. Madge, complacent and secure—no she mustn't think of her. Dennis stuffing his pipe, smiling as he listened to some story of the children's school day—somehow she must forget him.

In slow summer fogs creeping in from the ocean, in streaming lonely moonshine that furred the tops of the oaks and poured down in misty rays across the garden, Isabel fought the rising agony to get back to her own. To live again, as other women did—shaking out the fresh sheets over the family's beds in the morning, running up and downstairs on a hundred absorbing errands, planning meals, and watching the little girls' excitement when Mummy made cream puffs, or Dennis's smile as he said "Ha, asparagus back?" To sit again at the white-brick fireplace talking over the events of the day, with the right presently to note sleepily that the hands of the clock stood at quarter past nine. And to know that even now they would not be parted, that Dennis would have the right to kneel beside her and kiss her good night. She would put her book aside, as she had a thousand times, and slip her arm about his shoulders—the very commonplaces of love, but what miracles they seemed, remembered in her loneliness now!

Well, that was water gone over the dam. She must go on from here. Dennis must be as much out of her life now as if she had never known him; her future was here with Avery, and her children's future, for a time anyway, must be in the safety and happiness and beauty of the white farmhouse on the top of the hill.

She was to have them again in a few days. She planned for them carefully. The Latimer place at Pebble Beach was close to the shore, but it was not a friendly shore for small children. It was a rough line of great rocks, through and over which the seas boiled angrily, all day and all night. There were small beaches here and there, but they were difficult of access. The long beach at Carmel was three miles distant. But in these places, and all places, children must be closely guarded.

If she got a nurse for the children—hard enough in these days, but possible, there were sometimes good nurses available—then the old miserable business would begin over again. The children would be off with their nurse, and Isabel making engagements to play bridge, to dine; their interests entirely separate. If she did not have a nurse then everything concerning them would devolve upon her; she must be there for morning walks, luncheon struggles with chops and baked potatoes, naps; she must start out all over again when they waked up, little shoes forced on and laced, sleepy little faces washed, tangled soft straight dark hair brushed. "And what this afternoon, darlings? Let's go back to our own beach again, and we can have ice-cream cones on the way home."

If one could only turn children's company on and off like a tap; expect them to take care of themselves—not for long periods, but just for a few hours now and then! But that couldn't be. Madge Somers-Cox had them now, from nine until three. Then Dennis's mother would take over until Dennis got home tired and grimy in the late afternoon. He would hold off the children until he had splashed in the shower, presently emerge cool and damp-headed, perhaps biting into a doughnut, perhaps with a trowel in his hand. She could hear his bracing voice, "Come on girls! Those slips might as well be tackled now, when the ground is soft from the rain!"

The little girls would circle about him; jays and squirrels would loop their eternal quarrel through the peppers and oaks. Madge would stroll over, with little Alice-in-Wonderland Esme beside her.

Madge. Isabel's thoughts stopped short at her with a wave of something like hate. Mrs. Dennis Hardisty now. Dennis no more in love with her than he was with the man in the moon!

Madge had been shocked, frightened, bitterly lonely and afraid when she first had climbed that hill. Dennis had been shocked and lonely, too, his wife, home, babies all gone, himself coming back to his mother shattered in soul and body from the horrors of war. They had been cured together, Madge and Dennis, they had helped each other. A strong man, coming back hourly to normality and common sense and courage; a strong woman, needing him desperately, needing the physical touch of him, needing nights beside him, when her hand could find him in the darkness, her head rest against his shoulder. To neither had it been first love; there had been instead a mutual necessity.

"Would it make you feel any happier, Madge, if we drove ourselves up to San Jose someday and made this the usual thing?"

Her bright sensible look. Isabel could see it.

"Would it make you, dear?"

"Well, I think it would. It would seem fairer to you, and the kids, and Mom. We could tell Mom then."

"My dear boy, you don't imagine your mother isn't perfectly aware of all this?"

"Well, perhaps she is. She'd never hint it. But I've been considering it lately. You think it over, Madge."

Perhaps a little half-smiling hesitation on her part, here. Then sudden capitulation.

"Dennis you're right of course. We're both free, and we're pretty sure now we're congenial. Let's!"

And that was that. It had made no stir, this marriage; it was natural enough that it had come to Isabel's ears. No one outside Dennis's immediate circle would be interested; a few old friends would learn of it by degrees; no one else was concerned. Madge apparently shrank from comment of any kind; she had drawn away from the sorrow and change and danger of her old world, she was in no hurry to make an impression on the new. Hidden at the top of the hill, busy with her houseful of babies, satisfied at last with the presence of a man in her life, she would go on into years of serene activity; that nice square Englishwoman with the light eyebrows and eyelashes, who had a school at the top of the hill and had married Dennis Hardisty.

She would treat Dennis with the utmost frankness and friendliness and honesty. Nothing mushy or sentimental, just jolly good companionship.

"I say, old thing, you do look done in! Let me fix you a cup of Bovril."

Isabel interrupted her thoughts with a scornful laugh. Probably Madge wouldn't say any such thing. Probably she couldn't get Bovril. Here she was again thinking of Dennis and Madge. She must concentrate on the girls what was the wise, the possible thing to do with small girls of five and three for the remaining weeks of summer vacation?

They were living under conditions almost ideal, Isabel reflected nervously; it would be hard to rival the freedom and pleasantness of life in their father's house. Granny read stories to them, made a game of their baths; Daddy encouraged them to come dancing out and enjoy the family circle after dinner, either to share the twilight view of the town and the bay, or to the fireside if the evening was chilly. Their school was just a succession of amusements, judiciously interspersed with appearances of graham crackers and milk at regular intervals; they were considered, understood, helped. They would never miss their mother.

"You mean I get paid in Coconuts!"..

BILL is not running a fever. He is merely trying to explain to the new mechanic that 35 cents out of each dollar in his pay envelope is put there by Canadian trade abroad.

"Those parts you are making go into all kinds of machines, from refrigerator pumps to marine engines," says Bill, "and the countries that buy them must sell us different things in return, or they would run out of dollars to pay for our work."

"Let's get this thing straight," says Bill's new friend. "You mean that 35 cents on each dollar I get comes from things like coconuts and bananas?"

"Yes . . . and from coffee and sweet potatoes, sugar and cotton . . . spices and tea."

"What a way to make a living! Why, 35 cents on the dollar is more than I pay for rent . . . what would happen if these foreign guys stopped buying my machine parts?"

"That's something that must never happen," said Bill thoughtfully. "That's why I'm so fussy about the quality of the parts we turn out. Ours must be so much better that foreign buyers will prefer Canadian products because they are dependable and made to high standards. That's the way we'll build our foreign trade."

"But we can sell the parts we make at home. Why bother with the coconut fellows?"

"That's the tricky part of it. We must make foreign markets for Canadian goods now . . . or we won't keep the production lines moving after the people here at home have bought all they need."

And this is where YOU come in, friend reader. At least 35 cents of every dollar you earn comes from Canada's foreign trade, too. So if you want to do well by your future—be patient when some of the goods you want are sold to other countries.

And remember, too, that everything you produce is a knock or a boost for Canadian goods in foreign markets . . . so put your heart into your job.

35 CENTS OF EVERY $1.00 YOU GET . . . COMES FROM CANADA'S TRADE ABROAD

* Everyone who buys or sells merchandise abroad makes jobs in Canada. That is why we have a Foreign Trade Service in the Department of Trade and Commerce. It maintains able trade commissioners in 29 countries, and an experienced export and import staff at head office, to collect the most up-to-date information on foreign markets and give practical help to every business that wishes to buy or sell in other countries.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 15 (AP) — The neat decontrol ruling today touched off one of the sharpest and speediest stock market rallies since the September break.

Heavy buying put the ticker tape two minutes behind for lengthy interval after the opening with gains of one to more than six points widespread. Packing house issues were an hour to an hour and a half late in appearing as exchange specialists struggled to match bids and offers. Dealings slowed by 11 a.m. and extreme advances were reduced by profit cashing near the fourth hour.

Thrift Minded Canadians Will be Given Chance To Buy Savings Bonds Against Rainy Day

Million dollar babies! Yes, sir, that's Joan Gilmour and Gwen Tetlock of Ottawa, who got themselves quite an armful ($1,000,000 each to be exact) when the photographer found them at their work in the national vaults where Canada Savings Bonds are being packaged for distribution to the country's banks, investment dealers, trust companies and similar institutions which will have the new bonds for sale on Oct. 15 and after. Joan and Gwen were so enthusiastic about the bonds they put the calendar ahead to the opening day of the sale. "Anybody can be sitting pretty with Canada Savings Bonds," the girls declare.

Ottawa, Oct. 15 — Less than a year ago, in the dying hours of the Ninth Victory Loan, a group of factory workers in Brantford, Ont., sent a formal request to National War Finance Committee officials asking that some form of bond savings be continued even though the war was over. These men and women, like thousands more throughout the country, felt that their bond purchases were a topnotch savings plan and they didn't want to lose a good thing once it was within their grasp.

Beginning on Oct. 15, Canadians everywhere will have another opportunity to salt away their dollars in a good interest-bearing savings plan to be called Canada Savings Bonds. The N.W.F.C. and its complex organization is, like savings stamps, blood banks, scrap drives and all the other wartime operations, a thing of the past.

"But the desire of the people to increase their stake in Canada, and at the same time add to their financial reserves, has not lessened," a department of finance spokesman said here today, in describing the new bonds. "That is no mere supposition by us here in Ottawa," he added. "We recently had a scientifically conducted poll made by experts among the present bondholders of the $3,000 a year and under class and found that 82 per cent. wanted another opportunity to buy government bonds this year."

It is pointed out that the Canada Savings Bonds are not needed for the government's fiscal committments. Nor is Ottawa using this bond drive as an anti-inflationary measure. "We know that the people want these bonds, so we are offering them purely as a service to the thrift-minded men and women of the country," it is explained.

The Canada Savings Bonds, and the methods of selling them, differ in many respects from the recent Victory Bond campaigns. This time, except for professional bond salesmen, there will be no knocking on doors to solicit applications. Bonds will be on sale at all banks, bond houses, trust companies and similar financial institutions, and in most cases the buyer goes to the seller instead of the reverse, as was the case during Victory Loans. A payroll savings canvass will be made in all plants where such a canvass is desired, and both payroll savings buyers as well as others will again be allowed to buy on the instalment plan. All Canada Savings Bonds will be registered and will not be transferable or assignable; but they, like the Victory Bonds, can be sold without trouble at any bank for cash should the need arise. It is felt also that although they are not transferable, they will be accepted as security for bank loans because they are badges of the holder's thriftiness and responsibility.

There will be four denominations — $50, $100, $500, and $1,000. No buyer may take more than $2,000. The interest coupons will be payable annually. The interest rate is 2¾ per cent.

"Remember, the whole campaign is entirely up to the individual citizen," an official here declares. "This time there will be no general canvass, no bands, speeches or flagwaving. We feel that most people want to tread cautiously today and save all they can for the future. Here is the chance."

Tweed

Tweed—A large number of Tweed Rebekahs were in Cobourg recently when "The Degree of Chivalry," was conferred on a number of the members of the Order.

The Noble Grand of Tweed Lodge, Mrs. Howard Countryman was one of the officers on whom the honor was conferred. This honor is only given to members who have given a long and faithful service to the Order, and Sister Countryman is to be congratulated on receiving this high honor.

The affair took place at the Collegiate Institute Cobourg, and at the close of the ceremony a reception was held and all enjoyed a very delightful evening.

On Thursday Oct. 3rd, District Deputy of district No. 30, Sister Mildred McCarey and staff installed the following officers of the Tweed Rebekah Lodge.

J. P. G. Sister Blanche Countryman.
N. G. Sister Stella Woods.
V. G. Sister Mabel Foster.
Chaplain Sister Alice Jeffrey.
Warden Sister Ethel Bateman.
Conductor Sister Hilda Sims.
R. S. N. G. Sister Vera Graham.
L. S. N. G. Sister Maud Jones.
R. S. V. G. Sister Eva Juby.
L. S. V. G. Sister Mollie Sexsmith.
I. G. Sister Lottie Sills.
O. G. Sister Susan Raney.

At the close of the ceremony refreshments were served and a social hour was enjoyed by all present.

N.Z. Has Extensive Plans for Servicemen

By J. C. GRAHAM
(C. P. Correspondent)

Auckland, N.Z., Oct. 15 (CP)—With the return of the last portion of New Zealand's original occupation force from Japan the Dominion has completed repatriation of all large bodies of troops who were serving overseas on VJ-Day.

Out of a population of 632,000 when war started, the Dominion had 355,000 men of military age. A total of 205,000 (including a few thousand women) joined the forces during the war, while there were peak totals of 124,000 in the home guard and 150,000 in the Emergency Precautions Service. The maximum mobilization in the services was 157,000 in September, 1942, the respective totals being 127,000 in the army, 6,000 in the navy and 24,000 in the air force.

A total of 135,000 men and women saw service overseas, and of these 10,130 were killed, 19,345 wounded, 8,086 taken prisoner, and 634 are still classed as missing. On VJ-Day New Zealand had a division and a large base establishment in Italy and Egypt, large numbers of air force personnel in Europe and several squadrons in island bases in the Pacific, and naval personnel in most parts of the world. There are still small groups in England, Europe and the Pacific.

With the return of the last group from Japan the rehabilitation department is operating at what will probably be its peak activity. New Zealand laid the foundations of its post-war care of troops in October, 1941. The Rehabilitation Act was passed under which rehabilitation officers and committees were set up in every town of any size in the country, with power to grant loans.

Trade training courses were established in the main towns where ex-servicemen could learn carpentry, bricklaying, plastering and other skilled trades. Those who elected to train under private employers had their wages subsidized by the government while they were earning less than standard rates. Grants were authorized to the Disabled Soldiers' Re-establishment League which took charge of vocational training for men suffering from war disabilities.

The Housing Problem.

To help meet the housing situation, the most acute problem for many ex-servicemen, the government laid down that half of all state houses built should be allocated to war veterans.

One of the major activities undertaken was the settling of veterans on the land. The rehabilitation department investigated all properties for which ex-servicemen sought loans. Only where there was reasonable prospect of the veterans making a living were loans granted, but where the property was approved grants were authorized up to $16,000 for most farms and up to $20,000 for sheep farms. About 200,000 acres of land was also acquired by the veterans under various types of tenure.

In addition to loans of various kinds other types of assistance approved included disability pensions, concessions under apprenticeship regulations, concessions in the passing of university and other examinations, and war gratuities at the rate of $10.40 a month for service overseas and $3.20 a month for service within New Zealand.

So far loans totalling about $77,000,000 have been made and the total amount authorized for all rehabilitation purposes is about $103,000,000. This does not include gratuity payments, which it is estimated will total $57,000,000 when all claims have been met.

RECTAL SORENESS AND PILE TORTURE
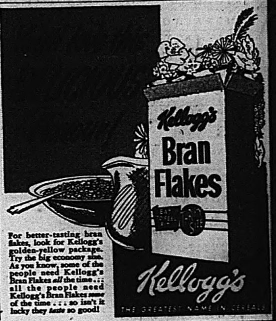
QUICKLY RELIEVED

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.



For better-tasting bran flakes, look for Kellogg's golden-yellow package. Try the big economy size. As you know, some of the people need Kellogg's Bran Flakes all the time . . . all the people need Kellogg's Bran Flakes some of the time . . . so isn't it lucky they taste so good!

"I'VE GOT THE HABIT!"

The dictionary defines habit as "a tendency acquired by frequent repetition of the same act". By this token, most of us through the war years formed a habit of saving through buying Victory Bonds. We liked it. Liked the convenience of it, the security, the good rate of interest . . . liked the fact that we were investing in the future of our country.

The habit of saving through government bonds can be continued in peace time. The new Canada Savings Bonds can be bought in units of $50, $100, $500 and $1,000. They pay 2¾% interest, by annual coupons, for ten years. Yet they can be turned into cash at full face value, with interest, at any time. Buy them for cash, or on the Monthly Savings Plan, Payroll Savings Plan or by personal arrangement with your bank.

Keep the habit of saving—

10 NAZIS HANGED, GOERING COMMITS SUICIDE

Sullivan Argues Mrs. Evelyn Dick Should be Freed

Questions Mother's Motive In Testifying Against Her

None Broke Down Says Eyewitness Of Ten Hangings

By SELKIRK PANTON
(London Daily Express — Representing the Combined British Press)

Nuernberg, Oct. 16—(Reuters)—I saw 10 of Hitler's lieutenants die on the gallows this morning for crimes against humanity and against peace.

It was all over in less than two hours.

The worst of all was the swish of the cord around their necks after the black hood had hidden their faces, followed by a pause of seconds which seemed minutes, Then came the heart-leaping sound as the trap was sprung and the body fell.

The Nazi leaders died bravely. Not one broke down. Not one whimpered or made any appeal. Their leader during their trial before the international military tribunal in Nuernberg did not die with them. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, who walked beside Hitler from the beginning of Nazism, chose his Fuehrer's death and died by his own hand two hours before the executions started in the gymnasium of Nuernberg prison.

Goering took poison under the eyes of the American security guard watching him every moment through a grating in the door of his condemned cell.

Crushed with Teeth

Without the guard noticing any movement, Goering — who had asked for a soldier's death before a firing squad and had been refused — slipped a vial of cyanide of potassium into his mouth and crushed it with his teeth. To escape the rope he used the same type of poison and vial adopted by Heinrich Himmler, Nazi No. 3, who committed suicide 17 months ago when caught by the British army.

In Goering's stead, Joachim Von Ribbentrop, the once-dapper Nazi Foreign Minister, led the procession to the gallows. With the dirty walls of the dusty, bomb-blasted gymnasium of the prison lit up by 10 blazing lights in the ceiling, Ribbentrop walked through the gymnasium, his face white but set and his grey hair ruffled.

The trap sprung at 1:11 a.m. At 2:45 a.m., Arthur Seyss-Inquart ended the procession, shouting:—"I believe in Germany" as he fell to his death.

Twelve minutes later two American soldiers entered the death chamber — with its three purple and black scaffolds of rough wood — carrying a stretcher.

Take Him Away

On it was a body, covered by an army blanket.

Two bare feet, white and stiff, stuck out beneath the blanket. We gathered around it and the blanket was removed. There lay Goering—who had tricked the Allies to the last—wearing disarrayed black silk pyjama trousers and a pale blue silk pyjama coat.

The doctors examined him. Then an American Colonel said: "Okay, take him away."

Goering's body was then placed in one of the rough light brown pine coffins which had been brought into the chamber for the condemned Nazi leaders.

I covered the executions as one of the eight Allied newspapermen, chosen by lot, who were granted the privilege. Britain, the United States, France and Russia each had two news representatives.

Each of the Nazis was given a chance to say a last word before he was executed.

CHARGE DISMISSED

Calgary, Oct. 16—(CP)— A charge of dangerous driving against Arthur Morris, city parks superintendent, arising out of a traffic accident July 24, in which Prof. Alfred Tomlinson of Guelph was killed, was dismissed by Magistrate I. F. Fitch Monday.

Prof. Tomlinson was a passenger in Morris' auto when it collided with a truck.

Hamilton ,Oct. 16. (CP)—Defence Counsel John J. Sullivan today asked an Ontario Supreme Court jury to find a verdict that the Crown had not proven its charge of husband murder against the young Hamilton widow, Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick and questioned the motives of the accused's mother in testifying against her.

"Unless the Crown has brought home to the jury—beyond a shadow of a doubt that she murdered John Dick, the jury should return a verdict of 'not proven';" Mr. Sullivan said in winding up his address at the ninth day of this trial of Mrs. Dick for husband murder last March 6.

"That," he said, "under Canadian law is the same as 'not guilty.'"

He painted a picture of a young woman—"a pretty young woman"—who was an only child growing up under hard conditions and perhaps, like a child, reaching for another life than that which she led and "trying too hard and ending up in this position."

Her statements showed she possibly knew something about the disposal of the body—the torso of John Dick found last March 16 on Albion Mountain in Hamilton—but not that she had anything to do with the killing.

To use an old expression, he said, "they did not put a gun in her hand."

Must Go to Jury

Prior to his address to the jury the defence submitted to the Lordship that evidence brought out at this trial had not proven a case against the young woman charged with killing John Dick last March 6 but His Lordship ruled the jury should decide that.

So, before the jury, Mr. Sullivan stressed this point.

And he recalled the day when the accused's mother — "a determined little woman" — had taken the stand against her daughter and the fact that defence had been difficult because other people were mixed up in the case.

He called the torso murder "a story unusual in the history of criminal trials in this country" and said: "The great white light of publicity has been beating down on us since the discovery of the torso."

Probably Had Motive, Claim

He suggested perhaps Mrs. Alexander MacLean "had her own motives" when she took the witness stand in one of the outstanding moments of high drama in this trial last week.

He said: "We had there a situation not only unusual but I think unknown in trials in this country in which a mother went into the witness box and gave evidence against her daughter — her only daughter — on a charge of murder."

He reminded the jury that Mrs. MacLean on cross examination had said she was at large on bail as a material witness in the case and had said too that she herself had been charged with the John Dick murder but released under

'Queen Elizabeth' Begins Her First Post-War Trip as Civilian Luxury Liner

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Southampton, Oct. 16 (CP Cable)—The stately Queen Elizabeth—veteran of nearly 500,000-miles of wartime sea travel as a troopship—sailed from here today on her first post-war voyage as a civilian luxury liner, the job for which she was built.

The Elizabeth—at 83,673 tons the world's largest ship—is the first big liner since the end of the war to throw her speed and luxury accommodation into the struggle with the overseas airlines to capture the transatlantic passenger trade. With her sister ship, the Queen Mary, she will inaugurate next year a weekly service between Southampton and New York.

Aboard the Elizabeth, transformed from a trooper into a floating palace for this much-publicized maiden voyage, was the full complement of 2,314 passengers. Among them were diplomats, leaders of industry and finance, government representatives and plain travellers trying to get from one side of the Atlantic to the other. Also aboard was a party of Canadian and American newspapermen.

Among the passengers was Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia, who travelled by plane from the Peace Conference to Eastleigh, near Southampton. Mr. Molotov told a press conference aboard the ship that he hopes the work begun at the Paris conference will be completed when the Big Four meets in New York.

Most prominent Canadian aboard was Dana Wilgress, Ambassador to the Soviet Union and a member of the Dominion delegation at the Paris Peace Conference.

STRIKE SITUATION OF BUSHWORKERS STILL NOT CLEAR

Impossible to Gauge For Week Yet How Many Will Strike Is One View Held

Timmins, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP)—Striking bushworkers attended a relief organization meeting here last night to plan for the feeding and housing of members of the lumber and sawmill workers (A.F.L.) expected to flow into Timmins from outlying camps.

Meanwhile it still was not clear how effective the strike of Local 2995 was in this section of northern Ontario. Spokesmen for Local 2785 in the Thunder Bay area have claimed the five-day-old walkout for wage guarantees and union recognition to be "100 per cent effective."

(In Toronto, D. W. Ambridge, President of the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, one of the largest companies affected by the strike, said it would be almost impossible to gauge how many men were determined to strike until another week had passed.)

Picket and other strike duties were assigned at last night's meeting and Bruce Magnuson, local secretary, said the Finnish hall here had been placed at the strikers' disposal and 500 cots and eating facilities would be ready within two days.

Plans For Canvass

Plans were completed for canvassing sympathizers for food and strike funds and a strike "police force" was formed.

"We don't want any trouble," Mr. Magnuson said as he announced formation of the "police" who will carry identification ribbons and be registered and led by "captains" wearing distinctive armbands. They will operate in squads of seven to 10 on the picket lines around outlying sawmills and lumber camps.

Meanwhile it was announced union crews of Ontario and northern railway trains would go through picket lines at four local mills.

Station agent R. R. Richardson said members of the Independent Brotherhood of Railway Employees had refused to cross the lines Monday and Tuesday but now did not want to become involved in what he termed a "non-existent" strike.

Three of the four mills were reported in full operation today.

Dreamboat on Way Across Atlantic To Set up Record

Paris, Oct. 16 — (AP)—The Pacusan Dreamboat took off from Orly Field at 8:38 a. m. (2:38 a.m. E.S.T.) today in an attempt to set a none-stop flight record across the Atlantic.

The Superfortress had taken off from the same field yesterday for a shot at the Paris-New York record, but was turned back several hours later by engine trouble.

FRAU GOERING DENIES REPORT

New York, Oct. 16 — Emmy Goering broke down and sobbed today when told how her husband cheated the gallows by swallowing poison, Ed Haaker of NBC said in a Nuernberg broadcast. Haaken said Mrs. Goering denied she had smuggled the deadly capsule to her husband during her last visit to the prison.

UNFILLED JOBS AND UNEMPLOYED NEAR BALANCE

Expansion in Logging and Pressure of Consumer Demand Buoyant Factors

Ottawa, Oct. 16 — (CP) — Unfilled jobs practically caught up with the number of unemployed Canadians at Oct. 3, the first time the two figures have approximately balanced in 11 months, the Labor Department reported today.

The department said expansion in logging and the pressure of consumer demand were buoyant factors in labor market activity, despite the adverse effect of strikes and shortages.

National employment offices showed 144,000 workers still looking for jobs at Oct. 3, a decrease of 2,000 during September compared with a decline of 16,000 during August.

Available jobs shot up to 142,000 a rise of 25,000 in September compared to a gain of 11,000 in August. The upswing in logging accounted for three-fifth of the September increase. Settlement of the steel strike brightened the general strike picture and labor demand increased in all industries except heavy manufacturing.

In the Maritimes employment conditions for men were reported "rather serious" although for women there were more jobs than applicants. Lay-offs through material shortages added to the adverse condition for men.

Quebec reported a slight improvement in general labor conditions with a slump in industry during September.

Suffer from Shortage

Ontario industries suffered heavily from material shortages, many of them due to strikes. The labor supply was adequate in most industries except textiles and foundries. Automobile plants and feeder industries were almost at a standstill because of material shortages. Strike-idle workers and prisoners of war relieved shortages in canning plants. All types of construction tradesmen — particularly carpenters, plumbers and bricklayers — were in demand despite the limited supply of building materials.

The prairie provinces reported labor demand which exceeded the supply by 7,000 workers. Most of the demand was in logging. The Alberta farmers strike affected the meat packing industry.

The Pacific region recorded an improved labor situation with farm labor requirements well under control. Logging was handicapped by a lack of skilled men.

Number of unplaced workers, with unfilled vacancies in brackets, in Ontario centres at Oct. 3 was:

Hamilton 5,452 (1,205); London 796 (2,170); Oshawa 2,924 (578); Ottawa, 3,058 (1,755); St. Catharines, 1,094 (571); Toronto, 9,211 (19,546); and Windsor 13,179 (277).

Highlights of Executions

Nuernberg, Oct. 16. (AP)—Highlights of the last hours at Nuernberg, from the reports of official witnesses:

The 10 arch Nazis died on an American Army basketball court. Their gallows were erected on eight-foot high platforms in a brightly lighted 53 by 78-foot gymnasium, which only three days ago was used by United States soldiers.

Goering "seemed to be sleeping nonchalantly" 45 minutes before his suicide. His fat hands rested outside the counterpane of his bed, but "his right hand was clenched," apparently holding the poison that robbed the gallows of their No. 1 victim.

Goering's suicide cheated his condemned fellows of the right to walk with hands free over the 70-odd yards from their cells to the execution chamber. All were manacled in their cells immediately after Goering's death. The manacles were removed on the gallows—only to be replaced by leather cords.

How Goering guessed today was his day of doom was a mystery being investigated by a specially appointed board of inquiry. He swallowed the poison just as the prison commander walked across the prison yard to read the death sentences to the condemned.

Three freshly-painted scaffolds faced the condemned as, escorted by guards, they walked into the fiercely-lit chamber. One was for emergencies, but it was not used.

None of the condemned saw another hanging ,despite the speed of the executions. By exact timing ,the quivering body of one was dangling in the depths of the scaffold while another was brough to the platform and the hood placed over his head.

Goering took poison on an empty stomach. He missed the last meal served from midnight to 1 a.m. The menu was: canned pork, tomato and potato salad, canned cake and coffee.

CLOSED MEETING OF LABOR MEN BEING CONTINUED

Provincial Delegates Want to Know When Wage Control Would Be Lifted

Ottawa, Oct. 16 — (CP)—Discussion of Dominion proposals for new labor relations legislation continued today at closed meetings of a conference of Dominion and provincial labor ministers.

No decisions were reached, it was reported in a statement issued at the conclusion of the morning session. The conference is to continue this afternoon and may conclude tomorrow.

The Dominion's position was advanced yesterday at the opening of the conference by Labor Minister Mitchell. With the meetings being held behind closed doors and official statements framed in the most general terms there was no official indication of what the proposals were.

There was strong belief, however, that the Dominion favored restoring the industrial disputes Investigation Act which was replaced by the Wartime Labor Code. Yesterday's conference sessions were brief and the eight provincial delegations — all provinces are represented except Prince Edward Island — then met separately to discuss the Dominion's position as outlined by Mr. Mitchell.

While the provincial representatives were anxious to know when wage control — a Dominion regulation — is to end, it was understood they received little definite information yesterday. Mr. Mitchell has repeatedly said he is hopeful the Dominion will soon be able to withdraw from that field but it is generally thought that this step will not be taken until early next year.

Both wage control and the Federal Wartime Labor Code will automatically expire March 15, 1947, unless action is taken to extend them. The Federal Code, which applied primarily to war industries, was introduced under the Dominion's special wartime powers and infringes on a field which is normally provincial.

The Industrial Disputes Act outlined a procedure for handling disputes in industries considered national in scope, such as transportation, mining and communications. By bringing the I. D. I. A. up to date the Dominion could establish a model leaving it to the provinces to pass enabling legislation applying it to industries under their control if they saw fit.

THOUGHT MILLIONAIRE COULD AFFORD IT

Chicago, Oct. 16 — (AP) — Butcher James V. Fiduccia was in police court on a charge of giving a customer short weight on hard-to-get meat. "She was a millionaire, Judge, and I thought she could afford it," Fiduccia told Judge Samuel Heller. "Must be a lot of millionaires in your neighborhood," Judge Heller commented in fining Fiduccia $200 and costs and reminding him he had been convicted three times on short-weight charges since 1941.

Hitler's No. 1 Man Swallows Capsule Cyanide Potassium Just Before Execution Time

15 Nazi Chiefs Have Taken Way Of Suicide

Nuernberg, Oct. 16—Fifteen Nazi chiefs have suicided to escape punishment for their crimes.

Adolf Hitler, who led Germany into the Second Great War, is believed to have killed himself with a pistol as Berlin fell in May, 1945.

Joseph Goebbels, his propaganada chief, took potassium cyanide in the same debacle.

Heinrich Himmler, Gestapo head, crushed a cyanide vial in his teeth after British authorities captured him that same month.

Robert Ley, Nazi labor boss, hanged himself in a toilet in the Nuernberg jail in October, 1945.

Last night Goering, Hitler's No. 2 man, died in his death cell by the same means as Goebbels and Himmler.

Of at least 10 other leading Nazis who committed suicide, three—Field Marshal Von Greim, commander-in-chief of the Luftwaffe; Admiral Von Friedeburg, navy commander-in-chief, and Fehlis, chief of secret policy in Norway—all did so by taking cyanide.

Josef Terboven, Nazi commissioner for Norway, blew himself up in a bunker in his back garden to escape arrest after Gen. Wilhelm Rediess, his police chief, had shot himself.

Conrad Henlein, Nazi leader in Czechoslovakia, cut his wrists in an Allied prisoners' cage.

Others who are reported to have escaped Allied justice by taking their own lives include Frau Gertrud Sholtz-Klin, German women's leader, Franz Hofer, gauleiter of the Tyrol and Voralburg, and Dr. Jury, gauleiter of Lower Austria.

33-1 Shot Wins Cesarewitch Stake

Newmarket, England, Oct. 16—(Reuters) — Mgr. Lamiral, a 33-1 shot, won the Cesarewitch today to give French stables another victory in English racing events. The Cesarewitch is one of Britain's best-known autumn handicaps.

The French horse was ridden by Harry Wragg, who is to retire from the saddle at the end of the season.

The favorite, Wily, at 8-to-1, was not placed. Ford's Transport, 100-7, was second, and Geoffrey's Lady, 100-6, finished third. Mgr. Lamiral won by three-quarters of a length.

The other fall triumph by a French horse came Oct. 5 when Souverain won the George VI stakes, a special invitation race inaugurated this year.

CAMPBELLFORD MAN DIES

Campbellford, Oct. 16—(CP)—Clement Bayes, 81, one of Campbellford's best known citizens died yesterday following a heart attack. He was a widower and is survived by one son Ernest and one daughter Mrs. Ernest Haig.

Bodies Whisked Away to Be Buried in Unknown Graves

By THOMAS A. REEDY

Nuernberg, Oct. 16 —(AP)— Herman Goering — flamboyant to the end — cheated the hangman with a capsule of cyanide last night but 10 other ringleaders of the punctured Nazi Reich died at the end of a rope in the dark hours before dawn today in payment for their crimes against the world.

Goering, No. 2 man of a Nazi regime intended by Adolf Hitler to last 1,000 years, twitched out his life in a prison cell only a few hours before his condemned henchmen plunged through the banging traps of two gallows in a grimy building 35 yards away.

By his manner of dying, Goering not only took the last spotlight away from his colleagues but created a breath-taking mystery which had army intelligence officers laboring in an effort to determine how he got, concealed and took the poison.

The 10 who died on the gallows — as directed by the International Military Tribunal which convicted them two weeks ago of war crimes, crimes against the peace and crimes against humanity—went to their deaths without collapsing and making "God save Germany" final declarations.

Joachim Von Ribbentrop, Hitler's foreign minister, who replaced Goering as the first man to climb the 13 steps to doom, dropped through the trap at 1:14 a.m. (7:14 p.m. Tuesday, E.S.T.) One hour and 43 minutes later, when Arthur Seyss-Inquart, Nazi gauleiter of The Netherlands, was pronounced dead, it was all over.

Those who died in between, with Master Sgt. John C. Wood of the United States Army — who has presided at 233 executions—springing the trap in some cases were: Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, Ernst Kaltenbrunner, head of the Nazi Security Police; Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi party philosopher; Hans Frank, Governor General of Poland; Kilhelm Frick, "protector" of Bohemia and Moravia; Julius Streicher, the Jew baiter; Fritz Sauckel, the slave labor boss; and Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl.

Three-Man Board Named

Early today it was announced that a three-man board had been appointed to investigate Goering's suicide for the Allied Control Council.

Col. Richard McConnell, Public Relations officer, announced that a "disinterested" officer from the United States army was named chairmon of the board.

Col. McConnell said the identity of the three had not been divulged and added that at this time, "no arrests have been made and none are presently contemplated."

Asked if this included Emmy Goering, who visited her husband last week, Col. McConnell simply repeated his statement.

Correspondents who witnessed the executions said afterwards they did not see any coffins but could hear them being carried out. Several large vans dashed out of the prison yard shortly before daylight, a guard reported, and drove toward Furth, a suburb north of Nuernberg where the United States army has two large airfields

United States army, prison commandant, emerged with the first news to the world that Goering had taken his own life

Social Democrats Now in Lead as Votes Are Counted

Herford, Germany, Oct. 16 — (Reuters)— The Moderate Left-Wing Social Democrats today passed the Moderate Conservative Christian Democrats as the counting of votes in the Kreis (county) elections in the British zone of Germany neared an end.

The Social Democrats were in the lead with 10,986,807 votes to 10,196,262 but the Christian Democrats still held a substantial though reduced advantage in the number of seats won with 3,273 to 2,790.

The Communists have polled 2,299,563 votes but have obtained only 136 seats of a total of more than 7,000.

Molotov Argues U.S. Has No Right To Do Business in Romania

(This is the second of a series of interpretative articles on the significant sections of proposed treaties drafted by the 21-power Paris peace conference.)

By ROBERT EUNSON

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP) — The United States has no right to do business in Romania because all Americans became rich during the war and motion pictures made in Hollywood are cheap.

Unreasonable as this may sound, this was the basis of a last-minute argument by Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov of Russia before the Paris peace conference adopted the treaty with Romania—paramount issues of which were Romania oil production and freedom of navigation of the Danube.

To support his statement, Mr. Molotov produced a copy of the world almanac to prove that Americans were interested in Romania for the sole purpose of making money. Figures from the almanac, he said, showed that the national income in the United States had increased from $96,000,000,000 in 1941 to $160,000,000,000 in 1944.

And then he threw in for good measure a statement that American motion pictures were "cheap" but "there are so many of them" that the people of the world have to look at them whether they are any good or not.

These instances are reported because they are typical of the tangents taken by debate occasionally at the Luxembourg palace. State Secretary Byrnes held his fire and did not reply to Mr. Molotov's argument, because he had already explained that his delegation's contention was that American business firms had every bit as much right to do business in Romania as Russian firms, such as the Sov Rom Oil Company, which now is exploiting the famous Ploesti oil field.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 16 — (CP) — Weather synopsis: Warm air overlies the eastern and southern states, most of Ontario and western Quebec. Maximum range from low 80s in the southern states to near 70 in Ontario. Much cooler air covers the northwestern states and all of Canada except southern Ontario with temperatures several degrees below normal. Clear skies prevail in the warm air except near the leading edge of the cool air where widely scattered showers are being reported. Temperatures today in southern Ontario are expected to climb to near 70 at most places with cloudiness and showers spreading eastward across the province during the day. A much cooler day is anticipated Thursday, with showers at first but clearing by evening.

ANGLERS PACKED UP FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Last night at midnight the curtain rang down on the fishing season in this part of Ontario. Bass and pickerel since October 1 when the muskie season ended has been fair, according to anglers.

The early season was not productive of many large hauls in the Bay of Quinte haunts due to the prevalence of shad, a favorite food of the bass and pickerel.

Lunge fishing was only fair in the bay although lakes in the northern section of the county yielded some fine specimens.

However, it is all over for another year and anglers can once more park their rods and tackle in attics and garages and dream of the big ones that won't get away next season.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH VERDICT OF JURY

A verdict of accidental death was returned Tuesday evening by a coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of James Donovan, Cannifton Road, who died in hospital Oct. 2nd, following injuries received when he fell off the wall near the Upper Bridge and dropped twenty feet to the river bed.

The inquest was conducted by Coroner Dr. G. S. Cronk with the Crown being represented by B. C. Donnan, Crown Attorney. Frank Weir acted as jury foreman.

MALE BLACK SPANIEL HELD IN CITY POUND

City dog catcher Thomas Thorn has in custody a male black spaniel with collar but no dog tag. The spaniel will be kept the usual time awaiting his owner and if not called for will be disposed of.

CORONER ADJOURNS INQUEST INDEFINITELY

The inquest looking into the death of Mrs. E. B. Murrell, Toronto, who was critically injured in an automobile accident near Trenton on September 7th., has been further adjourned owing to the inability of one of the witnesses to attend. Mrs. Murrell died in Belleville hospital several days following the accident.

At the time of the preliminary hearing proceedings were adjourned until October 15th. and with a principal witness still in hospital the inquest is now adjourned indefinitely.

Optimists Sponsor Opti-Mrs. Club

Something new has been added. At a dinner meeting held at the New Queen's Hotel Tuesday evening the Opti-Mrs. Club of Belleville was formed. President Robt. Kidd on behalf of the Optimist Club outlined the by-laws of the organization and presented a few of the many tasks in which the assistance of the Opti-Mrs. will be of value. This group consists of the wives and unmarried sisters of Optimists of this city. It is hoped that this club will work along with the Optimists in their undertakings.

The officers elected are as follows: President, Mrs. John Sharland; Vice President, Mrs. Murray Mitchell; Secretary, Miss Mary Kidd; Treasurer, Mrs. Ray Reid; Membership, Mrs. Roy Robinson; Publicity, Miss Doris Redner; Ways-Means, Mrs. Paul Bradley.

A number of the ladies at this meeting volunteered to assist at the tag day for the Sea Cadets being held this coming Saturday and to begin immediately to prepare layettes and clothing for families in need of assistance, and to supply the families that they are able to with Christmas cheer.

SCHOOL GIRL RECOVERS FROM BRANDING

Fort Scott, Kas., Oct. 16—(AP)—Ruth Smock, 16, today was recovering from shock from a branding on the thighs by a chloroform-using assailant who also cut her with a knife on the legs, neck and face. The high school girl told police that a man entered her apartment Monday night, seized her and held a bottle of chloroform under her nose until she lost consciousness. Police said the branding was done with a flat iron. A physician said the girl had not been raped.

Citizens Entitled to Vote Urged to See Their Names Appear on City Voters' List

The way of the assessor is hard. That under-rated city official has a job of work every year that is anything but a rose-strewn pathway and inevitably brings down a storm of complaint thorns from irate citizens whose names do not appear on the city voters' lists.

For the voters' lists, as should be known, but generally isn't to the man on the street, is compiled from city assessment rolls.

It is the duty of every eligible citizen to see that his or her name is placed on the voters' lists.

To be an eligible voter a resident must be assessed as a property owner or a tennant with an assessment no less than $400.

At the present time the list is posted in the office of City Clerk Wilfred Holmes in the City Hall and is available to all residents of the city.

All complaints from residents regarding the list, omission of names etc., should be registered with the city clerk before October 31. And matters would be greatly facilitated if complaints were made and adjustments made immediately.

Too many people are prone to blame city officials for the omission of their names from the lists. Actually the onus rests on the voters themselves, and in the greater majority of cases it is the residents' own fault through neglecting to notify city officials of change of address.

In many instances families move from one part of the city to another after the assessment has been made. Naturally the family moving into a house or apartment after the assessor has called will not be placed on the lists, through no fault of the official. And if the family fails to notify officials of the change of address, names of voting members of the family will be omitted from the voters' lists.

Then follow complaints that are actually no fault of the assessor or other city officials.

It is important that all voters' names be placed on the list, and city officials today urged all residents to check the list in the City Hall and see that their names are thereon. And please, they say, do it immediately.

An advertisement to this effect was published in this newspaper last week, so now the onus rests entirely on the shoulders of the voting population.

It is a community duty of all voting residents to cast their ballots in municipal elections, and it is just as important a duty for all to see that their names are placed on the official voters' lists. Do it now.

Possibility Ice Plant Will Be Installed in Hume Arena Before End of Winter Season

Despite the current shortage of pipe which has made it impossible for the Linde Company to fulfill their contract, there may still be an ice plant in the Hume Memorial Arena before the coming skating season is completed.

Just this possibility was promised to members of the local city council Tuesday night by a representative of the Canadian Ice Machine Company who stated they could commence installing pipe by the first of December and then install refrigeration equipment in time for operation next March and April.

At the meeting council passed a recommendation asking the Linde Company to cancel the Belleville contract and return the city's deposit. It is expected that a contract with the Canadian Ice Machine Company will be signed within the next few days, the contract price to be slightly in excess of $25,000.

Appear Before Council

Representatives of the Linde Company appeared at council and frankly admitted that their firm could not secure sufficient pipe to install the refrigeration plant in the Belleville arena this year according to the terms of their contract. When the contract had been signed the company had already ordered the pipe and under ordinary conditions the plant would have been installed on schedule. Following the steel strike the firm's suppliers could not deliver the pipe, therefore the Linde Company could not install the refrigeration plant.

The Linde representative verbally agreed, however, to cancel the Belleville contract if the rink committee could from some other source have a rink installed this winter.

Considerable discussion was head on the matter before the Linde representative agreed to cancellation of the contract to install refrigeration in the local rink, this discussion being led off by Mayor Frank S. Follwell.

Confirmed by Alderman

"The facts of the case are that council understood your firm had sufficient pipe in stock when the Belleville contract was signed," stated the mayor.

This was confirmed by Alderman Chamberlain who stated the Linde representative had stated, "We have the pipe for three rinks and will guarantee your rink is installed this year." On question from Alderman Woodley the Linde representative admitted his firm had been accepting pipe on something like a quota basis.

Alderman Thompson claimed he had been opposed to the Linde machine because the plant of the competitor had been offered at several thousand dollars cheaper. "But I changed my mind when the Linde firm promised the rink this year. Under the circumstances the Linde people should be justified in cancelling their contract."

Alderman Allin: "The Linde people will cancel their contract if their competitor can install the plant this year, and under those conditions I will vote for the competitor's plant."

"Yes, that is the meaning I intended to imply" agreed the Linde representative.

Axe Over Our Head

Alderman Tice wanted to know what the difference was in dollars and cents between the two plants, but Alderman Armstrong claimed it did not boil down to just that.

"The fact is," he stated, "that the Linde firm got the contract when we were assured the plant would be installed this year. If we had given the competitor the same consideration we possibly would have a rink by now."

"We had an axe held over our head when we signed the contract and we still have an axe held over our head," interjected Alderman Chamberlain.

"That is not fair," returned the Linde representative. "But I will tell you this that prices have gone up, but the terms of our contract still stand, even if the rink is not installed until next year. Contracts which we signed before yours have still not been filled, so we did not use your pipe for other installations."

At this point Mayor Follwell asked that the Linde firm give a written confirmation of the verbal agreement to cancel the contract.

The representative of the Canadian Ice Machine Company admitted that prices had gone up slightly from the terms of their contract offered last spring. The increase was something like $1,600, he said. The contract would cover everything pertaining to the installation but the putting in of sand.

Visited Barrie Rink

Alderman Allin told of visiting Barrie where their arena floor had been covered with a terrazzo composition which permitted the arena to be used for other activities. "We should put in a floor so we could use the rink for anything," asserted Mr. Allin. "When we are doing the job we may as well do it right."

Following discussion it was agreed that the Canadian Ice Machine Company representative would confirm his contract price this week when it is expected the city will enter into a contract for the installation of refrigeration equipment.

Council to Seek Board's Approval To Buy Property

Approval of the Department of Municipal Affairs will be sought by city council for the right to purchase property from the Ponton Estate which is now being used as a landing field by the Belleville Flying Club.

At council Tuesday evening members rescinded a former motion which recommended an offer of $6,000 be made for the property and last night passed a second recommendation authorizing that an offer of $100 an acre be made for the property. Approval of the department will be necessary before the offer is made.

"The purchase of this property is a definite step in the right direction," stated Mayor Follwell when speaking to the recommendation. "A municipally owned airport would be a selling point for the city from the standpoint of tourists."

In view of the fatal accident which occurred recently when a Belleville resident fell off the wall at the Upper Bridge, council passed a recommendation asking that measures be taken to prevent persons from sitting on the river wall at this point and also that some means be taken to prevent children from climbing onto the archways of the two river bridges.

Approve Planning Area.

Council approval for a planning area to be set up embracing considerable property in Sidney and Thurlow townships was seen at the meeting when it was recommended that application for a planning area be submitted to the minister of planning and development. The proposed planning area would take in property west of the city to Sidney Crossing, north to the fifth concession and east to the Point Anne lane.

Yeas and nays were asked on the recommendation with Mayor Follwell and Aldermen Chamberlain, Clarke, Follwell, Allin, Hyde, McDougall, Tice and Woodley voting in favor, and Aldermen Thompson and Wilbur voting against the recommendation.

Against Garbage Dumping

Mrs. W. N. Ponton attended the council meeting and although indicating she was only a spectator, spoke briefly on the proposal to dump garbage in the marsh at Zwick's Island. "I had been assured that only clean garbage was to be used and that the area filled was to be used as a park," she said. "Now I find that the intention is to use the area for industry. Personally I do not relish the idea of drinking treated garbage seepage," she said.

Mr. Thomas Wrightmeyer was definitely opposed to seeing raw garbage dumped in the marsh and indicated that property needed by the city and owned by him, would not be available if this was the case.

Changing of the municipal election date to the second Monday in December as approved by the department came up for discussion when the necessary by-law was about to be passed.

Alderman Disapproves

Alderman Follwell declared that the proposed date was ridiculous and also claimed the time for nomination meetings should be changed to the evening when taxpayers could attend. Mayor Follwell felt elections should be held in the Summer when people would be more inclined to get out and vote.

Alderman Wilbur introduced a motion authorizing the expenditure of $700 for repairs to the city fire pumper which he stated was out of commission and had to be repaired immediately. The pumper will be repaired at Woodstock.

Mayor Approves Immunization Week Observance

Mayor Frank Follwell today placed his official seal of approval on Immunization Week, now being held in the city.

"A healthy city is a progressive one," stated the Chief Magistrate, urging all residents of the community to take advantage of the medical aids available for the prevention of disease.

"We in Belleville have been fortunate in that we have suffered no serious epidemic of diseases in many years, and we should take all precautions to guard against any inroads which can easily occur here as in other places," he said.

He strongly urged all residents to consider the advice offered by Immunization Campaign officials and thus assist in keeping Belleville in a clean healthy condition.

Board of Health Opposes Dumping of Garbage to Fill Marsh Near Zwick's Island

The local Board of Health under the chairmanship of Dr. Jack Marshall will be opposed to the council proposal of dumping raw garbage as fill into the marsh to the east of Zwick's Island, it was learned at council meeting Tuesday evening when members of the board were guests at council by invitation of the Mayor.

Asked by Mayor Follwell to open discussion Dr. Marshall indicated the only matters which the board had to discuss with council were recommendations which had been made by the board and on which council had taken no action.

The speaker specifically referred to the request for more cooperation from council in the matter of providing local restaurants with better garbage collection. Twice per week as under the present schedule was not enough and collections of at least three or four times per week were a "must." Restaurant owners would be willing to pay for extra collections, it was intimated.

Want Incinerator.

The Board of Health chairman also asked that the board request for an incinerator be further considered by council. So far the matter had been only "considered" stated the speaker.

Reference was made to the recently inaugurated health unit in Prince Edward County which was declared to be doing a "fine job." In Hastings a like unit had been turned down by county council pending further discussion. In this respect Prince Edward County was declared to be "away ahead." Dr. Marshall paid tribute to the manner in which the garbage dump had been kept this year and recommended that the dump be continued eastward from its present site instead of being changed to the marsh near Zwick's Island.

Should Consult Board.

"In any event the Board of Health should be consulted as to the site of the next garbage dump," it was stated.

Clare B. Morgan, member of the board, asked that the council "get down to brass tacks" while J. V. Doyle asked if the approval of the Health Department had been granted as to the site of the proposed dump at Zwick's Island.

In reply Alderman Armstrong stated that the department had given approval providing a seepage wall was constructed from the island to the mainland.

A letter from Dr. G. S. Cronk, medical health officer, upheld the objection of the Board of Health as to the proposed change in the site of the garbage dump. The medical health officer claimed that seepage from the raw garbage would be detrimental to health of the citizens in the area while smoke and rats would be a further constant source of annoyance.

Only Answer Incinerator.

"These are the same objections which we as a board entertain, only stronger," stated Dr. Marshall. "The only answer is an incinerator, or a site for a dump which would be less obnoxious."

"We do not feel the proposed site is favorable. It may be safe, but is it wise to ride the fence right up to the last ditch?" The cost of the seepage wall would be a nice thing to spend toward the first unit of an incinerator."

Objection of the Board of Health to the Zwick's Island project drew a sharp answer from Alderman Harold Armstrong who said he did not know why the board were interesting themselves now when they were not interested in the dump at its present location.

Always Some Objections

"It seems that whenever council seeks to do something for the benefit of this city there is always someone who objects," stated the alderman. "There should be no more objection to filling the marsh at Zwick's Island with garbage than there is against the present site of the dump. The proposed seepage wall will prevent any contamination of the city water supply and when the area is filled 33 acres will be available for industry."

At this point Mr. Doyle reminded that the Board of Health had been invited to council to give their opinion on matters and they were not there for any ulterior motive.

Alderman Thompson felt that if efforts of some years ago had been fulfilled when it was recommended that the area under discussion be filled, the city would now have something to offer potential industry. He claimed that garbage made good fill and also cheap fill.

Would Need New Truck

In reply to Dr. Marshall regarding the garbage collection, Alderman Charles Hyde pointed out that collection services could not be stepped up without the purchase of an additional truck. There was still a proposition at the waterfront where garbage could be used as fill following completion of a retaining wall now planned by the Federal government.

Alderman Harvey was surprised at the objections being raised by the Board against the proposed dumping of garbage at Zwick's Island. He claimed that the Board should interest themselves in Foster Ward and rectify conditions there.

Alderman Tice did not favor dumping of raw garbage anywhere in the city and this suggestion was supported by Alderman Clarke, who claimed that it made no difference where raw garbage is dumped, because "in time it ferments and then it stinks to high heaven. The first step is an incinerator," he stated.

Tribute Paid Board

At this point discussion turned to sewage disposal with Alderman Woodley maintaining that in view of the fact that erection of a sewage disposal plant had been defeated by the ratepayers, it would be wise for the city to wait for a mandatory order from the health department before further action was taken.

Alderman Thompson stated that in putting the matter of the sewage disposal plant to the ratepayers, the city had acted on the recommendation of engineers who had drawn the plans for the plant. "Those who have to pay should always be considered," he said.

Alderman McDougall stated he had always been interested in sewage disposal but the only thing to do had been to submit the proposal to the ratepayers. "They turned it down, and here we are."

Mayor Follwell paid tribute to members of the local board of health stating that Belleville held a favorable position in regard to matters of health. "And this is due to a great extent to the efforts of the board of health," he assured.

Picton

Committee Motion Disapproving Action of Deputy-Reeve Pearsoll Endorsed by the Town Council

Picton, Oct. 16—At a special meeting of town council last night, circumstances relating to the heated discussion concerning police matters at the regular session were aired and settled.

Presented by Councillor Robert Cockburn, chairman, the following report of the Police Committee was endorsed by council:

"That this Police Committee go on record as condemning the action of a member of the council, namely Deputy Reeve Ross Pearsoll, for interfering with a police constable in the discharge of his duties, as reported by Constable George Pitt, and do uphold the police force in the discharge of their duties without fear or favor."

Constable Gives Evidence

According to Constable Pitt's evidence, he was called to a local cafe, by the manageress, with a request to restrain three patrons who were causing a disturbance. He charged that the Deputy Reeve had said: "If you run him (my brother) in, I will see you're well looked after," and also declared the Deputy Reeve had got between him and one of the patrons and shoved. He stated he had taken Pearsoll's car keys for his own good and for the protection of the public.

Deputy Reeve Pearsoll, unable to be present wrote a letter in which he made five charges against Constable Pitt. These were: "For loitering in the rear of a place of business not known as a public place, for indefinite periods, for interfering in a place of business not known as a public place without permission of the owner or manager (Pitt stated he had been called by the manager); "for speaking to a citizen in an improper manner; for asking a citizen for the keys of his motor vehicle when he was going in the opposite direction of his vehicle; for losing his temper when a citizen says a word in his own defence."

Constable Pitt commented on each point in turn.

Regrets Manner

Acting Mayor G. N. McKibbon regretted the matter had to be discussed and handled by council. "In a sense we have set ourselves up as a court, and to make a judgment," he said. It would have been better if this matter had developed in a way to go through the regular channels of the Magistrate's Court, he thought.

Earlier, when Councillor Cockburn presented the report to council and asked its endorsal, there was a heated discussion, and council adjourned to a private room, where more discussion failed to clear up the matter and the special meeting was ordered.

NONE BROKE DOWN

Only Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi party philosopher, could find no word except a murmured "nein" to leave to history.

Ribbentrop said firmly: "God protect Germany. My last wish is that German unity should remain and that an understanding between east and west will come about and peace for the world."

Jew-baiter Julius Streicher shouted: "Heil Hitler" and "the Bolsheviks will hang you all next."

Died as Officers

Keitel and Jodl died as Prussian officers to the last, Keitel shouting "I follow my sons. All for Germany."

Jodl cried "I salute my Germany."

Frank, the "Butcher of Poland," seemed to die happy in his new Roman Catholic faith.

The men were sent to their death in an impersonal and humane way. They were held steady by two guards all the time, their hands were tied behind their backs with bootlaces and their feet strapped with an American army webbed belt.

The seconds of absolute silence after the men dropped through the trap were abruptly broken each time by the shuffling of feet as we moved in relaxed tension.

The soldiers and hangmen got busy preparing for the next execution. Some of the spectators talked in low tones. Others lit cigarets and hastily extinguished them when the next man to die was heralded by two knocks on the creaky unpainted door of the gymnasium.

When the last man, Seyss-Inquart, had died, Col. Burton C. Andrus, the American Army Governor of the prison, told us—the eight reporters—"okay, you can go back now."

Shortage of Everything in Britain But All Are Willing to Share

By R. J. ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Southampton, Oct. 16 (CP Cable)—Covalescent Britain is a hard land with shortages of everything.

But a short-term visitor, noting the patience shown by Britons in putting up with difficult living conditions, leaves with a memory of little things.

Scottish soldiers in a dinerless train who shared with me the precious chocolate which they were taking home to their families . . .

A Glasgow worker bound for Southampton who insisted on sharing his few grapes and a pear that cost him six pence (12 cents).

An Englishman—in a country where cigarets are hard to come by—who distributed his freely when he learned I was a Canadian . . .

The "Crypt" in Dover where the proprietor had promised the previous owner on the latter's death-bed never to charge more than one shilling, 10 pence (about 38 cents) for a meal.

He never did and it was the best meal—a steak and kidney pie—I encountered. The meal was a sharp contrast to depressing Glasgow where hare soup, too strong to eat and rabbit too tough to cut cost seven shillings ($1.40).

Westens' shoe shop which requires would-be purchasers to make appointments . . .

An Oxford Street (London) queue termed a record low by a veteran queuer who automatically joined it. It was for corsets . . .

The "pig"—old-fashioned stone hot water bottle—accepted with alacrity in frigid Aberdeen . . .

The lack of table napkins . . .

The hotel waiters who beat the poor laundry service and kept immaculate in white tie and tails by wearing "dickeys" made of cardboard . . .

The ultra expensive restaurant where the dinner was controlled at five shillings but cocktails were —ouch—$3 each . . .

In conclusion, as the visitor prepares to leave behind the security of his one shilling, fourpence weekly meat allotment, he reflects upon the fate awaiting him in the United States—where by all accounts reach here prior to President Truman's meat price decontrol announcement, there is no meat at all, eggs have vanished and they are preparing to carve up horses . . .

Royal Canadian Navy Looking For 3,000 Young Canadians

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 16 (CP) — The Royal Canadian navy, emerging from its war and post-war duties as the biggest and best sea force in Canada's naval history, is looking for 3,000 young Canadians.

Offering better pay, better opportunities and better accommodation than ever before, the navy is launching a fall recruiting campaign aimed at bringing its permanent force strength up to 10,000 officers and men.

There also will be a drive for some 16,000 recruits to boost the strength of the part-time navy—the Reserve—up to the authorized 18,000 peak. These men will train evenings on modern equipment in the 19 naval divisions across Canada and spend two weeks afloat during the summer.

The army has recruited 12,000 to 13,000 of its authorized peacetime force of 25,000 while the R.C.A.F., with a goal of 16,100 has accepted more than 9,100.

The naval recruits will man the more than 50 ships—aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, frigates and escort vessels—which make up the peacetime navy, which looms as a formidable fighting force when compared with the 13 vessels ready for active service in September, 1939.

The navy now includes two aircraft carriers, one of which already is in service with the second building, two cruisers, a dozen destroyers, 18 frigates, 12 algerine escort ships and scores of auxiliary vessels.

To date, enlistments in the Reserve total 1,800 against the 18,000 men required but this is mainly due to the fact recruiting has been concentrated on the full-time force, which now includes some 7,000 officers and ratings.

Looking Ahead in Ottawa

Application for Higher Freight Rates Likely to Result in Long Argument

(By the Ottawa Staff of The Canadian Press)

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP) — Application of Canadian railways for a 30 per cent increase in freight rates holds promise of resulting in one of the longest and most involved arguments in Canadian records. The applications will be dealt with primarily by the Board of Transport Commissioners but the Prices Board is also an interested party as it has frozen the existing rates.

No sooner had the application been announced than groups across Canada — and particularly in the far east and far west—made their opposition known. While formal hearings are not likely to get under way before early in the new year the lapse of time will be used to full advantage by various bodies.

The 40 geological survey parties have completed their summer program and covered approximately 12,000 square miles. The geologists who headed the parties will prepare the maps based on these surveys during the Winter in readiness for prospectors next spring.

The geologists provide the information as to rock formation and the prospectors thereby are guided to the locations most likely to produce minerals. Chief Geologist G. Hanson stated that only after the areas have been prospected will there be any idea of the mineral wealth of the territories covered.

Fourteen parties worked on the pre-Cambrian shield, four in Quebec, two in Manitoba, one in Saskatchewan and the remainder in the Northwest Territories.

The crews under each geologist are made up largely of college students and the field work has to be completed in time for them to return to school. Some parties covered as much as 400 square miles and others, working in promising rock formations only survey ten square miles, examining every rock.

London Letter

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct .16 (CP)—London's river folk are a motley crew but experts who watch them passing up and down the stream can sum them up quickly

"You can always tell people's character by their boats," said a squat elderly man, a veteran mariner with trim grey beard wielding a paint brush over his 20-foot motor launch anchored off a small island in the Thames. "Some flashy, some neat, some dingy and neglected, some ridiculous."

He looked long and thoughtfully at my curious cabin cruiser with outboard motor and observed sagely: "I should think there's a bit of the clown in you."

We were only two of the thousands of busy London workers who make a weekend pastime of boating; who would rather have a sailing yacht, a motor launch or even a humble rowboat than an automobile, a weekly theatre ticket or a crock of whisky on Saturday nights. Many go without these things in order to keep up river craft.

But ask any boater what he likes most about this pastime and he will tell you it is joy of proprietorship plus the adventure of navigation and the ready escape from traffic and crowds. Upstream a few miles are numerous small islands used as moorings and the few square feet of land rented to each boater is in effect his own.

Every weekend you find boaters camping pleasantly on these islands, the music of their radios and gramophones, with now and then the melody of a guitar or a fiddle, drifting faintly across the tranquil waters.

Running a boat on the Thames is comparatively economical. The licence, paid to the Thames conservatory board, is usually £3 ($12) annually while moorings are rented from £5 ($20) for the season—considerably less than the average motorist pays for garaging a car.

Christian Science Society Holds Special Service

A Thanksgiving Day service was held by the Christian Science Society of Belleville in the I.O.O.F. Hall at 11 a.m. o'clock on the morning of Thanksgiving Day.

After the Scriptural selections the congregation united in silent prayer which was followed by the audible repetition of the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy.

The lesson-sermon for Thanksgiving Day given in the Christian Science Quarterly and read in all Christian Science churches in Canada and many other parts of the world followed the second hymn. The subject of this lesson-sermon was "Thanksgiving" and had for the Golden Text: "Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful." (Colossians 3:15).

Among the Scriptural verses was included: "Make a joyful noise unto the Lord, all ye lands. Enter into His gates with thanksgiving, and into His courts with praise: be thankful unto Him, and bless His name." (Psalms 100:1,4).

And among the citations from Science and Health was: "How empty are our conceptions of Deity! We admit theoretically that God is good, omnipotent, omnipresent, infinite, and then we try to give information to this infinite mind. We plead for unmerited pardon and for a liberal outpouring of benefactions. Are we really grateful for the good already received? Then we shall avail ourselves of the blessings we have, and thus be fitted to receive more. Gratitude is much more than a verbal expression of thanks. Action expresses more gratitude than speech."

Testimonies appropriate to the occasion were then given by Christian Scientists in the congregation. This period was completely filled by expressions of gratitude for healings and other help received during the past year.

Privately Owned Bank Of Tokyo Authorized

Tokyo, Oct. 16 (AP)— Gen. MacArthur has authorized establishment of a privately owned Bank of Tokyo to replace the Yokohama Specie Bank, which is being liquidated, it was made known Monday. He excluded both the Japanese government and the Imperial family from participation in ownership of the new bank.

"I thought I was WELL-INSULATED till polythene came along!"

Well may the thick-skinned rhinoceros grieve, for chemistry has produced an insulating material that puts even his tough hide to shame . . . It is called polythene—a new plastic that stands up to heat and cold and is unaffected by any known chemicals at ordinary temperature. Its unusual insulating qualities make it an indispensable factor in the vast, new field of radar and television while it gets back to earth again in the form of simple, resilient, waterproof refrigerator bowl covers that seem to last forever . . . polythene, in its scope of application, is another outstanding example of what Chemistry is contributing to our daily comfort and welfare.

General Stillwell

One of the great military leaders of the Second World War has passed, General Stillwell of the United States Army, who, according to the New York Times, was "one of the few ranking officers in the war to turn overwhelming defeat into resounding victory. Like MacArthur, he took what he sourly confessed was 'a hell of a beating' but came back to crush the enemy on the same battlefield from which he had once been driven." He is called a soldier's soldier. Characteristic was his remark on the Burma campaign, "I think we ought to find out what caused it, and then go back and retake it." The Ledo Road is now called the Stillwell Road.

His service to China will be remembered. He spoke Chinese fluently and is said to have known most of the dialects. Organization was the leading point in the makeup of the man and he took his place with the men and shared their privations and scorned the trappings and privileges of rank. His language was a part of himself.

His death came, it is believed, as a direct result of the heavy demands of the campaign in Burma..

What men like Stillwell and his men and the troops of all the United Nations went through in the late war is deserving of the eternal gratitude and praise of the peoples of democracy.

Toys From Canada

Canadians will be glad to learn and British children and their parents will be delighted to know that the first shipment of Canadian-made toys has arrived in Britain and will be on sale in the shops in the Motherland for the coming Christmas. Canada's Weekly, London, says that they are of all plastic construction. Among them are a helicopter with removable motors, toy wrist watches, dolls, tea sets and baby rattles. The Weekly says "This is believed to be the first importation of Empire toys authorized by the Board of Trade and is made under the recent British-Canadian agreement covering token imports."

When Oldfield Raced

When Barney Oldfield died the other day, there were some people in this part of Ontario who recalled his racing exhibition here a good many years ago when the very name of automobile and racing set the people awonder for the auto was in the days of its very great youth and the daredevil racer that he was could with the racer cars of those days, make no such run as has long since been achieved by champions of the track and by moderns in passenger cars today by breaking the highway speed limit of fifty-miles an hour. His speed of a mile a minute was sensational in his day but not according to present standards. People today recall that a few years ago John Cobb raced at 369.7 miles an hour at Bonneville Flats, Utah. more than six times the Barney Oldfield speed. But Oldfield had no such cars as modern cars and when he raced on the track of the old fair ground at Belleville he had no such track as that at Bonneville.

Today the speed that is legalized on highways on roads in the country is fifty miles an hour, quite close to the Oldfield record. But modern car drivers are not Oldfields.

Even Oldfield who knew much about cars and had no doubt some conception of the future of the automobile could hardly have dreamed that he would live to see the great cavalcade of motors streaking across the landscape in the year 1946. But he lived to see it. So the permanency of limits of speed and comfort of travel can hardly be forecast. The world has entered the atomic age and may be using atomic energy for motoring and other civil uses or jet propulsion, which has already been suggested. How fast cars will go remains to be shown by the future.

The mdoern automobile surely has gone beyond the reach of the imagination in comfort and speed of those who were admiring the cars of thirty years ago. Since Oldfield raced here at a time when there were a few cars, the time has come when a great proportion of the people have their own cars and have had for years. That the future of this means of travel is one of unpredictable greatness anyone would admit today. People will see wonders in this means of transportation that Barney Oldfield at the close of his life could not forecast. For the car marches on. It has over

Claims "Perfect Stocking"

A United Kingdom firm claims to have produced the perfect stocking: fully fashioned, silk, and completely ladderless. Miss Caroline Haslett, chairman of the Government Hosiery Working Party which recently published its report, describes these stockings as "very, very good." She says, "I could not tell the difference between them and pure silk fully fashioned stockings made in the ordinary way. I satisfied myself that they were really ladder proof and It think it is a tremendous development in the hosiery industry." Production at present is only in the experimental stage and it connot be stated when the stockings are likely to be on the market. The firm took out a patent for them in 1939 but the war held up research and production.

Revolution in Barns

There are indications that the familiar big red barns on America's farms have already passed the heyday of their usefulness. The Division of Farm Buildings of the United States Department of Agriculture is increasing the number of its research projects in co-operation with the experiment stations in various States.

Aluminum, steel and fireproofed plywood and other wood products will soon be available. Field baling of hay has increased greatly and requires only a small fraction of the space for storage; more and more farmers are putting up green grass as silage instead of curing it for hay. Glass-lined silos are being tested. Insulation will be used to increase protection of dairy and poultry production in the cold months. Farmers are evincing keen interest in one-storey fireproof barns divided into sections. Some experts estimate that farm construction may total $2,000,000,000 a year for the next ten years. Farmers have a backlog of savings and are interested in new buildings. When production catches up with demand in the not distant future, efficiency will be the keynote to profits. It looks as if the old red barn will give way to modern engineering.

Magic in the Air

There appears to have been a good muster of magicians down at Hereford at what is described as the first gathering of the International Brotherhood of Magicians since the beginning of Hitler's war, remarks the Manchester Guardian. And some of the tricks that were performed by selected competitors sound particularly useful at the present time. To make bottles of wine "appear from nowhere" and "cigarettes and cigars materialize out of thin air" whereas ordinary unaccomplished citizens cannot even rely on coaxing them from "under the counter" gives a distinctly topical turn to white magic.

Photography of Sea Wrecks

In order to assist salvage operations Britain's Admiralty is experimenting with the underwater photography of wrecks. The object is to determine scientifically the practical application of this novel technique. Lack of light in muddy water, local tide conditions, and the depth of the wrecks are all limiting factors which will have to be carefully analyzed. Such researches, if successful, will save considerable time and labor in salvage undertakings.

Brought Into Chamber

After the 10 had been hanged, Goering's corpse was brought into the execution chamber for symbolical execution of the tribunal's sentence

Kingsbury Smith, representing the combined American press and one of only eight correspondents permitted to enter the brightly lighted gymnasium in the jail yard where the gallows stood, said Seyss-Inquart's body still was dangling from the noose when officers ordered the blanket covering Goering's body removed.

The former Reichsmarshal and Luftwaffe commander lay on a stretcher attired in black jajamas and a blue shirt open to expose his chest. Smith said his face bore an agonized expression and that his hair was rumpled. Among the witnesses was Dr. Wilhelm Hoegner, Minister President of Bavaria.

When the last body had been cut down, Col. B C Andrus of the

Took Cyanide Poison

"Goering was not hanged," Col. Andrus announced. "He committed suicide at 10:45 p.m: (4:45 p.m. E.S.T. Tuesday) last night by taking cyanide of potassium.

"He was discovered at once by the sentinel who watched and heard him make an odd noise and twitch. The sentinel called the doctor and chaplain who were in the corridor and who found him dying.

"There were pieces of glass in his mouth and an odor of cyanide of potassium on his breath.

"Goering's hands did not go beneath the blankets and were not observed to go to his mouth. An investigation now is going on to learn how he could conceal the poison when he was subject to dealy and rigorous searches, both of his clothes and his person. The cyanide was contained in a small cartridge case similar to those found before on other Nazis and like the one found on him a year ago last May at Mondorf prison. At that time it was hidden in a can of nescafe."

French correspondent Louis De Roche said in his account that an opened envelope was found on Goering's corpse. It contained three messages written in pencil, one of which was addressed to Col. Andrus.

Contained in Copper Tube

The poison Goering took was contained in a copper tube made of an old cartridge.

Goering never heard his death sentence read to him as did the others shortly before they died. Col. Andrus was on his way to Goering's cell when the last act of Goering's life was taking place inside the jail. Andrus continued about his grim task, however, completing the reading of the conviction and sentence to each man at 11:54 p.m.

A little while later the march to the gallows began.

In the gymnasium, where only last Saturday guards had played a basketball game, stood three scaffolds, only two of which were used. Arthur Gaeth, representing the combined American radio networks, said each scaffold had the customary 13 steps to the top and each rope the customary 13 coils.

Carried Out With Precision

The executions were carried out with machine-like precision. While one man hung from one gallow—his body concealed inside the structure of the scaffold —another man was brought in.

Every one of the 10 men approached death bravely once he entered the room and saw the grim appurtenances of the hangmen. Some qualled and approached hysteria before they entered. Sauckel refused to dress at first and screamed at the top of his voice when soldiers handcuffed him.

The only one to create a scene at the scaffold was Streicher who defiantly shouted his last "Heil Hitler" and then snarled at an American officer: "The Bolsheviks will hang you one day." He also was the only one to speak after the black hood concealed his face, murmuring: "Adele, my dear wife."

After his body dropped through the trap the correspondent-witnesses clearly heard a groan from the interior of the scaffold.

The only one of the 10 who made no last minute statement was Rosenberg. Asked if he desired to make any final declaration, Rosenberg uttered only the monosyllable: "No." Then he died.

Wishes For Peace

Ribbentrop, the man who engineered the Nazi-Russian pact which touched off the Second Great War, uttered his final words in distinct, unfaltering German.

"God save Germany," he said. "My last wish is that Germany realize its entity and that an understanding be reached between the east and the west. I wish peace to the world."

Keitel entered the chamber six minutes later and mounted the scaffold as though he were climbing a stand to review his troops. He peered over the crowd with iron-jawed Prussian hauteur. Called upon for his last words he said:

"I call on God Almighty to have mercy on the German people. More than 2,000,000 German soldiers went to their deaths for the Fatherland before me. I follow my sons." (He lost two sons in the war.)

Then he raised his voice and shouted: "All for Germany."

Allowed to Smoke

Then, with the bodies of Ribbentrop and Keitel dangling in death, an American Colonel directing the executions asked the American General representing the United States on the Allied Control Council's Commission if those present could smoke.

An affirmative answer brought cigarets into the hands of almost everyone of the 30-odd persons in the room, Smith reported. Officers and soldiers paced about nervously or spoke to each other in hushed voices as correspondents scribbled their hurried notes.

An American and a Russian doctor, carrying stethoscopes, disappeared beneath the one curtained side of the first scaffold and emerged very shortly after to speak to the American Colonel. The Colonel turned, snapped to attention, and informed the witnesses:

"The man (Ribbentrop) is dead."

The executioner, a sergeant, climbed up the gallows and cut the rope with a large, commando-type knife, as other soldiers lowered the body to a stretcher and quickly carried it behind a curtain at the rear of the room.

Executions Proceed Silently

"Cigarets out, please, gentlemen," said the Colonel, who then turned and called "okay." The executions proceeded steadily, inexorably.

Witnesses described the last moment of the other men as follows:

Kaltenbrunner, dueling scars on his cheeks shining blood red in the glaring light, declared: "I have loved my German people and my Fatherland with a warm heart. I have done my duty by the laws of my people and I am sorry my people were led this time by men who were not soldiers and that crimes were committed of which I had no knowledge." His last words were a German phrase meaning: "Germany, good luck."

Frank, who entered with a smile on his face, whispered his last words: "I am thankful for the kind treatment during my captivity and I ask God to accept me with mercy."

Attired in Jacket

Frick, incongruously attired in a gaudy sports jacket, stumbled on the last of the 13 steps up the gallows, but recovered. His final words were: "Long live eternal Germany."

Sauckel, who was reported by one correspondent to have shouted "I pay my respects to American soldiers and officers but not to American Jews" in his first fright before reaching the execution chamber, went to his death bravely, crying at the end: "May God protect Germany and my family."

Jodl, his face flushed and his eyes red, paid his final bill with the words: "I salute you, my Germany."

Seyss-Inquart, whose glasses were removed as the executioner slipped the noose over his head, said, in his quiet, scholarly way: "I hope that this execution is the last act of the tragedy of the Second World War and that a lesson will be learned so that peace and understanding will be realized among the nations. I believe in Germany."

All of the men were tied hand and foot as they made their last drop and each one was escorted to the gallows by a soldier at each elbow.

To Remain Secret

Where the bodies of the executed Germans were taken will remain a secret, apt. Samuel Binder of the security police detail declared emphatically.

They went to nameless graves somewhere, and it is a good guess part of the journey was by plane.

The trucks carrying the bodies were protected by two jeeps filled with military police and brandishing sub-machine guns. Also in the parade was a long black automobile and sitting in it was a Brigadier General.

The convoy left at breath-taking speed and doubled back and forth over Nuernberg until it headed for Furth.

Then the convoy turned toward Erlanger, where there is another United States army airfield. Military police threw up road blocks throughout the area and it was impossible to trail them further.

The trip apparently lasted two hours.

An officer included in the party was back in Nuernberg at 7:30 a.m.

FORENOON SLOWDOWN

Between 35 and 40, the forenoon of life, when you really should be fully grown up, matured, at your peak of development, is no time for a slowdown. And yet a great many adults go stale long before they reach middle age —they feel, look and to all practical purposes are ten years older than any one around forty should be.

Neither Ponce de Leon who sought the Fountain of Youth nor Matchnikoff who glorified sour milk (Bulgarian bacillus) nor Steinach who so shrewdly worked the newspapers for free advertising of the operation of vasectomy under the name of "rejuvenation"—really found the magic water, germ, or hormone. If perchance you still find it pleasant toying with the notion that some kind of cultured milk or some kind of juggling with the internal secretions or sex hormones retards the advance of age or prolongs youth, dream on, but as a health adviser with both feet on the ground I can only tell you that so far as I can learn there is no substantial foundation for your dreams.

Ol' Doc Brady, on the other hand—well, at this juncture if you please I'll take a walk over to the bowling green and play a game while you dear people get your wisecracks off your collective chest. Then, having wiped up the green and collected bets, I'll return to the platform and expound my theory, which, seeing I do not wear a toupee, you may accept or reject, as you wish, but remember, I concede it is only a theory.

People in the forenoon of life go stale, become prematuredly old from nutritional deficiency or malnutrition, in most instances, and in my opinion their condition is usually due to insufficient daily intake of iodine, calcium, phosphorus, vitamin D and vitamin B complex. Now if you are still on the callow side of forty and even mildly interested in staying there as long as you can, you should study "The Seven Keys to Vite" —for copy send twenty-five cents clean—no glue, no stickum, no pins, staples, gum etc. — and stamped self addressed envelope. If you are in the early afternoon, just send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing for the pamphlet "Young Folks and Old Folks."

There is not enough room left today to define vite—if the word is new to you. It is defined in detail in the pamphlet and booklet —and it is a nice thing to have whether you are in your 'teens in the forenoon, afternoon or evening.

Perhaps the most familiar complaint of forenoon folk is chronic or constant tired feeling or weariness, a feeling little relieved by rest or vacation, and likely to drift into depression of spirits and a bleak or melancholy frame of mind which is not at all like the individual's former cheerful disposition. Not to venture too far into the nosological morass, let's call it a day, and close with the suggestion that a little nip of iodine every day or two or three times a week makes a world of difference in many such instances and can do no harm in any instance.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Sex Hormones

Numerous requests for information or advice concerning sex hormones come in the mail nowadays.

The subject is outside of the province of a health column.

It is dangerous in my opinion, for any one to use sex hormones without the care of a physician.

Beans And Peanuts

Are beans and peanuts bad for one who has arthritis?

(Mrs. B. V.)

Answer—No.

Sex Education

Need material on sex education for boys from 13 to 16 years of age. (L. K.)

Answer—Write American Institute of Family Relations, 607 S. Hill St., Los Angeles, Calif., for list of pamphlets and books, dealing with all phases of the question for children, parents, teachers, young people, people about to marry, married people. The material the Institute supplies or recommends is the best I have seen, or what I have seen of it is.

Milk

Number of calories in a quart of milk. Am starting a milk diet. Have you a list of calories in common foods or anything of the kind. (Miss T. E. A.)

Answer—650 calories in a quart of milk. Write to your congressman for Agriculture Department's Bulletin 28 "American Food Materials"—it gives caloric value of most foods. My advice, for the sake of your health, good look and happiness, is, don't monkey with your diet unless you have your physician's advice and regular supervision.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who has been the youngest member of Congress?

William Charles Cole Claiborne, who represented Tennessee in the Federal House of Representatives from 1797 to 1801 has been the youngest man who ever sat as a member of either branch of Congress.

He served two terms in Congress before he had reached the age required by the Constitution, which provides that "no person shall be a Representative who shall not have attained to the age of 25."

Claiborne was born in Virginia November 23, 1775, and was just 22 when he took his seat in the House of Representatives, November 23, 1797, as the successor of Senator Andrew Jackson, who in the previous year had been elected the first Representative from the newly-admitted State of Tennessee.

There is no record that Claiborne's right to the seat was challenged or that his fellow members were aware that his service violated the Constitution. The House Journal recorded simply that the oath to support the Constitution was administered to the youthful Tennessee member by Speaker Jonathan Dayton, of New Jersey, in the City of Philadelphia. Later Claiborne was governor of Missippi Territory, the Territory of Orleans and the State of Louisiana.

John Young Brown, of Kentucky, who was born June 28, 1830, was elected to the House in 1858 for a term beginning March 4, 1859, but since he had not attained the constitutional age he did not actually take his seat until the beginning of the second session of the 36th Congress December 3, 1860, when he was 25 years, three months and five days of age.

Clarence J. McLeod, of Michigan, was born July 3, 1895, was elected November 2, 1920, when he was 25 years, five months and three days of age, to fill a vacancy in the House. He inserted in his biography in the Congressional Directory the statement that he was "the youngest member ever elected to the United States Congress," but later abandoned this claim.

In 1938 Lindley Beckworth, of Texas, was elected to Congress when he was only 24, but he had reached the age required by the Constitution before the Congress to which he was elected convened January 3, 1939.

Generally American voters have been more conservative than the framers of the Constitution in respect to the age of members of Congress. Comparatively few persons under 30 are elected to the House of Representatives.

WEDDINGS

MORTON—ACKERMAN

On Saturday afternoon, the chancel of Bridge Street United Church was made more than usually attractive for the marriage of Miss Helen Hockridge Ackerman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ackerman, of Belleville, to Mr. David Gwyn Morton, son of Mrs. D. G. Morton, and the late Mr. Morton, of Hamilton. Rev. D. C. Amos performed the ceremony at three o'clock, before a background of ferns, with tall torchers holding white tapers which shed a rosy glow upon the lower flower standards filled with white gladioli and "mums". On the altar tall candles in silver candelabra flanked a large bouquet of white gladioli.

Mr. Alec Gordon, organist of the church, played the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist Miss Eleanor McBroom, of Brockville, who sang "Where'er You Walk", during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride made a charming picture in a gown of blush satin in redingote style, with fitted bodice, long pointed sleeves and a back fullness in the skirt to form a train. The neckline, sleeves and overskirt were edged with pleated ruching, and from a small crown headdress of blush satin, embroidered with seed pearls and beads, fell a matching fingertip veil. She carried a cascade bouquet of mauve orchids, blush roses and bouvardia.

Mrs. J. E. Bateman, of Belleville, was the bride's only attendant, gowned in emerald green satin, made with a fitted bodice and full skirt draped to form a modified bustle, and a slight train. She wore matching mittens and a flowered headdress of gold sequins. Her bouquet was of bronze baby 'mums and yellow roses.

Mr. John T. Cloke, of Hamilton performed the duties of groomsman, and the ushers were Messrs. J. F. Robinson and G. G. Carscallen, of Hamilton, Mr. J. H. Ackerman of Toronto, and Mr. J. E. Bateman, of Belleville.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride, when Mrs. D. G. Morton received with Mrs. Ackerman. The bride's mother wore a floor-length gown of grey-blue crepe, trimmed with small pockets embroidered with multi-colored sequins, a fuchsia hat and gloves, and a corsage of matching roses. The groom's mother was gowned in grey French faille, with a small pink feathered hat, pink gloves and she wore a corsage of pink roses.

After the reception Mr. and Mrs. Morton left for a motor trip to the Laurentians. For travelling the bride donned a dress of grey wool crepe with long sleeves, fullness and peplum at the back, neckline and sleeves being edged with grosgrain ribbon. She wore a matching hat and grey accessories, with a princess-line top coat of grey wool and a corsage of mauve orchids.

Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Morton will reside in Hamilton.

BAKAY—DRUMMOND

Saturday afternoon at four o'clock, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was the scene of a very lovely Autumn wedding, when Margaret, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Drummond, Corbyville, became the bride of Mr. Stephen Eric Bakay, Marathon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicolas Bakay, Edmonton, Alta. The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. J. G. Hornsby the church being effectively decorated with baskets of gladioli and chrysanthemums. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was charming in her floor length wedding gown of ivory blush satin, the long fitted bodice, banded with satin cord, a yoke of net and the long tight sleeves coming to points below the wrists. Her French model headdress was a coronet of net embroidered with seed pearls, the circular veil being fingertip length. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The matron-of-honor, Mrs. William Mullen, Toronto, and Miss Marna Cathcart, cousin of the bride, as bridesmaid, were dressed identically in floor-length gowns of faconne crepe, Mrs. Mullen's being in turquoise and Miss Cathcart's in deep mauve. The fitted bodices had sweetheart necklines and the new three-quarter length bishop sleeves. They had coronets of ostrich tips with shoulder-length veils in shades matching their gowns. Both carried arm bouquets of bronze 'mums tied with yellow satin ribbon. The junior bridesmaid, Miss Margaret Plumpton, Corbyville, niece of the bride, was very attractive in a floor-length dress of yellow taffeta with net overskirt. She carried a nosegay of bronze 'mums and wore the same flowers in her hair.

Mrs. John Deacon at the organ, supplied the wedding music. Immediately before the ceremony, Mrs. Ralph Plumpton, Corbyville, sister of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Thine Alone", during the signing of the register.

The groom was ably assisted by Mr. Norman Jones, of Toronto, and the ushers were Mr. Ralph Plumpton, Corbyville, and Mr. Jack Renz, Toronto.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the home of the bride at Corbyville, the guests were received by the bride's mother, gowned in black crepe with fuchsia sequin trimming and a plumed hat of fuchsia shade. She wore a corsage of American Beauty roses. Mrs. Drummond was assisted by Mrs. James Cathcart, aunt of the bride, who wore deep purple crepe with black sequin trim and a hat trimmed with purple ostrich plumes.

The tables were very effective in pink, white and silver, the bride's table being centred with a beautiful three-tiered wedding cake.

During the supper, Mr. Robt. Farquharson very capably acted as master-of-ceremonies. The toast to the bride was proposed by Mr. Ralph Plumpton, brother-in-law of the bride; to the bridesmaids, by Mr. Norman Jones, and to the bride's mother by Mr. Alex. Williamson. The guests were served by Misses Gwen Armstrong, Violet Camken, Pauline Kerr, Joyce Bell and Bernice Fudge.

For a wedding trip to New York the bride donned a grey wool dress, with grey top coat, a matching hat and red and black accessories. After their return Mr. and Mrs. Bakay will reside in Marathon, Ont.

LOGUE—CRONIN

At half-past nine o'clock on the morning of Oct. 14, St. Michael's church was made more than usually beautiful with baskets of pink gladioli and snapdragons, for the marriage of Miss Mary Lenore Cronin, daughter of Mrs. John Cronin, and the late John Cronin, to Mr. Patrick Francis Logue, of Woodbine Ave., Toronto, son of Mr. C. M. Logue, and the late Mrs. Logue, with Father O'Donnell officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Carl Cronin, made a charming picture in a dress of oleander beige crepe banded in gold, with a matching hat trimmed with ostrich tips and wearing a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Her only attendant was Miss Margaret Logue, sister of the groom, in an old rose wool dress, with black accessories, and black hat, and wearing a corsage similar to that worn by the bride.

Mr. Frank Cronin, brother of the bride, performed the duties of groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, where Mrs. Cronin received the guests in a black crepe gown, with sequin trim, black hat and accessories and wearing a corsage of red roses.

For travelling to London, Ont., the bride donned a beige suit with brown furs, and accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Logue will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were from Rochester, N.Y., Toronto, Stoco, Read, Campbellford and Kingston.

WARREN—SHEA

Stirling. — White 'mums and Autumn flowers decorated St. James' Church, Stirling, on October 12, at 10 a.m., for the wedding of Madeleine Marie, daughter of Mrs. Michael Shea, and the late Mr. Shea, Stirling, to Edward Warren, son of Mrs. Harry Warren, and the late Mr. Warren, of Marmora. The Nuptial ceremony was performed by Father S. Lesage and the wedding music was provided by Miss Pauline Shea, sister of the bride. The guest pews were marked with white satin bows and streamers.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother-in-law, Mr. Edward Powers, was attractively attired in a deep rose wool suit, black heart-shaped hat, white gloves and corsage of gardenias. Mrs. David Dalrymple, sister of the bride, as matron-of-honor, chose a midnight blue suit, black feathered toque, white gloves and corsage of roses and baby 'mums.

The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. Reuben Warren, of Marmora, and the ushers were John and Joseph Warren, brothers of the groom.

Following the ceremony, a wedding dinner was served to twenty guests at the Queen's Hotel, Belleville, the bride's mother receiving in a grey suit with black accessories and corsage of yellow 'mums and red roses. She was assisted by the groom's mother in a black suit with matching accessories and corsage of white 'mums and red roses.

For a wedding trip to western points the bride donned a light grey topcoat over her suit. their return Mr. and Mrs. Warren will reside in Stirling.

Out-of-town guests were present from Buffalo, Indianapolis, Trenton and Marmora.

ALLAN MILLS

80th Birthday Celebrated By Mrs. S. McComb

On Wednesday evening about 150 relatives met at the home of Mrs. S. McComb, it being the occasion of her eightieth birthday. Mrs. McComb was completely taken by surprise.

After all the friends had arrived, Mr. Fred Bateman acted as master-of-ceremonies, asking for addresses from many of those present, and Mrs. A. Williams read some very appropriate poetry of her own composition.

Mrs. Percy McGee read an address and Mrs. McComb was presented with a lovely bedspread, a bathrobe, a large mirror anod several other gifts, for which she graciously thanked her friends.

Refreshments were served by the ladies and a social time enjoyed. Friends were present from Warkworth, Brighton, Trenton, Stirling, Ivanhoe, Madoc, Malone, and Mountain View in Prince Edward County.

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W.I.

Roslin.— The October meeting of the Women's Institute was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. (Dr.) Empson with 27 ladies in attendance. Mrs. H. Chisholm presided.

The meeting was opened by all singing the Opening Ode and repeating The Lord's Prayer.

A short business period followed and all members were urged to attend the area convention to be held in Belleville this month.

The following conveners of standing committees reported: Agriculture and Canadian Industries by Mrs. D. Leslie with a paper on "Warble Fly Control", a committee was appointed to work on this project.

Home Economics, by Mrs. Fargey with a paper on "Labor Saving Devices and Short Cuts". The speaker said home economics means home management. Members were asked to describe their own labor-saving devices and a number were received.

"Health" by Mrs. Clapsaddle with a paper on "The Eye".

Miss A. Wilson gave a report from the joint meeting of Plainfield, Roslin and Bethel Institutes held in Bethel United church on Wednesday when Miss Slichter, of Toronto, gave a talk on "Household Accounts".

Mrs. J. Robinson, liaison officer, read a letter from the War Time Prices and Trade Board on "Price Control".

In the absence of the group leader the President gave a paper on the motto "Nothing Great Was Ever Achieved Without Enthusiasm".

The topic for the day "Thanksgiving", was given by Mrs. W. Slingerland.

Dr. J. Empson contributed a very interesting talk on "Health".

The singing of the National Anthem brought the meeting to a close. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants and a social time enjoyed.

AIKINS' W.M.S.

The ladies of Aikins' W.M.S. met for the October meeting at the home of Mrs. E. Scrimshaw. A short business session was in charge of the President, Mrs. E. Hubble. It was decided to hold a home cooking sale in the near future. The attention of everyone was directed to the "Cavalcade" in Belleville under the United Church of Canada. The wish was expressed that many of the members would attend, particularly on Women's Day (Tuesday).

The study for the month, Village Life in India" was well presented under the direction of Mrs. S. Westover. Mrs. Westover had spent much time in preparation and was thoroughly familiar with the material. A chart drew pictorial attention to some phases of India rural life and by word to the contrasts in Indian and Canadian living and working conditions in country districts. A "Do You Know?" presented by several members gave considerable information as to products, living conditions, etc. Mrs. A. Latta had carefully prepared a display of Indian products, coal, salt, bananas, oranges, iron, wheat, rice, spices, brass, tea, coffee, peanuts and leather.

Short articles, prepared from the books for study "India at the Threshold" by Dr. Winnifred Bryce and "Central India Now" by Dr. K. J. Beaton, were read by Mrs. Fred Moon and Mrs. Cyril McMullen.

Worship services was conducted by Mrs. S. Westover with Bible reading by Mrs. Fred Westover and a Litany, based on an Indian song in which all the members took part.

The meeting closed with the singing of "In Christ there is no East or West" and prayer for Christians of India.

During a social hour refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Ellis and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. F. Scrimshaw.

QUINTE W. I.

The October meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. J. Palmer with the President, Mrs. Atkins in the chair.

The highlight of the meeting was an address by Miss Slicter from the Department on "Household Accounting". Miss Slicter estimated that less than 50 per cent of the rural population has definite ideas of what money comes into or goes out of their establishment. Using a blackboard, she demonstrated a simple system of accounting and stressed its importance.

During the business meeting a proposed Poster Contest was discussed. The secretary read a letter suggesting that one dollar for each member be donated to the anniversary fund now being collected. This fund is to provide scholarships for girls at the O.A.C., and some sort of cairn to mark the birthplace of the W.I., at Stoney Creek.

Mrs. Noble Brown had charge of the program. Mrs. Rolliffe gave the opening prayer. There was community singing and Mrs. Thomas gave a humorous reading entitled "Men". Mrs. Parrot rendered the song "Annie Laurie".

Refreshments were served by the social committee, Mrs. S. Geddes, Mrs. R. Bell, Mrs. A. Reid, and Mrs. L. Rolliffe.

MT. PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon —The October meeting of Mount Pleasant Rawdon Woman's Missionary Society convened at the home of Mrs. Roy Thrasher with 14 members and four visitors in attendance.

The pianist, Mrs. Ross Hoard played quiet music and the Vice President, Mrs. Percy MacMullen read a poem entitled "We Render Thanks". This was followed by the hymn "Now Thank We All Our God" and prayer.

Mrs. Gordon Linn arranged the worship service as follows, a vocal solo, Mrs. Bert Jeffs; the Bible Lesson read by Mrs. Arthur Phillips; a paper on "Thanksgiving" by Mrs. Sidmer Demorest; prayer by Mrs. Allen Bailey; reading by Mrs. Percy MacMullen, a litany for rural people by Mrs. Cryus Summers and the hymn "Sing to the Lord of Harvest".

During the business period it was decided to hold the November meeting at the home of Mrs. Will Hubble. The treasurer reported more than $114 raised to date. The secretary outlined plans for the balance of the year in order that the allocation will be reached.

Plans were made to have a 45th anniversary in November and a committee was appointed to complete the arrangements.

Mrs. Bert Jeffs is planning to have a Mission Band meeting at an early date with Mrs. W. H. Baugh, of Tamworth, as guest speaker. The mothers and babies will be invited when plans are completed.

A letter re community friendship from Mrs. T. M. Wilson was read. The Missionary Monthly and World Friend secretary asked that subscriptions be renewed.

An invitation to attend St. Andrews, West Huntingdon, W.M.S. 45th anniversary was unanimously accepted.

Mrs. Bert Jeffs was appointed delegate to the rally at Cannifton with Mrs. Herb. Smith and Miss Edna Hubble as alternates.

All were urged to attend the Crusaders' Cavalcade in Belleville.

Mrs. Frank Smith outlined a chapter in the study book on India entitled "The Man With the Wooden Plow and His Church". She was assisted by Mrs. H. Smith, Miss Edna Hubble and Mrs. Arthur Phillips.

Mrs. Roy Thrasher read a poem "The India Road".

Mrs. Will Potts read an article an "Educational work in Central India" from the Blue Book.

The vice president used a portion of the service in the monthly based on the theme "In Christ-Like Lives" and gave a list of missionaries at work in Central India.

Carmel Young Adult Group Sponsors Banquet

The Fall program of the Young Adult Group of Carmel United Church got underway on Tuesday evening, when members and friends enjoyed a banquet and an evening of fellowship. Approximately seventy were in attendance, and tribute was paid to President Earl Dafoe and his executive for the organizing of the group, which had its beginning last April and which has, at present, a membership of thirty.

During the banquet to which the Carmel W.M.S., catered, a number of toasts were proposed with the president as toastmaster, proposing "The King".

Rev. J. R. Trumpour proposed a toast to "Our Government", emphasizing the fact that a truly great nation must have as its leaders God-fearing statesmen. In replying to this toast, Mr. Roscoe Robson, M.P.P., stressed the duty of Canadians and especially of church groups, to demonstrate to the immigrants, whom we need and who will be coming to Canada in ever-increasing numbers, the democratic way of life and the way of thinking, that they may become happily adjusted as new Canadians.

The toast to "The Church", was proposed by Mrs. Helen Barlow, who outlined the many opportunities for service in the work of the church. Rev. J. W. Houston, of Belleville, responded, urging the members to remain true to the church so that the church might be kept true to its great task of extending the Kingdom of Righteousness.

The toast to "The W.M.S.", whose co-operation had made the banquet both possible and very enjoyable, was proposed by Mr. Kenneth Clarke and to which Mrs. Seldon Homan, W.M.S. president, replied.

Following a spirited sing-song Earl Dafoe introduced the guest speaker, Rev. A. M. Laverty of Stirling. Mr. Laverty, brought an inspirin gand challenging message, telling in a most interesting manner the life story of Albert Schweitzer, one of the seven most outstanding men of the world: who, although he made a reputation for himself in the world of music and writing, and with his ability as a minister, chose rather to answer God's call to service in the Belgian Congo, as a medical missionary. Having completed a six-year course in medicine, he toured France and Germany, giving concerts to procure the necessary funds to support himself and his wife in the Congo, where they went in 1913. During the war of 1914-18 he was interned and, during his stay, was able to convert the Governor to the Christ way of living. Now he is in Africa, doing the work of the Master.

When asked the reason why Mr. Schweitzer says: "I do it out of gratitude to an all-loving Father who hath redeemed me in Jesus Christ and has bought me with a price".

Mr. Laverty pointed out that we need Schweitzer's spirit of self-giving and sacrificing animating us in all we do, that we, by our service to others may attempt to repay the love of God to us as expressed in Jesus Christ. In conclusion Mr. Laverty said:

"Any man or woman may glorify God, serve His purpose and do His will among men in whatever vocation he or she may be found, and in doing His Work we shall learn what His disciples learned—who He really Is and what He can do for all those whose lives are touched by ours.

Mr. Merle Robinson, accompanied by Mrs. Clare Horton, gave two musical selections, which added to enjoyment of the evening, as did a reading on "Freedom" by Mrs. B. J. Clarke.

The singing of "Lord of the Lands, Make Canada Thy Own", brought an enjoyable program to a close.

Some of the Indian crops that are of importance in world economy are rice and tea in which India is second only to China. Wheat in which India equals Canada's production, sugar cane in which she stands second among the nations, and peanuts of which she raises half the world crop. India is noted for manganese, mica, cotton, sugar cane, hides and tea. India railways are one of the greatest enterprises in the world. This country is about two-thirds the size of Canada and her railway mileage is about equal to that of Canada. Mark Twain wrote "India" land of dreams and romance, of wealth and poverty, splendor, rags, palaces, and hovels, a hundred nations, and a hundred tongues, a thousand religious, and three gods.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Messages of Sympathy Should be Acknowledged by Personal Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I would so much like your advice concerning the use of engraved cards of thanks after the death of a member of one's family. Are these engraved forms correct to use? (Funeral Homes usually supply them.)

If they are not proper to send to relatives and friends who have sent flowers, messages of sympathy, food, and so forth, just what type of card should one use? And what should one write? And how soon after the death should these cards be sent?

2. Besides writing individual thank-you's, is it also necessary to have the "Cards of Thanks" inserted in the local newspaper?

A. S.

1. When relatives and friends are so good and kind, so warmly considerate, so personally and generously thoughtful of us in these shadowed days following the loss of a loved one, we should be willing to take a bit of time and thought to tell them personally how much we appreciated their goodness to us. A printed, or engraved (or semi-engraved) card of thanks-for-sympathy is inevitably a cold affair; it just can't be made to carry the personal, warm-hearted message of appreciation that should be sent to those who have sent kind and understanding words, memorial flowers, those who have generously brought foods.

So to every kind friend a note should be written. . . these notes need not be written promptly (no friend would expect this), and only a sentence or two need be written. On white note-paper or semi-note paper, or in plain white cards of good size, or on plain white Informals or the inside pages of Informals that have the name engraved on the outside pages, may be written:

Dear Mary,

Thank you deeply for the message of sympathy and understanding you and Tom sent us. I wish I could tell you what deep comfort your words gave us.

Affectionately,

Or:

Dear Emily,

What a wonderful friend you are. . . to come so soon with kind offers of loving service to us, to supply us with such delicate and delicious foods, and to send such beautiful roses to ——'s funeral. For your limitless goodness to us, for your tender understanding, thank you, with a full heart.

Lovingly,

2. No. If you have expressed your personal thanks to everyone who has been thoughtful, it is not necessary to insert the "Card of Thanks".

Questions About Her Beau's Stepmother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The stepmother of my "steady beau" is going to have a baby in December. I have met her only once, and then for just a few minutes outside her home. . . . and the meeting seemed very cold. Now I am wondering if it is proper for me to go with my boy friend to visit her while she is in the hospital? Also is a gift expected of me?

T. D.

Since your meeting with your beau's stepmother "seemed very cold" there probably is some reason for her attitude, either real or imagined, and therefore I advise you to tread very lightly and carefully in any social contacts with her you may be considering. Don't suggest going with your beau to visit his stepmother in the hospital, or don't accept any suggestion he may make unless you make sure that this is his stepmother's wish also. Certainly you would not be "expected to send a gift. . .but if the stepmother invites you to come to the hospital or later to her home you might bring a gift for the baby.

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S COMPETITION in young date frock circles. No longer does the black frock with glitter have things its own way. Pastel woollen with bright touches, cut on figure-flattering lines, are on the upswing. Fine wool jersey, or fine wool and mink hair, are fabrics used for young daters, touched up with nailheads or gilt kid trim.

Winging through the sky, or at a football game, it's apt to be a bit chilly. So three cheers for the manufacturer who has brought out a lively hand-loomed wool shawl afghan, complete in its own little handbag-roll which is lined and has a zipper closing and a self handle. Lightweight.

Color rises, as colorful hats give a look of Spring to the Fall scene. Aqua-blue felt is used for a little roller breton made with crown band and long side scarf drapery of metallic silk shot with brown, blue and gold.

A Summer promotion has carried over into fall. This is the half-petticoat, still a big success, mostly because of the bare midriff fashion. Nice, too, when silk or wool blouses are worn. Available nowin a very wide price range and in various fabrics.

Getting a Double Chin? Quick With the First-Aid!

By HELEN FOLLETT

When a chin decides to take unto itself a mate, a woman gets pretty mad about it. She feels that she has lost touch with youthful appearance and just what's the use? Facial operators are able to cause the spare chin to disappear if the patient will pay heed to eating habits, do certain exercises to strengthen the fibres of the neck and the southern portion of her sacred countenance. Smart girls won't let a tandem chin get a start.

Local treatment consists of light pinching and rolling movements to dissolve the fat cells. Wash the face with warm water to bring a glow, pat dry, apply a heavy massage emollient. Pick up the flesh between finger and thumb and roll it. Do that for five minutes by the clock.

While the cream remains on, frish an ice cube over the flesh. Let the cream remain on over night. In the morning use cold water and an astringent. Witch hazel serves very well for this purpose.

Chin Exercises

Now for the exercises; stand tall, hands on the hips, head balanced. Take a long, deep breath, lift the chin slowly, continue the upward movement until your nose is pointing toward the ceiling. Hold your breath, turn the head from side to side. Exhale, back to first position and repeat.

At the turn of the head, you will be conscious of a muscle pull at the throat and along the jaw line. The purpose is to strengthen sagging fibres. It is when muscles lose tone that fat cells take possession.

Carry Head High

Make it a habit to carry your head high. Letting it droop means that the tissues of the throat will soften, and the fibres along the jaw line will relax. In spare moments, stroke the throat up and down with flattened fingers, the fingers of one hand following the fingers of the other hand.

Cold water applications, made several times a day, will tend to strengthen and tone the flesh.

The extra chin can be shadowed somewhat by using a powder slightly darker than the powder used on the face.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Better Wait Till You Grow up a Little "Dee"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl 17 years old. For seven months I went steady with a boy named Al, for whom I cared a lot. We had an argument and broke up.

Four months ago, right after I broke up with Al, I met another boy with whom I fell in love. However, he is a very good friend of Al's and he thinks I still care for Al. He is very hot-tempered and if I even say hello to Al he tells me I am still in love with him. I love this second boy very much and I know he loves me, but he doubts my love. Please tell me what I can do to convince him that I love him and not Al.

"Dee"

Before you are ready to settle down enough to be in love with any one young man, "Dee", you are going to fancy yourself in love with plenty of other boys besides these two. At 17, no girl is ready to make a final choice in the matter of whom she is going to love. Better wait a while before making any definite decisions.

As for convincing this boy that he is the one you like best of the two, I wouldn't try too hard. He is no doubt, also very young and just as uncertain about his own feelings as you are. Both of you are likely to change your minds about each other before very long, when you find someone who interests you more. So do not take him so seriously and do not feel that it is a matter of too much importance whether he believes you or not.

Just let things ride for a while. Have fun with a lot of boys and give yourself time to grow up.

Don't Try So Hard to Stop Liking Him

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A year ago I started going with a boy I had known quite a few years. We liked each other and had good times together and never had any arguments. All of a sudden he began to act very cool and slowly drifted away. Sometimes he would pass me on the street as if I were a stranger. But several times he would talk to me and start leading me on again. I never know how he would act when I saw him.

I have met plenty of other fellows but I never liked anyone as much as I like him. I just can't stop liking him, as hard as I try. I've wanted to talk the whole thing over with him, but never get the chance to get him alone.

"J. S."

Boys don't "drift away" unless they want to, "J. S." And if a girl tries to hang on to a sweetheart who starts doing that, all she usually succeeds in doing is to make him hurry away faster. No boy like to have a girl hanging on to him.

It seems to me your best plan is to begin doing a little "drifting" yourself, and for two reasons. First, because it is only sensible if your boy friend has lost interest to you and, second because there is always a chance that it may arouse his interest again if he thinks you're becoming indifferent to him. What you should do is to let him see that you can have good times without him and, when he sees you having fun, he may want to come back and have fun with you. If he doesn't come back, you will already have made a start toward building an interest in other people.

Don't try so hard to stop liking him. If you just go ahead about your business, you'll soon find yourself forgetting about him anyhow.

Belleville Immunization Week

Scarlet Fever Can Cause Complications

Scarlet fever is another communicable disease that can cause serious complications. There is no doubt but that immunization with scarlet fever toxin will prevent or modify the disease in approximately 80 per cent of those immunized. Health officers who are using it on a large scale in their communities are reporting favourably as to it's value.

Scarlet fever toxin is given in five doses, a week apart, and many health officers advocate a sixth dose to ensure protection. It is given under the skin just like diphtheria toxoid and causes very little pain or reaction afterwards. It should be given between the age of one and two years. Scarlet fever toxin has not been perfected as has diphtheria toxoid and, since so many doses are required, some health departments do not plan campaigns. They are only too glad, however, to give information in regard to scarlet fever toxin and distribute it to physicians who wish to immunize patients against this disease.

After scarlet fever toxin has been given, a Dick test should be done. This tells whether or not immunity has been developed.

Church Must Deal With Moral Problems Says Dr. Semple, Former Pastor of Bridge St. Ch.

At a mass meeting under the direction of the committee on Evangelism and Social Service sponsored by the Crusaders' Cavalcade at Bridge Street Church on Tuesday evening, Rev. James Semple, B.A., S.T.B., Th.D., former minister of this charge, spoke on "New Emphasis on Evangelism."

Dr. Semple, who was introduced by the Rev. D. Martin expressed his happiness at being in Bridge Street Church again and renewing friendships. He made personal references to many of the friends with whom he was associated in the twelve years of his ministry here.

"The Board of Evangelism has the responsible task of interpretation," Dr. Semple explained.

"We must have an informed intelligent conception of the problems that face the church. We must deal with moral problems that concern temperance, movies, the Lord's Day, gambling and venereal disease. Then we have the social problems pertaining to industry and trade, penal reform, national housing code, housing, delinquency, handicapped persons and rehabilitation. In the relations between church and international affairs we must deal with world food needs, refugees, Canada and the Vatican, Canada and the Commonwealth, and the United Nations. The commissions must deal with Christian marriage and Christian homes, and civil marriage.

A New Interest.

"The hour is characterized by a new interest in Evangelism. The Evangelistic tide is coming in," continued the speaker, as he quoted Allen K. Foster's words: "The world is sick. The most arresting fact emerging the last ten years is the unanimous judgment of all critics that what our world needs above all else is religion."

"There is evidence that we are in the early stages of a revival," continued Dr. Semple. "We find it in the thousand of keen young minds of the men and women now meeting in groups; in the phenomenal sale of religious books; and among ministers, who are taking time to pray, tackling new books, and making new sermons. There is no excuse for a minister to use sermons that are years old today. There is a new life movement in the United States. There is the greatest religious revival in years in Canada. The 'Christian Century' says the hour is opportune for revival. At the Normal School in Peterborough we have young peoples' groups. I may not always agree with them, but they do have great sincerity and devotion to Jesus Christ. The place for Christ begins with us. We must face our obligations before we can expect a religious revival.

Fail to Challenge

"We have a tendency today towards the over-intellectualism of religion. We fail to challenge people to any definite commitment of their lives.

"What are the primary appeals of evangelism?" the speaker asked. "The appeal of Christ is always first and last. Then there is the appeal of conscience when a man says I know I ought to be a Christian, I ought to go to church; the appeal to reason because people want to know and understand what they accept; the appeal for a better world—in an age pregnant with great changes the Cross must lead the way, and there is a great appeal to youth to make a better world; the appeal to service which includes hospitals, charities and missions. The Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club and all service clubs go back to the Lord and Master whom we serve. The appeal of the Christian home which is the most beautiful picture in this confused world; the appeal to fellowship, and of all the clubs and lodges in the world the best friendship centre is the church. The appeal to duty when we realize our lives are not our own; we are debtors to so many. The appeal to forgiveness for all have sinned and need divine forgiveness.

Begins With Childhood

"Sound evangelism begins with childhood when the child is baptised and his name put on the cradle roll. The child is dedicated then and his Christian education continues through the church school.

"The effective evangelism of our immediate future will be largely outside the church walls and outside of meetings. Meetings will be mainly for the edification and spiritual culture of those who have already committed their lives to Christ. It can safely be assumed few others will attend. The psychology used will be that of salesmanship, man to man, rather than a mass appeal of forensic oratory and crowd-emotion. Men will be won to Christ by personal influences and contacts. In Peterborough we are trying, if our insurance salesmen are Christians to have them discuss religion with their contacts as they would discuss sales. Evangelism will be a lay activity, minister-led. More and more the minister is becoming an expert human engineer, the leader and executive head of an organized body of people. The best technique of social and psychological diagnosis will be used in spiritual ministries.

"We must have creative evangelism," concluded the speaker "It must be positive and aggressive; wise and sympathetic; it must be skilfull in the use of methods; it must be patient; but above all else it must preach the call to conversion with unhesitating boldness. The essential message of the church must be laid upon the conscience of the church with new urgency and power."

Rev. J. K. Thompson, B. A. Field secretary of the missionary and Maintenance Department, presided at the meeting.

Lively Five-way Fight Shapes Up In By-Election

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)— The federal by-election in Toronto Parkdale took shape today as one of the most important contests since the last general election. Five candidates seek the seat left vacant by the resignation last April 1 of Dr. Herbert A. Bruce, a Progressive-Conservative.

Parkdale shares the spotlight with the Manitoba riding of Portage La Prairie where a by-election also is in progress. Upon their outcome, the over-all majority of the Liberal government is at stake.

In the last election the Liberals won 125 out of 245 seats, a majority of five. Election of the Speaker reduced their working majority to four. Then two Liberal members died, in Pontiac and Portage La Prairie, and Dr. Bruce resigned. Pontiac elected a Social Credit member.

Failure to elect Liberals in either Parkdale or Portage La Prairie would result in a net loss of two Liberal supporters. That would leave the Liberals with 122 voting members, with combined opposition parties mustering an equal number, excluding the speaker.

Vote on Oct. 21st

Nominations closed officially yesterday and Parkdale votes Oct. 21. Already the campaign has seen lively exchanges and drawn party stalwarts to the hustings.

Ever since Parkdale riding acme into being under the Redistribution Act of 1914 it has been regarded as a traditionally Conservative seat. It was first held by H. M. Mowat, a Union Government member. D. Spence, Conservative, succeeded him in 1921 and held it until the 1940 general election when Dr. Bruce won it.

This time, Progressive-Conservative hopes rest on Alderman Harold Timmins, a lawyer, who has represented Parkdale for the last three years in city council. He calls for economy in government departments, a national labor code and elimination of housing bottlenecks.

Has Eye On Cabinet

Liberal standard bearer is Lt.-Col. John William Gordon Hunter, barrister, Officer Commanding the Queen's York Rangers of Toronto. He says he hopes to make politics his life's work and has his eye on a cabinet post. He refuses to hew to a strict party line and told Reconstruction Minister Howe to his face at a public meeting that he disagreed with some of the government's policies, notably the Veterans' Land Act, old age pensions and war pensions.

The increase in the milk price provided ammunition for by-election candidates. M. J. Coldwell, national C.C.F. leader, seized on it when he spoke in support of C.C.F. candidate Ford Brand, printing press operator, and suggested that milk be brought under a national health and nutrition program.

Mrs. Elizabeth Morton, housewife, Labor-Progressive candidate took out an injunction against the Ontario Milk Control Board in an effort to block the price rise. Hearing of the case is pending.

Fifth candidate is Len Palmer, Socialist-Labor. He did not appear at yesterday's nomination meeting but his agent announced he was in the fight and "busy working."

Cavalcade Speakers Conduct Services At Various Churches

The staff of missionaries and secretaries who are accompanying the Cruaders' Cavalcade in its trip across Canada conducted services in various charges on Sunday.

At the Tabernacle Church Rev. J. Hoskin, missionary-designate to India, spoke to the congregation. Mr. Hoskin also introduced a film on the life of St. Paul entitled "Faith Triumphant" to the Sunday School scholars of Bridge Street Church.

Rev. Mr. T. Floyd Honey, missionary -designate to China spoke at King Street Church in Trenton. Mr. Honey also conducted a missionary quiz with scholars of Holloway United Church Sunday School, and in the evening he took part in the fireside Cavalcade tour at the fireside hour in Bridge Street Church.

Mrs. Frank Beckwith, whose husband is vocational instructor of the United Church in India, and principal of the High School spoke to the Maynooth pastoral charge.

West to Tamworth

Rev. Manson Doyle, associate Secretary of Christian Education conducted services in the Tamworth charge.

Miss Wilna Thomas who was the only woman Chaplain from the United Church during the war, addressed congregations in the Newburgh charge.

Mr. Ralph Wilson of Africa who is educator and director of missionary press and literature for the Anglo Mission in Portuguese West Africa for the United Church spoke to gatherings at Cannifton in the morning and at Grace United Church in Napanee.

Rev. Dr. Beaton, secretary of the committee on missionary education conducted a tour of the Cavalcade exhibit with the Sunday School scholars of Bridge St. Church. In the evening Dr. Beaton recounted the experiences of the American Christians in Japan through the days of 1941 and introduced to the congregation the new film entitled "We Bear Witness" which is the story of the men who went back as the first civilian deputation to post-war Japan. "It is significant," stated Dr. Beaton, "that the first group of civilians to enter Japan from the Allied nations were Christians and leaders representing American Protestant churches."

Fireside Hour

At the fireside hour at Bridge Street Church on Sunday evening a large gathering from the three United churches of the city came together to hear the Cavalcade explained by Dr. Beaton. An additional feature of the after-service program was a transcribed address by the Rt. Rev. T. W. Jones, M. A., D. D., newly elected moderator of the General Assembly of the United Church of Canada. Dr. Jones, who is minister of Calvary United Church in Montreal - explained the Cavalcade in the transcription message and issued a stirring call to all who saw it to increase their allegiance to things for which the church stands, and to work and pray for a response among young people that will provide sufficient leadership to man the waiting fields of Christian endeavour throughout the world. This transcription will be heard wherever the Cavalcade goes.

Junior Farmers' Prizes Presented At Madoc, Nov. 8

Winners in county junior farmers' contests during the year, and members of girls' work projects will receive recognition for their year's work at Madoc Armouries on November 8, when trophies medals and prize money will be presented to the various winners.

Winners in grain judging, livestock judging and club judging competitions will be honored, while trophies and crests will also be presented to the winners of the Hastings county junior farmers' softball champions for both boys and girls. Winners in the home plowing competition will be presented with their prize money.

Girls' project work under Miss Elsie Irvine, the home economist, has been very active during the year with sixty girls completing projects. These girls will be recognized for the good work done during the year. County and provincial honor girls will also be presented with their pins.

McIntyre Hood, director for publicity for the Ontario Department of Agriculture will be the guest speaker for the evening and Ernie Bruce, versatile entertainer from Toronto, will appear on the program. Parents of the junior farmer boys and girls and their friends are particularly invited to attend the get-together. It is expected approximately 400 will be in attendance.

The executive of the county junior farmers, with the assistance of H. L. Fair, agricultural representative, and his assistant, Harry W. Burns, are planning the get-together. It is expected that a number of officials of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto; Hastings county council members, and county officials will be present.

Marcel Desserres Mentally Unfit To Stand Trial

Cochrane, Oct. 15 (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court jury ruled today that Marcel Desserres is mentally unfit to stand trial on a charge of murder in the slaying of 48-year-old John Dubinski in a bank holdup near Timmins last November.

The jury's decision brought a sudden end to the retrial of the 23-year-old Schumacher gold miner on the charge. Desserres was convicted at the Spring Assizes but the Ontario Court of Appeal ordered a retrial.

Crown Attorney S. A. Caldbick said at the opening of the court sitting today that there were doubts as to Desserres' fitness to stand trial and he had arranged for an examination by a psychiatrist, Dr. J. N. Senn of the Ontario Hospital at Hamilton.

Dr. Senn testified that Desserres was mentally ill and urgently in need of mental treatment. He said the Prisoner should not be held in jail.

Sheriff J. A. Donahue related incidents in the last six days which led to the belief Desserres was not mentally competent. Last Thursday the prisoner complained he was "sick at his heart" and wanted to see a priest. Friday night he spent most of the night praying in his cell, he was in a disturbed condition Saturday night and Cochrane priests and doctors were called in an unsuccessful effort to soothe him.

Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven had each of the jury resworn and then asked them to decide whether the trial should continue. The jury reached its decision in about 10 minutes.

The present trial began last Tuesday and the Crown completed its case, Saturday. Desserres had been scheduled to testify today in his own defence.

The charge resulted from the slaying of Dubinsky, a miner, during a $10,000 robbery at the Bank of Toronto Branch at South Purcupine, near Timmins.

Dominion - Provincial Labor Conference Opens in Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP)—The Dominion-Provincial Labor Conference got under way today behind closed doors.

All provinces were represented and the discussion opened with a statement on Dominion policy by Labor Minister Mitchell, who was followed by Arthur MacNamara, federal Deputy Minister of Labor.

Primary purpose of the meeting is to discuss the future of labor relations and collective bargaining legislation now covered by a wartime federal code introduced by Order-in-Council. It is expected the provinces will also seek information on the government's intentions in relaxing wage control legislation.

Parties Muster Reserves To Insure Victory

Portage La Prairie, Man., Oct. 15 —(CP)—With only five days of campaigning left before voting in the federal by-election in Portage La Prairie, the Liberal Progressive Conservative and C. C. F. boards of strategy today mustered their reserves in an effort to ensure victory for their candidates.

While the usual pre-election predictions of success are coming daily from the committee rooms of Jaffray S. Wood, Liberal, Calvin C. Miller, Progressive Conservative, and Sidney Coulthard, C. C. F., political observers said they sense an under-current of uncertainty in these divinations.

Nor will they step into the role of prophet. It would be a rash man who would pick the successor to the late Harry Leader, who won for the Liberals in 1945, before next Monday's votes are counted, they say.

On one thing they fairly well agree—that the fight now seems to be between Jaffray Wood and Calvin Miller, a statement which agrees with the past record of the riding. Since 1903 it has sent five Progressive Conservatives and six Liberals—not in all cases with that particular party label—to Ottawa.

But they by no means rule out the possibility of a C. C. F. victory and the consensus is that Sidney Coulthard will emerge with more than the 2,300 votes which sent the C. C. F. candidate in 1945.

A number of factors are likely to upset the most careful estimate. There are about 17,000 eligible to vote, an increase of 1,500 over the last election. No one is sure just how these 1,500 and the 3,000 who did not go to the polls in 1945—or for that matter the remaining 12,500—are going to vote this time. And Mr. Leader's margin was only 1,857.

No party has attempted to give the impression that it regards the by-election lightly and the losers will have the consolation, at least, that they spared neither speakers nor topics.

$13,000 in Loot Taken From Home At Gunpoint

Toronto, Oct. 15 — (CP)—Police moved into action today to apprehend three men who last night at gunpoint forced their way into the suburban Forest Hill home of David Lieberman and ransacked an upstairs room of $13,000 in loot while the prominent mining executive entertained friends in his recreation room below.

The loot included a $10,000 diamond ring, a $2,500 mink jacket, $500 in cash, and a pocket watch and chain. The thieves discarded the jacket after fleeing from the house and police found it in a shrub a few doors down the street.

Police said the maid in the Lieberman's home, Gladys McKechnie, was forced to let them in after one displayed a revolver. They made her lead the way upstairs and there they herded her, the cook, Doris Reeve, and the Lieberman's infant granddaughter into a bathroom.

They then ransacked a bedroom and fled from the house with Mr. Lieberman unaware that anything was amiss as he showed movies to a group of friends.

The maid told police that when she answered the doorbell one of the gunmen asked for a person whose name she did not recognize. She told the caller that he must have the wrong address but he then hauled out a revolver and motioned his companions to follow him.

MOTORIZED 'PEEPING TOM'

Kirkland Lake, Oct. 15—(CP)—A motorized "peeping Tom" who maintains a nightly route today is himself a target of the township police.

Residents of the Comfort St. area here report that the prowler arrives in their vicinity about midnight and makes his "peeping" round and then leaves in a conveniently parked automobile. Police say that the prowler has made attempts to enter houses in the neighborhood.

British Airways Records Growth

London, Oct. 15 (CP) — British Overseas Airways Corporation, largest air line in the world, flew six times as many passengers and nearl yeight times as much cargo in 1945-46 as in 1940-41, its first year of operation.

The operations report of the government-owned service, British equivalent of Trans-Canada Air Lines, lists route mileage of 68,718 at last March 31. This is an increase of 162 per cent in five years.

Here are 1945-46 figures, with percentage increase since 1940-41 in brackets: Capacity ton miles 67,374,802 (704.4); number of passengers carried 143,950 (625.8); passenger miles flown 295,839,835 (770.2); cargo and excess baggage in tons 5,167 (1,053); mail in tons 2,874 (381.9); aircraft miles flown 25,738,834 (428.1.)

Mr. and Mrs. John Sager spent the holiday weekend in Peterboro.

Principal S. H. Connor and teaching staff of Tweed Consolidated School attended the Teachers Convention held at Stirling on Friday last.

On Friday evening Oct. 11th, Rev. John Hoskin, Missionary to India, was in charge of two sound films in the United Church. The United Church of Canada is using modern methods of presenting its life and work in the Crusaders' Cavalcade, which is now visiting Bridge St. Church, Belleville.

The Committee of Missionary Education sponsored the film, — 'Report on China', a sound film giving the story of what China has endured during the last eight years.

A sound and color film 'Western Hands are Sure,' the story of the Lamont Hospital was also much enjoyed by all present.

Rev. Hoskin and his wife are leaving for India at the end of this month.

Coast Shipping Shows Decrease

London, Oct. 15 (CP) — Coastwise passenger shipping around the British Isles, interrupted by the war, has not yet been restored, and the prospect is that it will never again reach a high level.

The Leith-London service of London and Edinburgh Shipping Company is being run with cargo ships following wartime loss of the Royal Archer, Royal Fusilier and Royal Scot. When replacements are built they will probably carry only 12 passengers each.

Dundee, Perth and London Shipping Company has lost its two biggest passenger vessels. The Perth became a North Atlantic rescue ship and is not expected to return to her old trade. The London was a guard ship, a dummy destroyer and finally a cable-layer. She probably will not be restored.

Aberdeen Steam Navigation Company's Lochnagar and Aberdonian which sailed from Aberdeen to London also were on war service and are not back.

REGRETS DISCOURTESY IF ANY BUT DOUBTS IT

Washington, Oct. 16 — (AP) — The state department deeply regrets it if Soviet Ambassador Novikov suffered any discourtesy at the hands of United States immigration officials, but is not convinced that he did.

That was the substance of a reply which under-secretary Dean Acheson told reporters Tuesday has been made to Novikov's protest. Novikov said he was not accorded diplomatic courtesy when he arrived at New York's La Guardia field Oct. 4 from the Paris peace conference.

Slaughter's Daring Base Running And Brecheen's Fine Hurling Win Series for Cards

Boston Comes From Behind 3-1 Edge to Tie in Eighth But Lose in Ninth

By JACK HAND

St. Louis, Oct. 16 — (AP)—The gas house gang spirit still lives in the world champion St. Louis Cardinals who have stolen the 1946 series from the favored Boston Red Sox on the sheer "hustle" of Enos Slaughter.

The score was tied at 3-3 in the eighth inning of yesterday's decisive seventh game and the full pressure of baseball's 16th $1,000,000 series was riding heavy on every pitch when Harry Walker lined a base hit into left centre. "Enos," who had singled to open the inning, catapulted off first base, rounded second and headed for third while Leon Culberson retrieved the ball and made a quick relay to shortstop Johnny Pesky.

Making the full sweep at third while coach Mike Gonzalez signalled the come-on sign, Slaughter sprinted for the plate.

Pesky, apparently not expecting that sort of daring base-running, had dropped his arm half way, watching Walker run toward second, before he realized Slaughter was hot-footing home with the tie-breaking run. His peg to Roy Partee was too late as Slaughter topped off his magnificent heads-up running with a fine slide that scored a run worth $3,757.04 to each Cardinal share holder.

Harry Brecheen, making a relief appearance when Murry Dickson weakened clung grimly to the 4-3 margin through a threatening ninth to become a three-game winner. Not since 1920 when Stanley Coveleskie whipped Brooklyn three times to give Cleveland the title, had any hurler picked up three victories in a single series.

Oddly enough a two-run double by Dom DiMaggio that almost lost the game, actually gave Brecheen his chance to get into the record books.

Handcuffed for Six

Dickson, like Brecheen a pint-sized workman, had handcuffed the Bostons for six innings after giving up a run in the first on singles by Wally Moses and Johnny Pesky followed by DiMaggio's run-scoring fly to Slaughter. After Bobby Doerr led off the second with a scratch single, Dickson did not allow a base hit until the eighth when two pinch hitters drove him from the box.

Rip Russell, hitting for catcher Hal Wagner, started it with a single and moved to third when George Metkovich, batting for relief pitcher Joe Dobson, doubled.

Although manager Eddie Dyer knew Brecheen was weary for a full nine inning victory Sunday, he had faith in the little lefthander to subdue this sudden threat. After striking out Wally Moses and taking Pesky on a fly Brecheen yielded the tying runs on DiMaggio's two-bagger.

Gone was the two-run edge that Dyer had been coddling since his Cardinals knocked Dave Ferriss out of the box in a two-run fifth inning. Instead, the score was evened with a man on second and the "mighty" Ted Williams at bat. Brecheen dug in and forced the kid to loft a high pop to Red Schoendienst.

Not Over Till Ninth

After Slaughter's brilliant base-running on top of Walker's double, Brecheen once more had the series in his hip pocket, but this most thrilling of any closing game in several years was not over yet.

Successive singles by Rudy York and the troublesome Doerr created a delicate ninth inning situation. But Pinky Higgins forced Doerr at second, Roy Partee popped to Stan Musial and the game ended when pinch hitter Tom McBride bounced to Schoendienst for a series-clinching force of Higgins at second base.

The pitching mound was the scene of a jubilant Cardinal celebration as his mates lifted Brecheen on their shoulders. It was a great moment, too, in Cardinal history, the fourth straight time they had won out in a seven-game series and their sixth triumph in all.

Brecheen First Southpaw to Win Three in Series

St. Louis, Oct. 16 — (AP) — When Harry (The Cat) Brecheen choked off Boston Red Sox yesterday in the seventh and final game of the 1946 World Series, the slight, St. Louis Cardinal southpaw became the first left-hander in World Series history to win three games in one series.

Eight righthanders had turned the trick in the years since 1903 when the first series was played but it was up to The Cat to set a record for lefties.

He shut out Boston Red Sox with four hits in the second game and then came back to hurl a 4-1 verdict over the American League sluggers Sunday before being called in to relieve Murry Dickson in the eighth and go on to triumph.

Other records set in the 1946 series:

Most hits by both clubs in one game, 29 (Cardinals 20 and Red Sox nine Oct. 10).

Three outfield assists on throws to the plate in one game by both clubs (Slaughter of Cardinals, DiMaggio and Williams of Red Sox. Fourth game, Oct. 10).

Two outfield assists in one inning by one team (DiMaggio and Williams, fifth inning, fouth game, Oct. 10).

Three players on one team making four hits each in one game (Slaughter, Kurowski and Garagiola of Cardinals, fourth game, Oct. 10).

Four players making four hits each in one game, both clubs (Slaughter, Kurowski and Garagiola of Cardinals and Moses of Red Sox, fourth game, Oct. 10).

Most assists by a second baseman, seven game series (Doerr of Red Sox, 31, old record 28 by Stanley Harris of Washington in 1924).

Third baseman starting most double plays, game, (Kurowski of Cardinals, 2; sixth game, Oct. 13).

RAMBLERS, BEARS AND BARONS WIN OPENING GAMES

First Season in Four Years That All Clubs Have Taken Part

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey Bears, Cleveland Barons and New Haven Ramblers got off to fast starts last night by winning in their home arenas in the opening of the circuit's 64-game 1946-47 season.

By tonight, all 10 teams will have seen action. It is the first season in four years that all clubs have been represented on the ice, Springfield Indians and Philadelphia Rockets having suspended activity during the war.

A paid crowd of 10,200 was on hand to see Cleveland trim Philadelphia 9-5. Six thousand turned out to watch Hershey defeat Pittsburgh 2-1, and 3,100 attended the game in which New Haven trounced Providence 7-0.

The Bears, with Jake McGill and Armand Gaudreault leading the attack, scored both their goals against Pittsburgh in the second period after a rough opening frame in which each team drew three penalties.

The Barons rolled in four goals in the first period of their game at Cleveland before the Phillies could get under way. Lou Trudel and Jack Lavoie, members of Cleveland's new "French line," registered four points each.

The fast-skating, hard-checking Ramblers piled up six goals in the first period on the New Haven ice, came back with another in the second, and then staged a brilliant defence to help goalie Jim Henry make his shutout.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

The British boxing board of control forecast a new deal for Empire boxing aspirants, with Empire titles raised to greater prestige and made open to all members of the Commonwealth. C. F. Donmall, board secretary said yesterday at London that once the board is assured that boxing is properly controlled in any Empire country and there "is a fighter good enough to compete for the title, we shall welcome him and fights can take place here or abroad." The issue was raised by the impending empire lightweight title bout in Australia between Ronnie James of Britain and Australian Vic Patrick.

Shawinigan Falls Cataracts of the Quebec senior league yesterday signed up four more players: Jerome Cotnoir, last year's goalie, Germain Bergeron; defence; Johnny Chenier, up from Baltimore's Clippers and Joe Kosiks, from Toronto.

Halfback Joe Krol of Toronto Argonauts failed to come out of his scoring slump in the two games he played at the weekend but a Canadian Press compilation last night showed that the Windsor-born star still leads eastern Canadian football scorers with 48 points in eight games.

The Thanksgiving Day's afternoon baseball crowd of 4,100 paid admissions at Kitchener for the Junior Ontario Baseball Association final between Kitchener and Ottawa was the largest crowd of the season in O. B. A. playdowns, W. J. Snyder, secretary said yesterday.

Sports Roundup

(By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.)

New York, Oct. 16 — (AP) — What sort of a fall season is this when hockey, supposedly a winter sport, opens the day the World Series ends? . . . Anyway, the series is over and the long suffering sportswriters who stuck with the Cards and Red Sox for seven games, 10 days and several thousand miles, now can look dull, feel dull and be dull . . . one player who lost money on the series is Stan Musial, who was offered $7,500 for a month's tour with Bob Feller's all-stars. Stan will join the outfit, but he'll only get about $3,000 to add to his series cut . . . Eddie Dyer, the Cards' manager, almost quit baseball in 1934 when Knute Rockne offered him a freshman football coaching post at Notre Dame. And a decade later he almost went into football again as part owner of a club in the pro league Chick Meehan tried to organize.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

A fighting rampaging Cardinal team, (are yuh listenin' Kenny m'lad) that refused to say die, uncle? selah or anything that smacks of defeat, climbed to the peak of baseball fame in a thrilling seventh game World Series battle yesterday that fairly oozed drama. The red-shirted underdogs from St. Louis that even Gotham's betting wise fraternity refused to give an odds on chance or an even one for that matter smashed their way over the highly touted Boston Red Sox in as hectic a baseball finish as has ever been recorded in the archives of diamond history.

As one baseball writer describes that thrilling finish, the decisive moment, which threw a wildly cheering crowd of 36,143 into a frenzy of excitement, came in the last half of the eighth inning when, with the score deadlocked at three-all, Enos Slaughter fired a single into centre field.

• • •

Patiently he waited on first while Bob Klinger, a veteran relief hurler, who had only just then entered the battle for Boston, retired the next two.

• • •

But Harry Walker followed with a line drive double into left centre and for the next few seconds the gathering was to witness an electrifying spurt that doubtless will linger with those who saw it for many years.

• • •

At first it didn't seem possible that Slaughter could score on the hit. But the Carolinian they call "Country" ran as perhaps he never ran before. He rounded second, third and then sped for home while a bewildered Boston shortstop, in handling the relay from the outfield, spun around to make a futile throw to the plate.

• • •

And on the wings of that amazing dash, the inspired National League champions, with the aid of an equally brilliant piece of relief pitching by Harry (The Cat) Brecheen, swept to victory in the only game of the seven that had seen them move in front in the series.

• • •

Three times they had gone down to defeat as they lost the first, third and fifth encounters. Three times they threw themselves even. But when they finally shot ahead they did it on an occasion which left their baffled adversaries with no rebuttal.

• • •

The fighting Cards are worthy champions. They went into the series underdogs rated a mere 7-20 shot along Gamblers Row. They had as much chance against the tremendous hitting power of the Williams, Doerr, York crew as a mosquito in a DDT can. But they had fighting hearts and refused to concede defeat.

Three times they were behind. Three times they trailed by one game and on Sunday last, with their backs to the wall and behind the superb chucking of Harry "The Cat" Brecheen they hurled back the Boston threat to force the series into the seventh game. That game is now history and once again the little slim slender chucker from Broken Bow, Oklahoma, came through with a win. "The Cat" won three games, and was the first pitcher to perform that stunt in a series since Stanley Coveleskie did it for the Cleveland Indians in 1920 when he turned back the Brooklyn Dodgers three times.

• • •

And perhaps the victorious world's champions should give their league enemies, the Dodgers, a pat on the back and credit them with a great big assist. For the Reds were in a disastrous slump prior to that now memorable playoff series with the Flatbush Fusiliers for the National League title. The Cards had scored but five runs in two weeks and seemed headed for the boneyard. But they suddenly flashed into action against the hated enemy from Dodgerville. "Dem Bums" involuntarily fired the St. Loo's with a spark that carried them through to the world's championship.

• • •

Little Johnny Pesky, Boston shortstop may or may not be the goat of the series. He held the ball a moment too long just failed to nip fleet-footed Enos Slaughter at the plate after he had galloped all the way from first to home with the Cards winning run. Johnny had no after game alibi on the play. "It doesn't make any difference now," he said. "To hell with it."

• • •

The Boston dressing room was as quiet as a Sunday morning on Boston Common. It was depressing as the Red Sox crept in and quietly began undressing. Gangling Ted Williams, according to reports from the scene, was a pathetic figure. Held hitless yesterday he took defeat tragically. He was on the verge of tears.

• • •

Williams was a distinct disappointment throughout the series. His powerful bludgeon failed to crash out the homers expected of it. He had five hits in the series for an average of .200, not a very imposing percentage for a slugger of his type.

• • •

And so another world series passes into history. It proved that a ball game is never over until the last batter has been retired, and saw a stout-hearted fighting team that didn't know the meaning of the word defeat came through with a well-deserved victory.

• • •

REMEMBER WHEN—

New Westminster Salmonbellies brought the Mann Cup back to the west for the first time in four years when they defeated Mimico-Brampton Combines 22-7 in the fourth game of their best-of-five series at New Westminster three years ago tonight. Handicapped by the loss of their regular goalie, Bert Large, who injured his knee in the first game, Combines scored only one victory.

• • •

Wrestlers of Arabia, Turkey, India and other near and not-so-near Eastern countries have always been noted for the sustained powers of resistance and stamina. This new-comer to the Canadian wrestling scene, Emir Badui who claims to be a Sheik of considerable importance in his native Iraq, and who meets Whipper Watson here on Friday, has found it profitable to spend long hours in his special form of training. The Sheik can perform some prodigious feats of sustained strength such as doing several hundred "push-ups" in succession. Another of his feats is to do one thousand deep knee-dips in lightning-fast time. The Arabian has a specialty-hold he calls the Single-Leg-Crab and the quick way in which he finished off Pat Flanagan and big Karl Davis showed just how terribly effective the grip is.

• • •

The Single-Leg-Crab manoeuvre seems to consist of a leg-step-over but Emir gives it an additional twist and turns his victim down on his chest which leaves the Sheik's bony knee in the opponent's back. It's a matter of seconds, according to Referee Ernie Powers between having a broken hip or back on the one hand, or immediately conceding the fall.

• • •

Pat Flanagan stuck it out for a few moments here two weeks ago and has had a bad hip ever since. Big Davis, probably a little more discreet than the fighting Flanagan, gave up instantly. Now it remains to be seen whether the great Whipper can keep out of the hold. If he doesn't the British Empire Championship will likely change hands then and there. But the Whip is gaining great wisdom these days and is satisfied to test his Canadian style against anything the East can bring against him.

An all-star card will have Natie Brown, Joe Louis' ex-opponent, in against Ivan Rasputin who needs no introduction to Belleville fans, and Olaf Olsen against Irish Terry McGuiness.

CUT DOWN ON TAKING LAXATIVES THIS WAY

See How Regular You Can Be Every Morning

Try taking Carter's Pills this way: Start with 3 and set a definite time every morning. When you get regular every morning cut down to 2. After a few days, try 1.

Then try taking Carter's every other day. You may even find you can keep regular without any laxatives.

You see, Carter's are so tiny you can cut down the dose—from 3 to 1—to fit the needs of your individual system. Without disappointment.

Carter's help clean out your intestinal tract not halfway, but thoroughly. They are doubly effective because made with two vegetable herbs compounded properly for thorough, easy action.

Thousands can cut down on laxative dosing this Carter way. Ask for Carter's Pills [illegible] to get the genuine at any drugstore—35¢, 70¢, $1.00. Start the Carter graduated dose method tonight, and jump out of bed tomorrow rarin' to go.

QUEBEC TO HAVE YOUNG, HEAVIER TEAM THIS YEAR

Rookies and Veterans Have Average Weight of 171 Pounds

Quebec, Oct. 16 —(CP)— The youngest and heaviest team in years will form Quebec Aces' entry this season in the Quebec senior hockey league.

Coach Lex Cook already has on hand a band of rookies and veterans whose average weight is 171 pounds, a considerably heavier squad than that which lost out to Montreal Royals, first-place finishers and winners of last season's playoff.

In goal coach Cook will have the all-round athlete Jean Marois and the veteran Lionel Bouvrette Both saw action last season. Bouvrette, for business reasons, is not expected to be available for away-from -home games, but Marois will work in these.

Much is expected of five newcomers to the squad. They are Bill Balmer, 23-year-old defence player who weighs 170 pounds: Sheppard Meyer, 21, 198-pound right winger; Syd Smith, 21, 185-pound right winger; Jox Boxtael, centre and left wing who weighs 170, and Bill Booerman 22, a 180-pound defenceman.

CARDS RECEIVE $3,757 EACH

St. Louis, Oct. 16 —(AP)—The World Series netted each member of the St. Louis Cardinals $3,757.04 while each Boston Red Sox player voted a full share will receive $2,052.04.

The Red Birds divided their winners' total of $127,739.32 from the series receipts 34 ways and the Red Sox sliced the losing portion of $85,159.55 into 41 1-2 shares.

Players share in the receipts of the first four games only and their part of the take amounted to $304,141.24. The other $91,242-38 will be divided among the second, third and fourth place teams of the two major leagues.

Attempted Hold-up Charged

Ottawa, Oct. 15 (CP) — Three Montreal boys, two aged 15 and one 14, were arrested yesterday and charged with attempted armed hold-up and carrying concealed weapons after three loaded .32 calibre revolvers were found in their possession.

Police said the boys entered the store of Alfred A. Shaffer of Ottawa, pointed revolvers at him, but beat a hurried retreat when Mr. Shaffer grappled with one of the boys.

The youths claimed they had run away from their homes and were going to hitch-hike to Cal-

Winnipeg, Oct. 16 — (CP) — Winnipeggers have become 'bowling conscious' as this fall some 20,000 of the city's 250,000 population will take time out from their work to spill both five and ten-pins for their recreation. Ninety-five per cent will play the five-pin game.

With 250 leagues operating in the city, between 12,000 and 15,000 persons will endeavor to topple the "little wooden-men" in league-play for the various city championships.

More than 400 school children operate a five-pin league on Saturday mornings, while university and business college students have formed their own leagues. School teachers too, go after their strikes and spares as nearly 50 per cent of Winnipeg's teachers draw a bead on the headpin in the city's largest league — 92 teams.

Per capita, Winnipeg has more bowling alleys—180 — than any other city in western Canada.

Mel Wilson, veteran Blue Bomber football centre, has added another feather in his cap by mastering the art of the Yo-yo. During a recent football game, Wilson watched a youth demonstrate the many manoeuvres of tossing a yo-yo around. Not to be outdone, the 230-pound centre pulled a yo-yo from his pocket and delighted the huge crowd with a "round-the-world" and other variations of yo-yoing.

With Johnny Lake showing his old-time form with Toronto's Balmy Beach in eastern football, Blue Bomber officials are probably tearing their hair for letting the eastern Moguls lure "Big Jawn" away. Lake would fit in nicely in the plunging spot of the Bomber line-up this season.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Many a tough looking problem looks easy after you know how to solve it. And then for a moment you are amazed that anything so difficult can be conquered so simply.

Among unusual problems in bridge, the unblocking principle will often bring out spectacular action. It is particularly exciting when the play involves throwing away important cards.

Although the different hands in a pack are almost infinite in number, they fall into familiar patterns. And all the various plays involved may be reduced to seven typical principles.

Therefore, when some reader sends me a deal, its solution falls into one or more of the seven basic ways. And the unblocking principle is one of these seven types.

A deal sent to me shows these cards:

NORTH
♠A K Q J
♥7
♦9 6 5 4
♣J 10 9 8

WEST
♠10 9 8 5
♥8 6 5 3
♦K
♣6 4 3 2

EAST
♠7 4 3 2
♥10 9 4 2
♦Q J 10
♣7 5

♠6
♥A K Q J
♦A 8 7 3 2
♣A K Q

Squat yourself in the south seat as declarer at a grand slam in no-trump. When east leads a spade, pitch right in and take 13 tricks.

At first glance, it looks like a cinch. There are four tops in spades, four top hearts, four top clubs, and the ace of diamonds. That counts up to 13 in any man's language.

But not so fast. With an opening spade lead, how do you propose getting the fourth dummy club? If you expect to take tricks with A K Q of clubs, how will you get back to dummy hand?

Do it like this. When your first trick is taken with dummy spade, lead three more top spades from there. On them sluff your three top south clubs. Chuck away your ace and king and queen of clubs.

Think nothing of them. Because now you lead your four clubs while you are still in dummy hand. And sluff four south diamonds on them. You can see the rest in south red suits. Or have your eyes examined.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 16 (AP)—Talk of the movie town today is whether or not the Frank Saniatras will reconcile. Their best friends are trying to get them back together, but the odds appear against it. During the weekend, Nancy attended a party with Skitch Henderson, while Frank discovered Ava Gardner in Palm Springs. Meanwhile, the breakup has created chaos in the bobbysoxer ranks. Most of them are disillusioned.

Thomas Wolfe fans, who are many and enthusiastic, will be happy to know that "Look Homeward, Angel" is nearing the production stage after many postponements, producer Arthur Ripley has a script which adheres to the novel and is lining up Van Heflin for Ben, Robert Mitchim for Luke and Frank Morgan for the old man.

Want to know who will be the most important man in radio tomorrow night? He's the man who puts the needle on the first Bing Crosby transcription show. The radio industrialists are watching the program carefully because it may change their mode of operation.

I see that Warners is advertising itself as "the world's most honored studio." Paramount last used that line. A certain watch company used the line first.

Purely personal . . . Betty Grable is back at wor kon "Mother Wore Tights," after straining her back in a dance routine . . Kathryn Grayson is developing a repertoire of eight operas so she can try out for the Metropolitan Opera auditions next spring . . . Wally Beery flew up to Jackson's Hole, Wyo., to see if early snows damaged his ranch . . . Oso Massen's wedding gift to her sister in Copenhagen will be a round-trip honeymoon to Hollywood.

School Soccer

Yesterday afternoon at their home grounds the King George soccer team held the league-leading Queen Alexandra squad to a tie, neither team being able to score during the regulation time. The game was rather slow to watch and scoring opportunities were few and far between as the teams concentrated on defence with the rival fullbacks sticking fairly close to their own goal throughout the entire course of the game. The extremely long grass on the playing field also tended to slow the play down considerably, making dribbling and accurate pasing nearly impossible on some sections of the field. However the competition was keen and as the teams were well matched play was about even with neither side being able to gain any appreciable edge. Both squads substituted players at frequent intervals as the large size of the field and also the long grass seemed to tire the players very rapidly. Queen Alexandra School are in first place in the standings with two victories and a tie in three starts.

The lineups:

Queen Alexandra School: Centre forward, R. Taylor; inside left, R. Legate; inside right, R. Morden; outside left, R. Potts; outside right, C. Barr; centre half, J. Simpson; left half, R. Reasor; right half, D. Ashline; left fullback, Gilbeart Swager; right fullback, D. Taylor; goalkeeper, A. King. Alternates, Wager, Allen, Seamer, Barrons, Storms, Houston.

Standings in the school soccer league to date are as follows:

	P	W	L	T	TP.
Queen Alexandra	3	2	0	1	5
Queen Mary	2	1	1	0	2
Prince of Wales .	2	0	0	2	2

Queen Mary Wins From K. G.

Thursday afternoon on their home grounds Queen Mary School soccer team scored their initial victory of the current season when they downed King George School by the very narrow margin of one goal. The game was fast and cleanly played between two well-matched teams with the play about evenly divided and the slender margin of victory might easily have been reversed. As it was, it was anybody's game right to the end with the only scoer of the game coming in the closing minutes with the Queen Mary squal finally capitalizing on one of their scoring opportunities. The win was the first one for the home team as they had previously dropped their opening game to Queen Alexandra by the same score. King George battled to a 2-all tie with Prince of Wales in their previous scheduled appearance.

The game was keenly contested with the play constantly shifting from one end of the field to the other as both teams concentrated on a wide-apen passing style of play with not so much emphasis on the defence. Penalties were at an absolute minimum with only two free-kicks being awarded during the entire game for minor offences, one against each team, which probably constitutes some king of a record for an organized game of soccer. Both teams are to be congratulated for such a fine display of sportsmanlike competition.

Lineups:

N.H.L. PRESIDENT SEES GREATEST SEASON AHEAD

All Teams Have Been Strengthened and Schedule Has Been Lengthened by 10 Games

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Every year at this stage, in the lull before six closely-matched clubs break away for another stormy National Hockey League season, there arises the question, "How will they shape up?"

For once, that's easy to answer in this season that Toronto Maple Leafs open tonight against the Red Wings in Detroit. You can lay odds that the 10 games added to the old 50-game schedule will mean more injuries, bigger total attendances, and the writing of virtually a new slate of records.

Forgetting the generalizations, the teams themselves, how will they shape up?

We even have the answer to this. Of course, coach Dick Irvin of Montreal Canadiens, as mentor of the team that was Stanley Cup winners two years out of the last three, need only look the others squarely in the eye and announce he's playing it practically pat.

Gleanings from Camps

Here, in the order of last season's standings, are gleanings from the training camp observations of the others:

Coach Dit Clapper, whose Boston Bruins have all their prewar stars back along with some classy newcomers: "You can bet your boots we won't be the worst in the league."

Manager Jack Adams, with his Detroit Red Wings rebuilt in the biggest house-cleaning in the club's history:

"I'm not predicting that we'll finish at the top of the heap, but we should be in there battling all the way."

Manager Conn Smythe, who intends to present a fighting, crowd-pleasing Toronto Maple Leafs edition: "I confidently expect it will improve greatly and that we shall make a playoff berth."

Predicts Greatest Season

Manager Frank Boucher, starting a long-range experiment in rebuilding aimed at boosting his New York Rangers back to the top: "I definitely intend to get the Rangers out of the cellar."

At Montreal president Clarence Campbell said he believed this season "will be the greatest in N.H.L. history."

Mr. Campbell former Edmonton lawyer and one-time N.H.L. referee, considers all six teams stronger this year than at the end of last season. He believes that returned servicemen who joined their former clubs late last year will be in top shape to start the new campaign.

Yes, but the teams, how will they shape up against one another?

That's anybody's guess.

AT THE BELLE — Barbara Stanwyck and George Brent are co-starred in Warner Bros. new romantic drama, "My Reputation," the story of a woman who wanted a second chance at love. Lucille Watson and Eve Arden are also featured in the film closing at the Belle tonight.

Moira

Moira—The Victory Class met on Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Emerson. In the absence of the president Mr. Wesley Farrell took charge of the meeting. After opening exercises a period of discussion on needed church improvements followed. A vocal trio "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross" by Mr. Fred Regensberg, Mrs. Arthur Emerson and Lola Emerson was much enjoyed. Mr. Stewart then led a discussion on the second chapter of the Revelations. Miss Huffman spoke on "Trumpet Calls." A duet "Love Lifted Me" was sung by Misses Lola and Evelyn Emerson. A welcome was extended to the new member, Mrs Donald McInroy. The meeting was closed with a hymn and prayer after which refreshments were then served.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Foster of Denholm Sask. and Mrs. George F. Foster of Stratford have been visiting at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. George Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ketcheson and Mr. and Mrs. J. Vanderwater.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Ross Ketcheson on the birth of a daughter.

Miss W. Huffman and Mrs. N. Welsh attended the teachers' convention in Stirling on Friday.

Many of the farmers have been exceedingly busy during the past two weeks picking corn for the canning factory. The work is now nearly completed and crops have been good.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Vanderwater, Billy and Miss Lily Dunley visited Mr. and Mrs. Roy Holgate at Cooper on Sunday.

REPORTED HELD BY YUGOSLAV AUTHORITIES

Trieste, Oct. 16 — (Reuters) — Two British officers and three non-commissioned members of the Royal Army Service Corps, whose motorboat broke down off the coast of the Yugoslav zone of Venezia Giulia Venezia south of Trieste, have been taken into custody by the Yugoslav authorities, it was learned today.

TIED FOR PRIZES

Meaford, Oct. 16 — (CP)—For the first time in the 25-year history of the tourists fishing competition a tie occurred for first place. L. Lloyd Hazey of Preston, and W. Wilson of Mount Dennis, hung up records for Georgian Bay trout with catches of 13 lbs. 12 ounces. And only half on inch was the difference in length between the two fish.

CHAPTER 29

They would never miss their mother! A frightful thing to say of two little girls whose mother was alive, whose mother loved them.

Suddenly she knew what she would do with them. She would take them to Sutro's Mill and stay with her father. Sutro Mill would be hot, but there was a bathing pool at the turn of the creek, deep and green and cold even on the warmest day, and there were enormous peaches from the Labaree ranch, and there was the upstairs sleeping porch, roofed only by the dark sky and the summer stars. Little girls could have lots of fun in Sutro's Mill; Aunt Mansie and Isabel would run the house as they had run it years ago, and some nice high-school girl could be lured in as part-time nurse.

Her heart warmed with this plan, Isabel telephoned her father and made all the arrangements, touched by his excitement and pleasure in the prospect of having his granddaughters as house guests. The next step was to telephone Dennis.

She would hear Dennis's voice again. Isabel sat for long minutes with the instrument in her hand, before she could control her trembling enough to dial for the long-distance number.

Presently it came; quiet and assured as his voice always was.

"Yes. Speaking."

"Oh, Dennis. This is Isabel."

Her throat closed up entirely; she could not go on. There was a pause that seemed to her endless.

"Just a moment," he said. Then presently, "All right, go ahead. The others—there are people in the other room. I'm taking this on the upstairs telephone."

"Others" meant Madge and his mother, of course. Isabel began uncertainly. She would like so much to have the children for a visit—she had spoken of it the night he had come down—did he remember?....They were going to be with her father; Dad had been perfectly delighted with the idea. What did Dennis think?

"Why any plans that pleases you," he began. But hesitatingly. He was abandoning some other plan as he spoke; she could hear it in his voice.

"Were you and—" She couldn't say Madge's name. "Were you thinking of any special plans for them?" she asked.

"No." There was affectionate fatherly regret in his tone. "Only we hate to let them go," he said. Isabel caught the "we." That meant himself and Madge, of course....She must stop this; he might have meant his mother and himself!

They arranged a time and place of meeting. His mother, he said, was driving into town on Monday; could Isabel meet her at—say, the St. Francis lobby on Monday. At eleven? At a little before eleven, Mom's dentist appointment was at eleven.

She hung up the telephone, acutely disappointed, feeling flat and cheated. He had sounded cool, undisturbed. For a little while Isabel could do nothing, think of nothing, because of the chill that enveloped her spirit.

Then she began planning again. She must get them masses of summer clothes, bathing suits and sun suits, broad hats, sandals, gay little socks. She would send them back to Dennis well equipped not only for fall, but for winter, too. Old Miss Harriet should be commissioned to make them warm plaid jumpers and peasanty cotton blouses trimmed with rickrack braid. And they should have coats, two apiece; reefers for every day—their first reefers, and smart little fitted topcoats for best. If one could only get blue broadcloth with beaver—no hope of that, perhaps, but there would be something nice. Shoes, too. She telephoned Wilson at the office to ask about shoe stamps; could he manage to get her four? He certainly could, Mrs. Latimer.

On Monday she arrived early at the meeting place, filled with excited anticipation. Her father and Aunt Mansie were all ready for the children's arrival; Isabel had the unusual feeling that she was doing them a real kindness; she herself was ridiculously happy, too.

"When they go back," she thought, sitting in one of the big deep leather chairs of the big hotel lobby and watching the endless streams of service men and their mothers, sisters, sweethearts wives, surge to and fro, "they'll talk so much about Mummy, and the beautiful time they had with Mummy, they'll be so homesick for me that Dennis and Madge will have something to think about!

"No, that won't do," her honester self reproached her. "We can't make them a party to it. I'll do nothing but praise their father and their grandmother. I'll make myself ask questions about their school and say, 'That must be lovely, darling, that must be lots of fun.' Their lives shan't be clouded by all this any more than they are now....Oh, darlings!"

She half sank to her knees, for they were upon her, jumping and laughing. Isabel could not remember ever seeing them so gay. They weren't being suppressed by their stepmother anyway. She looked up from their strangling embraces to find their grandmother, and found instead Dennis, smiling at them all from a little distance. The blood rushed from her heart; the room burst into radiance.

"They look so well!" she said joyfully, having already noted with satisfaction that Pussy's coat was the one she had worn last winter, and that Catherine was in familiar raiment, too. The new garments would be all the more welcome.

"They—they are well," he said stammering a little. And she knew with another little thrill of triumph that he was as shaken as she was. "We've got new bathing suits," she told the children, "and Grandma is building you a little tent house out under the trees!

"He's so delighted, poor old Dad," she said, straightening up, standing close beside Dennis, her eyes raised to his in the old familiar way. "He's been ill, and only works a few hours a day, and the girls will be a perfect blessing to him. When I telephoned last night Aunt Mansie said he was so excited he couldn't sleep, and she was, too. She said she'd make cookies—she makes them by the thousands for soldiers, it seems, so she said—she said—"

Her flow of eloquence was suddenly cut short, she stammered in her turn, and they stood looking at each other and trembling a little. Isabel could not move her eyes from Dennis's eyes. The strangeness of the tie between them, and the barrier between them, silenced them both. They could only smile vaguely, and tremble.

"Mom didn't come?" Isabel said at length.

"Yes, but we were late, so she went right to the dentist."

"You look a little tired Dennis. Are you thin?"

"I think maybe—a little. Well I'll say good-bye to you ladies. Be good girls now. You'll let me know when you bring them back?"

She had a sudden wild impulse to say, "Oh, Dennis, think of some way in which we needn't be parted! Think of some way in which you and I can always be with them, and with each other! They need us both, and you need me, and I need you! Let's not go on in this way. There's no sense to it. Don't leave us. You take Catherine's hand and I'll manage Pussy, and let's cross the street to the car and get into it and go somewhere together. You driving, me next to you with the baby in my lap. and Pussy on the outside so she can look out—in the old way I want to lean my shoulder against your shoulder, and begin every other sentence, 'Here's what we could do, Dennis,' and 'We can easily manage that."

But long before these thoughts had come even to words in her mind, he was gone; he had turned abruptly, with a nod and a smile, and lost himself in the churning throng that moved all day long through the halls and lobbies of the big hotel. Isabel, with a small girl on either side of her, went out into the windy warm sunlight; grit and papers blew about the square; idlers were sitting on the benches. The city was glaring and unromantic under the cool August sun.

But Sutro's Mill was at its loveliest, dreaming in the hot shade of its oaks and pines, with the eastern wall of high blue mountains faintly outlined in lavender gauze against the sky. The air was sweet with juniper and bay and eucalyptus; the river, on the pebbled banks of which children were spashing and shouting, was almost lost between pool and pool. Aunt Mansie and Oliver Jordan were in the side yard when Isabel and the children arrived, and it was only a matter of moments until Catherine and Pussy (had excepted their almost-unknown relatives, and everyone was happy and at home.

On that first happy night Isabel subsided into an old basket chair, comfortably wearied with the emotions and efforts of the day, and watched with deep satisfaction her daughters' absorbed attention to her father's grizzled old hands, carving them ducks and boats from soft white wood. The shade of the windmill fell across ground carpeted with silvery dry eucalyptus leaves. Everything all about was homely and familiar: the chicken run, the two old wheels still leaning against the fence, waiting to be of use someday; the crooked apple tree, the straight tall columns of the twin pear trees that had looked in at her window ever since she remember anything. Hollyhocks grew against the dining-room windows; fuchsias dripped in red and gold beauty along the porch. A curl of garden hose lay by the faucet; the yellow cat was at her old outlook on the top of the porch rail.

Her father concentrated his conversation upon his dark, eager loving little granddaughters; Aunt Mansie rambled on comfortably about preserving, the neighbors, the butter market—not that she couldn't always get the fresh country-made article from Lou Peters. The Darrows had lost their boy; Carolyn Whitney had married the Green boy just before he went overseas.

"Carolyn! We were in High together. Is she just marrying now? She must be thirty."

"Yes, guess sh'is."

"I seem to have done considerable living while Carolyn was making up her mind."

"She's got a good man now. She'll stick," Aunt Mansie said briefly. Isabel felt a warm prick of wind touch her skin. They didn't say it, but they didn't understand her leaving Dennis, even now. Well, that wasn't so strange. She didn't understand it herself. Carolyn had got a good man, had she? That had nothing to do with it! Isabel had got a good man, too....

SULLIVAN ARGUES

her present status at the preliminary hearing last spring of Mrs. Dick, Mrs. MacLean, Donald MacLean, father of the accused and William Bohozuk, one-time friend of Evelyn's.

Mr. MacLean and Bohozuk will stand trial later on the John Dick murder charge.

Mr. Sullivan, speaking in low, regulated tones while his dark-haired client wrote notes and doodled at her place on the prisoner's bench, gave a detailed review of the evidence presented by the Crown in this case in which the defence called no witnesses.

Some of it, he said, seemed to have little connection with the charge against Evelyn Dick who married John Dick just one year ago.

Her five statements to police indicated she might know something about the case—"she might know a great deal about after the murder — if that was the torso of John Dick — but there is nothing to make her appear guilty of murder."

Then, for a minute he turned to his client, then back to the jury:

"She is a pretty young woman, an only child who by her mother's testimony led a rather unhappy life. Maybe it was not her fault that today she stands before you accused of the most serious crime in the code book. Parents have a serious responsibility these days."

"From her stories she was probably an escapist," he said, recalling imaginative stories of children who lived in their own story dreamworld.

Earlier Mr. Justice Barlow ruled that no news copy could be sent out of the courtroom during the addresses to the jury and during His Lordship's charge to the jury.

News stories can be sent out at conclusion of each address.

Once more the court room was filled with spectators for the ninth and probably final day of Mrs. Dick's trial for the murder of her husband, John Dick last March 6.

Defence Counsel John T. Sullivan immediately submitted to His Lordship a motion that "there was not one iota of evidence to show the accused was guilty of the murder."

Defence contended that no evidence had been submitted to show "any substantial motive."

Circumstantial evidence presented by the Crown consisted only of traces of the crime.

In her five statements to police, Defence Counsel said, only in the last had the accused admitted any part in the killing.

There was nothing in the statement to indicate she had gone out on March 6 with her husband with the purpose of killing him.

The jury, contended the defence, might consider her an accessory after the fact "but there is not one iota of evidence that she is guilty of murder."

"I am of the opinion that there is sufficient evidence that the case go to the jury," said His Lordship.

QUEEN ELIZABETH

Air Secretary Philip Noel-Baker headed the list of British political figures along with Sir Alan P. Herbert, Member of Parliament and famous humorist.

Among members of Britain's nobility aboard were: Sir Hugo Cunliffe-Owen, scion of one of Britain's wealthiest families; Viscount Rothermere, publishing magnate; Lady Iris Mountbatten, the Countess of Ayles Ford, the Earl and Countess of Birkenhead and the Earl and Countess of Carrick, the Countess of Craven and Viscount Camrose.

Senator Tom Connally (Dem.-Tex.), a member of the United States delegation to the Paris Conference also was aboard.

The Cunard White Star liner sailed at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. E.S.T.). contrary to previous expectations that she might attempt to break the Southampton-New York speed record of three days, 20 hours and 42 minutes set by the Mary in 1938, she was not expected to dock at New York until Monday.

Cunard officials said the ship's captain, Commodore Sir James Bisset, likely would wait until spring before attempting to wrest the mythical blue riband of the Atlantic from the Queen Mary.

Britain's $24,000,000 gem of the sea, sailed today with all flags at full staff despite the death of Sir Percy Bates, chairman of the Cunard White Star Line which operates the ship.

"I think Sir Percy would want it that way," said Commodore Sir James Bisset, the ship's captain.

Sir Percy, 67, died at his Cheshire home today just before the Elizabeth sailed.

He was taken ill at his Liverpool office yesterday during final arrangements for the Queen Elizabeth's sailing.

He and Lady Bates had planned to make the voyage as host and hostess to the distinguished passengers.

The shipping magnate rose from shipowner's apprentice to chairmanship of the Cunard-White Star Line.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 16 —(CP)— Stocks advanced in the early session today, the mining groups leading. The base metals firmed 1.21 in the index and the golds .58. Trading was only moderately active and the turnover was 508,000 shares for the first three hours.

Osisko was a feature of the trade in the gold group as it climbed to 1.63 in active trading, up 33 cents. Donald also was in demand at an advance of 10 cents to 1.05. Prices were higher on smaller volume for MacDonald, Quemont, Buffadison, Dickenson, O'Brien, Pamour, Armistice and others.

Better prices ruled in the industrial section for the paper, liquor and utility groups.

Canada Only Country Able to Help China Solve Political Differences Missionary Tells Kiwanis Club

Canada as the only nation in the world with a population of more than six millions which has no political ambitions outside its own country, is the only nation which can possibly hope to assist in solving the political differences in China now existant between the national government and the "so-called" communistic forces.

Such was the rather surprising statement made at Kiwanis luncheon Tuesday by Dr. Robert R. McLure, medical missionary from China and one of the few Canadians well-versed in present day conditions in that country. Dr. McLure, during his visit to the city in connection with the Crusaders Cavalcade, acted as guest speaker at the service club luncheon.

Any other country in the world but Canada which seeks to lend assistance to the Chinese cause would be looked upon with suspicion by the people of that country, according to Dr. McLure. The people would consider assistance from any other country as being given with the idea of designs upon the Chinese nation while they know that Canada has no political ambitions.

Due to Politics

The speaker gave a first hand insight into Chinese problem of civil war which he declared was due entirely to political factions. Contrary to other countries there had been no cessation of hostilities in China following the Japanese surrender. Here national government forces and the "so-called" communistic forces had continued at war until a bad case of "war nerves" prevented any possibility of peace.

"Even so the political differences between the two forces are not so great," continued Dr. McLure. "All they need is a coalition government. Their differences are not so great to warrant war, but it is purely and simply a case of war nerves."

"The chief worry of the Chinese in general is that Western powers will build up the army so that the government will resort again to its use to settle political differences."

Not Politically Minded

Under ordinary circumstances the Chinese is the least politically minded person in the world, but according to the speaker his very existence today is tied up in political difference. As a consequence he is forced to be politically minded.

Commerce of the country is seriously affected as result of conditions arising out of which force, the national government, or the communists, hold key road or river points.

Taxes in China are terrifically high according to Canadian standards with peasant Chinese farming being forced to pay as high as 67 per cent, paid in kind. The Chinese viewpoint toward Allied powers is further distorted when they understand that it was Allied bombers, not Japanese, which destroyed their cotton mills.

In today's shrinking world when air transport schedules permit travelling to the Orient from Canada in two days, the speaker declared that it was imperative that Canada interest herself in the economic welfare of the Chinese people.

"And only Canada can do it," he concluded. "How it is going to be done I leave to you."

The speaker was introduced by Kiwanian Harold Seldon with Taylor Franklin expressing the appreciation of club members. President Mark Vanner presided over the meeting. Albert Boynton, of Cornwall, a former President of the club, was a guest at the meeting.

Says Only Small Percentage Answer Call for Strike

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP)—W. A. Delahay, manager of the Ontario Forest Industries Association, yesterday said only three to five per cent of an estimated 15,000 bush workers at present employed by Northern Ontario lumber operators have answered a strike call issued last week by the lumber and sawmill workers (A.F.L.) This figure is approximately, he said, based on latest information available from operators.

More Supersize Bombers In U. S. Than at War's End

Washington, Oct. 16 — (AP)—The United States today has more supersize bombers than when the war ended. The Army Air Forces now counts more than 3,000 "very heavy bombardment" type aircraft. This number compares with 2,865 on hand when hostilities ended in August, 1945.

Central India Against Spread Of Christianity Says Speaker

Demonstrating the use of the sari, native dress of India, to her audience at Bridge Street United Church on Tuesday, Mrs. Russell Graham explained that there were six yards of material woven into one long piece which, the wearer wraps around her waist over her shoulder and around her head. Mrs. Graham who has spent twenty-eight years in India as evangelist and nurse, specializes in teaching the natives home nursing, hygiene, and preventative measures. She expects to return to India next year to take up the work which she and her late husband commenced nearly thirty years ago.

Mrs. Graham was introduced by Mrs. Empey of Eldorado. In speaking of the missionary work in India Mrs. Graham stated that in Central India (as distinguished from British India) the rulers are against the spread of Christianity, and issued orders that no Christian be allowed to speak to crowds or build even a mud hut for worship. This order of the Maharajah, instead of preventing the missionaries from carrying on their work, proved a real help as they were obliged to go to the native homes, and by holding services on little porches outdoors they reached into the intimate lives of the people. Whole villages turned out to see the white man arrive in his car, and interest was at once aroused.

Quite Moved by Christianity

"We never baptize a man unless his wife wants to be baptized also," said Mrs. Graham. "Sometimes we find that they are quite moved by Christianity, but are frightened because their families will react against them and they will be ostracized by their class. A problem was presented to the missionaries at one time by a convert whose small son of five years was betrothed to a girl of two who lived across the river from them. The mother of the boy was upset because she was a Christian but the girl's family was not.

They decided to pray about it, and finally the girl's family was won to Christianity, and a Christian marriage was arranged."

"Women have a great ministry to pray for the people of that land. We don't lay enough stress on the value of the power of intercession.

"There are twelve million Christians in India today," said the speaker. "There are established churches there in cities that are carrying on without missionaries. A few generations ago these people were the untouchables, not presuming to be clean, not presuming to walk in the streets, or to take water from the village well. Today they are a fine,clean, presentable class of people. Only the message of Christianity changed their way of living. Nothing else will change the social structure of India.

Animal Life Sacred

"Animal life is sacred there, and there is one cow to every two persons in India, where they live on the best pasture land. Monkeys are sacred and destroy the crops, as do peacocks. There can be no social advancement in India while Hinduism stays.

"We who are so fortunate in Canada cannot refuse to help the unhappy people in the rest of the world. Let us realize the great value of what we have. We have so much that sometimes we say we are Christians before we really decide in our heart that we are. If you could see how the first Christians in India were persecuted and beaten and how their faith met the challenge you would be uplifted and encouraged to continue your help and prayers, because India will yet be Christ's!" concluded Mrs. Graham.

20 Ministers Attend

About twenty ministers of the United Church in Canada from the city and district attended the seminar of the ministers' conference at Bridge Street Church when the Rev. Anson Moorhouse, director of visual aids for the committee on Missionary Education, outlined the principles on which the use of lantern slides, film slides and silent and sound motion pictures could be used as aids to adequate education. Rev. Dr. K. J. Beaton, secretary of the Committee on Missionary Education introduced the subject by speaking of committee aims and later assisted in the demonstration.

Rev. Manson Doyle conducted a Sunday School workers' conference on educational evangelism. Emphasis was placed on Sunday School teachers and parents as evangelists, and on the place which visual aids might have in that central task.

Former RAF Pilot Hanged For Sadistic Murder

London, Oct. 16 —(CP)—Neville George Clevely Heath, handsome young former R. A. F. pilot, was hanged at grim Pentonville prison today for the sadistic murder of movie extra Margery Gardner.

A crowd of approximately 500 men, women and children milled about outside the prison walls, waiting for the posting of the notice announcing that the curly-haired aviator had paid with his life for a crime which shocked Britain.

A few minutes before the execution hour—9 A. M. —Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, colorful campaigner against capital punishment—drove up to the prison in a large yellow automobile and showered leaflets among the crowd. Police, after a discussion, accompanied her to a nearby police station in her car.

Mrs. Van Der Elst was charged with obstructing a public place by scattering the pamphlets, which said Heath "was a possessed madman and hould have been sent to Broadmoor."

Within an hour after the execution an effigy of Heath was set up in Madame Tussaud's famous wax works—the first addition to that collection of images of famous criminals since 1936.

Heath was convicted of slaying Mrs. Gardner in one of the most sensational murder trials in Britain's history. A jury of 10 men and two women rejected his plea of moral sanity.

Mrs. Gardner's body, nude with ankles bound, was found in Heath's London hotel room last June 21. She had been lashed 17 times across the breasts and back, there were teeth marks on the body and she had been severely mutilated with a poker-like instrument.

Heath also was charged with the sadistic slaying of pretty Doreen Marshall, 21, at Bournemouth, swank seaside resort, less than two weeks later. Miss Marshall's body, also was bitten and badly slashed, was found in a grove near the shore.

BE KIND TO ANIMALS

DR. BAKER'S COLUMN
Edited by Dr. Charles R. Baker, B.V.Sc.

HINTS

A common but erroneous notion prevails that meat in a dog's menu causes the blood of the animal to become overheated.

No ill effects need be looked for if one sees that the meat fed to dogs is such as might be eaten by oneself without danger. There are usually enough scraps of meat, gristle and bone from the waste of three average household meals to make up the ordinary dog's daily menu, and these, if supplemented by other leavings, such as cereals, puddings, etc., or by some of the reliable dog foods, in limited quantities, will keep your dog in excellent condition.

"Plum Puddin'"... The Dalmatian, often called the coach dog or plum pudding or spotted dog, originated, as its name indicates, in that part of the Austro-Hungarian Empire called Dalmatia. In the last century he was considered a smart and necessary adjunct to the dogcart and carriage-and-pair turnouts of the wealthy classes in Britain, where the dog was highly favored and appreciated for its intelligence, companionship and loyalty.

Drew Accuses King Of Breaking Faith With Provinces

Claims Seven Have Asked For Another Conference

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario has accused Prime Minister Mackenzie King of breaking faith with all the provinces, seven of which asked for another session of the Dominion-Provincial Conference.

In an exchange of correspondence released last night, Premier Drew charged that the Prime Minister had closed the door on any further consideration of requests for an early resumption of the Dominion-Provincial Conference." He said the need for a basic agreement on financial relations between Dominion and Provinces was urgent and added:

"It is apparent that not only are you preventing the possibility of such an agreement now, but that you are determined to follow a course which will still further prejudice the ultimate possibility of reaching any satisfactory agreement on Dominion-Provincial relations."

First letter in the series was dated Sept. 7 and in it Mr. Drew urged Mr. King to reconvene the conference, adjourned May 3. Mr. King replied three weeks later that since the federal government was trying to negotiate tax agreements with certain provinces, it had decided that priority should be given to those discussions.

Read as Refusal

To that, Mr. Drew said he could read the Prime Minister's letter only as a refusal to reconvene the conference.

In reply, Mr. King wrote, Oct. 10 that the Federal Government would welcome a definite statement by the Ontario Government with respect to the "concrete proposals for a transitional tax agreement" made in the budget adopted by parliament at its last session.

Mr. Drew, in his letter yesterday, said that the Prime Minister was not offering to reconvene at any time the conference which adjourned May 3.

"The fact that governments representing less than one-quarter of the people of Canada have found it necessary to accept terms placed before them outside of the conference is no justification whatever for your refusal to comply with the requests of other provincial governments which represent, in their local affairs, more than three-quarters of the people of Canada," said Mr. Drew.

He added:

"The government of Ontario is more impressed than ever with the need for a national pattern within which the responsibilities of all governments will be clearly defined and each government assured of tax resources adequate for the purpose of carrying out those responsibilities. This should be done before the situation becomes further confused."

Views Different Says King

Mr. King said in his letter that Premier Drew's conception of the purpose and role of the conference appeared to differ substantially from that of the Dominion Government.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Oct. 17—(CP)—Synopsis: Cold air covers all of Canada except eastern New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, freezing temperatures being general tonight over the prairie provinces, northern Ontario and northern Quebec, with snowflurries over northern Ontario. Much warmer air covers the eastern and south central states, the boundary between the cold and warm air which lies just south of Lake Ontario and Lake Erie across northern Indiana and southern Illinois appears to be moving slowly northward again south of Lake Michigan and the warm air is expected to enter southern Ontario during Friday. A band of intermittent rain and drizzle north of this boundary is moving eastward and has reached the vicinity of Windsor early this morning.

Milk Control Bd. Had No Power Says Affidavit

Toronto, Oct. 17 — (CP)—Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier of the Ontario Supreme Court prepared today to hear an application from Mrs. Elizabeth Morton, Labor-Progressive candidate in the Oct. 21 federal by-election in Toronto Parkdale, for an injunction restraining the action which brought a three-cent increase Oct. 1 in the retail price of milk in Ontario. The increase brought prices through the province to 15 to 17 cents a quart.

Yesterday, on the eve of the hearing, an affidavit was filed at Osgoode Hall and served on David Goldstick, Mrs. Morton's solicitor, acknowledging that the Ontario Milk Control Board "has no power to enforce" an agreement between producers and distributors under which the price went up. The affidavit was made by the Milk Board chairman, C.M. Meek.

The affidavit said the price agreement between the Ontario Whole Milk Distributors League and the Ontario Milk Distributors Association is effective "only by reason of the fact that such an agreement did take place" and does not depend upon an order or any other act of the board to make it effective.

It said also that changes in existing board orders, by which the price was increased, "are acceptable on the understanding that this agreement has the approval of the proper authorities."

The affidavit reviewed the steps leading to the price increase. When the Dominion Government announced cancellation of its producer subsidy of 55 cents a hundredweight effective Sept. 30, the Board feared that if producer prices were not increased, milk would be diverted to other channels and there might be an insufficient supply for consumers.

The Board decided there should be an increase but it was advised by the Attorney-General's Department that it lacked authority. Then producers and distributors had to consider whether to abandon the existing scheme of milk production and distribution or to agree among themselves to continue orderly marketing.

Filed with the affidavit was a copy of an agreement reached Sept. 30, day before the increase became effective. It said that because the Ontario cabinet refused to pass an order-in-council covering the Board's decision, producers and distributors agreed to accept the increase for 30 days, starting Oct. 1, "on the under-

Santa Claus Will Carry Biggest Stock of Christmas Toys Since 1941

By WILLIAM FERRIS

Chicago, Oct. 17 (AP)—Santa Claus is going to carry a bigger pack of toys for distribution to American children this Christmas—his heaviest load since 1941—say United States toy manufacturers.

And many of the toys that were not available during wartime and last Christmas, such as electric trains, skates, construction sets, bicycles and metal wagons will be in his big sack. But, toy makers at the merchandise mart said, these articles which vanished during wartime will be back in very limited quantities.

"It will be first come, first served," the manufacturers said. A fair warning to papa that if he wants to play Santa Claus he'd better do his Christmas shopping early.

Mail order houses also came up with cheerful news. Sears, Roebuck and Company is distributing its Christmas catalogue with the largest number of pages devoted to toys since 1941. So is Montgomery Ward and Company.

Some changes in types of toys were noted by manufacturers. Cannons, guns and tanks, popular during the war period, are disappearing from the market. Jeep models are holding their own. And the war has left toy makers with various "electronic" devices.

Here are some of the newest items:

A model train with automatic whistle, electronic action, and odorless smoke that comes from the engine's stack in realistic puffs.

An all-steel 2-in-1 "skoot-bar," which combines the features of a wagon and a skooter. It will cost around $14.95 at retail.

One mail order house is offering an electric kitchen range that cooks and bakes at $5.95. It has a metal toy cooker, deep frying pan, stew pan and "two fully enclosed, insulated, safety heating units."

Back again, also, will be the "magic-skin" dolls—a doll whose skin "feels and wrinkles like a real baby's," and which can be bathed and powdered.

And baby can have a rattle with metal chimes inside.

MRS. DICK SAYS SHE WILL APPEAL DEATH SENTENCE

Convicted After Trial Of Nine Days; Will Hang January 7th; Mercy Recommended

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 17—(CP)—Today, differing from her program of the last nine days, Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick remained in Barton Street jail, will stay there now under sentence to be hanged Jan. 7.

Today it was the turn of her father, Donald MacLean and her friend of some months ago, William Bohozuk, to leave the jail for Wentworth county court house to stand trial before an Ontario Supreme Court jury and Mr. Justice A. Urquhart on a charge of the March 6 torso slaying of John Dick.

For Mrs. Dick her day in court was done, pending appeal of her sentence of death in the killing, delivered last night by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow at conclusion of her nine-day trial.

For her this was justice in the courts on the case that broke last March 16 with the finding of the body of her husband on Alban Mountain in Hamilton. The head and the legs and the arms had been hacked from it.

This, she said in the last of five statements given to police and entered as testimony in her trial, was a killing by Bohozuk, a man whose attentions to her were resented by the street car driver she married last October. She said it was done with her father's gun and that her father gave Bohozuk $300 to $400 to do the job.

Thought There Was Motive

As for a motive, the charge of His Lordship drew it in boldface underline: "I thought there was plenty of motive".

He pointed then to the accused's self-confessed intimacy with Bohozuk only five days after she married Dick last Oct. 4 to the constant bickering between husband and wife and Mrs. Dick and her parents and between Dick and his wife's friend, and Dick's death-ride threat, as related by Evelyn, to start divorce proceedings and name Bohozuk the co-respondent.

The nine-day self assumed air lasted to the very end,, while she heard sentence and while she was being conducted through a shrieking crowd to the taxi that would take her back to Barton Street jail.

Here and there were signs the crowd had no sympathy for Evelyn Dick but mostly it was a mass of women and children and men who had gathered as on previous nights just to have a fleeting glimpse of the dark-eyed young woman whose photogenic qualities and widespread publicity in the press have made her the focus of all eyes here.

Nearly Two Hours Out

The jury was eight minutes short of two hours in reaching the verdict they delivered at 5.58 p.m., marching stoney-faced into the court room.

Windsors Robbed of Large Amount of Valuable Jewelry

London, Oct. 17 —(CP)— Surrey police announced today that burglars Wednesday night broke into the country home of the Earl of Dudley at Sunningdale, Surrey, and stole a "considerable amount of jewelry" belonging to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor.

The Duke and Duchess are guests of the Earl during their visit to England.

Police disclosed no details of the robbery.

"The Duchess and I are victims of this robbery," the Duke told reporters. "The case is entirely in the hands of the police and I have, therefore, no statement to make."

Scotland Yard detectives were summoned to Sunningdale and spent the early morning hours searching for clues.

The Earl's home, Ednam Lodge, overlooks the Sunningdale Golf Course, and its grounds are separated from the fairways by a 15-foot box hedge. Sunningdale is near the famous racing centre of Ascot and within an hour's drive of London.

Unofficial reports said no evidence had been discovered to indicate that entrance to the Lodge had been gained by force and the theory was advanced the burglars had entered the ground by the main gate and walked boldly through the main doorway.

Within the last several months jewel thieves have staged a number of daring robberies in the London area, preying chiefly on the homes of wealthy west enders. Among the victims was Actress Beatrice Lillie—Lady Peel in private life—who lost more than £3,000 ($12,000) worth of jewelry and other valuables early this month.

Press Association said the Duchess of Windsor owns jewels estimated to be worth £250,000 ($1,000,000) but there was no estimate of the exact amount stolen..

Her collection includes complete sets of blue sapphires, rubies, emeralds, diamonds, topaz onyx and turquoise.

Bodies of 11 Nazi War Criminals Cremated; Burial Place Unknown

Nuernberg, Oct. 17 — (AP) — The bodies of Hermann Goering and the 10 hanged Nazi war criminals have been cremated and the ashes "dispersed secretly," it was officially announced today.

The announcement of the disposition of the bodies was made at 5:35 p.m. by Col. B. C. Andrus prison commandant.

He spoke in the name of the Allied Control Council, which was in charge of all details of the hangings and burial.

A six-line communique cleared up the major mystery in the wake of the hangings. The bodies were removed from the prison at 5:34 a.m. Wednesday (11:35 p.m. Tuesday, E.S.T.) in two sealed trucks, guarded by jeeps.

Where cremation took place was not disclosed. The dispersal details were wrapped in equal secrecy.

Keitel Planned Suicide

Prison authorities disclosed that Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel had planned, like Goering, to evade the gallows with suicide, but was foiled by a watchful guard.

As a special board of three United States Army officers sought to determine how Goering managed to poison himself, Col. B. C. Andrus, the commandant, revealed the Keitel story for the first time:

Keitel had returned to prison after a court appearance one day recently and was changing to old clothing, as was customary. As he shifted his wallet he pushed something down in a fold.

An alert guard noticed it and grabbed the wallet. In a corner he found a long, sharp piece of metal easily capable of slashing the wrists or the throat. Keitel shot the guard a dirty look, but said nothing. He refused to explain how he got it.

Sources inside Nuernberg jail said 12 German employees were under constant scrutiny in connection with the investigation into how Goering obtained the cyanide with which he beat the hangman.

These sources, unidentifiable by name, said the Germans were not under arrest but described them as being "protectively held" until they are completely cleared of all possible complicity in the 11th-hour suicide by which Goering managed to precede his ten doomed colleagues in death.

The Army Board investigating the Goering suicide, meanwhile, called in, one by one, every person who conceivably might have had some connection with the pudgy Reichsmarshal in his last days and nights in the death block.

Col. Richard McConnell, public relations officer, told reporters the Board was working without any special technical assistance thus far and added that no decision had been reached as to whether such special assistants in crime detection would be called in.

No Arrests Made

He stated emphatically that no arrests have been made in connection with the investigation and that none, as yet, were "contemplated."

In the meantime, the Allied Control Council's Commission which conducted the executions disclosed that it had translations of the three notes Goering left in his cell but said the contents of the notes would not be divulged.

One of the notes was addressed to the prison commandant and there was immediate speculation that Goering might have told how he got the poison and how he concealed it—his last grim joke.

Col. B. C. Andrus, prison commandant, insisted that he believed his own personnel innocent of any wrong-doing. He said that a German lawyer, perhaps in the last days of the trial, may have given Goering the poison vial that enabled him to take his own life.

In this, however, he was in conflict with his assistant, Maj. Fred Teich, who said he was convinced that Goering had found some way to conceal the vial and might have had it in his possession ever since his incarceration after the war ended.

Maj. Teich also sought to explode a circulating theory that one of the prison guards traded Goering the poison for one of the Marshal's gems. Maj. Teich said he had all the jewels safe in the prison strongbox.

Buy $11,307,100 In Savings Bonds On First Day

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—Returns for the opening day of sales of Canada Savings Bonds showed a country-wide total of $11,307,100, national sales headquarters reported here today. There is no specific objective in the current campaign.

Majority of sales so far reported were exclusive of purchases under the payroll plan, which will be reported later, and come from sales agencies close to the main population centres. Many outlying points have yet to be heard from.

On the basis of available figures, Ontario shows the greatest first-day total with $4,777,250, followed by British Columbia with $1,943,450, Alberta with $1,374,400, Manitoba with $1,153,250 and Quebec with $976,650. Saskatchewan reports $455,350, Nova Scotia $313,700, New Brunswick $217,350 and Prince Edward Island $95,700.

THREE OF QUINTS VISIT OTTAWA

North Bay, Oct. 17 —(CP)—Three of the Dionne Quintuplets—Yvonne, Marie and Cecile—are back home today after a train trip to Ottawa for dental examinations.

Their father, Oliva Dionne, who accompanied his daughters to Ottawa, said today the purpose of the trip was a routine check-up of the girls' teeth.

Marie's eyes were also examined. They have been examined regularly since her birth and Mr. Dionne said today that their condition is steadily improving.

ASKS INDICTMENT AGAINST BOHOZUK BE SQUASHED

In the Second Motion Counsel Requests His Client Be Given Separate Trial

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Oct. 17 (CP)—Mr. Justice George Urquart took under advisement today a motion fro mdefence council for a separate trial for William Bohozuk, charged jointly with Donald MacLean with the torso slaying of John Dick last March.

His Lordship also said he would consider during the luscheon recess a motion from G. Martin, K.C., counsel for Bohozuk, which asked that the indictment against the former steelworker be quashed on the grounds tht the third person charged with the murder, Mrs. Evelyn MacLean Dick had not appeared before the Grand Jury and that body instead of hearing her sworn testimony had before it only depositions from her.

Beside Bohozuk in the prisoner's box before Mr. Justice George Urquart sat Donald MacLean, father-in-law of the slain man and father of Evelyn Dick who last night in this same courtroom was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 7 for the torso killing of her husband John.

Sister in Court

Sitting alone in the courtroom was Lillian Bohozuk, sister of the man Mrs. Dick has said slew her husband and disposed of the torso on Hamilton mountain, where it was found last March 16.

Bohozuk, nodded and smiled at his sister when he entered the courtroom. He wore a blue suit nd white pullover sweater.

Mr. MacLean red-faced, peered around at members of the Grand Jury before they were dismissed until next Monday while legal argument went on over the motion to quash the indictment against Bohozuk.

Harvey McCulloch, K.C. Crown told His Lordship that Evelyn Dick's case was now over but she had not been called as a grand jury witness. Instead depositions of her testimony had been placed before the grand jury before it returned its indictment against Bohozuk and Mr. Martin held this to be improper.

Mr. Martin said when the grand jury read the depositions of Evelyn Dick they were at that time not sworn testimony given by Mrs. Dick. Evelyn's case had not been disposed of when she gave the depositions.

Walter Tuchtie, counsel for MacLean associated himself with Mr. Martin's submission.

Wants to Read Cases

His Lordship said he would like to read cases cited by defence before giving his decision and he dismissed the jury panel until 2 p.m.

In a second motion Mr. Martin asked for separate trial for his client. He said the three accused of the torso killing of John Dick had been separately charged at

Visit of Correspondents May Have Tipped off Goering on Execution

By KINGSBURY SMITH
(Representing the Combined American Press)

Nuernberg, Oct. 17 (AP)— A visit by eight Allied correspondents to death row in the condemned block of Nuernberg jail late Tuesday night have prompted ex-Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering to take the poison which enabled him to cheat the gallows of Allied justice.

As one of those eight correspondents, I believe that the commotion caused by our visit may have served to tip off Goering and the other condemned men that the hour of their doom was about to strike.

As the correspondents, escorted by several security officers, shuffled through the narrow corridor, peeking into the small iron-barred portholes of each of the condemned men's cells, it naturally caused a stir.

At the front of each cell door stood a soldier guard whose duty it was to keep constant watch on the man inside the cell. I noticed at the time that some of the guards turned around to see what the commotion was about as we entered and started to move along the corridor.

With most of the correspondents, including the writer, stopping to glance over the shoulder of the guards into the condemned cells, it was only human for some of the American soldiers to turn their heads momentarily to see what was going on.

It is possible that in the moment, or moments, the soldier guarding Goering's cell turned his head and the Crown Prince of Nazidom managed to slip into his mouth the vial containing the Cyanide of potassium.

It was just a few moments before when I had peeked over the guard's shoulder into Goering's cell. Lying stretched out full length on a small iron cot was the bulky figure of the man the Allied governments were most eager to have lead the parade of death to the gallows.

Goering had gone to bed, although the lights of his cell and in the prison block were not yet dimmed.

He was lying absolutely motionless, with his head resting on one side and his eyes closed, as if in sleep. One arm was folded over his chest with the fist closed.

Goering was the only one of the condemned 11 who was in bed. Most of the others were pacing their cells. Some were sitting on their beds, others at the frail little wooden table in each cell.

Attempts to Land On Level Field At Laramie, Wyo.

Eight Sailor Passengers Aboard Wrecked Plane

Laramie, Wyo., Oct. 17 (AP)—A chartered passenger plane bound from Oakland, Calif., to Cheyenne, Wyo., crashed in a blinding snowstorm three miles west of Laramie early today, killing 10 passengers and the crew of three.

The plane was identified by civil aeronautics authority spokesman as operated by the Nats Air Transport Service, a private airline.

Acting Albany County Coroner E. E. night said the plane crashed as it came in for a landing. He said 11 persons were killed instantly and two died in a Laramie hospital.

Among the dead were three women, Knight said. Eight of the passengers aboard the plane were sailors, he said.

The plane, he said, crashed on a level field. It did not burn. An oil field worker en route to Laramie saw the plane crash as he drove by on the snowy Range Highway which runs between the Laramie airport and the sight of the accident.

Knight reached the scene of the crash about 30 minutes afterwards. Bodies he said were strewn over quite an area, and some lay beneath the wreckage. One of the victims was found beneath a shattered wing.

More than two inches of snow covered the ground in the area.

Knight said the plane apparently was eastbound and had intended to land at Cheyenne but was turned back by bad weather.

The bodies were thrown clear of the wreckage which was scattered over an area of 300 square yards.

Knight identified two of the dead as Jack W. Trogdon of Spartanburg, S.C., and Seaman Robert A. Gregory, whose address was not available.

An oil field worker heard the plane crash and notified authorities.

Ketchup Shortage For Lack of Sugar

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—What, no ketchup? Another plaguing shortage is still in existence but the reason, Prices Board spokesmen say, isn't the lack of tomatoes but the lack of sugar. And housewives who have diligently scoured grocery stores for the condiment will keep on doing just that during the coming winter and most of next year. The tomatoes themselves, spokesmen add, won't be wasted because they can be converted into canned tomatoes and tomato juice without recourse of sugar.

Byrnes States Peace Parley Made Progress

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Oct. 17 —(AP)—State Secretary Byrnes arrived home from the Paris peace conference today and declared the 21-power conclave had "made progress" towards establishing organized peace in Europe.

It certainly cannot be called a "failure," Mr. Byrnes told newspapermen at National airport as he stepped off President Truman's personal plane which brought him across the Atlantic.

Mr. Byrnes was scheduled to confer with the President later today. This get-together will be the first personal meeting of Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Truman since Henry A. Wallace criticized Mr. Byrnes' policies toward Russia and then was ousted from the cabinet.

Tomorrow night Mr. Byrnes will make a radio address at a time still to be announced.

Mr. Byrnes' return from the conference, where he was in almost constant conflict with Foreign Minister Molotov of Russia, coincided with new indications that American relations with Russian bloc countries are worsening.

Mr. Byrnes' speech is expected to deal with the whole range of critical issues involved in United States - Russian relations. On top of clear indications that these issues generally were intensified rather than solved by the Paris meeting, the State Department disclosed a new development on the eve of the cabinet officer's return.

Officials said the United States had cancelled a $40,000,000 surplus property credit to Czechoslovakia and in addition had suspended indefinitely a pending $50,000,000 rehabilitation loan to the Czechs by the export-import bank.

The primary reason behind this $90,000,000 slap at one of the countries in the Russian bloc was said to be the Czech backing of Soviet charges at Paris that the United States is resorting to "dollar diplomacy" in Eastern Europe in an effort to advance "American imperialism."

There was no official statement to this effect, but the evidence appears to be that at some critical moment in the long Paris struggle Mr. Byrnes himself ordered or approved the economic crack-down on Czechoslovakia.

CONTROLS OFF METALLIC CLOTH LAME

Washington, Oct. 17 —(AP) — Price controls are gone today from metallic cloth lame — the stuff that makes even dresses glitter, hats dazzle and blouses sparkle. Classing the material as a luxury "chiefly because the tarnishing quality of the metal threads give it short life," the Office of Price Administration said its decontrol action applies to all such cloth containing at least 25 per cent of the metallic yarn.

STRANGER PAID FINE FOR VETERANS

Two former Canadian servicemen who stowed away on a transatlantic liner, living on peanuts and apples for the most of the voyage, were released from a Glasgow, Scotland, jail the other day when a stranger paid their £5 fines. A man who identified himself only as "Mr. Cowan" paid the fines saying he hoped the Canadians, Robert J. McDonald and William A. Spicer, both of Cloyne, Ont., would soon be reunited with their wives.

PHEASANT SEASON IN S. MARYSBURGH ON OCTOBER 25, 26

Open seasons on pheasants in Ontario have been announced by the Department of Lands and Forests. The hours for shooting are between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. on the dates mentioned. The open season for the township of South Marysburg, Prince Edward County, well-known pheasant grounds of this district, has been set by the Department for October 25 and 26.

Hunters are reminded that rifles must not be used during the hunt. The daily bag in this district is three cockbirds. Fees may be paid to the clerk of the township. Residents will pay 25c daily while non-residents will be charged one dollar for each day of hunting.

KINGSTON COUNCIL ADOPTS STREET METERS

Kingston City Council adopted a report of a sub-committee on metered areas and a down-town parking layout the other evening by an 11-5 vote. The original report of this committee was turned back for reconsideration at the last meeting of the city fathers.

CORN CROP IN P. E. COUNTY QUITE HEAVY

Corn crops of the district are showing exceptional yields in some instances. In Prince Edward County, William Armstrong, Greenbush, harvested 15,570 pounds from 14 pounds of seed planting; Farrington Brothers, Point Traverse, got 6 tons from 14 pounds of seed and William Mayne, Ridge Road, got 39,480 pounds from four acres of planting.

RETORTS DISMANTLED, SHIPPED TO U. S.

The huge retorts, part of the equipment of the former Wellington Brick Manufacturing Company in the lakeside village are being dismantled and shipped to the United States. American interests purchased them some time ago and this week started removal operations.

CERTIFICATE OF MERIT GIVEN PHOTOGRAPHER

Official recognition from the Photographers' Association of America for a photo entitled "The Doctor" has been given to Robert McCormick of McCormick's Studio, Front Street. The picture was hung at the recent photographers' Association convention held in Chicago and was one of 400 chosen from over 6,000 pictures.

The certificate of merit from the Association was received by the Belleville photographer this week, the certificate being awarded in recognition of achievement in professional photography. The photo for which the certificate was awarded will be hung for display at the local studio's showcase.

NO FURTHER ACTION PLANNED BY NURSES

No further action will be taken by the graduate nurses of Belleville General Hospital in connection with demands pertaining to conditions of employment submitted by them to hospital authorities on September 12, Administrator Gordon Friesen announced today.

Adjustments of pay for all employees of the hospital have been made. In some instances, the rates of pay for the nursing staff were increased beyond the figure asked for at the September meeting.

TAG DAY FOR SEA CADETS SATURDAY

This Saturday, Oct. 19th., the Optimist Club is sponsoring a tag day for the Sea Cadets, Belleville Division in an endeavor to raise funds for a recreational and training centre.

UNIT INTERVIEWS ELEVEN CREWMEN

Eleven potential ground crewmen for the Royal Canadian Air Force were interviewed at the city hall on Tuesday by members of the mobile recruiting unit which was here for a one day stand, it was learned today.

Four of the applicants appeared suitable for enlistment and were sent to Trenton for further tests and medicals, while three of the applicants had previously seen service with the R.C.A.F. Four were rejected on account of not having the required educational standards.

At Picton seven young men were interviewed, four of them being "re-engagements." Three were rejected for inability to meet educational requirements.

Graham Dried Foods to Construct New Factory

The Graham Dried Foods building which was razed by fire during September with a loss of approximately $250,000 will be rebuilt on a one-storey basis, the local industrial Commission was informed by the owner, Mr. Bruce Graham, at a special meeting of the commission and local manufacturers held Wednesday evening.

Plans call for the erection of the structure with dimensions of approximately 150 feet by 180. The building will be constructed of brick.

The Bata Shoe Company which was scheduled to commence operations in the Graham building at the time of the fire, has already contracted for space in the new building, while it is understood the Clearite Company has acquired space in another building in the city. The Clearite firm had also acquired spaced in the Graham building at the time of the fire.

Pitiful Plight of Chinese Recounted by Missionary At Closing Session of Cavalcade

Dr. R. McClure Urges Canadians to Assist in Rehabilitating Country

DR. R. 'BOB' McCLURE

The terrible need of the Chinese people to enable them to gain their rightful place in the new world and to bring for them a higher standard of living following nine years of civil and international war, was told to a crowded assembly at Bridge Street United Church Wednesday evening at the concluding session of the Crusaders' Cavalcade.

Dr. R. "Bob" McClure, medical missionary from China, in a graphic manner which kept his entire audience following his every word, told of the pitiful plight of the Chinese, of their state of mind following long years of war and urged Canadians to do everything possible to assist with money, materials and personnel.

Cities Mass of Rubble

Leading cities of China are but a mass of rubble as result of frequent Japanese air raids, but it is the scars of the mind which are harder to erase than to repair and replace material damage, according to the speaker.

In illustration of his point the speaker told of returning to America following his service as director with the Friends Ambulance Unit in China during the war.

Returning to America with him were two Chinese girls who had served with his ambulance unit on the Chinese front. As the big ship passed through the Golden Gate at San Francisco the girls were amazed at the size of one particular building one of them that building—and it hasn't even been hit."

America Lucky

"Yes", declared the speaker, "America is the only country which has not been hit. And those two Chinese girls spoke for all the young people of the war, except in America."

"In a country hit by modern war you really have been hit," continued the speaker, "and it doesn't matter much whether you are the victor or the vanquished. It doesn't matter whether you are crushed by the top or the bottom roller.

"People living in Canada should be thankful that they were not hit, but if we are going to have Thanksgiving we must have philosophy and also religion. We were not hit in Canada simply because God has for us a plan and we are part of that plan. We have a responsibility of Thanksgiving.

Minds scarred by nine long years of war cannot be rehabilitated with bricks and cement, and the job will take more than mere money.

But it will take money, money which must be given by the individual as there are limits to what government aid can do. The expression "let the government do it" means that nothing is wanted done. There must be a personal aim in the effort.

Lacks Personal Touch.

Lack of any personal touch was given as being responsible for the partial failure of UNRRA which the speaker stated was due to "trying to do a Christian job on a financial basis."

Materials also must be sent to China—the very materials which are already in short supply in Canada.

"There are only two things to do — we can share alike with the Chinese or we can wait until we have a surplus and then let them have what is needed. It is just too bad that the matter is so simple. Giving a surplus is no sacrifice."

New Workers Needed.

The invisible destruction prevalent among the Chinese people can only be remedied by personnel, continued Dr. McClure. A new crop of medical students and nurses and welfare workers is needed.

It is the nations which have been struck hard which are looking to the future. We in America are not looking to the future, we are protecting the past. But if we wish to become part of this new world, we must practise the spirit of Thanksgiving and accept the responsibility of Thanksgiving.

Industrial Firms Will Co-operate To Bring New Industries to City

Members of the manufacturers' division of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce will do all they can to assist in acquiring new industry for the city of Belleville, it was made known at a special meeting of local manufacturers and the Industrial Commission held Wednesday evening.

Speaking at the meeting Mr. Jack Deacon of Deacon Brothers, Ltd., specifically stated that contrary to a street rumor, established industry in Belleville had no monopoly on labor and would heartily welcome new industry to the city. Manufacturers were all vitally interested in the prosperity of the city he said.

Chairman of the Industrial Commission, R. A. Pringle opened the discussion on the above matter when he told of hearing street criticism to the effect that established industry in Belleville did not want new industry to locate here. The meeting was called specifically to gain assistance of manufacturers in the distribution of the recently published booklet "Industrially Yours."

Need Industrial Sites

Following his official welcome to the representative gathering of local industrialists, Mr. Pringle referred to a recent Chamber of Commerce resolution to city council urging that a by-law be prepared to be voted on by the ratepayers this year with the view to acquiring suitable tract of land for use as industrial sites, and not to be less than 25 acres.

Mayor Frank S. Follwell also referred to the resolution and suggested the area of land purchased be from 200 to 500 acres, as the property would be required for future industrial sites.

Alderman McDougall referred to recent negotiations with the Canadian General Electric Company which firm were interested in county-owned property east of the city for establishment of a branch plant. The firm had decided to locate in Cobourg, however, as this site was closer to the parent plant at Peterboro and branch plants at Barrie and Toronto. He stated, however, that negotiations with the county with the view of purchasing property would be continued.

Civic Airport Required

Bruce Graham illustrated the need for a civic airport here when he stated that this city had recently lost at least two industries because of the lack of a civic airport. Due to lack of an airport business executives lose considerable time when visiting Belleville and therefore the two industries had decided to locate elsewhere.

To this Mayor Follwell stated that the city was endeavoring to establish a civic airport and referred to negotiations now in progress with the Ponton Estate to acquire the property now being used by the Belleville Flying Club.

In an effort to speed matters in the establishment of a commercial landing field, the meeting passed a resolution which will be passed on to city council, advocating the development of a civic airport here.

Harold Armstrong stated he expected the city to expand to the east and suggested that the Industrial Commission, the Chamber of Commerce and the firm of Critoph and Meadows, town planning engineers retained by the city, meet with the view of discussing the acquiring of industrial sites.

Mayor Follwell replied that the city already had received a preliminary plan from the town planners, which if carried through, would provide for expansion for the next 20 years.

Manufacturers present were unanimous in their offer to assist in every way possible with the distribution of the booklet "Industrially Yours." The booklet was declared to be an excellent one and local manufacturers will distribute them to all customers.

C.N.R. Employee Dies of Burns In Hospital

Falling among cinders while at work around the cinder car at the Canadian National Railways roundhouse, James Arthur Woodend, age 40, Brown Street, suffered serious burns early Wednesday afternoon and died eight hours later in Belleville hospital. He was formerly of Shannonville and had been employed by the C.N.R. for nine years.

Two other workers, J. M. Boyd and Andy Knott were with Mr. Woodend when he fell into the cinders but although he was pulled out almost immediately he had suffered critical burns and died of shock and burns.

TRENTON

Golden Wedding Anniversary Is Observed by Dinner

Trenton — Mr. and Mrs. Ben Young of McLellan Avenue, very highly regarded residents of Trenton, were honored on the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary by a dinner given by their daughter, Mrs. George E. White, at her home, 10 Charles Street, Trenton, on Saturday, October 12th.

Mr. and Mrs. Young were married in Trenton fifty years ago by the late Rev. F. W. Armstrong. They are members of King Street United Church.

The highlight of the afternoon was when about twenty neighbors and friends "dropped in" in a body and presented the venerable couple with a beautiful ruby red console set with silver trim. The family presented them with a mantel clock and a sum of money and many other lovely gifts and congratulations were received from relatives and friends in honor of the occasion.

The family comprises three sons and two daughters. They are Roscoe of Trenton, Blaine of Glen Miller, Graydon of Toronto Mrs. Harold Hodges of Deseronto and Mrs. George E. White of Trenton. All were present for the anniversary occasion including fourteen grandchildren.

Mrs. Young received the guests gowned in black crepe with gold trimming and a corsage of red roses, while Mr. Young who celebrates his 93rd birthday next January, was at her side. Mrs. Young enjoys just a fair measure of good health but Mr. Young is very remarkable for his years, an interesting conversationalist, he takes a keen interest in world affairs and sports and can quote at length from memory.

Out of town guests present for the occasion were: Mrs. A. E. Sharman and son Gerald of Buffalo, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sharman and son of Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Mrs. Mary Wells and daughters of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. George Tice, Belleville; Mrs. George Cornish, Belleville.

Child is Killed, Hit by Transport At Springbrook

Darting out onto the highway while he was at play in front of his home at Springbrook, John W. Campbell, age 7 years, was fatally injured at mid-afternoon on Wednesday when struck by a northbound Smith Transport truck. The lad died three hours later in the Belleville hospital, where he was rushed by Bush's ambulance.

According to O.P.P. Jack Hatch of Madoc, who assisted O.P.P. Hector Gould of Marmora in making the investigation, the family had just moved to Springbrook from Toronto the day previous to the accident. It was believed the child darted directly in front of the truck with the driver, Melville Holmes of Peterborough, having no chance to avoid the accident.

The deceased lad was born in Toronto being the son of John W. Campbell and his former wife, now Mrs. Laura Jane Wasik of Springbrook. Surviving in the family are one son, Edward Campbell, age 9, of Lindsay, and Sharon Ann Wasik, age 1 year, of Springbrook.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, until Thursday evening then at the home of the family in Springbrook; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Film Depicts Work of Alberta Mission Hospital

Graphically illustrating United Church mission work in Canada, the color motion picture "Western Hands Are Sure" shown at the closing session of the Crusaders' Cavalcade at Bridge Street United Church was viewed by hundreds of church workers of the city and district Wednesday evening.

The picture has Lamont Hospital in rural Alberta as a theme and illustrates the life work of Dr. A. E. Archer, founder of the hospital, from the year 1903 until the present time. The hospital today is rated as one of the best small hospitals in Canada, having equipment and efficiency not customarily associated with the smaller hospitals.

A vivid record of Dr. Archer's 40 years of missionary service in the Alberta community is presented in an almost professional manner by the photographer Rev. A. C. Moorhouse, the film rating as one of the best on missionary work.

A sidelight on the showing of the film was the presence of the wife of the founder of the Lamont Hospital, who stopped off here while her distinguished husband was en route to Ottawa to attend a medical convention. Present at Bridge Street church with Mrs. Archer, was the sister of Dr. Archer, Mrs. J. U. Robins, of Wellington, wife of Rev. J. U. Robins, former minister at Trenton and Wellington.

MRS. DICK SAYS

Mrs. Dick, 26 only last Sunday, watched them quietly and composedly and the judge warned against any courtroom demonstration.

Jury Foreman Charles Paupst intoned: "We find the accused guilty as charged with a recommendation of mercy."

Then with the accused standing Mr. Justice Barlow asked had she anything to say.

"I want to appeal my case".

The words were slung together, none too strong.

The sentence: "Solitary confinement until the seventh day of January when you shall be taken to the place of execution and there hanged by the neck until dead. . ."

Spirits Sank

A police matron walked away with the prisoner, her last appearance here in the now-familiar black beanie, black dress and fawn coat. Attendants said her spirits sank in the waiting room as she gathered up her belongings but she had a smile by the time she reached the courthouse steps where the crowd watched her join with police in pushing a way through.

There had been scant comfort for her at any time in the austere courtroom once the jury returned. The one colored man and 11 white showed by the grim set of their faces just what their decision had been.

Could Read Answers in Faces

She watched them tramp in, and with no trace of a smile herself could read their answer as well as anybody else in the courtroom.

For nine long days they sat while the Crown produced 109 exhibits and masses of testimony, much of it circumstantial and much of it confusing.

They heard her first statements to police about a "Windsor gang" that did the killing and her drive with an unknown man she later identified as "Romanelli" and still later said was a fabrication, to dispose of the torso.

Last came her fifth and final statement to the effect she last March 6 drove the borrowed car with John Dick beside her and Bill Bohozuk in the back with her father's gun; that when Dick threatened to start divorce proceedings and name Bohozuk as a co-respondent Bohozuk drew the gun and fired two shots into John Dick's head, then shot him again in the body.

John Dick wrapped in a blanket, was taken next to her garage placed there by Bohozuk and his head and limbs hacked off. She saw the body the following night with the head "nearly cut off". The arms and legs were gone and three nights later Bohozuk, so she said, dumped the body on the brow of Hamilton's mountain.

Gave Lie to Statements

The Crown introduced pieces of bone taken from ashes about Evelyn Dick's home and in her home and brought in evidence to show these were human bones, bones from the same parts of a body as were missing from that of John Dick.

In her final story to police, related April 12 as she re-enacted the crime, she gave the lie to earlier statements and in his charge to the jury Mr. Justice Barlow said they would have to decide for themselves how much and which statements they should believe.

The Crown Prosecutor T. J. Rigney, K.C., pictured her as a deceitful woman who did not even give her right name and she married her husband and whose deceit ran on up to and after his death. He pointed to her own statement of giving money to Bohozuk to arrange her husband's death, stressed expert identification of the torso and the human bones.

Defence Counsel John J. Sullivan saw his client as a young, pretty, fanciful woman who like a small child lived in something of a dream world of her own stories. She might have been reaching out for something better than the disturbed home and life she had "and gone too far".

PLANT UNDERWAY

Kitchener, Oct. 17 —(CP)— Maintenance workers today started preparation work for eventual return of production employees at the Dominion Rubebr Company's tire plant here.

Settlement terms, agreed upon yesterday by a rubber union negotiating committee and company representatives, are to be put before a meeting of Local 80, United Rubber Workers (C.I.O.) tonight, union officials said.

Union officials neither confirmed nor denied a statment to a Hamilton meeting last night that the Dominion tire plant settlement agreement was a total of 16 cents, 13 cents to be paid at once.

IN MEMORIAM

EGGLETON — In loving memory of a dear wife, Clara E. Sprague Eggleton, who departed this life October 17th., 1945.

In sorrow we waited day by day
And watched her suffering there;
Slowly but surely passing away
From the pain she scarce could bear.
And then God called from His throne above.
Her suffering and pain is past;
We know she has gone to realms of love,
And in heaven has peace at last.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by her Husband, Sisters and Brothers.

Many Accidents On Town Streets

On Saturday last, a taxicab owned by Graham's Taxi was damaged to the extent of about $300.00 when it was in collision with another car on Sidney Street. The driver of the cab was Joseph Gould, Jr., of 107 Dundas Street, East, Trenton. Gould was driving his cab south on Sidney Street. A second car driven by David Cotten, 170 Sidney Street, was travelling north and the driver had pulled to the left side of the street to go into his driveway when both cars collided. The impact knocked both cars off the road and over the boulevard. Gould and a passenger Betty Wannamaker of R.R. No. 7, Trenton, were both thrown out of the taxi and the latter received a head injury, but upon being examined at the office of Dr. E. A. McQuade, it was found to be only slight. Neither of the drivers was injured. The damage to the Cotton car was estimated at about $200.00. No charge has yet been laid.

Gladwin Lang of 553-A Bloor St. West, Toronto was riding his motorcycle east on Dundas Street on Saturday when opposite the Shell Service Station his front wheel struck a hole in the road. Lang lost control of his machine and was thrown to the pavement. He received cuts and bruises and his motorcycle was damaged.

William McWaters, 149 Dundas Street, Oakville, was driving a truck owned by the Oakville Basket Company, north on Front Street. Another truck owned by the Canadian Oil Co., Toronto, and driven by Norman Brown, 507 Front Street, Trenton, collided with the rear of the first truck causing considerable damage to radiator grill and left headlight. The truck driven by McWaters was slightly damaged.

John H. Johnson of Consecon had his car damaged slightly at the intersection of Front and Dundas Streets and a truck driven by Alfred Hopkins, 163 Dundas St. E., Trenton, was also damaged when both vehicles were involved in a minor accident.

Firemen received a call on Monday from the home of Jack V. Neely, 48 Nicholas Street where they fought a blaze of unknown origin for a considerable time before bringing it under control. Most of the damage was confined to the attic.

On Saturday night last a taxicab from Brighton owned by "Scarbourne Taxi" was proceeding east on No. 2 Highway about 3 miles west of Trenton when it left the highway striking a telephone pole. The cab then careened miraculously between a second telephone pole and a tree without striking either. It continued on to uproot a tree about eight inches in diameter, coming to a final stop in a field on the right side of the highway. The car was a 1946 Mercury. Injuries sustained are not known at present but it is thought that the occupants escaped with a shaking up. The taxicab was very badly damaged.

Buy Savings Bonds

Canada Savings Bonds, a new investment for Canadians, are now on sale. Hitherto Canadians have been buying Victory Bonds and so great has been the desire expressed by those who have bought the Victory issues that it has been decided to give the Canadian people the opportunity of saving by this new issue and so carry on the plan of putting aside savings in government issues.

This is the opportunity which has come to the doors of the Canadian people and there are indications that the buying will be in great volume. The people learned the value of government securities during the years of war and that many will want to buy this new security will undoubtedly be proven by the demand.

The issue is attractive, not only in that it is a government bond, but also in that its rate of interest is good and that the bond can be turned into cash at par with accrued interest at any time without any difficulty. Canadians as a nation have had sufficient training during war years to come to the realization of the superior character of government bonds and now these new Savings Bonds which are backed by the whole credit of the Dominion and its people, are offered. One point that will appeal is that these bonds are not subject to fluctuation of the money market. If it is found necessary to cash them, the owner gets the full par value plus the earned interest at the rate of 2.75 per cent.

That the need to save is still important to recognize at this time is clear enough to every citizen. The principle of saving is one which has been praised as of the highest importance to the one who would save and to the state.

The new issue is a gilt-edged investment. It inspires thrift and confidence. There is not the risk of loss. That is one of the points of the appeal which the Savings Bonds possible.

Canadians will no doubt buy them up to the fullest capacity of their means to do so.

Nazi Leaders' End

Foul Hitler's foul associates in the infamous regime that cursed humanity have gone to their doom, carrying down with them vestiges of that tyranny and aggression which darkened the earth for years with fear and with the sufferings of war. Tuesday midnight at Nuernberg prison eleven of the men who had been in the inner counsels of Nazism under Hitler ceased to exist, the chief of them Hermann Goering, head of the Luftwaffe and No. 2 Nazi, second only to the self-styled "Fuehrer," dying a suicide by poison and the others led to the gallows in grim procession to pay with their lives at the end of a rope as forfeit for their crimes. This was the final scene of retribution for the awful rule of calculated evil in which every imaginable crime was perpetrated by the Nazis, in which those under their control were trained to do evil upon those who opposed this devilish system of Nazism that planned to rule the world. Followed by the curses of millions upon millions of the people of earth, who had felt the cruelties of their deep plottings and conspiracies against human beings and against other states, they arrived at a fitting end. Goering, unable to face the natural end of his ruthless course of conduct, fled the gibbet by taking deadly poison, the same drug that Goebbels and Himmler had used to escape trial and punishment.

It has been pointed out by Justice Jackson of the United States Supreme Court that Goering's suicide "killed the myth of Nazi bravery and stoicism and deep conviction." Typically of the way of evil which Nazi leaders had adopted they all died as criminals, their hands against humanity, apparently seeing in their deeds nothing to repent of, except that they were caught and brought to justice.

Fittingly the final disposition of the Nazis' bodies will remain unknown. The last record of the bodies is that they left the prison at 5:30 Wednesday morning before dawn in two vans under armed escort.

The end of these eleven men was the natural termination of a way of life that was built on inhumanity and wrong-doing, on the spirit of greed and autocratic sway of power, feeling a sense of responsibility to no Higher Power and defying the principles of humanity with diabolic pleasure in making humanity suffer and die. They all lived to do evil and had they had their way would have made evil dominant on earth. But right has triumphed over wrong and the evil have been broken.

Humanity rose in its might and smote them and their sway, foiled their plots, crushed the inhuman empire of death they erected upon the lives and bodies of hundreds of millions of their victims in Europe. These Nazi leaders were found to be evil and unfit to live. And now these eleven men serve to point a moral, that the wages of sin is death and that anyone who would deceive himself as to believe in evil, who would flout humanity and defy its principles and spirit and who would do as the Nazis did deserve, as these leaders and other lesser criminals who were part of the rule of Nazism, the end that came to them. In their overthrow they carried down their country into ruins and rubble, from which condition Germany can be redeemed only by the careful co-operation of the United Nations, which have the task of trying to train the people of that country in the ways of a state that is fit for association with the free nations, and as a member of the organized society of states which have a code of morals and honor infinitely beyond the aims of the fallen Nazi tyranny.

By the will of humanity which suffered under their domination, the eleven Nazi associates of Hitler were sent to their doom. That attitude of humanity the world over is now written in the laws of the world that such transgression and tyranny as that practised by Germany and her Nazi leaders are not wanted, and that the world has no place for their foulness. That is the warning that their end holds out to anyone who in the future might so become the enemy of humanity as to try to follow the ways of Hitler and his infamous crew of selfish men.

Those who would have destroyed everything that is free and good on earth have destroyed themselves. Their evil deeds placed them on the gibbet and forced the deadly poison into Goering's mouth. They tried to live on others, in so doing they destroyed themselves and become a sign and symbol before all the world of the end of such ways — which is death.

Short Skirts

About the time everyone becomes used to seeing women's legs — or at least that part of them below the knee — fashion decrees skirts shall go down. And down they go eventually, for what woman resists fashion? asks The Edmonton Journal.

Just the other day we were told by the manager of a women's dress department that the new skirts are two inches longer. He added, surprisingly, that most of the ladies didn't like them that way and were having them shortened.

A little later, an observer at a social "event" noted that many of the skirts were a trifle longer!

Down in the tates, a regular tug-of-war is on between the Government — the Civilian Production Administration — on the one hand and the women's dress industry and the National Wool Growers' Association on the other. The latter are trying to pull skirts down just a couple of inches; the C.P.A. says "No," not until next spring, anyway. Lowering the hem line, says the C.P.A., might cost the national economy 50,000,000 yards of fabric a year.

But next spring! Ah! Then house and street frocks may be an inch or two longer and evening dresses sweep the floor, or the pavement, or the dust, or anything the lady likes. And designers will be allowed to run riot on big sleeves, frills, flounces, pelats and deep hems.

On with the yardage, let dress be unconfined — and the women hobbled. And let no man criticize, not until the male of the species completes his own sartorial freedom.

YOUNG WIVES

Her mother would have spared her
The thousands cares she knows,
But wisely she prepared her,
And now she cooks and sews.

She keeps a little garden
And trims a pantry shelf.
And lets her soft hands harden
With tasks she does herself.

She washes pillow cases
And sheets and blankets, too,
And goes to market places,
And thinks it fun to do.

These girls of ours who marry,
To face such troubled years,
As bravely burdens carry
As did their pioneers.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 17th., 1926.

Mr. J. R. Dyer of Barrie, formerly of the Royal Bank here, is in town today.

Messrs. Vernon Weir and Albert Armstrong left yesterday on a trip to the Pacific Coast.

Within a few days tenders for the building of the new high school will be called and on receipt of these the members of the city council will be requested to furnish the funds.

Dr. F. W. Hill and Mrs. Hill have returned home from Ottawa.

Mr. Louis Allore of Rochester, N.Y., is visiting his brother Mr. Philip Allore in this city.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 17th., 1916.

Mr. A. A. McDonald of Marmora was a visitor in town today.

Mr. Henry Burgoyne of Toronto, formerly of Belleville, is visiting friends here.

Dr. O. A. Marshall has returned home after a trip to Western Canada.

Mr. E. B. Harris will leave tomorrow for the Old Country where he will visit his son, Gunner Lionel Harris.

At the rifle ranges in the armouries this evening the members of the Belleville Rifle Association will open the winter season with a shoot. Harry Day and W. J. Andrews have each donated a pair of wild ducks to be given as prizes.

Mr. B. R. Quincey, city bread inspector, seized 69 loaves of bread which were underweight this morning. The bread will be given to charitable institutions here.

Mr. Judson Gunter, Reeve of Tudor and Cashel, was in town today.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 17th., 1906.

Mr. Roy Walters is home from Toronto to spend a few days.

Mr. C. E. Cameron of Toronto spent yesterday in town.

Work will be commenced at once in putting down a tar macadam walk on South George Street.

Work is progressing in putting down the granolithic walk on West Bridge Street. It will be the last walk to be built this year.

Mrs. H. Bateman is visiting friends in Bancroft.

This city has, without doubt, much to be thankful for; the old town has not been so prosperous in many years. New houses, new verandahs, new sidewalks; money for everyone who wants to work. Get down on your knees Thanksgiving Day and give thanks to a kind Providence which can take away as easily as it gives.

Mr. John Kerr, formerly of this city, has returned here to reside after living for sixteen years in Kingston.

Mr. and Mrs. James Taylor of Toronto, formerly of this city, have issued invitations to their silver wedding anniversary.

Windsor Plant Of Chrysler Co. Accepts Terms

Windsor, Oct. 17 (CP)—End of the 121-day-old strike of Chrysler Corporation workers here and at Chatham, was expected today, following completion of union balloting on terms of settlement.

More than 4,000 workers have been involved in the strike, called by the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) June 18 to enforce demands for $2-a-day wage increases and a 40-hour work week for employees in Windsor and Chatham Chrysler plants.

Last night by a 2-1 vote, employees of the Windsor plant accepted the Rand formula of union security—major issue in the strike. Chatham employees vote on the formula Thursday.

The Rand formula, evolved by Mr. Justice Ivan C. Rand of the Supreme Court of Canada during the Ford Company of Canada strike a year ago, calls for all employees, union and non-union, to pay union dues through payroll deductions, in return for all voting privileges and participation in all benefits derived through union-management negotiation.

Balloting started yesterday afternoon on the terms of settlement, recommended by union officials, and the result will be announced some time today when the votes have all been counted.

DREW ACCUSES

"As you have pointed out, I have consistently maintained that the conference should be master of its own proceedings and agenda," said Mr. King. "That, however, does not imply that the conference has power to make decisions which are binding on the Dominion government or on any Provincial Government.

"Such a claim would be a denial of the autonomy of all the governments concerned and of the exclusive constitutional responsibility of each government to its own legislative body for its financial policies."

He had stated that the Dominion Government was prepared at all times to consider specific proposals on any aspect of Dominion Provincial relations.

"You do not express a willingness," he told the Ontario Premier, "to discuss any such proposals with the Ministers and officials of the Departments of the Dominion Government immediately concerned but claim it is your right to present your views to the whole conference."

On National Basis

Premier Drew said in his letter yesterday that his government had emphasized at all times that health services and social services should be on a national basis and could only be maintained at a uniform level if there was agreement among all the governments.

The point upon which most of the provinces disagreed with the Dominion Government was the refusal of the Dominion Government to give any assurance that the taxing powers of the Provinces in fields other than income tax would be respected, Mr. Drew said.

"You stress the point that the conference could not bind any government by its decision, a proposition incidentally which has never been questioned at any time," he told Mr. King. "Nevertheless you say that the Provinces must be bound by the decision of the Dominion Government as to what tax arrangement they can make because that arrangement, arrived at without consultation, has in your opinion gained the force of law by parliament's approval of Mr. Ilsley's budget address.

"You deny the very principle you assert in bringing this unfair pressure on Provinces which are in need of financial assistance. Ontario is not in that position but it does sympathize with those Provinces which have found it necessary to accept the arbitrary terms of the Dominion government. In the interests of the whole Canadian economy and of the people of every part of Canada, the Ontario Government will continue to resist this wholly improper and dangerous trend in Dominion-Provincial relations."

Duplessis Agrees

Montreal, Oct. 17 (CP)—Premier Duplessis, speaking at a banquet tendered the Union Nationale Government heads, said last night he had not closed the doors to further Dominion-Provincial negotiations but that he was not chasing after an invitation, for that would not be dignified.

Collaboration with Ottawa in enterprises involving the Dominion and the Province of Quebec will have to be worked out on concurrent legislation at the two capitals, Mr. Duplessis said.

Mr. Duplessis, who spoke both in French and in English at the banquet attended by more than 1,000 Union Nationale supporters, said he was willing to work with any Federal party that worked with the Province along the lines of Confederation and against any Federal party which did otherwise and sought to sap the bases of Confederation.

Afraid of Rights

All Federal Governments have always had tendencies toward centralization with the idea of seizing the rights of the Provinces, the Premier said.

He warned that if exponents of centralization had their way, Provincial rights would disappear, centralization had their way, pro- there would be no national unity within the country.

Speaking on the same night that Premier George Drew of Ontario charged Prime Minister Mackenzie King of breaking faith with the Provinces, Mr. Duplessis was loudly cheered when he said "when they ask me to sell my Province, my race, my brothers, the answer is never."

Mr. Duplessis and his Ministers had gone to the Dominion-Provincial Conference as Premier and Ministers of a Province, not as party men.

There had been a lack of cooperation and continual provocations. The Federal Government members had not shown a spirit of collaboration and logic needed to be shown by men seeking cooperation.

Would Make Them Tenants

Although there were centralizers in both good and bad faith, all were "illogical and unjust."

The Premier charged that there was an "evident desire" at the Dominion-Provincial Conference to reduce the Provinces' power and make them tenants in their own home.

Centralization led to Communism, Hitlerism and Fascism.

One of the Federal proposals at the conference was national health insurance "with disguised Federal control." This would mean the entry of Ottawa into educational matters.

With such a national health system, it would not be long before Ottawa insisted on the qualifications of doctors. This meant control of university education followed by control of secondary education and primary education.

Not a Game

No Prime Minister at Ottawa wished that to come.

The Ottawa old age pensions were to be for everyone, even millionaires. Quebec was in favor of pensions "for those who need them, not for millionaires."

The Union Nationale leader said:

"A conference between the Dominion and the Provinces is not a game where one seeks to get the better of the other, where one political party seeks to outsmart the other, but it is, or should be, a meeting where all work for Canada. Collaboration is not a one-way street. I am willing to collaborate but not to be an accomplice. Complicity means selling my Province, and I was not given a mandate to sell my brothers."

IF YOUR HEART IS NOT STRONG USE YOUR HEAD

Whatever your heart trouble may be if you are not under the care of a physician, don't get into the habit of moving about as tho you expect to pop out any minute. Patients who have had one or more anginal or thrombotic episodes seem just a little ridiculous to me when they take to walking on eggs and avoiding every little activity that makes life worth living. There is no evidence that such morbid, cheerless existence prolongs the life of the heart disease victim a single day. On the contrary there is some evidence that a reasonable amount of physical exercise is conducive to greater longevity for heart disease subjects. All this I have said before and now I add to that, any and every kind of heart disease. Remember, please, I said if you are not under the care of a physician.

In the same article I said if you are not under the care of a physician I advise you not to monkey with digitalis.

You are under the care of a physician if your physician examines you and advises you at least once a month. It is hardly sensible to do this or not do that for any kind of heart trouble for weeks and months after you have visited the physician for examination and instructions. Most Wiseacres who monkey with digitalis actually consulted a physician last winter or anyway just a few years ago.

Even if it kills me—and I use the word in the newspaper sense —I must tell what I believe is the truth about this, to wit:

If I had any kind of heart disease or functional disturbance, I'd take digitalis ONLY if my physician ordered me to take it or else—I mean I had to take it or lose the physician's care.

That covers everything, doesn't it?

Instead of digitalis, or, if I had to take the stuff for a while, along with each dose, I'd take an optimal daily ration of vitamin B complex constantly the year around, just as one takes bread and butter the year around, for B complex, I sincerely (and scientifically) believe, is a real heart tonic.

One reader, who says he was "put on the shelf three years ago with myocarditis" expresses his thanks, particularly for the suggestion that "a reasonable amount of physical activity, work, play, exercise" is generally beneficial for persons with heart trouble, for he was greatly cheered or encouraged by the general idea conveyed and he wants a different attitude .... in fact— believe it or not, carps—this reader incloses ten cents and stamped self addressed envelope for the booklet CVD, which deals with heart and artery troubles. He had long felt a vague curiosity to delve into the subject but until now had dismissed the idea out of fear or dread of learning the truth. Now, he concludes, he wants to learn whatever the booklet may teach him, for it is plain to see that Ol' Doc Brady mixes a good dash GOOD CHEER with his medicine whenever this is at all possible.

The man couldn't have pleased me more if he had sent me a pipe a fellow can smoke.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Circumcision

My brother wet the bed till he was 12 years old. Then mother had him circumcised, which he really needed, and he never wet the bed again. (N. L. R.)

Answer—Thank you. Circumcision is necessary in any case, whether the boy wets the bed or not, if there is any interference with cleanliness or with urination. On written request (no clippings, please) any one who provides stamped self addressed envelope, may have the instructions for correcting the bed-wetting habit.

Too Much Salt

Is there any scientific basis for the assertion that excessive use of salt can cause hardening of the arteries? If so, what is excessive use? How account for the beneficial results from salt tablets prescribed for soldiers and sailors in the tropics? (W. M.)

Answer—I don't know— too much salt would probably contribute towards earlier hardening of the arteries. Meat, fish, milk, eggs are the natural sources of salt. So it is unnecessary to add salt to these or to such milk products as cheese. Vegetables, grains, fruits and vegetable oils or fats naturally contain little or no salt, so it is healthful to do so if you wish. Probably a level teaspoonful of salt is as much as any one should consume in a day, as a natural component of food and as a condiment added to give taste. Every one should take five or ten grains —a tablet or a good big pinch—of salt with every drink of water when sweating much from heat work or play or from great heat— artificial or hot weather. This is advisable to replace the large amount of salt lost in sweat—to prevent heat cramps, heat exhaustion, and to make the water more refreshing.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What animals come down trees head first?

Squirrels, chipmunks and similar light-bodied arboreal rodents are the only mammals that habitually and naturally come down trees head first.

The Chippewa Indian word for squirrel is "atchitamon," head first, and refers to this habit of these animals in descending trees.

Apes, raccoons, porcupines, opossums, kinkajous (Potus flavious) coatimundis (Nasua narica) and other heavier-bodied tree-climbers come down perpendicular trees tail first by preference, using the claws to help support the weight of the body, although some of these species reverse the method when in a hurry or when the tree is inclined.

Bears climb trees in a slow, lumbering fashion and invariably come down backward like a lineman coming down a telephone or telegraph pole. The porcupine, a rodent, descends a tree hindquarters first and uses its tail as a feeler. It is said that a thick rope tied around the trunk of a tree will keep one of these animals aloft for days.

Although the raccoon, a relative of the bear, normally comes down hindquarters first, it is not loath to descend head first when the occasion demands it.

Foxes and the smaller members of the cat family sometimes ascend trees, but they are not true tree-climbers and they come down in a rather unnatural and awkward manner.

The coatimundis, long, slender, raccoon-like carnivorous animals with flexible snouts and ringed tails, are remarkably agile and are said to be the only arboreal mammals of any size that are not particular about the manner in which they descend from trees. They are almost as likely to come down head first as hindquarters first. "When in a hurry," wrote Dr. William M. Mann, Director of the National Zoological Park at Washington, "the coatimundi is very liable simply to drop from the branch of a tree. When hunting them in South America I have seen them coming down like rain—a dozen at a time—with legs outstretched and tail held high. As soon as they strike the ground they rush away through the underbrush but soon climb another tree." Coatimundis are native to South and Central America and one species has been found as far north as California. The name is a Spanish and Portuguese rendering of native words meaning "belt" and "nose" and refers to the animal's habit of sleeping with its nose against its belly.

Kinkajous are relatives of the coatis and raccoons and have about the same general habitat. They are nocturnal aboreal animals with large lustrous eyes and long prehensile tails.

ARCHBISHOP OF YORK ADVISES ANGLICANS

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—The Archbishop of York said that conditions imposed by the Roman Catholic Church upon marriages of Catholics and non-Catholics were "humiliating." He advised communicants of the Church of England against signing any documents pledging that the children of such unions would be baptized as Catholics.

Huge Bacon, Egg Shipment

Liverpool, Oct. 17 (CP Cable)—The refrigerator ship Roslin Castle, known as the "bacon and egg" ship, arrived from Montreal Wednesday with 23,000,000 fresh eggs and 1,900 tons of bacon. Shipping men said this constituted a record cargo of its kind.

SOUTH AFRICA LABOR SHORTAGE HITS EMPLOYERS

Mining and Agricultural Workers Sought in Hinterland to Fill Manpower Needs

(Written for The Canadian Press by BRYAN YOUNG)

Pretoria, South Africa, Oct. 15 (CP)—A manpower shortage like none preceding it has hit South Africa where rapidly growing industries and businesses continue to rob most other spheres of their already meagre supplies of workers.

Official figures show that during the past eight years the number of employees in industry in the Union increased by 150,000 and their salaries by more than £43,000,000 ($172,000,000). In the same period the value of the output of industry increased from £150,500,000 to £330,500,000.

The Union's civil service provides a good example of the drift to industry despite increased salary scales for civil servants. In the public service alone five employees have been leaving daily for the last nine months for work that is better paid.

It is partly because of this shortage of European manpower in the country —and partly to increase the electorate — that Prime Minister Smuts, recently announced that South Africa's doors are to be opened wide to immigrants.

But the far greater problem is the shortage of unskilled African labor on which the country largely depends. The vast majority of unskilled laborers in South Africa are the Africans of the country and many thousands drawn from surrounding territories. Most of these Africans live under the tribal system in agricultural areas and come to work in the towns for periods generally less than a year.

Long-Standing Shortage

The gold mines, among the biggest employers of African labor, have been short of men since 1890. To recruit labor for the gold mines is the full-time activity of two organizations employing between them 500 Europeans and thousands of Africans, who go far into the uncivilized areas of Africa to induce Africans of the hinterland to sign work contracts.

Housing conditions for Africans in towns are extremely unattractive and medical and recreational services are meagre, so that the health standards of urban Africans do not tend to improve. The incidence of venereal disease is put by some authorities as high as 70 per cent. In addition those Africans who work on the mines live an unnatural existence away from their families.

Agriculture is even harder hit as Africans are attracted to the towns by the higher wages offered there. The government plans to establish camps south of the Rhodesian border for Africans who try to enter the Union from adjoining territories without the necessary permits.

These illegal immigrants will be rounded up and given the option of returning home or accepting employments as farm laborers under contracts approved by the native affairs department.

Enlightened employers are convinced that the best way to improve the labor situation is to provide proper facilities for the African and let him have his family with him. This principle is to be followed at the great new government-sponsored steel works to rise at Vereeniging, near Johannesburg.

Chrysler Strike Near Settlement

Windsor, Oct. 16. (CP)—Settlement of the 120-day-old strike of some 5,000 employees of the Chrysler Corporation here and at Chatham appeared possible today as they prepared to cast ballots on two issues arising from the walkout, longest in the history of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.).

The U.A.W. is conducting a ballot from 2-3.30 p.m., at which Union members only will vote to determine whether they will accept settlement proposals recommended by their negotiating committee and plant stewards. The settlement is reported to provide for an hourly wage increase of 12 1-2 cents. The strike was called over demands for a 25-cent increase and a 40-hour week.

Union officials said they expect to announce the result of their ballot by late afternoon.

The Dominion Department of Labor is holding the second ballot, from 4-9 p.m., at which all employees are eligible to vote an acceptance of the Rand Union Security formula under which all employees pay union dues whether union members or not. This formula was applied in settlement of the Ford strike here last January. J. S. McCullough of the department is in charge of this vote and results may not be known until near midnight.

The longest previous U.A.W. strike was at General Motors in Detroit last year—110 days. The longest previous U.A.W. strike in Canada was the 99-day Ford strike which ended last January.

Nuernberg Folk Seen Apathetic To Nazi Chiefs' End

Nuernberg, Oct. 16 (Reuters)—The people of Nuernberg were generally apathetic to the news early today of the execution of the 10 Nazi war leaders and the suicide of the 11th, Hermann Goering.

"Who cares?" one German youth in a back street cafe commented. "We don't."

A German toy-maker expressed the hope that the Allies "will consider their score with the German people settled as far as the common people are concerned." He added: "The trial has shown that German workers and trade unionists were also victims of Goering and his gang."

A housewife who had lost two sons and a sister announced vehemently the fate of the Nazi leaders was too good for them.

"Why didn't we, whose flesh and blood they stole to satisfy their lust for power, see them hang?"

According to Dr. Jakob Leistner, chief prosecutor of Nuernberg and one of the two witnesses for the German people at the executions, Goering's suicide was "unavoidable." He said he had known innumerable cases of the smuggling of articles in and out of prison."

WEDDINGS

JONES—CALDWELL

At high noon, October 14, the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, Lingham Street, was the scene of a very quiet but pretty wedding, when their daughter, Patricia, was united in marriage to Mr. William Robert Jones, of Toronto, son of Mr. Wm. T. Jones and the late Mrs. Jones, of Liverpool, Eng.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride entered the living room to the strains of the Bridal Chorus, making a charming picture in her floor-length gown of ivory satin with sweetheart neckline and long pointed sleeves. Her fingertip veil fell from a crown of gardenias, and she carried a bouquet of red roses and baby's breath.

Rev. J. G. Hornsby performed the ceremony, after which a reception was held with Mrs. Caldwell receiving in an afternoon dress of deep violet crepe, with a corsage of yellow roses.

For a wedding trip to Western Ontario the bride donned a coral pink dress with black accessories, and wore a corsage of pink roses. After their return Mr. and Mrs. Jones will take up residence in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. Wm. J. Doherty, of Claremont, Ont., a cousin of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, Kingston, Ont.

WILBERT—BROWN

Bonarlaw, Ont.—A quiet, but pretty ceremony took place on the afternoon of October 12, at St. Mark's Church, Bonarlaw, when Rev. J. M. Brownlie officiated at the marriage of Hilda McDonald Brown, daughter of Mrs. A. V. Brown and the late Mr. Brown, with Mervin W. Wilbert, of Toronto.

Given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Ronald A. Brown, the bride looked very attractive in a brown tailored suit with brown accessories, wearing a corsage of red roses. She was attended by Mrs. Wm. Hope, of Toronto.

Mr. W. Hope performed the duties of groomsman.

A wedding supper for the immediate family was served in the Quinte Hotel, Belleville, after which the happy couple entrained for points east. On their return they will reside in Toronto.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.A.

Stirling.—The St. Andrew's Women's Association met last Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Roy Eggleton with the President, Mrs. William Anderson in the chair. The meeting opened with prayer by the president, followed by the singing of a hymn. Mrs. Wallace gave an interesting paper on 'Thanksgiving' and a vocal solo, 'Trust in Jesus' was contributed by Mrs. Clark Rodgers accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clayton Tummon. The Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Munroe and an address on the 'Missions' was given by Mrs. Will Shaw, of Ivanhoe, president of the Presbyterial. The meeting closed with a hymn. Mrs. Roy Eggleton, who was in charge of the program thanked all members who helped to make the meeting a success. Dainty refreshments were served and Mrs. Anderson tendered a vote of thanks to the hostess.

ELDORADO - BANNOCKBURN WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The Eldorado and Bannockburn Women's Institute met Thursday at the home of Mrs. Cecil Robinson, with the President, Mrs. Bert McCarey in charge. The meeting was opened with the Institute Ode and the singing of "The Maple Leaf".

During the business meeting 33 members and seven visitors were reported present, five of whom joined the Institute. Mrs. William Chambers was appointed delegate to the convention to be held in Belleville in the near future. It was decided to hold a Hallowe'en party in the Orange Hall, and to do Red Cross work with Mesdames C. Pigden, C. Carman Chidley and George Palmer as leaders.

An address was read to two war-brides who have recently come to the community in the persons of Mrs. Douglas Morrison and Mrs. Armstrong, each of whom was presented with a blanket. These ladies graciously thanked the Institute for these beautiful gifts and were later made members by two ladies who are active in the work.

Mrs. Douglas Pigden reported on the Girls' Club held recently in Stirling, following which Mrs. Douglas Pigden and Mrs. Harold Pigden were appointed leaders for a girls' club to be formed in the community. The Institute made a donation of $5 toward this project.

The program convener had "Legislation" as the subject under consideration for the day. Mrs. Hugh Empey read a paper on this topic, and Mrs. Arthur Robinson contributed the slogan, "Wise laws make contented people?" Mrs. H. Gawley gave a reading, "Canada's Opportunity"; others being given by Mrs. Russell Empey and Mrs. Kenneth Bateman. An article entitled "A Flower Garden Gift", was read by Mrs. Albert Empey, and Mrs. Earl Blakely assisted with the thought suggested in the topic by a paper on Canada, and up-to-date current events were given by Mrs. Beryle Bateman.

At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

Mrs. Englehart, Vice-Pres. Dominion W.A. Gives Address on Women's Day

The Tuesday afternoon session of Women's Day at the Crusaders' Cavalcade opened with a solo by Mrs. Crews of Trenton. Mrs. Elliott presided.

"A Service of Dedication to Christ and His Kingdom" was used for worship, led by Mrs. J. A. Lott.

Mrs. Englehart, vice-president Dominion Board W.A., spoke. She said in part, "through the war we lived strenuously, at high tension, but we cannot relax now, as having attained all that we wanted. . . . The boys say if our church women and men are not behind us now, as they were over there, we will be sunk. . . . We must plan if we do. . . .We have let our W.A. meetings be largely money making, and we have raised millions of dollars, but we need training, study, planning for Sunday School work, personal work, really friendly visiting as church women, with the lonely etc., . . .If the government found the church women solidly behind the eradication of social diseases to save women and children, it would act. If you need help in your study of the needs of working mothers, boys and girls, etc., write to 299 Queen St., West, Toronto. Study the book "Challenge of Women of the Bible to Women of Today". Their citizenship problems are remarkably like ours."

"To my God a flaming heart
To my fellowmen a heart of love
To myself a heart of steel."

Participants in Discussion

The following women of the W.A. and the W.M.S., took part in a panel discussion. Mrs. Ralph Sills, Mrs. G. Dobbs, Mrs. P. MacMullen, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Mrs. Helen Holmes and Mrs. W. Bell on the challenge of the church. They spoke of Christion education, courses in leadership training, week-day church activities, young peoples' work, vacation schools, the home religion committee, the Young Adult movement, evangelism and social service, home missions, foreign missions, trained women in the church, with our greatest need an adequate religion with its central aim the knowledge of God's love as revealed in Jesus Christ. The conclusion of the whole discussion— 'we cannot do the work unless we give time, abilities, and possessions, sacrificially.

Mrs. Elliott introduced Miss Wilna Thomas, travelling secretary for the W.M.S. Miss Thomas said in part "in my experience as an assistant chaplain of C.W.A.C., I asked one girl, 'have you found it very difficult to stick to your ideals in barracks'. She said 'No'. I found that though her mother died when she was twelve, and her father was a confirmed drunkard, her mother had given this girl, with the help of the Sunday School which she attended because her mother wanted her to go, such a firm foundation of Christian living, of distinguishing right and wrong, as would held her anywhere.

"Youth are seeking that which gives vital meaning to life, but they are not sure that Christianity, as we have demonstrated it has the answer to their problems. . . . They are inclined to think religion frowns on anything they 'get a kick' out of. . . We discover that just because our young people have grown up in Canada, a so-called Christian country, they are not therefore Christian—not even if their home community has high moral standards, will they of necessity hold to these standards elsewhere. They have to be led to personal decisions for right living. If they have their minds made up, it won't be difficult.

More Teachers Required

"We need a lot of Sunday School teaching that is vital, times of discussion to work their way through their various problems . . . . .Make a friend of every single youngster. . .Youth are ready to give respect and wholehearted loyalty to the big challenge the church is prepared to give. . . .Many found satisfaction in the army, not found anywhere else. They had never before given up their personal freedom for something big, but the church fellowship is far more vital—a world church, God's own instrument to bring peace, a tremendous thrilling thing.

"A place in the church for every single person, not all to teach etc., but each to find his or her place, to go out in the highways and byways, to meet people, to visit, to find leaders, provide equipment, pass on literature.. . .Have a Christian education committee. . .Let us look carefully to our time and abilities to give them to this most important work."

Congregation Views Displays of Work Done by Societies

Foxboro.—A large number of people spent Friday evening in the church and S.S. room of the United Church ,to view displays of the work done by the different organizations, which were varied and many.

Snapshots of the C.G.I.T. at Moira Lake Camp, literature and pamphlets on the Temperance question, a large table holding Bible stories, jig-saw puzzles and helps for junior pupils of the Sunday School, pictures of the work done by Trail Rangers, and a table of reading material for young people's groups.

The C.G.I.T. groups had some attractive church calendars for sale, and on the platform was a large electrically-lighted map, which was graphically explained by Miss Wilna Thomas of the Crusade Cavalcade. She told of the work being done by missionaries, deaconesses and nurses in the hospitals. Under the direction of the pastor, Rev. L. Shorten, members of each organization told some phase of their work and of their plans for the coming months.

The centre of the altar was occupied with literature for the teaching of all ages, with two attractive worship centres, one an either side, each of which was a picture of Christ.

Later in the evening two interesting films on the "Life of St. Paul" and "Religion in the Home" were shown. The educative evening closed with the benediction pronounced by the pastor.

TYENDINAGA EAST W.I.

Tyendinaga East Women's Institute held their meeting, October 11, at the home of Mrs. Luther Gaylord with 14 members and two visitors present. The meeting opened with the president in the chair.

A delegate was appointed to attend the convention in Belleville. The next meeting is to be postponed and a pot-luck dinner and quilting planned for that day. Mrs. Percy Kimmerly read the splendid paper on "New Ways With Old Ills", prepared by Mrs. Roy Stafford.

Mrs. Wm. Whiteman gave an interesting talk on "First Aid" and demonstrated a tourniquet.

Current events were given by Mrs. Sweetnam, also a reading entitled, "Cooking a Husband". Miss Jean Gaylord conducted a contest with Mrs. C. J. Akey winning the prize. Mrs. Provins thanked the speakers and the meeting was brought to a close. Refreshments were served and a social hour enjoyed. A vote of thanks was tendered the hostess for her kind hospitality.

Women's Club Entertained By Mrs. J.N. Boyd

Under the auspices of the United Prince Edward-Belleville Women's Club a delightful afternoon was recently spent at the home of Mrs. J. N. Boyd, George Street, when members of the Club met for their October get-together with 27 members and three visitors present.

The President, Mrs. M. B. Weese, conducted the meeting using the Ode and The Lord's Prayer as opening exercises, after which she read a poem entitled "Travel".

During the business period plans were made for a bazaar and tea to be held in the near future in the Y.M.C.A. A new member, Mrs. Harold Cunningham, 35 Holloway Street, was sponsored and given a hearty welcome. Mrs. Wannamaker presented the treasurer's report for the past six months, showing a substantial balance, and it was decided to finish the three quilts on hand.

A paper on "Fire Prevention" was contributed by Mrs. G. Gorseline, and a poem, "Power" was read by Mrs. Lent which closed with the thought that the greatest power is the gift of making and keeping friends, thus making a better and happier world in which to live.

Mrs. Percy Parliament, secretary, gave an interesting talk on the Alaska Highway, as described in letters from her son now stationed in the Northland, and pictured in several snapshots he sent to her.

Mrs. Wannamaker conducted a contest on "Birds" with Mrs. N. Montgomery winning the prize.

An enjoyable afternoon was brought to a close with the serving of dainty refreshments by the hostess, to whom a hearty vote of thanks was tendered.

Energetic Club Holds Meeting

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street United Church met Friday evening, in the Sunday School room which had been made attractive with Thanksgiving decorations of fruit and flowers.

The devotional period was in charge of the President, Mr. Don Fraser. The visitors welcomed were, Mr. and Mrs. White, Dr. and Mrs. Craig, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Wagar, Mr. and Mrs. Townsend and Mr. George Wright. The soloist, Mrs. A. Daniels rendered an appropriate selection, "Bringing in the Sheaves".

The program under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Slavins was in the form of a Round Table Conference, from the platform, with four members participating, after which the club divided into groups for discussion on the Conference findings. The summary, under the title "A Vision of the Ideal Christian Church" was presented by Mr. Allen Lennox.

Games and refreshments concluded another evening of good fellowship.

Bright Blouse Brief

By ALICE ALDEN

SOMEWHERE between the dickie and the blouse comes the new "blouse brief", a boon for suit-addicts. Made in one size, it gives a custom fit to all sizes from 10 to 44. A biased-bra fit and a row of adjustable snaps on tapes which fasten in back, takes care of the sizing. There are no sleeves, but shields are built in to protect jacket lining and, best of all, it is made to be worn with an open jacket. We like it! This version of the Maison France design is of starched ninon with Venise type lace cherubs hovering above regal crowns with tiny umbrellas. It has a lace edged neck.

BEAUTY

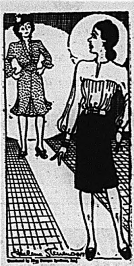
By HELEN JAMESON

Restyling, according to Hollywood

One of Hollywood's smart tricks is known as "restyling". Many a naive, quaint little starlet has been changed into a sophisticated lovely. It's done by experts—make-up artists, dress designers, milliners, physical education specialists, vocal teachers. Marvelous, eh? What's more, these experts say that it is possible to restyle any girl who has a mind open to suggestions. Plain Jane had better wake up. If she can't have beauty she can have chic, which is rated higher than pulchritude by some observers.

It's rather pleasant to know that if you don't like yourself the way you are you can be the kind of a girl you've dreamed about. Even if it is not a complete transformation, there will be modern improvements. Making progress along the good-looks route is stimulating and exciting. It isn't unusual for a rather colorless bud of twenty to flame into a beauteous, compelling bloom at thirty. She's found out what's lacking in her composition.

Perhaps there is need of figure remodelling—bringing out the good points of the silhouette, camouflaging the poor ones. It may be a matter of taking off a few pounds here and there, which miracle can be accomplished at any reducing salon.



If Plain Jane can't have beauty she can have chic

A flattering arrangement of the hair is important. Some girls adopt coiffures that are not sufficiently youthful. Some middle-aged women make themselves appear older because their flowing bobs do not suit their rotund figures. The coiffures must combine smartness and becomingness. That combination may be achieved by submitting oneself to the clever fingers of a hair stylist.

Perhaps, some day in the future—such marvelous things are always happening—the big department stores will employ restyling experts, and the possibilities of remodeled appearance will be placed before any customer who comes in to do a bit of shopping.

The candidate for general improvement will be surveyed by the stylist who will decide upon her type. It seems—so Hollywood says—that not one woman in ten really know her type. An amusing idea, eh? Well, at any rate, the stylist will send the customer an expert corsetiere. Then she will be made over at the beauty shop, will have make-up selected for her, and a new hair-do constructed.

The last step will be the selection of clothes. Chances are that the customer has fixed ideas on the subject, and that, of course, has been her main trouble. Then she must learn how to walk beautifully, how to carry her head, fold her hands, and modulate her voice. By that time Hollywood may be screaming its heads off for her.

Belleville Immunization Week

Vaccination Only Protection Against Ravages of Smallpox

Smallpox is a practically forgotten disease in this country. Many Canadians have never even seen a case. It seems difficult to believe that in the early days of this country whole settlements and Indian tribes were decimated by smallpox. Sixty years ago, when Montreal had a population of 120,000, there were 3,000 deaths and 25,000 cases of smallpox in that city in one year. What is the reason for our present freedom from this deadly and disfiguring affliction? Vaccination is the answer. In vaccinated communities smallpox has become a medical curiosity.

It is well to remember, though, that vaccination must be continued. There is no natural immunity against smallpox. Anyone who has not been vaccinated may catch it. Vaccination is the only protection we have against it. Every child should be vaccinated before he is twelve months of age. Dr. F. O. Wishart of the University of Toronto's department of hygiene and preventive medicine has stated: "Vaccination should be carried out in infancy, repeated at school entrance and again should the disease appear. It is a safe procedure and with modern technique leaves a negligible scar. It remains the best immunizing procedure that we have."

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

You Might as Well Let Him Go

I am a woman of 25 and the mother of 4 children.

My husband claims he loves me, yet he is continuously going out with other women and we have quarreled and separated three times in the past 2 years. Now he has asked me for a divorce.

I love my husband, and I am sure he loves me, yet he gives me no reason for his strange actions. I have filed suit for divorce but, in the end, I couldn't go through with it. I want to make him happy yet I don't want to lose him.

Shall I consent to this crazy whim of his, or hold on to a life of continuous loneliness and heartache? Is it so wrong for me to want to be wanted?

"Impatient"

Of course it is not wrong for you to "want to be wanted"; everyone does. But, at the same time, frankly, it certainly does not appear to me that your husband wants you. You say you are sure he loves you, yet he asks you for a divorce so that he can be free to go to some other woman. This certainly doesn't sound like love.

Since you are so unhappy now, and so lonely, do you think you would be any worse off if you were actually divorced? Is it really worth it to you to hang on to a man who seems to want to get away from you? What happiness can there be in that?

If you are only 25, it is perfectly possible for you—even though it would be hard, of course—to find new happiness, either by yourself with your children, or perhaps, eventually, with another husband. Many women have been faced with this problem and have worked out of it and found new happiness. You can, too, if you have sufficient determination and will-power.

You Need to Grow Up a Little

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 years old and have been going steady with a boy, 19, for almost three years. We have broken up several times, because of his going out with other girls. During one of these breakups, I met a boy, 20, whom I liked very much, and he liked me also. But when my first boyfriend wants me to come back boyfriend came back to me, I went steady with him again after which I broke up once more.

Now that I am not going steady anymore, the boy, 20, has not even bothered to call me and I don't know what to do. Now, my first boyfriend wants me to come back to him. He says we can start from scratch and forget the past, and I really believe him this time. I would appreciate it very much if you would advise me.

"M. W. L."

You don't know what you want, "M.W.L.?" It sounds as though practically any boy would do for you, as long as you have somebody to "go steady with".

I think that your first boyfriend is a little optimistic if he thinks that you can "start from scratch" and forget the past. My guess is that, if you did take up with him where you left off, it would be only a short time before you were breaking up again.

As for the boy who doesn't bother with you anymore, if you threw him over to go back to the first boyfriend, I think he shows good sense. Why should he be interested in going out with you again, when all he would probably have to look forward to is being thrown aside once more when you felt like going back to your other friend?

Before you can get anyone to pay very much attention to you, you will have to show that you are not quite so fickle. Anyhow, 17 is very young to be thinking so much about "going steady".

GOOD MANNERS

When a Child's Name is Included on Christmas Cards

It doesn't seem possible that it is again time for questions about Christmas cards. . .but the questions are beginning to arrive from the "early birds" who are now placing their orders with the printer. Here's the first one:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am having my Christmas cards printed, and the printer is awaiting your reply to this query of mine. My husband and I, would like to include the name of our four-year-old daughter on our cards. Should, then, the names be printed on the cards in this order. . . . "Mary, Michael, and Joan Ross," or should it be "Michael, Mary, and Joan Ross."

Mary

When a child's name is included, the father's name comes first. . . .so "Michael, Mary and Joan Ross" is correct. Or (better-looking and better-sounding, I think) "Michael and Mary and Joan Ross."

Stork Shower For Two Guests of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

One of my sisters-in-law is to have a baby in December and the other in February, and two of my sisters and I would like to give a shower in their honor. What month would you suggest we give this stork shower?

Also, besides giving the shower, we three would like to give each sister-in-law a gift. What would you suggest for this gift?

M. H. H.

This for-two-guests-of-honor stork shower might perhaps be given either the last week in October or the first week in November.

For this particular kind of shower I think there would be a definite advantage in giving each guest of honor the same kind of gift: perhaps for each baby-to-come a small bureau or chest of drawers to hold the gifts to be brought to the shower. Or to each a pram robe, or set of carriage cover and matching pillow-case. Or to each a dainty white dress for the newcomer.

No . . . She Shouldn't Give a Shower!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be maid of honor in a wedding to take place next month, and I should like to give the bride-to-be a party before the marriage, somewhat on the order of a bridal shower. But she has bought the majority, if not all, of the articles she needs. Is it necessary for the guests to bring gifts? If so, how can I invite them so that no one will bring a gift? Or do you think it would be a better idea to give a shower and ask each guest to bring a small gift; for example, "one canned product?"

G. N.

Since today most of the feminine world and their pocketbooks are crying for relief from so many bridal showers, I am sure that the friends of this bride-to-be will sing hallelujahs to you if you don't plant a shower. And, since, as you indicate, shower-gifts are not necessary to this bride, I am sure that she and all others concerned would find it delightfully refreshing to be invited to a tea or other late-afternoon party "in honor of" the bride-to-be. . .or perhaps a Saturday or Sunday afternoon party in honor of both the fiancée and the fiance, and inviting men as well as girls.

EXPECT NEW AREA TO YIELD RETURN IN LUMBER, FISH

Workers on Nipawin - Flin Flon Road in Northern Saskatchewan Cut Thru Forest, Muskeg and Rock

BY NORMAN ALSTEDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Nipawin, Sask., —(CP)— They've finished less than 40 miles of the 1,000,000 Nipawin Flin Flon road but already residents of this northern Saskatchewan boomtown, about 200 miles north of Regina, are counting the revenue they expect from it in multiples of $1,000,000.

The projected 140-mile stretch of gravel is expected to open up new lumbering and fishing jackpots. At present some Saskatchewan lumbermen are displeased with the province's restrictive cutting rulings, enforced to halt steadily declining forest resources. The road will open new areas.

Fishermen will get a break with cheap road transport taking the place of aircraft and snow tractors now employed.

Not only Nipawinians but all Saskatchewan hopes that a larger chunk of one of Canada's major industries—tourist trade—will be lured by the northland attractions made available.

The project of slicing through muskeg, forest and rock got under way last May but they had been talking of it before 1939 when the first survey was made.

Today, it is in part a reality for this agriculturay centre of about 3,000 population and for Flin Flon, the bustling mining which will be the northern terminus of the 100-foot right-of-way.

Not a town will be met as crews cut their way taward each other. The first 20 miles from this end have been fairly easy going through sparsely settled country, but right in front is straigh bush with jackpine, spruce, poplar and birch to hew through. There will be some wading, too, for crews at both ends. At several points along the route muskeg must be drained before the road goes through.

Nature To Rescue

But nature comes to the rescue with the four rivers that must be spanned. Engineers report that the tamerack found in the area will make fine bridges.

The going has been especially tough from the north. The crew there, who sleep in cabooses and eat their meals in the same type of vehicle, have run into rock outcroppings and do not expect to make the 15 miles they aimed this year. Winter operations of bulldozing and clearing are being considered.

In all there are only 26 men at work, but it is a job for machines rather than men. Besides bulldozers, there are tractors graders, draglines and air blast equipment. The last mentioned is used for shifting the rock found only at the northern end.

Crews there can spend weekend leaves at the town of some 7,000 persons whose necessities will bring most of the heavy traffic on the road. Now they depend on aircraft and the Canadian National Railways.

Flin Flon straddles the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border but the largest part and the centre of the huge Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company plant is in Manitoba.

The closest highway in Manitoba runs to Cranberry Portage, 65 miles away. The cry has gone up to hurry and span the gap.

But the country is more difficult than the Saskatchewan route and no definite move has been made by the Manitoba government.

Toronto —(CP)— Two-British born actors believe that unless Canada realizes her need of a national theatre, soon she will lose the cream of her theatrical crop to more drama-conscious countries.

Earle Grey and his wife, Mary Godwin Grey, came to Canada seven years ago. Both have had considerable theatrical experience abroad. At one time Mrs. Grey was understudy to Sybil Thorndike, also to Diana Wynyard. Mr. Grey has written several plays, his latest, "The Quality of Mercy," will be performed in Toronto this fall.

In an effort to stimulate public interest, the couple have formed the Earle Grey players which last summer attracted attenion with an outdoor staging of Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night."

Mrs. Grey would like to see an outdoor theatre really underway in Toronto. She says it would be equally advantageous as a tourist attraction, and especially next year when the Canadian National Exhibition opens for the first time since early in the war.

At the moment Canada is "amateur -minded," she says. There is a jealousy of the professional theatre for which there are no grounds. There isn't any reason why amateurs and professionals should not work side by side as in England.

Pros Set Standard

A professional-type drama is needed to set a standard from which young people can learn. From the amateur theatre promising young actors might be picked to join the national theatre.

"If Canadians aren't interested in developing their own drama you'll find more and more of the worthwhile artists leaving for the United States where they are readily accepted," she warned.

What would a national theatre involve? "A central theatre probably situated in Ottawa and embodying every side of the drama from ballet to opera and with a school attached," Mrs. Grey replied. "Perhaps a professional company in time—travelling right across the country."

"After all Sweden, with its population of seven million, has three national theatres," continued Mrs. Grey,"—why shouldn't we have at least one?"

A national theatre would act as a kaleidoscope, reflecting all branches of the arts. Canadian playwrites would be stimulated to live at home and write about their own country.

PICTON

John deB. Arnaud Sustains Injury In Car Accident

Picton, Oct. 16 — (Special) — John deB. Arnaud, manager of the Bank of Montreal here, was admitted to Belleville hospital Saturday night, suffering from a broken leg as a result of a motor accident east of Napanee. Frank Creeggan of Belleville and P.H.B. Phipps of Picton escaped with a shaking up. Their car was in a side-swipe collision with another going in the opposite direction, and overturned in the ditch. Driver of the other car stated that the lights of the Creeggan-owned car blinded him. The car caught fire after being overturned but the blaze was extinguished before much damage was done. The men were returning from Kingston where they had attended a rugby game, and later a hockey match.

St. Gregory's Parish Charge

Rev. L. B. Garvin, who has been in charge of the parish of St. Gregory the Great for the past 16 months is leaving Picton to take charge of the parish at Tweed. He will be succeeded here by Rev. Fr. Coyle of Read.

Cream Producers Organized

Prince Edward-County Cream Producers' Association was organized at a meeting Saturday night, with the following officers: president, Donald Thompson, South Bay; vice-president, Garfield Mayne, West Lake; secretary-treasurer, Rae Fox. Township directors are to be named.

W. J. Wood, Alliston, chairman of the Ontario Cream Producers' branch of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, in an address referred to cream producers as the forgotten tribe.

The main purpose of organization among farmers is that farmers might say to the buyers. 'This product costs so much to produce, we want that much, plus a living amount,' Mr. Wood said.

Referring to production of war materials, Mr. Wood said that industry was offered cost plus five per cent profit. "The industrialists did not respond to this offer and the profit had to be increased. The farmer was asked for wheat, meat, milk, wool and other essentials of a nation at war, but ceiling prices were imposed on his products. Not only that, but the prices were not based upon a period that was fair to the farmer and he was forced to compete with expensive labor conditions," Mr. Wood said.

The whole milk producers are getting more for their milk than the cream producers, the speaker said. It is not that they are getting too much, but because the cream producers are getting too little, he added.

Discussion revealed a consensus of opinion that price paid for cream is too low.

Work on Plant

Work on Picton's new sewage system, costing $450,000 is to get under way this week, H. J. McFarland, the contractor, advised town council at its special meeting council appointed assessor W. A. Crawford as a special agent to negotiate for the purchase of property incidental to the construction of the sewage disposal system.

It was disclosed that the sewage disposal plant will be built on land adjacent to the town marsh.

Purchase of the town marsh from the government for the sum of $100 is to be investigated.

Council granted a building permit to Ralph Gerow for construction of a dwelling.

The Recreation Centre was granted use of rooms over the fire hall, as more accommodation is required.

Hum Thomas, proprietor of the Star Cafe here has issued a writ against Ralph Gerow for $10,000. damages for slander, based on alleged utterances by Gerow of defamatory remarks concerning the Star Cafe at the meeting of town council on October 7.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Shillan of London, England, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Mowbray this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Isaaks and Joan of Kingston were Thanksgiving guests of Dr. and Mrs. G. C. Caughey.

Miss Mary Prout of Notre Dame convent, Kingston, spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Prout.

Little Benny's Note Book

We ate dinner at Mr, and Mrs. Hewses house today, out of revenge for them eating at our house about 2 weeks ago, and there was strawberry shortcake for dessert, being the swellest looking strawberry shortcake I ever saw with whip creem on top and strawberry jooce running all over, and Mrs. Hews said, Well, I hope everybody is going to have some of my special shortcake.

Which everybody did, and Mrs. Hews said, I know Benny is going to be no exception. How about that, Benny? she said, and I said, Oh well, maybe a small piece.

Saying it for politeness, and Mrs. Hews said, My, such will power. You did eat rather a bounteous dinner, but I thought small boys could never resist unlimited dessert, she said, and pop said, Oh, Benny has a will of iron. One day he actually refused any dessert at all. I cant recall the exact circumstances, but it was either in one of his dreems or else the dessert was skortched rice pudding without raisins, he said.

And what did Mrs. Hews actually give me but the smalest piece of all, being a fierce shock at ferst, and then I thought, Oh well, when she asks everybody if they want more, I wont even mention size.

Making me feel partly better, but the trubble was everybody else ate the last of their dessert snow and even gave signs of leaving a little on their plates, so Mrs. Hews didn't even ask anybody if they wante any mor, including me, and I thought, Gosh shang the luck, that's the last time I'll be polite unless I'm really serious.

Which just then pop said, Benny, it's also a proof of will power to change your mind under certain circumstances. If Mrs. Hews doesn't mind I'll help you to a little dividend while she's busy with the coffee, he said.

And what did he do but quick put the biggest piece of all on my plate.

Proving it's pritty lucky when a fellow's father is his best friend.

QUITE ANGRY AT SPOUSE

Windsor, Oct. 16 — (CP) — On the city police blotter this case went down under the heading of "family trouble." A husband in the process of leaving his wife became angry when his spouse refused to hand over his personal papers and for revenge ripped up her nine dresses and one suit. She wants $50 from her now-estranged husband to replace them.

It's just common sense to . . .

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

Paris Conference And Big Town Ministers' Meet

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The Paris "peace" conference has terminated its labors in a spirit of acrimony and dissension that emphazizes the split between the Russian dominated Slavic bloc and the western Allies and threatens to nullify much of the labor which has been expended since the parley opened July 29.

The conference results (one scarcely can employ the more optimistic term "achievements") now will be placed before the Big Four foreign minister's council—United States, Britain, Russia and France—in New York for approval or rejection. Decisions of the council must be unanimous, and a fiery outburst by Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov in the closing session of the Paris conference indicated that he would employ the veto against several important actions of that body.

So the dove of peace would seem to have been sitting on an addled egg in the old Luxembourg palace. And lucky she didn't get shot, as well.

Mr. Molotov tossed the monkey-wrench into the machiney with great deliberation. He declared that the results of the conference were unsatisfactory. He accused the United States, Britain and France of violating their agreements (made in the foreign ministers' council) in adopting a number of "anti-demonratic" measures regarding Trieste.

Mr. Molotov, in accusing the United States of dominating a group of lesser powers to achieve its own ends, declared that "in all votes in the conference it was enough for the American delegate to vote and another 12 to 13 votes were assured." He said the Americans sought "definite decision regardless of whether they were correct as long as they pleased this group."

United States Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg preceded Mr. Molotov with a speech which spurred the Soviet foreign minister's anger. The senator demanded without success that Russia's $300,000,000 reparations bill against Finland be cut to $200,000,000 on the ground that the larger amount was too much for the little country to pay. He declared bluntly:

"We decline to plead as defendants among Allies to whom we have given every ounce of cooperation in blood and treasure of which a great nation is capable. But we shall continue to speak for the American conception of justice and fair play."

This final outburst in Paris was no mere flash in the pan. It marked an accumulation of distrust and suspicion which has been driving the eastern and the western Allies further apart. If this atmosphere prevails when the Big Four foreign ministers assemble in New York, the prospect of international accord will indeed be gloomy.

The Golden Fleece is Mouton Now

(By Larry Dack in the Financial Post)

Perhaps the fastest-growing business in Canada today is Mouton—which means sheepskin glamorized.

Three or four years ago there wasn't a mouton fur coat in captivity. Now mouton is offering the customers fur coats at $200 that are hard to distinguish from thousand-dollar seal or beaver coats. This Winter mouton will appear as mink and perhaps in reds, blues and yellows never found in any natural fur-bearing animal before.

But the big contribution of mouton is to make an aristocrat out of sheepskin and a commoner out of fur coats.

Mouton has opened Fifth Ave. to sheepskins that might otherwise never have done more than line a work jacket. At the same time mouton has made "fur coats for all" a real possibility. At a time when all fur coats have gone up sharply, mouton coats still sell for about half the price of muskrat, a fifth the price of seal.

• •

The story is a triumph in research of Canadian and American fur laboratories and experts think the results will pretty well revolutionize the fur industry.

In the new process sheepskin gets sheared, combed and "plasticized" into a thing of beauty. The kinky wool is transformed into a mass of lustrous plastic hairs that no longer tangle and are water repellent.

Last Winter, demand for the new mouton coat far outstripped production capacity in both Canada and the United States — was so great as to send the few fortunate firms with knowledge of the process back to work all Summer with increased staff and expanded plant facilities. There are at least four Canadian companies in the mouton processing business today — two in Montreal and two in Toronto. One of the largest fur companies in this country has announced its intention of entering the field as well, at least one smaller enterprise is planning to start this year.

Several different processes or variations are in use, but all are based on the same principle and aim at the same goal — to give the sheep hair a "permanent straight," a permanent gloss and permanent softening. Mouton men agree that the new processes have overcome the old handicap of sheepskin coats — the tendency to bunch and "felt."

• •

Entering the fur business in 1938 with a capital of $50, Mr. Moskoff has recently committed his company to a huge new $500,000 fur plant project. As far back as 1940 the young chemist—he is only 36 — was experimenting with Australian sheepskins in addition to guiding the fortunes of a small growing fur dressing and dyeing business. When he learned how to use an aldehyde base—one of the family of chemicals used in plasticizing — whole tempo of his research program quickened.

Gradually the sheepskin was made to yield up its stubborn "woolly" qualities and take on a new, smart, super-soft, straight-plied appearance.

Mr. Moskoff estimates that the advent of the new and improved mouton coat will eventually double the potential fur-coat market in Canada.

Although still in its early years laboratory tests have shown conclusively that the mouton coat is more durable than most other fur coats, Mr. Moskoff says. An important saving feature will be that of the annual cold storage bill, for moths can't eat mouton. The plastic molecules are armor-plate as far as they are concerned.

In simple language the Moskoff mouton process consists of permanently de-kinking wool and turning it into hair, then coating each fibre with a chemical and baking it on to stay. All this involves about 72 different operations.

The sheepskins, usually from year-old "shearlings", are imported from South Africa or Australia. At the plant they are graded. Only about 40 per cent of skins are suitable for mouton process — the rest go through an electrifying process and are converted into slippers, linings for mitts, teddybears, etc. Skins are soaked in a solution for a day or two to soften up the hide and dirt. They are then washed thoroughly until wool fibre is clear of dirt, oil and grit.

The next process is called "fleshing." Here any meat left on by butcher is removed by a fleshing machine. Next comes the "tanning." A special preparation is applied to the skin to enable it to withstand later boiling temperature. The skin is then greased, dried and placed in a huge revolving drum partly filled with sawdust. This action cleans the hair and softens the skin further. Now the sheepskin is ready for its shearing — clipping to required gauge — and combing. The combing, done in a special machine, simply combs the fibres out straight.

• •

Next comes the all-important "conversion" process. Special chemicals, usually of an aldehyde base, are brushed into the fibres of the skin by means of a hand-operated brush. The whole skin is then fed into an electric ironer kept at a very high temperature and revolving at 900 rpm.

The process is repeated several times until the molecules in the fibre become straight and stretched, enabling the fibres to retain the straight position permanently. At the same time the plastic is getting baked onto the fibres. The fur — for it has now most of the characteristics of fur — is ready for dyeing to any desired shade. A final delicate operation leaves the top service of the fur perfectly smooth.

One of the big difficulties in the mouton process has been to get the skin of the sheep as soft, pliable and light as that of beaver, or muskrat, for instance; in several U.S. processes lambskins are used to get a lighter skin. But great strides have been made in this direction within the year and further indicated improvement should just about give the desired effect.

Rossmore

Rossmore—The weekly euchre was held on Wednesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Moy, the prizes going to Mrs. Anderson, Mr. C. Redick, Mrs. Pollitt, Mr. Moy.

Mrs. Root entertained recently at a birthday party for her daughter Mrs. Kelleher of Belleville. There were about twenty guests present. Mrs. Kelleher was presented with a chenille bed spread for which she expressed her thanks. Euchre was played and a very pleasant evening spent. Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by her 2 daughters, Mrs. Kelleher and Mrs. W. Gerow.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Boulter and Barbara spent a few days in Peterboro attending the wedding of Mr. Boulter's brother, Mr. Don Boulter.

Mr. Asa Brickman, Port Hope, spent the weekend with his grandfather, Mr. John Belnap.

Mrs. Mary Dobson, Trenton, spent the weekend with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Belnap and Joy.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Root and boys spent Thanksgiving with Mrs. Root.

Mrs. A. C. Alyea spent the weekend with her brother and wife, Mr. Alan Jarvis, Picton.

Mr. W. Pierson and friend, Belleville spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. G. Bisdee.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Gerow, Belleville and Mrs. E. Gerow spent Monday evening with Mrs. F. Belnap and Joy.

Burrs

W. A. MEETS

Burr's — The October meeting of the W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Ross Burr on Thursday afternoon. In the absence of the president the meeting was conducted by Mrs. C. Hough, 1st. vice president.

During the business period there was a discussion re ordering a dozen additional communion cups and a dozen new hymnaries. Plans were made for the annual Hallowe'en social. The program consisted of a vocal number by Mrs. Lorne Burr, a piano selection by Mrs. Val Squire and a contest prepared by Mrs. Don Parks with Mrs. Will Soble winning the favor. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Keith Blakely.

Communion was dispensed at the Sunday evening service with the pastor, Rev. Mr. Lane, in charge. In the announcements special emphasis was placed on the Crusaders' Cavalcade, a pictorial presentation of the United Church of Canada in action, which is being held at Bridge St. United Church when special speakers may be heard.

Master Larry Carter is recovering from infection that has required medical assistance.

Mr. and Mrs. Ewart Harns attended the eightieth birthday anniversary of their aunt, Mrs. S. McComb, on Wednesday evening at Springbrook, where Mr. and Mrs. F. Burkitt were also guests.

Mrs. J. E. Moran and Mr. M. B. Moran were in Toronto on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman, in company with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Harris, attended Madoc Fair.

Miss Lois Squire entertained Miss Elsie Soble, Master Wayne Soble and her brother Paul at the Sandbanks on her birthday. They were accompanied by Mrs. Val Squire and Mrs. Will Soble.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden had as weekend guests Mr. Robt. Roundell and daughter Iva of Toronto. On Saturday all were tea hour guests of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dick and family, Gilead, and on Sunday they were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ken Wood and Robert.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Huffman and Mr. George Huffman were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Anderson, Mountain View.

Miss Marilyn Maxwell was a Sunday guest of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Edwards and Philip.

Everyone is availing themselves of the use of the fine autumn days in finishing the harvesting of corn, pumpkins and tomatoes.

Mr. Leonard Wildman, who for many years has been in the employ of Mr. George McKay, is anticipating a voyage to his homeland, England. He will sail from New York this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Soble, Elsie, Wayne and Miss Pauline Burr were Sunday guests of friends in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs Gerald Brooks and Glenn, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McHenry were in attendance at Roseneath Fair on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Hubbs and daughter were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. McHenry.

Friends will be interested to learn that Miss Joyce McRae, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. McRae, Battersea, has accepted a position as teacher and is teaching outside of Kingston this year; also that Mr. Elmer Carley, as a radio operator, is on a voyage to South Africa this month. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Carley, Wellington, and a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carley, Melville.

Husband, Wife Assaulted In Beverage Room

Toronto, Oct. 16 (CP) —Mrs. Simon Bedard, an expectant mother, and her husband were assaulted in a downtown beverage room last night "by five or six men and two women" and left unconscious, they told police today.

They said hotel waiters and the manager had refused to call police while the attack was going on because it would give the hotel "a bad name."

Mrs. Bedard related that she and Mr. Bedard were having a glass of beer before dinner when "a girl who was a member of a boisterous party nearby passed my table and said: 'You French pig—I will get you yet.'

"More insults followed and I went into a lobby to telephone police. As I put a nickel into the phone this girl, assisted by another girl, pulled me from the phone. Their five or six male companions hurled me to the floor and began kicking me."

When I saw my wife attacked by this drunken mob I rushed to help her," said Mr. Bedard. They piled on me and I went down with boots and shoes kicking me in the face and head."

Mrs. Bedard was confined to bed today with face bruises.

3rd Thurlow

3rd Thurlow—Mrs. Wm. Casey spent Thursday with her mother, Mrs. Lydia Way, 4th line.

Mr. Carl Wright of Napanee, spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Clarke. Mrs. Wright and Billie returned with him after spending a few days with her parents.

Several from this line attended the quilting and W.A. pot luck dinner and W.M.S. meeting at Mrs. E. Wilson's, 4th line, on Thursday.

Major Ian Eisenhardt, who has resigned as national director of physical fitness from the health department in Ottawa to take a post as chief of staff activities for the United Nations in New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Orval Beer called on Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pound on Thursday evening.

Mr. Perry Brownson of Madoc who has been a patient in Belleville General Hospital returned to Mr. Wm. Casey's on Thursday where Mrs. Brownson and Elaine have been spending a week at the home of her parents. They returned to their own home in Madoc on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hamilton were guests on Monday evening at the home of Mr. Hamilton's brother, Mr. Wm. Hamilton and Mrs. Hamilton, who celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Smith and Johnnie of Belleville spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gould.

Mrs. Harry MacPherson has returned home from Belleville General Hospital where she has been a patient following a major operation. All hope for her speedy recovery.

Those who attended church service at Bethany on Sunday morning were privileged to hear Mr. Ralph Wilson, B. Paed., of Angola, Africa, who was guest speaker and gave a very interesting account of missionary life in Africa and existing conditions there.

On Tuesday evening last a large number of friends and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Tweedy to honor their son Jack and his bride of Avondale and to present them with an electric floor lamp, end table, and mirror.

Mr. Gerald Eggleton is improving following an operation for appendicitis on Friday, in Belleville General Hospital. His friends all hope for a speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Fry, Mr. and Mrs. Don Kerr and family and Miss Pennie Wright of Seymour East were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Kerr.

REJECTS IRAN CHARGES

London, Oct. 17 (Reuters)—Foreign Secretary Besin Wednesday rejected charges by Iran that British officials were implicated in the recent rising of tribesmen in Southern Iran.

He told the House of Commons there had been disturbances in Southern Iran and that the Iranian government "in the light of certain information which they obtained," concluded that the British Consul, Alan Charles Trott, had been implicated in plans for a trial uprising.

DRIVE TO RETURN EMPTY BOTTLES EASES SITUATION

Brunner Mond Will be in Production of Soda Ash Next Week

Toronto, Oct. 17 — (CP)—With the Brunner-Mond plant at Amherstburg, Ont., scheduled to resume production of soda ash next Sunday or Monday, it appeared today just a matter of time until manufacture of glass bottles would go forward again.

In the meantime, Ontario residents launched drives to collect empties and received cash for bottles that ordinarily would find their way to the scrap heap.

Bottle-making stopped when the wages-hours strike of 400 members of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.) took hold. The strike, which started July 5 and ended only last Thursday, cut off the only Canadian supply of soda ash — vitally needed for the manufacture of glass.

Housewives grumbled that they had trouble finding enough sealers for jams, jellies and pickles but the short supply of sugar limited their preserving activities anyway and most people took little note of the bottle shortage until the provincial government cut Ontario's liquor ration.

Had to Reduce Ration

Scarcity of bottles, the government said, made it necessary to reduce the ration from 208 ounces a month to 26. Wine dealers said they were short of bottles, too, and offered five cents for all empties. Government liquor stores in some centres started to accept empty whisky, rum and gin bottles.

Brewers took stock of the beer bottle situation and found it brighter than that faced by the "hard liquor" producers. They had been paying right along for empty bottles returned to them and some, with the busy summer season behind them, had more than enough.

Dicker With U.S.

Before the strike ended, several liquor firms were dickering with United States wholesalers for American bottles. Only drawback was that the American bottles were a different size than those generally used by Canadian distillers as the United States follows another system of liquid measurement because the supply was limited.

As soon as they saw Canadian bottles would again be available, most brewers and distillers decided to count on return of empties to tide them over the period of scarcity.

And throughout Ontario collections went forward with increased enthusiasm. Kitchener breweries said people were cooperating better than ever before in returning bottles. In Sault Ste. Marie, a drive to collect all kinds of bottles was "successful beyond expectations" and so many empties awaited collectors that the crews got behind in their pick-up schedule.

Stratford's collection, already in the thousands, fell off slightly.

Sudbury retailers offered to pay for empty whisky and wine bottles. The Ontario Liquor Control Board store shipped 7,500 large whisky bottles to Toronto and started to accumulate another shipment.

Oshawa residents continued to return empty beer bottles "almost 100 per cent," a brewers' warehouse reported. The bottle situation there was not considered serious.

Whisky bottles in great numbers went back to the Liquor Control Board store in Niagara Falls after retailers appealed for empties. Brantford, which has no brewery or distillery, reported most customers exchanged empty beer bottles for cash.

Further announcement regarding the Hallowe'en party will be made at a later date.

New York City's Economy Suffers By 56 Disputes

By ALLAN FISHER

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—Fifty-six industrial disputes, now subject to labor-management deliberations, are slowly strangling the economy of the United States' premier city, effecting a loss of incalculable millions of dollars.

Docks, warehouses and railroad sidings in the city—which normally does a $10,000,000,000 annual business in exports and imports alone—are piled high with thousands of tons of freight unmoved because of the maritime and truck strikes.

Several hundred stores of two large food chains are closed because of the trucking dispute.

The United States Maritime Commission says 357 American ships are bottled up in New York harbor. The city's Commerce and Industry Association estimates 5,000 traders in foreign goods are unable to move shipments valued at approximately $200,000,000.

A spokesman for New York's department stores, now caught between two drivers' strikes, reports sales volumes sinking week by week. A milk shortage is attributed by dealers in part to the trucking strike.

Dr. Charles A. Pierce, who heads the Division of Research and Statistics of the New York State Department of Labor, estimates the city's current strikes at 56, directly involving 55,000 workers.

Chief among them are the trucking and maritime strikes. The former, involving A.F.L. teamsters, is in its second month. The strike of A.F.L. licensed ship deck personnel and C.I.O. marine engineers is 17-days-old and came only a week after an extended strike by unlicensed merchant seamen.

Housewives lost no time in getting their pails and shovels out.

Thinks Goering Carried Poison Since His Capture

Nuernberg, Oct. 17 (AP)—Prison Chaplain H. F. Gerecke said yesterday he believes that Hermann Georing carried the poison with which he committed suicide since his capture.

The chaplain's theory was backed by members of the prison security detail, who said senior officers had been trained in concealing deadly poison.

Asparagus Plant Gone to Seed Somewhat of Freak

First glance at the natural growth, which is said to be an asparagus plant gone to seed, reminds one of a huge ostrich feather, or one of those footlight appurtenances fan-dancers favor to increase the morale of tired business men.

The plant, strangely enough, has a stalk that is absolutely flat and measures approximately three inches across the base. It curves upward from the bottom, winds about in a complete circle, then shoots upward to a distance of eighteen or twenty inches, its curving stalk and circled base in the shape of a farmer's sickle.

Shooting sidewise from the flat stalk are hundreds of featherlike shoots which bear a fine filmy growth resembling maidenhair. These shoots extend to a length of from twelve to eighteen inches, and when held to the light form a thick opaque curtain-like mass.

BASIC ENGLISH GAINS GROUND AMONG INDIANS

Simplified Language Also Taught New Canadians Settling in Saskatchewan

Regina, —(CP)— The Indian trapper, who next year may no longer need an interpeter when he bargains with the itinerant fur buyer, will owe some gratitude to Florence Gaynor, young director of the Basic English and Citizenship program of the Saskatchewan Department of Education.

This winter at seven communities in the sparsely populated northern half of Saskatchewan, classes of Metis and treaty Indians will gather twice a week to learn English and citizenship though the Basic English method.

Basic is the system of simplified English based on a vocabulary of 850 words and a minimum of grammatical rules. Keen foreign linguists can master it in two weeks of intensive study.

Miss Gaynor, who taught in rural and town schools in southern Saskatchewan before taking over the Basic English directorate in 1944, knew nothing of the subject before then.

This summer she helped teach the first class of 29 Basic English teachers in Canada at a special four-week course here. The teachers have gone back to their schools throughout the province and many of them are teaching classes in Basic two evenings a week, in addition to their regular day classes.

First Experiment

The first experiment in Basic was conducted last winter at Wymark, Sask., 120 miles southeast of here, centre of a large Mennonite settlement. More than 75 adults, few of whom spoke English, enthusiastically took the course which is combined with a study of citizenship provided by the Canadian Citizenship branch of the Secretary of State's department.

Miss Gaynor, in charge of administrative details of the scheme, has travelled in several parts of the province gauging the necessity of further teachers and the demand for the course.

The 34-year-old director believes there should be more teachers equipped to teach Basic. However, some of those who took the course for teachers this summer are unable to use their knowledge, as they have positions in districts where there are no "new Canadians" or Indians.

In a class at Regina last winter, students of Polish, Hungarian, Ukranian, Russian and Hebrew language backgrounds, who spoke English in varying degrees, were introduced to the novel "Black Beauty" written in Basic English. More than 150 of the best-known works of literature, have been typewritten.

Starting Oct. 15, Basic will be taught in Regina and Moose Jaw. Forty-four classes comprise the winter course.

Miss Gaynor points up the citizenship basis of the course as well as the advantage of being able to converse with one's neighbor.

She says, "in order to be a world citizen you have to start on a community level."

SUPPLY MUST BE ABOVE PRE-WAR LEVELS

Hastings, England, Oct. 16 — (Reuters) — Food Minister Strachey, discussing prospects of the end of rationing at a conference of the National Council of Labor Women last night, said that before he could de-ration any foodstuff he would have to raise the supply substantially above the pre-war level — perhaps 30 to 40 per cent in some cases.

BRITISH COUNCILS ASK FOR ANALYSIS OF THEIR STATUS

Associations of Municipal Corporations Concerned Over Loss of Powers and Responsibilities by New Legislation

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 17 (CP)—Representatives of Britain's 10,000 local governments fear their responsibilities and powers are being removed through central government orders but Health Minister Bevan has told them this is not the time for an inquiry into the system.

Appearing before the Association of Municipal Corporations, Mr. Bevan said he knew many members of local authorities thought current legislative measures would devitalize local government.

However, the central government hoped that functions of local government would be enlarged, although some services had been nationalized and others might be, and instruments other than local authorities had to be used. The society in which local authorities function is undergoing enormous changes, he said, and the first investigation must be into the kind of society in which they are to operate.

Having heard this opinion, the Association later carried unanimously a resolution asking that its general purposes committee give urgent consideration to the existing structure of local government in the light of recent and pending legislation.

The resolution expressed concern over "piecemeal-legislation which is removing the powers and responsibilities of municipal authorities" and indicated faith in local government based on democratic principles.

National Planning.

Changes in local government structure were indicated years ago when central authorities accepted the chief responsibility for outlays such as unemployment relief and thus took from the local administration a major expense. Having taken the responsibility, the government appears to feel it must have its own officials caring for its services and the power of the local authority thus is diminished. Labor policies tend towards national planning and local government representatives see their stature steadily becoming less.

The Churchill government appointed, and the Labor government made operative, a Local Government Boundary Commission with the task of revising municipal areas. Labor government legislation which may authorize the unification of municipal districts for economy and efficiency of administration probably will be based on this commission's reports.

Critics say, however, that the commission's powers are inadequate and that it should have the right to examine all the local government organization and establish regional authorities powerful enough to over-ride existing organizations.

Proposed reorganizations must take into account in England and Wales alone the work and authority of 62 county councils, 83 county borough councils, 309 borough councils, 28 metropolitan borough councils, one city of London corporation, 572 urban district borough councils, 475 rural districts councils and some 7,000 parish councils.

Each has a history, a memory of past powers and a knowledge of local problems the central government does not wish to lose. But relief, trunk roads, housing, hospitalization, medical care and education all are becoming more and more the concern of national authorities and local cares become less.

New Approach Control Issue To Atomic Energy

By FRANCIS W. CARPENTER

Lake Success, N.Y., Oct. 17—(AP) — An American suggestion that direct inspections for atomic violations should be carried out with discrimination to avoid antagonizing a nation or its citizens opened today an entirely new approach to an atomic energy issue over which the United States and Russia are at odds.

"Direct inspection should not be used indiscriminately, because of the risk of antagonizing a nation or its citizens," the United States delegation to the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission said in a 57-page report to the commission.

This report, released last night after being handed to members of the commission's political committee, is the first time the Americans have gone to such lengths to explain their stand.

"Care must be taken to inspect only so far as necessary to confirm or disprove suspicions," the report said. "In some cases inspection of receiving and shipping rooms and platforms might be sufficient. In other cases a thorough inspection, including taking samples from processes, might be necessary.

"In all cases the right of nationals and industries should be observed to the greatest possible extent consistent with fulfillment of the functions of the authority."

In addition the report said it is difficult to define the amount of activity in the illicit production of atomic weapons which is significant.

The report said that in addition to inspections by representatives of the atomic development authority, the authority could gather information through its normal control of authorized activities and through formal reports on specific topics submitted by individual countries to the authority.

Rescind Export Order to Assure Cheese in Canada

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—Canada will fall "somewhat short" of fulfilling her 125 million-pound cheese contract with Britain, J. F. Singleton, chairman of the Dairy Products Board, said last night.

An announcement today by the Agriculture Department said orders by the board restricting cheese manufactured in Ontario and Quebec had been rescinded Oct. 12 to ensure a supply of cheese in Canada.

The restrictions required all cheddar cheese to be large, white and unwaxed and sold through licensed exporters for shipment to the British Food Ministry.

Rescinding of the restrictions means that all cheese manufactured after Oct. 12 will remain in Canada. How far short the Dominion will fall on her cheese contract, however, cannot be determined until cheese manufactured before Oct. 12 has been shipped, probably in a few weeks.

The present contract is for the 1946-47 fiscal year and is the same amount as the 125,000,000-pound contract Canada filled in 1945-46.

Also rescinded was a board order limiting the amount of cheddar cheese which a cheese factory may sell to its milk suppliers.

The announcement said that as far as the Product Board was concerned cheese factories now could manufacture cheddar cheese of any size, either white or colored, and dispose of the products on the domestic market.

20 Alleged Pro-Nazis Arrested

Paris, Oct. 16 — (Reuters) — French police have arrested 20 members of an alleged pro-nazi gang operating in Paris, it was learned today. The gang was found running a clandestine newspaper, "European Combattant," which glorified Hitler, Mussolini and Petain and described itself as the organ of the "National united front."

Switch to Swift's

● Here's the story! 1,100 members of a famous Canadian women's organization tested the new Swift's Cleanser in their own homes. Here are the amazing results of their tests:

They tried Swift's Cleanser on hard-to-clean surfaces. 77% pronounced it excellent—because it cuts grease faster, makes cleaning easier, goes farther.

They tested Swift's on the surfaces they were most particular about, porcelain sinks, bath tubs, basins, tile surfaces in their kitchens. 77% pronounced it excellent—because it removes stubborn stains—can't scratch—polishes as it cleans.

They compared Swift's Cleanser with the household cleanser they generally used and 78% said it was better than their present brand—because it's the only cleanser that does both—cuts grease fast, doesn't scratch ever!

Now—3 OUT OF EVERY 4 OF THESE PROMINENT CANADIAN HOUSEWIVES WHO TESTED THE NEW SWIFT'S CLEANSER ARE CHANGING TO SWIFT'S IN THEIR OWN HOMES.

What more convincing proof could you have that Swift's is Canada's finest cleanser? Try it yourself. Test it in your own kitchen. Discover—as these women have—that Swift's is best and safest for all household surfaces.

Rawdon

Rawdon — On Thanksgiving Sunday several friends from Mt. Pleasant motored to Detlor and enjoyed a picnic dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hutchinson on the occasion of the thirtieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Moore.

The motor drive was very delightful with the beautiful scenery, the woodland in myriad colors and the water in the lakes shimmering in the sunlight. Three tables were set, with a variety of food.

The bride's table was specially arranged with Mrs. Moore's sister, Mrs. Nell MacMillan of Laidlaw, Sask., and the elderly ladies in the group as special guests.

Miss Dorothy Moore read a presentation address to her parents, Mr. Alex Moore and the former Marguerite McMullen of Mount Pleasant, on the occasion of their 30th wedding anniversary and the happy couple were the recipients of a reversible wool blanket, a pair of linen sheets, embroidered pillow cases, and Pearl handled silverware.

Both graciously responded, thanking all who had tendered them such a delightful day and useful gifts.

During the afternoon group pictures were taken on the lawn and all present enjoyed a pleasant time talking of other pleasant times together.

Those who attended from Mt. Pleasant were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Weaver, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Will Hubble, Mrs. Allan Bailey, Mrs. James Timms, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Gilbert Smith, Mrs. Frank Williams, Mrs. Bailey Turner, Miss Ruth Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Hoard, Mr. James Hoard from Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Elam Wescott, from Hoards, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Williams and Mrs. Totten Williams, also Mr. Frank Jeffs of St. Catharines.

Rawdon official board convened in Bethel United Church last Tuesday evening with a good representation. Several items of business were discussed and the finances were in excellent shape for another quarter.

The Thankoffering of the W.M.S. and Baby Band was received Sunday evening and several envelopes are promised for a later date.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Pauley recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. John Farrell of Moira.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dunham and daughters were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Reid.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Douglas and family of White Lake spent the weekend with Mrs. Paul Sharp.

Rev. and Mrs. J. E. Beckel were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morton at Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Coutts, Toronto, visited Rawdon relatives over the weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Thompson and Mr. and Mrs. Murney Johnson attended Eggleton Anniversary and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs. Warren Harlow.

Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brooks have been holidaying in Rochester, New York.

Wallbridge

Wallbridge—Owing to the anniversary services at Scott's appointment the regular preaching service here was withdrawn on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Lane and Mr. W. H. Nobes accompanied Mrs. E. Scannel to her home in Toronto and spent the holiday weekend there. Mr. Nobes remained in Toronto for a longer visit.

Mrs. Malcolm Clare is spending a fw days with her parents in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Wanamaker spent the holiday weekend with friends at Detlor.

Mr and Mrs. Almond Moore have moved to Marsh Hill where they will reside with their daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Blake Johnston. They are from this community.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Pound, Cannifton, called on Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harris, Tuesday afternoon.

Her many friends here deeply regret the passing of Mrs. Jas. Hinchliffe on Sunday; a few days after undergoing a serious operation at Belleville hospital. She was a faithful member of Wallbridge church and, when health permitted, took an active part in all its activities, especially the W.M.S. of which she was a life member. The service at the church on Tuesday afternoon was attended by a large number of relatives and friends wishing to pay their last respects to a kind and loving friend. The pastor, Rev. H. H. Hillis gave a most appropriate address, and the choir most appropriate rumbers. Two favorite hymns of the deceased were used, "Unto the Hills" and "My Faith Looks up to Thee." The flowers were beautiful.

The family and friends have the sincere sympathy of the community in their great bereavement.

In Canada today there are four times as many film libraries as in 1939. With the aid of the National Film Board they have expanded from 15 to 75.

PORTRAINT OF FUTURE QUEEN

This charming picture of Princess Elizabeth was made during a visit to Dundee to perform the opening ceremony of Camperdown park. The future British ruler is wearing a tailored coat and off-the-face hat of soft rose pink.

AS DANISH PRINCESS IS CHRISTENED

This photo was taken after the youngest daughter of the Danish Crown Prince was christened in Copenhagen and given the name Anne-Marie. The Crown Princess of Denmark is holding in arms her little daughter, Princess Anne-Marie, leaving after the ceremony, accompanied by the Crown Prince and the two little princesses, Margrethe and Benedikte.

FROM ARCTIC TO EDMONTON FOR TREATMENT

Though suffering burns over 70 per cent of his body, 14-year-old Donald Ayluk, gallant young Eskimo from Canada's Arctic, managed to summon a smile when the Bristol Freighter, British aircraft on this side of the Atlantic for a demonstration tour, rushed him to Edmonton from Yellowknife, northern gold mining centre. Donald was aboard a vessel in Cambridge Bay, 600 miles north of Yellowknife, when an explosion occurred. In spite of his own burns, the brave Eskimo held his brother and sister over the side of the boat in an effort to save them. Reports state his father was killed in the explosion. Five weeks after he was taken to Yellowknife Donald lay in hospital there unable to be moved because of his injuries. The Bristol Freighter, which had made a demonstration freight flight to Yellowknife the previous day, rushed Donald to Edmonton, flying nearly all the 620 miles through icing clouds at 10,000 feet. In an Edmonton hospital Donald will be given a skin grafting. Picture shows him in the Bristol Freighter's hold just before being removed to an ambulance. At RIGHT is Frank Burrows, of Bristol, Eng., crew member of the Bristol Freighter. At LEFT is George Pigeon, of Yellowknife.

LINKS ENTHUSIAST

General Dwight D. "Ike" Eisenhower, U.S. army chief of staff, is an expert in the art of "follow through" as he proved in his days as Allied Supreme Commander. Here the General keeps his eye on the ball during a golf round at St. Andrew's, Scotland. He is in England to accept invitations extended him over two years ago. During his visit abroad he called at the castle in Scotland which was presented to him as a gesture of gratitude of the Scottish people.

CANADIAN IN RENO

Shown here is Mrs. Roxy Atkins Campbell, who is visiting Reno, Nev., to divorce Norman L. Campbell, Toronto food salesman. Mrs. Campbell, holder of all Canadian hurdles records for women, was chosen by sports writers as "the most beautiful woman in the 1936 Olympic games."

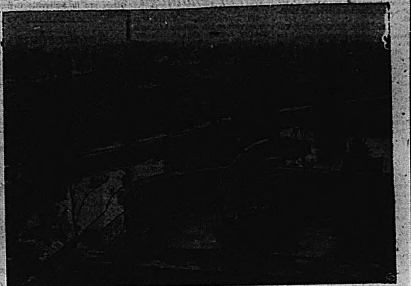
DIES IN SLEEP

Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell, 63, commander of the U.S. 6th Army, and affectionately known as "Vinegar Joe," ABOVE, who died in San Francisco. He died during sleep, death resulting from a liver ailment.

PITCHER TRADED

Allie Reynolds, 28, fast ball pitcher of the Cleveland Indians who has just been exchanged for Joe "Flash" Gordon, 31-year-old second baseman of the New York Yankees. Reynolds led the American League in strike-outs in his first year in the Majors, 1943. And is expected to bolster the Yankee pitching staff. Gordon, hailed as one of baseball's greatest fielders, will team up with Lou Boudreau to give the Indians one of the best infield combinations.

BOMB-PROOF FLAK TOWER MAY BECOME PRISON FOR WAR CRIMINALS



A bomb-proof flak tower in the Tiergarten, near the Brandenberg gate, Berlin, which was used for mounting anti-aircraft guns and as a listening point during the war, may be used as a prison for the war criminals who were convicted at Nuernberg. The tower has walls 18 feet thick and is constructed of steel and concrete. This picture, showing the prisoner's view, was taken from inside the flak tower. In background is the Brandenberg gate and Reichstag.

NOW IT'S THE HELICOPTER WITH FLOATS

One of the first helicopters with floats ever to be granted a commercial licence is seen landing on the Niagara River. In this view the pilot demonstrates how gently the helicopter can be set down. With the floats, it is possible for the helicopter to operate safely in regions so rugged that there are mighty few dry spots where even a helicopter could land. The floats enable the craft to come down on the countless lakes and waterways which dot the area. First of its projected uses is for exploration in the Canadian north.

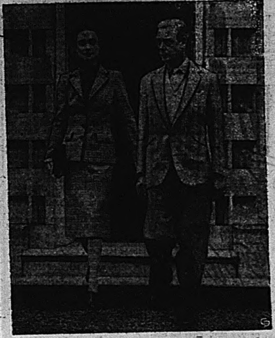
RIDERLESS HORSE FINISHES RACE

Cosey, who unseated his rider earlier in the race, follows Lieut. Well, with W. Passmore up, over the last hurdle in the $10,000 added Broad Hollow Steeplechase handicap at Belmont Park. Lieut. Well was the winner, Greek Flag (not shown) was second, and War Battle (5) was third.

TRIPLE CRASH AT MIDGET AUTO RACES

Strangely enough, no one was injured when midget cars crashed at the auto races at Freeport Stadium. Number 27 was driven by Frank Shaw, No. 25 by Jack Duffy and No. 35 by his brother, Al Duffy. Jack seems to be leaping out of the way as he crashes into the wall.

"WOMAN I LOVE" TOUCHES ENGLAND'S SOIL



The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are seen as they walk out of their temporary home in Sunningdale, Eng., on their first morning in England. It's the first visit of the Duchess to England after their marriage 10 years ago. They are staying at Ednam Lodge, Sunningdale, lent to them by their friend, the Earl of Dudley, for their two-months stay in the country.

OTTAWA GIRL WINS LOU MARSH AWARD

HENRY WALLACE'S DAUGHTER A BRIDE

Pretty Jean Wallace, daughter of former Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, and her husband, Leslie Douglas, of Washington and New York, walk up the aisle after their marriage at St. Albar's Episcopal Church in Washington, D.C. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Douglas, of Enon Valley, Pa. Mrs. Harry S. Truman was among the notables who attended the ceremony.

AIME GEOFFRION, K.C., DIES

Montreal, Oct. 15 (CP)— Aime Geoffrion, K.C., 73, one of the most prominent members of the Bar of Quebec Province and a Director of many leading Canadian industrial and financial corporations, died at his home early today after a lengthy illness.

A noted authority on constitutional law, Mr. Geoffrion made many appearances on behalf of the Canadian government and that of Quebec Province in the courts of this Dominion and before the Privy Council in London, England.

Only last year he twice travelled to London where he argued two cases before the empire's highest tribunal.

The Cards defeated the heavily favored Boston Red Sox, 4-3, to take the series.

BEARS, BARONS WIN FIRST TWO GAMES OF SEASON

Teams Leading Their Respective Divisions of the American League

(By The Canadian Press)

Hershey and Cleveland are the respective leaders in the Eastern and Western Divisions of the American Hockey League today as a result of two triumphs apiece in the first week's action of the new season.

The Bears, after an opening night victory over Pittsburgh Tuesday, went to Springfield last night to meet the Indians' first team since 1942 and won 6-4 before a sellout crowd of 5,500.

Eddie Shore's Indians started off impressively with two goals in the first 10 minutes but the Bears opened up and rattled off five markers in 24 minutes of play.

Cleveland, successful in the opener with Philadelphia, repeated last night at St. Louis by trouncing the Flyers 6-2 before a capacity crowd of 14,518—the league's record gate so far.

Four penalties kept the Flyers on the defensive throughout the first period and only one of Cleveland's goals was tallied with the Flyers at full strength.

Win Home Opener

Pittsburgh, after losing to Hershey, launched its home season with a 9-4 victory over Philadelphia Rockets. The Hornets made their nine goals while appearing to be working only about two-thirds of the time.

Maurice Corteau, Rocket's goalie, was called upon to make 67 stops.

Buffalo Bisons opened the defence of their league championship on home ice with Indianapolis, the Capitals leading well into the third period when the Bisons scored to earn a 1-1 tie.

After scoring at 12:02 of the first period, the Capitals outskated the Bisons and appeared to have the game won until penalties took their toll. Bison Coach Frank Beisler threw five forwards into action and the move paid off at 18:20 of the final when Lew Halderson rapped home Johnny Horeck's pass.

With all 10 teams now having seen action, the first seven games have drawn a total of 53,240 customers.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—As soon as baseball men catch their breath after the world series, you'll begin to hear more about Major-Minor League relations with an undercurrent of objection to being bossed by the big fellows . . . The Major-Minor agreement, which has been carried along on a year-to-year basis for some time, has just been rewritten to include the new executive council but some of the rules still must be revised... then next December 40-odd leagues—some 300 clubs—will take pot-shots at it before it goes to the majors for consideration. One big objection is that the two majors and the commissioner picked by them have the last word about everything...Then there's the matter of the promotion program for which Commissioner Happy Chandler asked $50,000 last winter. The minors have refused so far to contribute their $12,500 share because Chandler hasn't presented what they consider a definite and adequate program....There'll be plenty of talk about that at the winter meetings.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Vassar, swanky women's college at Poughkeepsie, N.Y., won't indulge in football. That was the word that went yesterday to Skidmore College in nearby Saratoga Springs in answer to a challenge for a gridiron contest between the ex-soldier (male) students at the two schools. Dr. Sarah Gibson Blanding, president of Vassar, went so far as to issue a statement in which she said her college "must say no to any football." Vassar had never encouraged intercollegiate activities.

Previously the 48 Skidmore "co-men", enrolled under the veterans educational plan, had organized a team which had defeated a local high-school squad to the squealing delight of 1,200 girl students.

Stripped of his heavyweight boxing title by the Eire Boxing Board Control, Martin Thornton of Galway left for England where he will engage in several fights before proceeding to the United States on the invitation of ex-champion Jack Dempsey.

Pauline Betz of California and Philippe Washer of Belgium registered a three-set final victory over the United States pair of Louise Brough and Bob Falkenburg yesterday to take the mixed doubles title of the Pan-American tennis tournament of Mexico City.

Bobby Bauer of Kitchener, was appointed captain of Boston Bruins yesterday at Hershey as the N.H.L. club prepared to break training camp. Bauer joined the Bruins nine seasons ago.

E. J. Yarrison of Chicago grabbed a three stroke lead in yesterday's opening round of the $10,000 invitation golf tournament at Knoxville, Tenn., by shooting a four-under-par 68. Three others were deadlocked at 71 for second place.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis experienced a setback at Chicago yesterday when he settled for $2,000 in payment of legal services to B. F. Cyrus, lawyer for his ex-wife in her divorce action five years ago.

St. Louis Cardinals yesterday granted unconditional release to Mike Gonzalez, their third-base coach since 1934. He will manage the Havana Reds in the Cuban Winter League.

Prexy Instructs Referees to Keep Games Moving

Detroit, Oct. 17 — (AP) — Whistle-blowing in National Hockey League games is going to be less frequent this season, says league president Clarence Campbell.

The league's new boss, himself a former referee, here for the opener between Detroit and Toronto last night, expressed himself as follows:

"There's be a full 60 minutes of action. I've instructed all officials to keep the game moving and to lay off the whistle unless it's absolutely necessary."

Mystery Surrounds Disposition of Bodies Of 11 Dead Nazis

Nuernberg, Oct. 17 (CP)—Mystery yesterday surrounded the final disposition of the bodies of Herman Goering, who ended his life in the agony of poison, and 10 other top Nazis who died on a hangman's rope.

The bodies left Nuernberg prison at 5:30 a.m. in two sealed vans under armed escort. While the Allied Control Council has announced that the final destination of the bodies will remain a closely-guarded secret, a security police office said it was a good guess that part of the trip with the bodies would be made by plane.

Earlier MacFee Kerr of Reuters News Agency, quoting unconfirmed reports, wrote that the bodies of the executed Nazis would be taken to a seaport town in Germany, and then out to sea for secret burial.

It was suggested that this would prevent fanatics from making future pilgrimages to the graves of their dead leaders.

(Last April 2 Mussolini's body was spirited away by Fascist followers from a grave in Milan, and was found last August in a monastery at Pavia, Italy.)

10 NAZIS PROBABLY DID NOT KNOW OF SUICIDE

Nuernberg, Oct. 17 (AP)— The 10 Nazi leaders who died on the gallows probably had no knowledge that Hermann Goering took his own life, Maj. Fred Teich, assistant chief security officer at the Uuernberg prison, said last night.

RUN THAT WON SERIES FOR CARDS

The run provided the edge that gave the Cards a 4-3 victory to take the series.

R.A.F. Holds Out Welcoming Hand To Canadians

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—The Royal Air Force today held out a welcoming hand to Canadian aircrew who are unable to get posts in the R.C.A.F.'s peacetime force.

Service which may be "in any part of the world" was offered under an agreement between Canada and the R.A.F. announced last night by Air Minister Gibson.

"Canada has a considerable reservoir of aircrew trained during the war and this agreement will help both the R.A.F. and a considerable number of young Canadians who would like to continue service flying a career," Col. Gibson said.

He added that the R.C.A.F. had qualified more than 73,000 aircrew under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan and that the post-war R.C.A.F. could not engage all who wished to continue service.

Under the new agreement, representatives of the R.A.F. at Air Force headquarters here accept applications for service in the R.A.F. from former Canadian Air Force officers and airmen in aircrew who have trained up to at least Operational Training Unit standards. The Canadians would receive the new scale of pay and allowances—higher than that of the war years and comparing favorably with pay in the post-war R.C.A.F.

Bata Shoemen Win First Game For District Baseball Title By Downing Flyers 9 to 2

Winners Rap Two Home Runs and Steadier in the Field

Bill Easton's Batawa Shoemen, champing on their baseball bits awaiting opponents on the Ontario Intermediate "A" finals, stepped out of playdown character at the Alemite Field yesterday afternoon and hung a 9-2 defeat on "Moose" Matthews' Trenton Flyers in the first game of a two of three series for the Belleville Senior Baseball League Championship and the Army and Navy Robinson-Kelleher Memorial Trophy.

The game was a loosely-played affair, at times bordering on a comedy of errors with the Flyers committing no less than six miscues and the Shoemen, four. Trenton bobbles were costly as only five of the Shoemen's tallies were of the earned variety.

There was plenty of hitting with home runs, triples and doubles wheeling high into the blue headed for the outer pastures, and some fairly good chucking on the part of Peacock for the Shoemen and Al Fade Flyer righthander ace.

Presented With Two . . . .

..Flyers presented the Shoemen with two runs as early as the second innings when Gill, Flyer centre fielder dropped Muffitts high fly to the midfield pastures. Watson who had walked romped home on the error and Muffitt trotted all the way around before the ball was thrown back into circulation.

Batawa first earned runs came in the seventh after they had been held to four hits by Wade. With two out Normandin ramped a sharp single to left centre and Cook, Shoemen second baseman lashed out a towering home run to right field, that was labelled four bases all the way.

Three hits and as many errors in the eight paved the way for a five-run Batawa rally. Again with two out the Flyer infield started kicking the ball around. Aquino got a life on an error and Muffitt lashed out a triple scoring the catcher. Peacock got on board on an error and scored when the second Dyer bobble in a row sent Rankin to first. Normandin poled out the second Shoemen homer of the pastime and the game was in the bag.

Gummed up Chances

Flyers gummed up several chances to score through some loose base running, and they were weak with the bludgeon in the clutches. They scored their first run in the second when Haffey drove out a sharp single to send Gill home after he had reached the sacks via a fielder's choice. Their second run came in the seventh when Cox rapped out a line double that got away from Normandin and the redhead galloped home on the error.

Peacock on the mound flung a steady pitching job at the Flyer batters giving up seven hits and striking out nine. Wade for the air crew deserved a better fate. He whiffed three and walked 4, but his mates' unsteadiness in the field did not help his cause any.

The teams will play the second game in Batawa on Saturday providing no O.B.A. games are not scheduled for the Shoemen.

SPORTS FALLACIES

By MARGERY MILLER

Sometimes baseball clubs purposely walk a man, even though he is not dangerous at bat.

There is a reason why occasionally it is good strategy to walk a weak-hitting pitcher. If, when the hurler is on first, action takes place which means he will have to run, think, and act fast, it all may add up to good luck for the opposition.

When a pitcher takes the mound excited and short of breath, he is much less capable than as if he had struck out. The opposing hitters know it, and are full of confidence. Often they connect several times to make the walk very much worth while.

BILLY WATSON

SHEIK EMIR BADUI

East is East and West is West and Friday night the twain shall meet—at the Hume Arena where British Empire wrestling champion "Whipper" Billy Watson, "The Body" in the realm of applied pachydermy, meets the colorful Sheik Emir Badui, an olive-skinned bloke from the palm-fringed oases of Iraq where veiled houris glance coquettishly from behind shutters. The Iraquian chieftain who is big wrestling shakes in his native country is anxious to lug that British Empire championship back to the sunny plains of Araby where the gals are scarce but you can get a date any time. The "Whippah" has tossed the title in the ring with the defy "Try and get it." And that is just what the Sheik is going to do. He has a punishing, paralyzing leg crab hold that would make the Sphinx say "uncle" and it should be interesting to watch what defence the "Whip" has devised against this grip of the Arabian knight. On the same card is stalwart Natie Brown, former pugilist who held Joe Louis to a ten-round decision in Detroit's Olympia some years ago but was knocked kicking in his second joust with the Dark Slayer. Brown meets the Russky with the upholstered torso, Rasputin, while in the preliminary bout Olaf Olsen, the Swedish Swivel, tangles with Irish Terry McGuinness, a likeable broth of a bhoy.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Don Barrett, starry centre of the Belleville Bears junior hockey squad and the Redmen of last season, left this week for Boston where he will try out with the Boston Olympics before reporting to the management of the Stratford Junior "A" OHA squad for the season's work. Barrett signed a tryout paper with the Boston coach, but decided to throw in his lot with the Stratford kids before hitting the big time.

• • •

Barrett should do well in the faster company. He is tricky, a good stickhandler, can break fast and was always dangerous in front of the nets. He has lots of ability and has kept himself in good condition during the summer months.

• • •

There is a strong possibility that the Batawa Shoemen will entertain the western Ontario champions in Shoetown on Saturday in the first game of the Ontario Baseball Association Intermediate "A" playdowns. Chatham is at present battling a Windsor team and held a one-game lead up to a day or so ago. If Chatham wins the series in two-straight then in all likelihood they will meet the men of Easton at Batawa come Saturday. If not then the Shoemen will joust with the Trenton Flyers in the second game of the city league finals series.

Batawa took the first game of the series at Alemite Field yesterday afternoon in a game that was anything but championship calibre. Both squads booted the ball around with more or less abandon with the Flyers committing bobbles when they were costly.

• • •

That razzle-dazzle playoff between the Dodgers and the Cards for the National League pennant this year recalls a hectic series played back in 1908 between the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs. Both squads were tied at the top of the league and the ensuing playoff wrote fiery history in the archives of baseball.

• • •

Bill Brandt, ace New York sportswriter recalls the famous battle in an article in a current sports mag. Describing the game, Bill writes: "Keyed to fever pitch, the fans splintered the boards in the centrefield fence, and smashed their way into the ball park to see their beloved Giants play the hated Cubs. About a thousand surged through that gaping hole in the fence before the fire department with high-pressure hoses stemmed the tide. This watery artillery barrage lifted only for a brief moment to permit the umpires to enter the park. This was the only way the umps could make it. As Bill Klem, the Old Arbitrator, told me—it's the only time he ever needed the fire department to get in, or out, of a ball park.

• • •

Before noon the Polo Grounds was jammed tight. By game-time the streets outside were packed for blocks. Even the old elevated structuer outside centrefield held a capacity crowd. During the game, two men fell off the El to the street and were killed.

This game was more than just a play-off for a pennant. It was a feud—a war—as bitter a meeting as ever took place on a ballfield. The Cubs had won the pennant the two previous years John McGraw with a great team of Giants should have clinched the championship instead of being forced to play this game to get the pennant. At least, that's what the New York fans believed."

• • •

Yes, there was raw hate there that day at the Polo Grounds. During practice, Iron Man Joe McGinnity, Giant pitcher, shoved Frank Chance, manager and first baseman of the Cubs, off first base. Chance punched McGinnity on the jaw. A free-for-all fight had to be stopped before the game.

• • •

Jack Pfiester, the Cub southpaw ace, started but didn't stay long. Before the first inning ended, Pfiester had yielded a run and old Mordecai (Three-Fingered) Brown was pitching. Giant fans were roaring with happiness because in the box for New York was Christy Mathewson. Matty had thirty-seven victories back of him that year and he was out to make this one the game of his life.

In the second inning, Frank Chance made the first hit of Matty, but the big righthander caught him napping off first.

• • •

Chance didn't like the decision and rushed at Umpire Klem. A shower of pop bottles sailed out from the stands. One bottle hit Chance and broke a cartilage in his neck, but Frank stayed in the game, and in the third inning his Cubs broke the fans' hearts.

• • •

That third inning put the Giants on the ropes. It started with a three-bagger by Joe Tisker, and it kept going until four runs were over the plate.

That's all the Cubs could do to Matty. Those four runs loomed big on the scoreboard and Three-Fingered Brown was determined to see that they stood up. In the seventh, the Giants got the bases filled with none out.

• • •

Larry Doyle went up to bat for Matty, and only looped a foul fly back of home plate. Johnny Kling, the Cubs' catcher looked up and saw one ball and two dozen pop bottles. Kling caught the ball.

Then came a fly to Frank Schulte in right field. Again there was one ball in the air, but a hundred pop bottles. Schulte caught the ball. That made it two out, although Art Devlin had scored from third.

• • •

Tinker grabbed a grounder for the third out and all the bottles and cushions and howls of the Giants' fans went for naught. The score remained Cubs, 4; Giants, 2.

Detroit Red Wings Stage Rally in Third Frame To Draw With Maple Leafs 3-3

Game Replete With Penalties, 12 in All, One of Them a Major

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In more ways than one, it will be "Frankie on the spot" tonight when New York Rangers, perennial' cellar-dwellers, tread the title-encrusted ice of the Montreal Forum to open their National Hockey League season against the champion Canadiens.

In the league's 1946-47 inaugural at Detroit last night, Toronto Maple Leafs gave early support to predictions of a tighter race by battling to a 3-3 draw with the Red Wings, a team that finished last year two places better than the Leafs' fifth. Now it's up to Frankie and his Rangers to draw the extremes together.

From a more personal standpoint, Boucher could use a victory to gain a little more credence for his training camp prediction that Rangers "definitely" will vacate the cellar after their three years occupancy. Then, there's the fact that this is his first season as full-scale manager, with hardly a Patrick visible in the background.

Come from Behind

The Leafs and the Wings battled hammer and tongs before 12,756 cash customers before Sid Abel's 20-foot shot with 11 seconds to play finally deadlocked it.

The marker came after Wings had yanked goalie Harry Lumley to play six men up for the face-off.

The game was replete with penalties, 12 in all and one of them a major for fighting to Detroit's Adam Brown. It was the same Brown who got the only counter scored while either team was shorthanded, beating goalie Turk Broda with Toronto Howie Meeker serving a penalty.

The Toronto scorers were veteran Bob Goldham, rookie defenceman Garth Boesch and Harry Watson, obtained from Detroit in the deal that sent Billy Taylor to the Wings. Rookie Gordon Howe got Detroit's other marker.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 16 (CP)—There's no doubt about it, fishmonger-fight promoter Jack Solomons can hold his own with New York's Mike Jacobs—in the conversation league at least.

The London smoothie was tossed for a big loss when Freddie Mills, his favorite light-heavyweight boxer drawing card, said he would go to the United States rather than stay in England and throw his punches chiefly for the benefit of the income tax collector. But Solomons came bouncing back, talked fast and Freddie fights—in Britain.

Maybe Solomons benefited from his trip to New York earlier this year. He had lots of opportunity to prowl around "Jacobs Beach" and pick up some of the well-known Jacobs palaver.

Two days after Freddie and Ted Broadribb, his manager, conferred with the tax collector and learned their share of any further 1946 fights in this country would net them only two shillings (40 cents) in the pound ($4), Solomons took over. The conversation followed the Jacobs theme.

"Look," said Solomons in his best cigar-in-mouth style, "fight Joe Baksi (the American) in London Oct. 22. Your can have a guarantee or percentage, and there's bound to be a lot of expenses that you can claim in preparing for such an important fight."

In the same breath he pointed out that if Mills went to the United States he probably would spend £10 a day anyway. He said a lot more during the two-hour conference and Mills "saw the light."

It should be interesting when Solomons and Jacobs get together on the proposed world's heavyweight championship battle between Britain's Bruce Woodcock and Joe Louis.

What are the odds London doesn't get it?

An ice-cream seller who uses a whistle to advertise his wares has been told by the police he must not blow it within hearing of a football stadium. One toot decided a soccer cup-tie.

Edmonton, Oct. 17 — (CP) — Coach Earl Robertson has problems — lots of them — but he isn't bothered by a shortage of hockey players for his Edmonton junior Canadians, generally rated Alberta's main challenge this season for the Memorial Cup and Canadian junior puck supremacy.

In fact Robertson, starry netminder with New York Americans of the National Hockey League a few years back, admits he has "such a raft of players" trying for positions on his sextet that after some five practice sessions he still can't identify all the young hopefuls flying up and down Edmonton arena's big ice surface.

On early season form Canadians appeal even stronger offensively than last winter when they waltzed through the city league, upset a strong Moose Jaw Canuck squad then fell before the fast-skating Winnipeg Monarchs in the western Canada finals.

His main defensive hopes hinge on Bob Gray, recruited from Oshawa Generals, and another holdover from 1945, Ron Mathews. Marchant, used on defence by Minneapolis during the recent Cleveland-Minneapolis school at Winnipeg, may also be moved back to bolster the rearguard.

Goaltending worries aren't likely to cause Earl and lost sleep. Johnny Sofiak, young netminder from last year's club is back. His goaltending won high praise in last year's western playoffs. Sparky Milner, with New Westminster of the Pacific Coast Hockey League last season, is also trying for goaltending duties.

Earl won't make any predictions on Canadian's playoff chances next spring. However, he says "The club appears as strong — maybe even stronger — than last year. Anyway, we'll be in there fighting all the way."

A penalty on Grumpy Grose brings out his fiercest bellows The laws he likes are only those that stick the other fellow.

As a rule, bridge players abide by all the penalties provided in the laws. When an objection is made, it is usually because of a wrong interpretation of the laws.

It is well to comply with the penalty laws. There is only one thing about them seems unfair. The vultures pounce on them as if their lives depend on catching you in an unintentional error.

Is it the laws these buzzards are so righteous about upholding? It would not appear so. Because you have noticed how they act when you pull a penalty on them. They are the first to be indignant.

South opened the bidding with two spades when west held this hand:

♠7 5
♥9 6 5
♦A Q J 9 6 5
♣J 6

West stuck in a bid of two diamonds. When told the bid was not sufficient, he said: "Well, then I'll pass." And that stubborn look covered his pan that read: "Then sue me."

North insisted that west must bid something higher. But west kept repeating: "I don't want to go any higher. If you will not let me say two diamonds, I can pass."

West was wrong in claiming that he has the privilege of passing if he does not care to bid higher. According to the laws of bridge, he is compelled to make a bid higher than two spades.

The bridge laws say: An insufficient bid must be made sufficient in the same or another denomination. And after the sufficient bid is made, certain restrictions are put on the offender's partner.

In this case, west may bid three diamonds or any higher number in diamonds. Or he may bid three clubs or three hearts or three spades or two no-trump or any higher number in either of these. But he must bid.

Players have quit the game for less.

Hollywood Column

By BOB THOMAS

Hollywood, Oct. 17 (AP) —Although it has never been adequately explained why, the show must go on, and Charles Laughton is the latest to uphold this mossy theatrical tradition.

Last week Laughton was in New York preparing a play about Galileo when he received a call to come to Hollywood. He was asked to play Haake in "Arch of Triumph," replacing Michael Chekhov who became ill. The English actor accepted and flew to California, studying the script en route.

This week Laughton was before the cameras and not complaining about the damp and drafty stage, despite a severe cold. Nor did he balk at his role, his first portrayal as a German.

"I am having just a little difficulty with the part," he explained, "but I'll hit it. I usually develop a character by finding the walk first. See—

He demonstrated his stride as Captain Bligh, an act which has been immortalized by night club imitators. "Sailors always walk as though they expect the ground to come up and meet them," Charlie explained.

Then he stopped and tried out a Nazi walk. "Those military—" he said, "always walk as though they were wearing high boots." He strutted around some more. "This is it," he declared.

He went back on the set. Though he wore no makeup or uniform, there was no doubt about it—he was a Nazi Colonel.

In the film palaces . . . "The Dark Mirror" is still another of the psychoanalytic pictures. This time Lew Ayres spends 85 minutes to find out which of identical twins (both Olivia De Havilland) committed a murder. The story lacks suspense and is not quite believable.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was helping ma wash the dishes by drying them, on account of being Nora's Thersday off, and he dropped a plate on the floor and it broke in 2 even pieces, pop saying, Horse blanket to blazes, that cant of been my fault, I was holding that plate perfectly.

Oh dear, that reminds me, ma said. The last surviving piece of the Widginware set that my Uncle Harry gave me, and you had to go and break it, and now there's nothing left to tell the tall, not even Uncle Harry, she said, and pop said, Hang it all, it couldn't of fallen more than 2 feet.

Everybody always admired that set of Widginware, ma said. It was one of my proudest possessions, and now just to think, the last link has snapped, oh dear, that's a way things go, she said, and pop said, A really fine plate is suppose to bounce when it only drops such a short distance. It probably had a defect in it, he said.

It was an important set, too, all Widginware comes from England or else it's not Widginware, ma said, and pop said, Say, wait a minute, I heard you distinctly say you weren't going to use anything but kitchin dishes tonight because you had a presentiment that I'd drop something when I helped you wash up.

Oh, I'm not talking about tonight, it was munths ago that you dropped my last piece of Widginware, ma said, and pop said, Yee gods, and you mean to say this plate I just broke isn't even werth talking about for Peet sake?

Certainly not, I'm glad to see the end of that old chipped thing, ma said, and pop said, Then watch the end of this one.

And he dropped another one and it didn't even break, but ma wouldn't let him drop it again and she wouldn't even let him dry any more.

AT THE CAPITOL — Bruce Kellogg hints subtly to Wallace Beery that it would not be beneficial to Beery's health to sell mining stock to the citizens of Gold Town. A scene from Beery's new starring picture for M-G-M, "Barbary Coast Gent," which opens today at the Capitol Theatre, with a cast including Binnie Barnes, John Carradine, Frances Rafferty, Donald Meek, Ray Collins and Chill Wills. The added action hit "Corpus Christi Bandits," stars Allan Lane.

CHAPTER 30.

Nothing could spoil the joy of the next few days. They were just a home group, living in an old whitewashed cottage in a typical California mountain town, but the cottage and the town were too small to hold the happiness that brimmed in their hearts. The little girls had grown their mother perceived, into small romps; something had loosened them of their shyness and quiet; they kept the whole family laughing. Aunt Mansie was bustlingly content with praises of her kitchen, her biscuits and cold corned beef, her well-tried ways with dish-towels, parsley, the prune crop from two prune trees, the watermelon bed.

Contemplation of her father's deep satisfaction was the realest pleasure of all to Isabel; Oliver still went to the store daily, but not for the old regular duties and hours; he had plenty of free time to revel in the little girls' company and drift into long conversations with Isabel.

"Y'mother and I had a couple guinea hens one year—"

"Don't I remember them!"

"Well, we had some neighbors —she was a city girl, didn't belong here and didn't stay long —name don't come to me—"

"Michelsons."

"That's who 'twas, derned if you didn't remember!"

And so on and on in the pleasant drowsy afternoons, while the Hardisty girls and the two Naylor boys and little Amanda Starr played with the trough and the flume and the eight empty packing boxes from the hardware store, and the garden sticks and the four kittens.

Humble and obscure, but what a happy way to live! And what else mattered but happiness? If Dennis had had the right to walk into this picture, if he were just away for a little while, soon to return to his wife and his girls, then it would be heaven, Isabel mused. It would be heaven to see the tall figure, slightly stooped, a little too thin, a little too burned from tropical suns, come across the garden and past the blackberry vines.

But she wouldn't think of that. She was too happy, safe and snug and obscure here at home, chattering with Aunt Mansie and Mrs. Len Wilkinson, who came every day to help with dishes and beds and brooms, planning the children's days, introducing them to hay barns and cow barns to the orchards where men and women were working with wartime fury at peach packing and pear drying; to the windmills and fences, sheds and climbing trees that had made her own childhood world.

They gathered blackberries for supper; Isabel astonished herself and everyone else by compounding a chicken aspic; they picniced almost every night; Isabel's laugh and the chorus of high, baby laughter went on all day long.

"Mummy, could you write Daddy a letter and say that you would like us to stay there for quite a long time, for a hundred days and two weeks and a month?" Catherine asked her.

"I was thinking I would. Not that long, perhaps. But for another two weeks." She stooped to kiss the child, her heart singing.

"Is that as long as nine years, Mummy?"

And this would be another reason to laugh, and to catch Catherine to her in one of the wild embraces that tumbled and bewildered the smaller of her tar babies.

She had ten days of this new heart-filling happiness and then the cable came.

"Meet me Waldorf fifteeth, Avery," it said. Isabel sat for a long time with it in her hand, thinking.

"I can't," she said aloud after a while.

It was a quiet hour; the girls were asleep. Oliver Jordan was dozing in the shady parlor. Aunt Mansie and Isabel were on the north porch, a sunken comfortable porch screened on its only open side, and walked by the kitchen, the hallway, the dining room. Aunt Mansie busily shelled peas, her hands working automatically,her half-closed eyes on space.

"What say, Isabel?" she asked rousing.

"My telegram. It's from—my husband. He's —he may be getting home."

"Well that's good: That relieves your mind. Telegrams used to scare me 'most to death," the older woman mused. "But now they don't seem to mean a thing. Folks send 'em to remind you to bring your rubbers or to tell you that their brother's girl is engaged. I's at Min Cutter's once and if her boys didn't send Lily a telegram to give them a word that stuck them in a crossword puzzle! 'Well,' I says, 'money must be pretty easy with them young folks—"

Isabel was not listening. There was despair in her heart. She knew that there was no alternative; that she had no choice. She must leave for New York at once; she must be there to welcome Avery. This was the the tenth of the month; there was no time to spare. Wilson, in the city office, would manage to get her transportation. Tomorrow night she would be on her way.

The little girls cried bitterly and clung to her. Isabel did not cry. But something turned and twisted like a stiletto in her heart when she saw her father's look; puzzled, patient, hurt. It was harder for her than for them for she had to do it, she had to be the one to decide.

Daddy was going to drive all the way from Sausalito to Sutro's Mill, she told the girls brightly. So they would drive all the way home with Daddy, wouldn't that be fun! Their sad little faces belied the cheerful words.

"You comin' too," Catherine said ingratiatingly.

"And we're going to have our picnic with Michael and Amanda?" Pussy questioned, alarmed.

"Some other time, sweetheart." But even if it came, that other time wouldn't be like this one; they would be older; things wouldn't be the same. Nothing would ever wipe out this bitter disappointment. Isabel set her jaw and got thrpugh the last hours gallantly. She left her children with their adoring grandfather and her aunt; their father was coming to get them the next day; they would go home to a grandmother's care, to a fine school-teaching, baby-analyst of a stepmother; they were all right.

But a sense of having cheated them and failed them went with her as she drove home, filled her thoughts as she watched Edna packing bags, talked to Wilson about tickets, established herself in Compartment B. She tried to read as the train swept northeast toward Sacramento, left the coast valleys and climbed up into the big mountains.

No use. She shut her book; let her magazine slip from her lap. Their little pipestem arms were about her; Pussy was leaning at her shoulder, Catherine sprawled in luxurious baby fashion in her lap. Dennis would come for them tomorrow; perhaps Madge would be seated beside him; Esme and the two Hardisty girls would be relegated to the back seat. Well, they were only children! They would presently be playing house, tying handkerchiefs to the door handles and seat arms.

Now to meet Avery joyfully, and to look her best. If he were delayed—and these were days of innumerable delays—she might have time to run to Janet for a hat. A fall hat with cock feathers perhaps, like the one on the cover of life. Concentrate on the hat. On the glitter and bustle of Fifth Avenue; the new shows; the downtown dinners in smart places Dinner sometimes in the very French restaurants with enormous dishes were written in pale green ink; and given the dignity "L'omelette," "les crepes." These restaurants were small and dark and lined with shelves of old bottles and hooks of shining coppers, and their prices were fantastic. There were other places brighter, not quite so costly, where English was spoken and there were fountains and awnings and trees and the night sky overhead. Then there were the fine hotels, where there was music, and windows opened wide and square upon the park and lighted streets. Avery knew them all and liked them all, and he would telephone all his friends to be sure that every night was a party.

Every night a party. And in all of these places she would sit, smiling, teasing, chattering, silent always looking the way Avery liked her to look, groomed and beautifully dressed, and always wishing that she and Dennis were at some obscure little corner table looking on at all this, not part of it, she and Dennis were presently to go away, together, into the hot night streets, walking slowly home, talking, saying how silly it all was. Always wishing that Dennis might walk in, hold his big lean strong hand out to her, say to her, "Come on, girl. Time to come home to me and the kids."

The thought of New York tired her, somehow. She would begin this great welcome-home holiday already tired.

There was a splendid suite reserved for the Avery Latimers at the mamouth hotel; there were flowers from the management and from the New York office, and there were telegrams from home for her and for Avery. She held those addressed in both names to wait until he came. The breathless hurry in which she had rushed eastward seemed rather silly, in the light of these empty handsome rooms. It might be days before he arrived; there was naturally no way of reaching him, no way of learning when he was expected. If traffic here at home was subject to so many changes and interruptions, what mightn't it be in camps all over the world, at bases and fighting lines?

Isabel wandered forth into the sunshine, saw "little sister" dresses in an avenue window and went in to price them. Everything beautiful, new. Shopping women were smart in summer linens and flowered hats. Everyone commented on the warm weather; Isabel told the saleswoman that she rather liked it, did not add that in airy corner suite on the Waldorf's fifteenth floor there was no such thing as hot weather!

The dresses were forty-seven dollars apiece; simple-looking little dresses, but with knowing silver buttons and peasant embroidery. A hundred dollars was to much to spend for two wash frocks, Isabel decided, and she went away. Farther up the street sturdy dolls in another window interested her; these were expensive, too, but she must send the girls something. Two separate packages, please; little girls liked the excitement of receiving them individually.

The salewoman demurred. She would ask Mr. Kelly. Paper shortage. Box shortage. Isabel yielded this point. She mustn't bother Mr. Kelly.

The long day passed; she would not go to the theatre alone—no fun. The few friends to whose homes she telephoned were away; she dined at a corner table on the Astor balcony, looking out at the swarming crowds pushing slowly up and down Broadway, watching the groups gather and melt in the dining room. Uniforms and uniforms; busy WAVES with notebooks, stout decorated colonels and navy men, enlisted boys in white jackets, olive-drab jackets. The amusement palaces, their lights garnish in the hot, slow dusk, sucked the mob in, vomited it forth tirelessly. Girls linked to men, girls linked to men, loitering along, eating something, stopping in the dead centre of the busiest crossing on earth to look into each other's eyes.

When she got back to the hotel there was no telegram, no message. A second night, a third day dragged by. Isabel telephoned the Warringtons, found Alfred alone in the big city house, made a dinner engagement without much enthusiasm.

On the fourth morning, at ten o'clock, when little Hungarian Marie brought in her breakfast, she saw a telegram on the tray. It had arrived only a moment earlier. Isabel tore it open, heard her own bewildered murmur as her eyes reached the signature. Ann and Phil. The Harmons—what on earth—

She read the wire again. The world stood still. Marie had gone; nothing stirred in the pink -and-cream bedroom, at whose drawn blinds the summer sun was already battering. Slits of bright light lay in lattice on the pink rug; a river steamer, out on the hot river far below the windows poured out a plaintive note.

"Our heartiest sympathy, dear Isabel," the wire said. "Avery was a wonderful person and we shall all miss him."

She was still sitting stricken to stone, when Marie tripped in with more telegrams. Two from Wilson—two from Avery's mother—one from big kindly Joe Pearson, who offered to come at once if there was anything he could do. Joe never could do anything, but he always wanted to. Isabel smiled automatically at Joe's telegram without the slightest consciousness of finding it amusing.

It was a fact then. That was the pattern into which life was going to fall. Avery and his commander and the personnel of the plane all lost; here it was in the paper, too. If the telegrams hadn't come she would have learned it that way; army plane reported lost over Red Sea.

After a while she would have to do something about it. She would have to think about tickets and luggage and starting for home.

Home! It would be a queer home-coming. A great weariness possessed her; she did not want to move, or feel able to move. Not now, not ever. Isabel sat on, and the great city panted and sweated beneath her window into the streets burned hotter and hotter as shadows narrowed and shriveled into the great buildings. The telegrams slipped from her lap to the floor, and her coffee grew cool, turned cold, and still she did not move.

After a while a maid came in and laid great stacks of fresh sheets and pillow slips and towels on a chair, and presently the waiter came up for the breakfast tray. By this time Isabel had gone to the window and was looking down on scorching Park Avenue, and the blocks that were big buildings, and their blue hot shadows.

The telephone rang and the maid answered it. It was Haddon Buckley.

Obituary

LIEUT. COL. DARIUS GREEN

Lieut. Col. Darius Green, 31 Dunbar Street, died in the Belleville General Hospital early Thursday morning after an illness of three months' duration.

The late Lieut. Col. Green was born in Stirling 78 years ago and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Green. For many years he was engaged in farming at Bayside, Sidney township. Some years ago he retired and for the past twenty two months he made his home in this city.

When a young man he became interested in military training and joined the 49th. Hastings Rifles in 1905. He became a commissioned officer in 1907 and placed in charge of H. Company, which command he held until 1912 when he was posted to the Reserve List of Officers with the rank of Major. In 1915 he was recalled to active service and posted to the Second Battalion of the Canadian Expeditionary Force. He retained the rank of Major and went overseas with the Battalion the same year. He served well on active duty and was invalided out in 1917 and returned to Canada. In 1920 he was given Second in Command of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and in 1917 he was gazetted Officer Commanding with the rank of Lieut. Colonel. In 1931 he was posted again to the Reserve List of Officers. Col. Green served well his King and Country and held a high place in the regard of many friends and acquaintances.

In religion Col. Green was a member of the Presbyterian Church being associated at one time with the Presbyterian Church at Stirling and later with St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church ,Belleville. Fraternally he was a Past Master of Stirling Lodge No. 69 A.F .& A.M. and he was also a member of the Independent Order of Foresters.

Surviving are his wife, the former Helen Tulloch; two daughters, Mrs. L. R. Finlayson, Belleville, and Mrs. R. S. Pellow, Toronto; one sister, Mrs. J. O'Leary, Buffalo, N.Y., and one brother, Mr. Fred Green, Trenton.

Resting at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

TRENTON

Thirty-Three Cases Heard In Police Court

Trenton — A lengthy court was disposed of by Magistrate T. Y. Wills and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., in Trenton on Tuesday afternoon. Thirty-three cases were listed on the court docket.

Beatrice Corse of Trenton appeared before the Magistrate charged with the theft of a trunk and several articles of clothing from an employee of a local hotel. The accused was arrested in Peterborough and brought back to Trenton by Sergt. F. J. Taylor and Constable Bob Rutherford. Miss Corse pleaded guilty to the charge and was placed on suspended sentence for one year, on bond of $100.00 and had to pay the costs of the court.

Charged With Theft

Stanley R. Craze and Louis G. Boutilier, both of the R.C.A.F. Station, Trenton were charged with theft of an auto. Craze faces five other charges of theft and Boutilier three charges. The men were arrested by Constables Geo. Crawford and Archie Kemp on King street. Upon searching Craze numerous stolen articles were found on his person. Both men had their cases enlarged until October 22nd. They were represented in court by Malcolm Robb of Belleville.

Case Enlarged

Samuel Carr of Frankford, appeared on a charge of assaulting his wife and his case was enlarged to November 12th.

The following persons were assessed $13 each for infractions of the Liquor Control Act: Joseph P. Faucher, Trenton, Max Chard, Donald Tripp, Frankford, Claude Sharpe, Havelock and Jack Wilson.

Chief Constable Ed. McGeachey of Frankford laid a charge of careless driving against John Svoboda, Batawa. The accused was found guilty on the evidence and fined $10.00 and costs of $14.50.

Albert Clairmont was fined $12.50 for exceeding the speed limit.

For failing to stop for the traffic signal the following were fined $4.50 each: Wm. J. Montgomery, James Wells, Stanley A. Watson, John H. Stewart, Nora Davis, Wilfred E. Austin, and Norman A. McClean.

Three persons were fined $2 each under the parking by-law.

Charge is Laid

A charge of careless driving was laid against Dalton Allison of 48 Heber Street, Trenton, when his car was in collision with another car on Front Street on Monday. The second car was diven by E. LaBrash, 41 Haig Street, Batawa. The car driven by Allison struck the left side of LaBrash's car doing damage estimated at $150.00 while his own car was damaged to the extent of $100.00. Frank Baker, 48 Heber Street, a passenger in Allison's car suffered face cuts and required medical attention.

ASKS INDICTMENT

the preliminary hearing but had been jointly indicted by the grand jury. The case of Evelyn Dick was disposed of now, and, he submitted, while Bohozuk might have a fair trial if he was tried with Donald MacLean, if certain proceedings should take place, neither MacLean nor his wife, Mrs. Alexandra MacLean would be competent or compellable witnesses against Bohozuk.

This would not be the case if Bohozuk were tried separately.

Mr. Tuchtie, for MacLean, said he had no views on the matter, a separate or joint trial would meet his wishes.

Harvey McCulloch, .C., Crown Prosecutor, said as he knew the case a joint trial would give a fairer trial.

Mr. Huchtie told His Lordship that Mrs. MacLean was quite willing to give evidence, should the trial go ahead jointly. Her husband had not objection to her testifying, Mr. Tuchtie said.

Court then adjourned to 1.45 p.m.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 17. (CP)—Industrial stocks declined a point in the index up till noon and the mining groups were down narrowly. Trading volume dwindled to 390,000 shares for the first three hours.

Hiram Walker weakened, 2 points to 119 and most of the interlisted leaders, were down in sympathy with the weak New York market.

Sherritt, off about 15 cents, was a leader on the down side in the Base Metals. Labrador lost 20 cents. Osisko stood out in the gold group with a decline of about 20 cents in active trading. Dome and Lake Shore posted fractional losses.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 17 —(AP)—Stocks generally continued to give ground in today's market without being subjected to much of a selling push.

The pace slowed appreciably after an active opening. Losses of fractions to two points predominated near the fourth hour with scattered issues down four to five. Steels, motors, rails and "blue chip" industrials were in front of the decline.

Led by Hiram Walker's 2½ point loss, Canadian issues tapered off at midday. McIntyre slipped ½ and Canadian Pacific and Distillers Seagram each eased ⅛.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

Toronto, Oct. 17. (CP)—Prices were steady on a plain quality supply of cattle on the Livestock Market here up to mid-session today. Butcher steers and heifers were $10-$12.25, canners and cutters $5.50-$7.50, a few bologna bulls $8.50-$9.50, plain to medium stockers $9-$11.

Calves were steady $15-$16 choice, plain vealers downward to $10.

Lambs wear steady, $14.50 good ewes and wethers $13.50, bucks, $10-$11 culls.

Sheep were steady $3.50-$8.25.

Hogs were, dressed, Grade A $20.25, Grade B1 $19.85, sows mostly $18.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Marketing Service were: Cattle 80, calves 50, hogs 230, sheep and lambs 260. Unsold from yesterday were 600 head of cattle, mostly stockers.

Pacusan Dreamboat Returns to America

Chicopee, Mass., Oct. 17 (AP)—The United States Army B-29 Pacusan Dreamboat which made a flight from Orly Field, Paris, France, to Westover Army Airfield in 12 hours and 25 minutes yesterday prepared to continue to Washington today.

The present transatlantic record by a Two Consetellation which made the Paris-New York run a year ago in 14 hours and 39 minutes.

The Dreamboat took off from Orly Field at 9:38 a.m. (3.38 a.m E.S.T.) and the navigator, Maj. N. P. Hays, said the official landing time was at 4:03 p.m. (E.S.T.) He reported the hop was made at 20,000 feet at an air speed of 305 to 307 miles an hour.

The craft, which carried a crew of 10, recently made a 9,500-mile flight across the Arctic from Honolulu to Cairo.

Threat of Strike In West Coast Shipping Looms

Vancouver, Oct. 17 (CP)— The threat of a strike loomed as a possibility in the west coast Canadian shipping industry today as a meeting of the National Association of Marine Engineers last night flatly rejected the offer by ship owners of an 11 per cent pay increase and demanded recognition for their organization and the payment of overtime.

The meeting was called to discuss ship owners' so-called "procrastination" in reaching an agreement with the Association as to conditions for engineer officers aboard Canadian deepsea ships sailing from British Columbia ports.

An "action" committee was appointed to 'be in continuous readiness to direct any necessary tactics in bringing about a negotiated agreement."

Newfoundland's Tax Structure Blamed for High Cost of Living

By D'ARCY O'DONNEL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

St. John's Nfld., Oct. 17 (CP)— Only 100 miles of sea separate Port Aux Basquee, Nfld., and North Sydney, N. S., but to a central Canadian coming here for the first time the contrast between the two countries is striking.

Possibly the thing which strikes home quickest is the difference in the cost-of-living. For instance an airlines passenger stopping over at the mammouth Gander airport pays $3.50 a night for lodging in a bathless room shared with another person.

The lodgings are in buildings which are neat and tidy, but which from the outside are not unlike the wooden frame buildings erected as armed forces barracks in some parts of Canada.

Meals at the airport, while generally wholesome, lack variety. The prices are $1.25 for breakfast, 1.50 for lunch, and $1.75 for dinner. Similar meals in Canada probably would cost at the most 50, 75 cents and $1.

Cost 40 cts ounce

Alcoholic drinks average about 40 cents an ounce. The bar at the airlines hotel in Gander has an estimated turnover of$50,000 a month.

The Newfoundland government controls the airport, and sets the price for accommodation, food and drink.

An employee of an American Airlines company told this correspondent that for himself and his wife the Newfoundland government charged $240 a month for board. They are charged $75 a month rent for a room with two army cots. Without private bath or any cooking facilities.

However, a new terminal is nearing completion at the airport and the accommodation situation is expected to improve.

No Price Controls

In St. John's, a city of 60,000 population, the prices in the Newfoundland hotel, now operated by the government, are similar to those at Gander for food, but there is a wider variety. A room with bath costs $5 up.

The main difference in prices are:

1. A lack of price controls as rigid as those in Canada.

2. The fact that practically everything the Newfoundlander needs is imported and imports are subject to tariffs ranging as high as 65 per cent.

3. Freight rates.

Tariffs on imports, rather than direct taxes such as income and corporation taxes, are the main source of revenue for the Newfoundland government. And those tariffs are paid by the man who has a small income on the same scale as the high salaried executive.

Canadians might be led to believe that this situation would make most of the 312,000 Newfoundlanders more than anxious to join Canada and get away from the payments of tariffs on imports, most of which come from Canada now.

A Proud People

Such is not the case. Newfoundlanders are a proud people who love their island and indepence. If their responsible governments had not got into financial difficulties in 1895 and again in the 1930's, there are indications that they would for the most part favor a return to responsible government.

They do not complain as bitterly against the payments of tariffs as Canadian farmers complain about the rates of income tax. The Newfoundlander is more inclined to accuse the merchants of charging outrageous prices than to denounce the government for setting tariff rates to high.

Newfoundlanders, too, look with suspicion on any form of direct taxation, such as is known in Canada. They feel they would be taxed heavier under the Canadian than under the island's system.

And taxation is one of the things Newfoundlanders think about when the subject of confederation with Canada is broached. Another thing they point to is the treatment received by the Maritime provinces since they entered confederation.

"I don't think we would gain much by entering confederation, because look at what happened to your Maritime Provinces," is the way one Newfoundlander put it.

Woman Director Would Utilize New Technique in Child Film

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 17. (CP) — A tall, handsome woman with a humorous mouth and slender expressive hands is the "brain" behind a series of special children's movies now being made in Britain, Canada and Australia by Gaumont British Instructional Films.

Miss Mary Field, originally a historical research student at London University, says the guiding principle of her work is that children pay most attention to actors and actresses with whom they can identify themselves.

"I believe films made for children must be built around child actors," she said, "and any adults in the story should play secondary roles."

One example of how a movie can be made glamorous as well as instructive is "The Boy Who Stopped Niagara" now being produced in Canada from a script suggested by Miss Field. It shows how Canadian and America industry would be dislocated if a fictitious juvenile endowed with powers of magic could stop the Falls.

"I believe in using the fairy-tale medium to glamorize a purely factual background," she said. "The chief difficulty in regard to child actors is that children under 14 cannot be used as errand runners and newspaper carriers. No allowance is made for the high educational purpose of our work."

From surveys made throughout England, Miss Field has discovered that only the outer London suburbs and "hard-boiled" Glasgow provide sophisticated child audiences.

Some "Ham" Acting.

"For the majority we find it necessary to slow down the tempo of a film, because children don't like sudden action without previous warning. A certain amount of 'ham' acting is necessary in order to make the action clear to them."

Children, she added, do not laugh at jokes about old age, weakness or other people's misfortunes but hoary jokes, such as a jug falling off a handle, never fail to raise a laugh. Sometimes purely secondary incidents that pass unnoticed with adult audiences are keenly followed by juveniles.

Only long shots of fist fights are shown as it is found that close-ups of blows which a child can identify with itself cause distress.

"So far," Miss Field said, "we have been wary of filming old classic tales. Unless these were properly adapted to the screen the stories might be spoiled for ever for children, just as some old classics have been spoiled for them through being made into chores at school.

"We are, however, trying to devise ways and means of producing the classics for children. We regard this work as a long-term policy."

Every film before being released is seen by an advisory council of 17 members with Lady Allen of Hurtwood as chairman. Members include representatives of government departments and of national bodies interested in the way children use their leisure hours.

"Our aim," said Miss Field, "is to give children the best they can take and every now and then to give them something better."

Fog Fighting at Airports

Flame, Fans and Gigantic Sirens Disperse Ceiling Zero — British War-Time Method of Clearing Fogs to Bring in Bombers is Now Being Used Widely

(By Thomas E. Stinson, Jr., condensed from Popular Mechanics Magazine.-

Zero-weather, the pea-soup kind that cancels all air operations, has yielded to a mechanical hotfoot.

On one recent morning the whole northern coast of California lay under a solid fog blanket 1500 feet thick. At Arcata the flight dispatcher at the Navy's Landing Aids Experiment Station couldn't see even a portion of his runway. Ground operations were at a standstill.

Then, in his earphones, the dispatcher caught a message from an in-bound plane, "Turn on your FIDO, I'm coming in!"

Promptly he twisted several switches and punched a few buttons on a control panel, then watched while two long lines of flame began to outline the landing runway. The dense fog slowly thinned and lifted. Within ten minutes the sun broke through and there was blue sky overhead. The oncoming plane burst out of the fogbank to the east, settled in, and landed normally.

Ten minutes later, with the plane in its hangar and the FIDO installation turned off, the field again was shrouded in fog.

FIDO, which can be interpreted as "Fog, Intensive, Disposal of" or "Fog Investigation Dispersal Operation" depending on whether you live in America or England, was born in Great Britain out of the desperate need for some emergency way to land heavy bombers after sudden fogs had settled over their landing fields. Evaporating the fog by the heat from vast amounts of burning gasoline was the one idea that worked, although the first experimental installation consumed 200,000 gallons of aviation gasoline per hour at a fuel cost of about $4,000 per airplane landed. But the emergency method saved 187 bombers and their crews on one night alone.

Improvements in the efficiency of the apparatus made it feasible to install FIDO at 15 fields, allowing mass take-offs and landing in weather so bad that German meteorologists couldn't understand how Allied bombers dared leave their bases.

Using British-designed burners with some modifications, the U.S. Navy installed a FIDO system at Amchitka in the Aleutians in 1944 and FIDO helped launch and land anti-submarine patrols through fogs and fog-drizzles that were sometimes a mile thick. Two parallel burner lines on one side of the field and one burner line on the other insured visibility in spite of winds up to 15 knots.

Pilots in the sunlight overhead reported that they were able to locate the man-made hole in the fog as far as 15 miles away. The orange tint of the flames were reflected from the edges of the hole both night and day.

Coming down to land, the pilots made standard instrument approaches through the fog and broke out into the clear over the marker burners at about 150 feet altitude. The hot air near the runway was turbulent and created a floating effect but the pilots made normal landings easily.

The Navy selected Arcata, its foggiest continental air station, as the site for an experimental field at which all kinds of efforts to control the weather or to operate in spite of it could be tested.

Using some generators to turn fog into rain to increase visibility is another thing being done at Arcata that disputes Mark Twain's remark that everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything about it.

Sonic generators are immense sirens that produce a tremendous roar. Such sirens with giant wooden horns were audible 90 miles away when mounted on a California mountain top in one series of tests. A person's eardrums would be broken if he walked in front of one of these sirens. Birds are knocked out of the air a block away. The noise tingles the soles of your feet when standing besides the machines.

Tests so far show that the sonic method can create almost 100 per cent increase in visibility; that is, visibility of 100 yards increased to 200 yards after the generators are turned on. The intense vibration bumps fog particles together, forming rain and decreasing the amount of fog in the air. At Arcata, six sonic generators are banked at each side of the runway at the windward end and will be tested for fog dissipation and for preventing the encroachment of fog on the runway.

Powdered drying agents also will be sprayed into the air to observe their effects on fog. Some of the dissicants are known to be effective although some also are extremely corrosive to aircraft metals. High-intensity lights are to receive a thorough testing for their fog-penetration qualities.

The FIDO apparatus at Arcata consists of test lengths of different designs of burners, some of which are high-pressure types, some carried in open trenches, and some which emit their flame through slots in the ground. Each unit of burner length has its own electric ignition and each is controlled from the field's control tower. A typical burner line creates a solid bank of flames two feet high.

FIDO burns a hole through several hundred feet of fog in five minutes and requires about 20 minutes to open up a large hole through 2000 feet of fog during a high wind.

The cost of operating FIDO still amounts to several hundred dollars for landing one airplane, but Arcata is testing a new high pressure burner that uses Diesel fuel oil. This may reduce fuel costs to $150 per plane.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding his paper and ma was reeding hers, saying, Listen to this, William, it's one of the little original rimes that P. Willis Hinkle always ends his collum with, it's particulilly good today, I'll reed it to you.

Which she did, being:

Worries are really most cowardly things,
Just shrug them away and they'll all take wings.

That's what I call an intense thought, pop said, and ma said, Of course, but a thought is just a scrap of paper unless you live up to it, and that's one thought I intend to live up to from now on. I dont care what people do, I'm not going to worry. Go ahad and spill ashes on the table, William, you'll see how much I care, she said.

I'm too comfortable, pop said. It's a lot of trubble nocking ashes on the table when there's an ash tray handy, he said, and said, My budget got away from me this month, and quite a few bills are still awaiting my attention, but I dont care, I'm just going to cheerfilly ignore them. My, I'm feeling better already, she said.

My dear, you're headed for a long and happy life, pop said. If you've got any rinkles they'll iron themselves out into dimples, and your hair will tern coal black, he said, and ma said, Oh dear, William, that's the werst thing you could of said, it reminds me that I saw 2 gray hairs right in the front of my head today, a place where I've never found any before.

Dont tell me you're worrying, pop said, and ma said, This is different, this is serious. I said I wasn't going to worry about what other people did, she said.

Okay, how would you like me to upset the whole blasted ash tray? pop said, and ma said, How would you like to cleen it up again?

Proving she was starting to worry again.

Aim to Have Highway No. 7 Completed

Toronto, Oct. 17 — (CP)— A revival meeting of the No. 7 Highway Association of Ontario was held here. The Association, object of which is to bring about completion of paving of the 461-mile road and to advertise it, was dormant during the war.

All but 70 miles of the highway — which starts in Sarnia, and runs through St. Marys, Stratford, Kitchener, Guelph, Thornhill on highway. No. 11, Lindsay, Peterboro and on to Ottawa — already are paved.

EARLY MEDICINE

Quinine was used centuries ago by South American Indians.

"THANKS TO SYNTONA I AM FREE FROM RHEUMATIC PAIN"

Also Rid of Backache and Dizzy Spells. Sleeps More Soundly Through the Night. "Feel Better in Every Way," Says This Man.

"In the past year I suffered so much with rheumatic pain that it is hard to describe it exactly and it seems easier to tell how I feel today since taking Syntona," said Mr. Robert Peats, 10 Cliftonvale Ave., London, Ont., in a recent statement.

"I know that sluggish kidneys were at least partly responsible for my trouble, because I had to get up several times at night. I was troubled with backache and my joints and limbs were very sore and painful. Many nights I was kept awake by the pain and aches throughout my body. I was subject to dizzy spells with spots darting before my eyes.

"A few weeks ago a friend advised me to try Syntona, so I got some and began taking it. By the time I had finished the first bottle I noticed some improvement and now, thanks to this medicine, I am completely free from aches and pains. I am able to sleep through the night without being disturbed by my kidneys and the dizziness has not trobuled me since. As a result my general health has improved so that I feel better in every way."

Rely on Syntona, the favorite medicine in hundreds of London homes. It is made from 12 of Nature's Finest Herbs and Roots and acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels ..aids in the elimination of excess acids and impurities from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Wave of Strikes Subsiding On Ont. Labor Front

Three Strikes Settled Follow Much Same Pattern

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Ontario's troubled labor front brightened today as conclusion of three more strikes left only a dozen to be settled in the wave of 20 major strikes which paralyzed some branches of provincial industry since last summer.

Last night's settlements at the Chatham and Windsor plants of the Chrysler Corporation, Dominion Rubber Company at Kitchener, and Anaconda American Brass Company at New Toronto, followed much the same pattern —concession and compromise agreements. There were indications that the remaining 12 strikes were headed in the same direction.

At Kitchener indications of pending settlement of the remaining rubber plant strikes were seen today in the report of union executives that union-management talks are again under way in the case of one factory and expected to take place shortly at others. Meanwhile preparatory maintenance work is being hurried at the Dominion Rubber Company's plant for return of 1,200 production workers.

Talks were being held today by the negotiating committee of Union Local No. 73 and representatives of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Company. It was understood the Dominion Tire plant settlement terms were to be used by the union as a pattern for settlement, not only in the case of the Goodrich plant dispute, but in the case of the strike bound merchants and textile factories of the Dominion Rubber Company. Union executives expected negotiations would be under way shortly with the latter two firms.

The Anaconda strike, called five months ago today by Local 811, International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (CIO) to obtain a 19-cents-an-hour wage increase and 40-hour workweek, ended on the basis of a 12 1-2-cents-an-hour increase and provision for re-opening negotiations should the cost-of-living index rise four points over its figure for September, 1946. Number of employees idle in this strike was 1,400.

Though the Anaconda strike was of the longest duration, the Chrysler strike lasted 121 days and the Dominion Rubber strike lasted 115 days.

End of the Chrysler strike came with acceptance by the workers of the Rand formula for union security and wage agreements guaranteeing hourly-rated employees a 12-cents-an-hour increase, and additional three-cents-an-hour increase for minimum-rated employees. Revised vacation plans were also included.

A total of 4,000 workers were affected by the strike, called by the United Automobile Workers (CIO).

Dominion Rubber Company employees will receive total benefits of 16 cents and hour, including a flat wage increase of 13 cents an hour to all employees, retroactive to May 19. Their original demands were for 20-cents-an-hour wage increases and a 40-hour week. The settlement covers a period of one year.

This strike began June 23. Local 80, United Rubber Workers (CIO) was the union involved.
